Perhaps she is sixteen — good to look at, and pretty— quite interesting because she reflects the graces and charm that give promise of happiness to herself and others. But she is not strong. The colour in her cheeks, once so rosy, has faded away —her eyes are listless—the buoyancy of spirit and vigour she once possessed are sadly lacking. Parents, friends, this girl needs Ferrozone—needs it that her blood may be renewed — —needs it to restore the nerve force that growth, study and the development of her fresh youth have exhausted. This girl will become a queen with Ferrozone — which will restore her color—bring back her old-time energy— give brightness to her eyes and vivacity to her spirits. In Ferrozone every girl finds strength—then she can do things. In Ferrozone there is endurance—that drives away morning tiredness and languor. For the girl or woman that wants to be happy, healthy, winning — who values rosy cheeks, laughing eyes and abundant good spirits, nothing can compare with Ferrozone. 50c. per box, or six for $2.50. SESSION OF ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH PROTESTS AGAINST ACTION OF SENATE

COMMUNICATION SENT TO MR. J. H. BURNHAM AND SENATOR NICHOLLS.

At a meeting of the session of St. Andrew's Church on Friday night it was decided to protest against the recent action of the Senate in dealing with the proposed liquor legislation. Accordingly a letter was drafted and submitted on Sunday morning to a joint meeting of the session and Board of Managers when it was approved and ordered to be sent to the Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden. Copies were also sent to the speaker of the Senate, to Senator Nicholls, and to Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P.

Following is a copy of the letter:

In view of the great benefits that have come to this community and to the country as a whole from the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors and especially in view of the greatly increased efficiency of the prohibitory law brought about by the action of the Government of the Dominion in forbidding interprovincial traffic in intoxicating beverages, the Session and Board of Managers of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, Ont., in joint meeting, desire to express appreciation of the efforts of the Government and House of Commons toward making that prohibiton permanent, to protest with all possible vigour against the [illegible] action of the Senate in refusing to enact this measure, to voice the hope that some means be found of averting the disastrous consequences that will otherwise follow the action of the Senate, and to assure you, your government and the House of Commons that, in any action you may take toward this end, you will have our hearty and undivided support.

Mr. Burnham's Reply

Mr. Burnham's reply.

Ottawa, June 23rd 1919.

The Session of St. Andrew's church
Peterborough, Ont.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I have to thank you for a copy of your resolution re Prohibition and the Senate. Let me remark with regard to the latter that the continued violation of the true principle of democratic representation or of any other true principle is bound to work its [illegible] in the end. It should surely [illegible] citizens that the people have a body whose privilege it is to negative their wishes when they feel inclined.

With regard to Prohibition I may say that I believe that this is a violation of another principle and that no christian man or woman can adopt the Prohibition of any means of evil in defiance of the fact that God has not instituted Prohibition of anything and of the fact that if Prohibition were effective at all times and in all things there would be no need of the moral law and the whole scheme of Christ's sacrifice would have been unnecessary and absurd. In your enthusiasm you are certainly over-stepping the mark.

The intense hostility to compulsion manifested in Quebec is spreading everywhere and you will unquestionably defeat the ery great benefit of strict regulation by insistence upon a policy that is neither morally right nor physically possible.

Yours truly,
J. H. Burnham.

PENSION INCREASE IS RECOMMENDED

Committee is Favourable to Increases — Present Pension List Contains 44,000 Names.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, June 24.— Hon. N. W. Rowell's committee on soldiers' and sailors' pensions have recommended various increases and bonuses to disabled soldiers and relatives of deceased soldiers. Two thousand will be affected by these increases which will amount to half a million per annum. About forty-four thousand persons, not including women and children, are on the pension list at present and they estimate the pension liability in all is thirty-nine million dollars per year.

MINERS TIRE OF LOAFING

A despatch from Fernie, B.C., says that after nearly four weeks' strike in the coal mines here and throughout district number 18, with apparently no outward attempt toward settlement, the miners' headquarters have applied to Premier Oliver for the appointment of a commission to investigate wages and working conditions within mines, and have undertaken that upon this request being granted, the strike should be declared off within 24 hours.

Operators at the Consolidated Soker plant have not been affected by the strike, as the smelter had a large supply of coke on hand when it started.

MAYOR CHURCH HOLDS POW-WOW

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, June 24.—There was a meeting of citizens in the Mayor's office to-day to discuss the tie-up since Sunday of the Toronto street railway service. The proceedings were private, but it is expected that a statement will be given out later. Brigadier-General Gunn, commanding the military district, was one of those present. No attempt was made this morning to run cars, as the company had decided to await a more opportune moment.

An Instantaneous Wrinkle Remover

The average woman is always surprised to learn, after experimenting with all sorts of patent so-called "wrinkle removers," that the most effective remedy in the world is a simple face wash which she can make herself at home in a jiffy.

She has only to get an ounce of pure powdered saxolite from her nearest druggist and dissolve it in half a point of witch hazel. Apply this refreshing solution to the face every day for a while. The result is charming—marvelous. Even after the very first treatment the wrinkles show less plainly and the face has a nice, firm, comfortable feeling that is thoroughly delightful and lends self-confidence in one's appearance. This harmless home remedy is used by thousands of women to obliterate the unwelcome traces of time.

ANOTHER ARREST IS LOOKED FOR

TOM KONEK IS VERY ILL AT THE COUNTY JAIL.

Further developments in the murder of Philip Yannoff, near Havelock, last Sunday, point to a most brutal, cold-blooded and premeditated murder. A net is being laid over the city of Toronto and another arrest is expected soon in connection with the murder. Two of the men, Bahri, who formerly worked at the quarry, and Martynoff, who have been kept apart at the county jail have made a statement, which implicated another man in Toronto, and which substantiates the belief of the Provincial Police, that the gang are the one and the same that worked such mischief some time ago.

Both Martynoff and Bahri state that the other three men came from Hamilton, but the police are of the opinion that the two men are trying to crawl out of the affair at the expense of the other three men confined downstairs.

Tom Konek, who was reported to be very ill yesterday, is no better today, and seems to be suffering from an affliction which affects the mind.

High County Constable Archie Moore has just returned from Havelock, where he made a personal investigation and he reports that the first story of the circumstances surrounding the murder is almost correct in every particular.

According to Bahri, the five of them left Toronto on the 11 o'clock train, as reported, and landed in Havelock at 2.30 a.m.

In the C. P. R. yards they spread a newspaper and one of them produced a bottle of whiskey, which was drunk to the dregs before the men started to the quarry. They opened a tent door at the quarry where a number of people were sleeping, but left them undistrubed and proceed to the bunk house, where the employees (eight of them) slept. They slid quietly up the staircase masked, and with a searchlight in action and all —according to the men who were awakened by the shot with the revolvers pointed ahead of them. They turned the search light on the first bunk nearest to the door, where Yannoff slept ,and the strong light on his eyes caused him unconsciously to move about, which alarmed one of the robbers, who immediately fired.

The shot awakened the rest of the men and the robbers proceeded quietly to search diligently for the cash, and altogether got away with $700, which however was by no means all that was in the bunk house at the time. The wounded man sat up in bed and pleaded for a drink, but one of the robbers with an oath and a brutal shove pushed him back in the bunk after which Yannoff expired.

The robbers warned the men if they moved for five minutes after they left the building they would be shot, and at the end of that time one of the men gained enough courage to inform the superintendent, Mr. S. Bradley, and together with Mr. Williams they followed the robbers until the sensational capture by Despatcher Riceborough at Indian River station.

YOUNG MAN FELL OUT OF THE CANOE

THE FOLLY OF TRYING TO SECURE A LIGHT WHILE IN A CANOE.

Although small, a common match sometimes has big results. Frequenters of the lower river last night witnessed a play in one act, revolving around an ordinary lucifer which was intended to light a cigarette.

Two young men of this city were paddling on the river when one of them decided that a cigarette would not be unacceptable, but lacked the wherewith to light the coffin nail. Floating down the river in a canoe was one of the young man's friends, a young lawyer of this city, who was asked for a match. As the two canoes approached the young man leaned over the edge of the canoe, tipping it to such an angle that his companion, who was sitting on the thwart at the bow of the canoe, lost his balance and went overboard. His language when he reached the water was most expressive and it is reported that a young lady of this city very gallantly came to the rescue and towed the water-logged young man to shore. Efforts were made to find dry clothes for the rescued party, but none could be found to fit in any of the camps in the vicinity, and with visions of ma and pa with the barrel stave behind the stove, the young man decided to be a fresh air enthusiast and remain in the great outdoors until his nether garments had dried to such an extent that his parents would not notice his water-logged condition and he would be able to climb upstairs to bed, always a place of solace in time of storm.

The young man took the occurrence, after the first explosion, with a pinch of philosophy, and to the gibes of his companions, immediately appended Aesop's fable anent the fox and the grapes.

BULLET RECOVERED THIS MORNING

BODY OF MURDERED MAN REMOVED TO TORONTO.

A post mortem was held on the body of Philip Yannoff, the murdered Austrian, at Havelock on Sunday, but the bullet which killed him could not be located. The body was brought to Peterborough this morning and in Nicholls Hospital, Drs. Moir of this city, and Young, by means of an X-ray, located the bullet. The body was sent to Toronto this afternoon on the 3.30 C.P.R. train for burial.

One hundred dollars of the stolen money was located in a corner of the waiting room at Indian River by a son of the station agent there, and Chief Thompson, accompanied by three of his men, recovered the money when they motored to Indian River yesterday, and handed it over to Constable Moore to-day.

In event of being committed for trial by Magistrate Langley, the five Russians will appear for trial before Chief Justice Sir William Mulock at the Fall Assizes on September 30th.

STEELE FOR ROUMANIA

NEW YORK, June 18.—Reginald Ford, an Englishman, 29 years old, one of the largest steel manufacturers in France, who is said to have controlled 80 per cent. of the Spanish steel output during the War, arrived at the Ritz-Carlton yesterday to place orders for $50,000,000 worth of steel, most of it for the Roumanian Government. One of the first requirements of Roumania, said Mr. Ford, is a bridge across the Danube to facilitate the shipment of the wheat crop, counted upon to restore Roumanian credit. The bridge must be completed by February.

The old bridge was blown up early in the War, and is now in Germany, reconstructed and offered to the Roumanians for a high price. Mr. Ford said the Roumanians had declined to treat with the Germans, and that he had gone to Britain, where he found the delay in construction would be too great, and then here.

ASSASSINATION OF PRINCE MICHAEL OF SERBIA

The summer residence of Prince Michael of Serbia was in the beautiful park of Topidere, Belgrade, and it was his usual custom on hot afternoons to walk with his family along a shady path which he had had cut through his favorite walk and the Karageorgevic conspirators had no difficulty in laying their plans accordingly. On the afternoon of June 10, 1868, the Prince set out for the park with his aunt, her daughter, and granddaughter, his only retinue consisting of a single aide-de-camp and a groom. As the little party were walking along the narrow path under the trees four men came suddenly round the corner, and, with a respected salute, stood aside to allow the Prince to pass. Scarcely had he done so than four pistol shots were heard from behind, and the Prince fell, expiring in a few moments. His cousin, who was mortally wounded, died two hours later; her daughter was severely wounded, the aide-de-camp fainted, and the Prince's aunt and the groom alone escaped unhurt. In order to make certain of their victim's death the assassins drew their knives and plunged them repeatedly into his prostrate body—no fewer than forty wounds were afterwards counted. It was owing to this delay, and the breakdown of their carriage on the way back to Belgrade, that the murderers—two brothers named Radovanivic a woman named Marie and a desperado named Rogic—were baulked of the results which they had confidently anticipated from their horrid deed—the proclamation of Peter Karageorgevic, son of the ex-Prince Alexander. When at last they reached Belgrade; the rulings had preceded them. The garrison were under arms, the energetic Ministry of War—Petovic Blackaavic — was master of the situation, and the chief conspirators were speedily arrested. The Assembly proclaimed Michael's nearest relative — his cousin Milan then barely fourteen—as hereditary Prince of Serbia, under the title of Milan Obrenovic IV.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

Speaking from the text, "There was no room for them in the inn" (Luke 2:7) Evangelist H. D. Kennedy gave another powerful address last evening in the big tent on Hunter street. He emphasized at the outset that this verse was not in the Bible by accident but that it was there for a purpose. In fact, he said there are no verses in the Bible by accident. The Scriptures are a complete revelation to man of his need and reveal unto man all that he needs pertaining to salvation.

The incidents pertaining to Christ's birth were historically true. Christ was not only born in another man's stable but he died on another man's cross and was buried in another man's grave. His first companions were cattle, His last thieves. His first pillow was of straw, His last was a crown of thorns. Even the palm branches that were used with which to salute Him upon His triumphal entry into Jerusalem did not have time to dry before the crowd took part in His crucifixion. When the Prince of Wales came to Canada he was given a great official welcome. This was true also of Lord Balfour and of other great men. When noted Chinese statesmen came to this continent they were banqueted and honoured. "Were Christ to come," asked the speaker, "could He count on receiving the same honour Just as He was not wanted in the inn and throughout His life was despised and persecuted so are His followers treated in the same way. Today, He would not be wanted as the Kaiser of Germany, nor as the King of England nor as the President of the United States. The real cause of the great war was the fact that fifty years ago the destructive criticism of the Scriptures was started in Germany, breaking down the faith of the people and giving way to a new spirit of force and greed, which naturally led to the war. The Kaiser made prayers to God in public but never mentioned Christ, who is the only means of access to God.

Without Life

Mr. Kennedy asked if Christ is in the pulpits of our churches, in the meetings of the ladies' aid and of the other church organizations. When the disciples quarrelled among themselves it was always when Christ was not present. The reason the inn-keeper rejected Christ was because he did not know who he was turning away from his door. If anyone thinks that they are unworthy to receive Christ they should remember that Christ being divine knew before hand that He would be born in a stable, yet chose that as His birthplace. He is willing to enter the most sinful heart upon request. Mr. Kennedy asked if the plant had room for the bloom, if the tree has room for the sap, if the body has room for blood, if the engine has room for steam. The life that lacks the life that is found only in Christ lacks the one needful element. Without that life there is no life at all.

Tonight Mr. Kennedy will speak on the subject, "The Second Chance" and tomorrow night on "Hoeing your own Row." His addresses are becoming more interesting and powerful night by night. The attendance last night was much larger than the corresponding night last week, bearing evidence of the increasing interest being taken in the meetings.

On Thursday of this week there is to be an all day prayer meeting in the basement of the George Street Methodist Church starting at 10 o'clock. People who are working and who can do so are invited to attend during the noon hour.

The singing continues to be greatly enjoyed. Last evening the members of the Mark street Church led the singing. Solos were rendered by Miss Kemp and Mrs. Wand. Tonight the members of the Trinity Church Choir will lead the singing and contribute the special features.

Kennedy Nuggets

Some folks get converted alright. Then just sit down and do nothing. just like getting into a Pullman car and asking the porter to make you up in eternity. Unless you are developing as a Christian, you are going back, there is no standing still. Every tree in the forest that is not growing is decaying.

Some people are first the blade, then the blade, then the blade, they never bear fruit.

If you have done wrong, confess it to God, forsake it, then forget it and press on to what is before.

Get right with God and right with men, then forget the past. God can put better things into to-morrow for you, than He ever did into yesterday.

What man by taking thought can bring yesterday back?

Never allow a grudge or an unforgiving spirit to remain in your heart over night.

Hatred is a bad bed fellow. Nothing so narrows the soul as an unforgiving spirit. No matter how people wrong you, forgive, for you have wronged God more than anyone ever wronged you.

You may be a church member, yet in God's sight, "a down and out."

A sense of man's responsibility to God is the most controlling influence that can come into his life.

The standard of righteousness in any community depends upon its women.

National life never rises higher than home life.

An evil thought may not make a man a criminal in the sight of the law, but does make him a sinner in the sight of God.

Subject Tuesday night, "A Second Chance."

On Thursday an all day's meeting will be held for fasting and prayer.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

HAMILTON WHOLESALE GROCER EXPLAINS REASONS FOR INCREASE AS HE SEES THEM—DENIES COMBINATION.

OTTAWA, June 20.—His grandmother used to boil whole wheat for porridge, and very good porridge it was; whereas, to-day people buy Shredded Wheat and prepare it by simply applying boiling water, Canadas' ash cans, in his estimation, receive one million dollars' worth of waste comprised in the lead paper and labour used in the wrapping of packages of tea only.

The selling of goods in packages, instead of in bulk, as in years gone by, has increased the cost of food as much as three to five hundred per cent. The cost of living could be reduced only by saving more food produced in Canada. To get production you must get people to stay on the land. To accomplish this the small towns of Ontario must be made brighter and better social centres, for the surrounding farmers could buy just as cheaply at the country store as in the big city stores. They should cut out the mail order business, and help their local merchants. Many of the country towns were going to ruin, and the Government should do something to revive them.

Prepared to Argue.

These and other shafts of light were flashed upon the dark problem Hamilton, at the proceedings before of the cost of living by H. C. Beckett, of Gulland & Co., wholesale grocers, the Cost of Living Committee. R. A. Pringle, K.C., the committee's newly appointed counsel, being unavoidably absent, his place was taken by George F. Henderson, K.C. But Mr. Henderson did little talking. The dialogue was confined to the witnesses and the members of the committee. Mr. Beckett, armed with a mass of papers, came prepared to argue his case for the Wholesale Grocers' Association of Ontario, which was under fire. And he argued it as lustily and dominantly as most K.C.'s could have done. Mr. Beckett might almost have been conducting the proceedings himself from the assurance of his manner. More than one onlooker thought that had Mr. W F O'Connor been on the job Mr Beckett might have been less voluble, and possibly more informative

No Tears Shed.

A tag day in Toronto for Indigent Wholesale Grocers would be in order if one took Mr Beckett seriously. No one wept at the meeting, for the supply of tears had been already exuded on most brows or absorbed in wilted collars.

"The only way for a wholesale grocer to make money is to speculate," quoth Mr. Beckett, "to buy in quantities when foods are cheap and to take a chance of making something on the rise. Competition is so keen that we barely make one per cent. on our turnover.

He admitted, however, that certain lines of goods were turned over a number of times yearly at this rate.

No Combination.

"We have no combination of any kind to regulate the selling of goods to the retailers and we have never had a meeting of any kind to fix the price of goods to the retailers.

Thus emphatically did Mr. Beckett deny that the Wholesale Grocers' Association of Ontario, which includes 72 firms in its membership, was a combination in restraint of trade. He did admit, however, that grocers had tried to line up the manufacturers. He declared that 95 per cent. of the manufacturers had been selling at special prices to certain large retailers, and that the Wholesale Grocers' Association had requested the manufacturers to either sell to all wholesale grocers at this most favoured rate or to discontiue such unfair discrimination.

Changed Conditions.

"Twenty-five years ago the poor man bought corn meal in bulk, but to-day he buys corn flakes in a package," quoth Mr. Beckett, illustrating changed conditions which had made for higher prices. He then cited as shown above some reasons for dear food and the remedy.

Mr. Pyke, secretary of the Wholesale Grocers, declared that his association had protested against the manufacturers selling to certain big retail stores. Percy Eby of the Eby-Blain Co., declared that the reason the York Trading Co. had not been admitted to the Wholesale Grocers' Association was because they believed the York Company to be merely a combination of Retail Merchants trying to cut out the wholesalers, who were an economic necessity and had a right to protection. For similar reasons Mr. Beckett had thrown the application of a certain Farmers' Co-operative Association which applied for membership, in the waste paper basket.

Hugh Blain, over forty years in Toronto in the wholesale grocery business, objected to Mr. Beckett's calling buying of grocers for future profit speculation. It was merely prudent buying. Speculation was profiteering.

COURSES FOR THE WAR VETERANS

It is desired by the Soldiers' Aid Commission of Ontario to draw attention of soldiers returned or returning from service, to the provisions made for re-education and for instruction in vocational training, where such is desired.

The association has recently issued a pamphlet, which gives in full detail instruction and information in regard to courses, both in manual training and in educational subjects. Copies of this pamphlet have been received at the local branch office, in this city, and for disposal to those interested. The office is in the city building, and time.

This department of work, in the interest of the soldier, has grown very materially in the last year. Some sixty-five courses are now available, and will be added to as required. Instruction is given by various means and includes, under heads, the following:

1. Hospital classes.
2. Soldiers' Aid Commission special classes.
3. Technical schools.
4. Trade schools, (private management.)
5. Commercial colleges.
6. University classes.
7. Manufacturing and private owned plants.

The whole educational machinery of the province of Ontario is co-operating with the Soldiers' Aid Commission and the Invalided Soldiers' Commission in providing a wide range of instruction.

Allowances are made for subsistence of the soldier, or for the soldier and family while the course is being taken. Full preliminary information can be had at the local branch office, or by letter to the superintendent of re-education, Soldiers' Aid Commission, 116 College street, Toronto, Ontario. Medical advice and vocational advice will be given by experienced officers, conversant with the needs of industry, the opportunities for employment and the suitability of certain vocations to particular disabilities.

All men returned from service and who have in view taking up courses should consult at once with the people in charge at locations as given above.

Paper promises to play a significant part in reconstruction work in Northern France and Belgium. Ideas taken from the Germans and extension of present uses by American and British manufacturers are being combined. Despite the shortage in wood pulp and its products the work is going forward rapidly. Waterproof pasteboard houses, easily handled and put together are probably the most important development. Such houses have oiled paper in place of glass windows. They will be put together with screws made of wood pulp, screws that are equally serviceable in wooden houses, and which have the added advantage of taking colors of the material in which they are placed. Tables, chairs and other bits of furniture now are being made of paper. Even kitchen utensils are so constructed.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

ORIENTALS AND WAR VETERANS MEET TO-NIGHT

The Great War Veterans have two or three new players in line for to-night's game with the Orientals in the City League series, and with the reinforcements expect to give Manager Solomon's Orientals a fight all the way. The Orientals are now in second place, camping on the trail of the Packers, but to keep in the running cannot afford to lose another game. They are not taking any chances in to-night's fixture, for it is announced that Kiern will be on the rubber for them. The game is called for 6.45 o'clock and should be a good exhibition.

The Matthews-Blackwell team will journey to Lindsay to-morrow to clash with the Oddfellows' team which played here several weeks ago. The Packers are determined to get revenge for the defeat handed out to them by the Lindsay outfit on that occasion.

Matthews-Blackwell and De Laval meet in a City League fixture on Thursday night that promises to be one of the most exciting of the season.

On Saturday the Packers will meet the Westinghouse team of the Hamilton City League at Riverside Park. The Westinghouse team are touring Eastern Ontario and should prove a great drawing card as they are one of the strongest outfits in the west.

There is a meeting of the executive of the Central Ontario League at Lindsay to-morrow night, in which several protests will be decided.

NEAR DROWNING AT INVERLEA PARK

LITTLE DAUGHTER OF MR. J. M. FANNING HAD NARROW ESCAPE.

Another drowning accident was barely averted at Inverlea Park yesterday at about 5.30 p.m., when the little daughter of Mr. J. M. Fanning, grocer on George street, was saved by the timely presence of Misses Jean Elliott and Gertrude Hood. Miss Hood saw the little girl go out of sight just inside the wire, which stretches between the bridge and the end of the wall. She yelled to Miss Elliott, who was outside the wire. However, before Miss Elliott reached the little girl she had disappeared for the second time. Miss Elliott was not able to rescue the girl herself, but Miss Hood arrived and helped to take the little one to shore.

This is the second time that little ones have had to be saved from inside the above mentioned wire.

MR J. H. BURNHAM, M.P., DISCUSSES CREDITS TO ROUMANIA IN HOUSE

Discussing in the House the question of granting credits to Roumania with which to buy Canadian goods, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., had the following to say, as reported in Hansard;

Mr. Burnham: The most serious question before the country to-day is the high cost of living, and if we bonus certain industries at the expense of the general consumer the high cost of living for the consumer will not go down but will go up, and there will be greater unrest than there is now. The hon. member (Mr. Stevens), at the close of his remarks, said that there is a great temptation to make use of, or to take advantage of, the foreign market at the enhanced price. That is to say, the subsidised exporter is to have the benefit of this credit at the expense of the general consumer. But the general consumer will not stand for it. It is all very well to have a brilliant prospect, but it may be a rainbow dream; and that is what this is. If the money we were making by taking advantage of the foreign market and of foreign possibilities inured to the general benefit of Canada, then the argument would be justifiable; but when it is not so, you are, to use plain language, robbing the general consumer in order that the exporter may profit. The people of Canada are endeavouring to find out what the difficulty is, and when they find that it is that our butter, eggs, meat, and so on, are being rushed to a foreign market which is subsidised by our own people, and that they are being tortured accordingly, I am very much mistaken if they do not rise up and call a halt, saying: The limit is the suffering which we have to endure and the extra high prices which we are asked to pay, but which we refuse to pay. If we are going to play fast and loose with the affairs of the country in this way and take advantage of a temptation which is only going to carry its own sting with it, any attempt to solve the difficulty will be hopeless.

There is a prevailing heresy amongst some members of this House that if you sell goods in a given market you can always buy other goods from that market; that people must have goods bought from them if they expect to buy goods from you, or you hope to sell to them. That takes no account whatever of the element of profit, all of which is comprised in the single phrase "rate of exchange." Everybody knows that when the rate of exchange is against a country as it is against Canada and in favour of the United States at the present time, this country pays from $13,000,000 to $15,000,000 in hard cash for the privilege of having the balance of trade against it—and that is the very thing that has come up in this argument now. To my mind, it shows a complete absence of a grasp of the difficulties of the situation.

CATTLE MARKET

There was a quiet market yesterday with a light run offering. Prices were steady at yesterday's decline.

Calf market strong, choice selling freely at $19 to $19.50.

Yearling lambs selling well from $14 to $14.75. Light mutton steady, but heavy sheep not wanted.

The hog market is easier, and packers' bid prices are a dollar lower, but up to noon no tickets were marked, and it was still a question whether the market price would be $22.25 fed and watered, or $22.50.

Peace and Power Transmission

Imagination is not stirred by pulleys or shafting, yet human life, from the cradle to the grave, depends for a great deal of its comfort upon their existence.

Grain Elevators, Railroad Shops, Machine Shops, Coal Mines, Laundries, Bakeries, Docks, Furniture Factories, Auto Factories—every business that consumes power must have the things we manufacture.

Judge, then, how industry would be paralyzed if Dodge Service failed. A Power Transmission Machinery Plant is not created over night. The human element, which takes years to train, is a tremendous factor in its success.

What has this to do with you? The answer is: Economy of Power Transmission is the first step towards reducing overhead expenses. Reducing overhead expenses without impairing efficiency is the perpetual problem of wide-awake employers.

We are helping many firms to solve this problem. Let us assist you.

War's demands made us efficient; and at that we were by no means slothful. But industrial competition makes us keener. Test us with your next order.

THE HUNTER STREET BRIDGE

Mr. Guise-Bagley's letter is complained of as being libellous and the Examiner wholly repudiates any responsibility for his unfounded and untrue statements of charges and innuendoes.

Mr. Frank Barber, the City's engineer in charge of the construction of the Hunter street bridge, has instructed his solicitors, Messrs. Crooks, Roebuck & Parkinson, of Toronto, to commence an action against this journal for damages for the publication of the letter written by Mr. James G. Guise-Bagley, barrister and solicitor, of Peterborough, which appeared in this journal on the 18th. June, 1919. The complaint of Mr. Barber against Mr. James G. Guise-Bagley is as follows:—

Toronto, June 20th, 1919.
WITHOUT PREJUDICE

The Editor,
"The Evening Examiner,"
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

We beg to notify you that we have received instructions from our client, Mr. Frank Barber, to at once commence action against you for damages for the publication by you of an outrageously libellous and damaging article, entitled, "The Hunter Street Bridge," which appeared in the issue of your paper of Wednesday, the 18th inst. The article in question is so utterly untrue and unjust in every sentence, as well as in its general tenor and effect, and is written with such obviously malicious intention to do injury to our client in his professional capacity as well as to his private character, that no alternative is left to us but to at once lay the matter before the court in an action for heavy damages.

The article is signed by one Jas. G. Guise-Bagley, but the charges it contains of professional malfeasance and absolute dishonesty, are so flagrant, and are so utterly at variance with the high reputation which our client enjoys in your city, as elsewhere, that you cannot but have accepted responsibility for the defamation in giving it publication, and particularly so as you place this scandalous letter under a heading in black-faced type on the front page of your paper.

Among the many untrue statements made in your article, appears the following: "He (the architect) specifies what firms are to supply the materials to be used. Needless to say those firms would not be named if they were not, say, friendly to the architect. Every contractor that bids on the work knows he will have to bribe the architect if he wants to escape trouble, and the merry game goes on because the contractor always makes an allowance in his tender for the architect's rake-off. Now this bridge contract and specification is exactly on the lines above indicated."

The above statement is not only highly objectionable in its innuendoes, but it contains a direct and positive charge of corruption on the part of our client. Though the name "architect" is used, the person referred to is Mr. Barber as he is the official whose duties are those specified. The whole context shows the reference is to the engineer.

Not only so, but you go on to suggest that the bribery and corruption described may have already taken place, you say:

"There are letters from the Engineer suggesting firms from whom the materials are to be obtained, and the hint that one named firm's goods have been inspected and would be approved."

Taken in this context, no reader could avoid the thought that you intend to infer that a corrupt understanding is already in existence between our client and the firms referred to.

You say that "Mr. Barber told the Council that he had put two contractors out of business on other work."

Mr. Barber has put no one out of business, nor did he ever make such a statement as you attribute to him.

You say that "contractors are all afraid of him, and that is the reason why local contractors as a body have avoided the bridge contract up to the present time."

No contractor, who honestly intends to live up to his contract, has cause for fear of Mr. Barber, for, he is afraid in fact. The writer does not intend the compliment that the dishonest ones fear Mr. Barber's ability to protect the city. He says, "all" contractors are afraid, a statement that is ridiculously untrue, and is libellous, and damaging to our client's professional reputation.

And you go on as follows:— "And it is said that no contractor that is not in a position to handle Mr. Barber will ever get through this contract without trouble."

In view of your proceeding charges of dishonesty, the word "handle" in such a sentence can convey no other than a corrupt meaning. In its plain sense and to an ordinary reader, it implies that the contractor on this work must be prepared to bribe our client.

The next paragraph contains the insinuation that there is a corrupt understanding between the Russell-Townsend Company and our client, the Engineer, whereby it is arranged in advance that the engineer will wilfully neglect his duty to the city in order to corruptly advance the interests of the company. You have charged this company and our client with entering into a criminal conspiracy.

You follow these direct and terrible charges against Mr. Barber, by objecting to the "temptation" which you say is offered to "engineer and contractor to work graft," and you say that if "anything like mutual interest is even established between engineer and contractor (which you have already specifically charged,) there is a door wide-open to the ratepayers being beaten."

These are not by any means all the objectionsl statements contained in your article, but they are sufficient for the purposes of this letter. There is not and you must know there is not a shadow of truth in any single one of the brutally libellous statements you have published. The man you have slandered is the respected officer of a number of municipalities. He has occupied the important position of engineer upon actually hundreds of occasions and has discharged the trust to which you object, in the building of scores of costly public and private undertakings. This is his profession. You are the first to even question his professional probity. His reputation for absolute integrity, honesty, fairness and skill in his profession, is so widely known throughout the province, and particularly in Peterboro, where he has enjoyed the confidence of the authorities in a great public enterprise, that we cannot explain your slanders on the ground of ignorance. The attack upon him can have no motive of which we can conceive other than malice.

Under these circumstances we propose to protect our client to the full extent of Canadian law and we are accordingly writing this letter to give you notice that, excepting only such time as may be necessary for you to reply, our writ will forthwith issue for $50,000 damages and the cost of the action.

Yours truly,
CROOKS, ROEBUCK & PARKINSON.
per (Sgd.) A. W. Roebuck.

This journal takes advantage of the earliest opportunity to repudiate any and all responsibility for the untrue, unfounded and unjust statements, charges and innuendoes contained in the letter written by Mr. James G. Guise-Bagley and most unreservedly withdraws each and all of the several statements, charges and innuendoes therein contained.

Mr. James G. Guise-Bagley's letter was handed to a junior reporter of this journal just as he was about to leave for lunch, and he saw that it was signed by a reputable solicitor of Peterborough and referred to the Hunter Street bridge, which has been a subject of great public interest to the ratepayers of Peterborough, and has been very much discussed in the public press. The reporter regarded the letter complained of as a criticism of the plans and specifications of the bridge and did not appreciate that it casted any reflections on Mr. Frank Barber and the Russel Townsend Co., and owing to other unexpected engagements he had, he did not have an opportunity of revising the proof of the letter complained of.

The letter in question was published without the knowledge or approval of the proprietor of the Examiner or of any of its editorial staff, and the wholly repudiate any charge of malice or gross carelessness on their part or on the part of the Examiner.

This journal most willingly publishes its retractation and tenders to Mr. Barber and the Russel Townsend Company, its respectful apology for the innocent part it played in giving publicity to what was [illegible] true, unjust and wholly unfounded statements, charges and innuendoes contained in this letter written by Mr. James G. Guise-Bagley.

This journal readily attests and recognizes the high standing of Mr. Barber in the profession to which he belongs and publicity recognizes his reputation for absolute integrity, honesty, fairness and skill in his profession and is most worthy of the confidence that has been and is being reposed in him.

DATED, June 23rd., 1919.

Managing Director of Peterborough Examiner.

Voice of The People

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE CONTRACT.

Sir,—My attention has been called to the fact that Mr. Barber takes exception to the letter on this subject lately written by me to your journal, and appearing in your issue of the 18th inst., and considers it libellous. I am both surprised and pained to think that anything written by me could be so construed. Nothing was further from my mind than an attack upon Mr. Barber, and I hasten to say in the most public manner that I make no attack either by way of innuendo or otherwise on him, nor any suggestion derogatory of him or any aspersion on his honour or integrity. So far as I know, he is a most upright, honourable, honest man, a capable engineer, and an ornament to the honourable profession to which he belongs, and if any person has the impression that my letter in the slightest degree reflects on Mr. Barber I can only say I am exceedingly sorry, and wish to remove any such impression; and I would tender to Mr. Barber the assurance that I regret any such impression should have been made by me so unintentionally. In my letter I distinctly stated that I was not attacking Mr. Barber, and this I now repeat.

I may say this letter is written by me voluntarily. Mr. Barber has not even communicated with me, my object being to remove as soon as possible every suggestion casting any slur on the engineer personally, which I never intended to do.

I withdraw most unreservedly any statements or innuendo contained in my letter, which might cast any reflection on the honour and good name of Mr. Barber or his standing in the profession to which he belongs; and if by reason of my letter any injustice has been done to Mr. Barber, I am very sorry for it, and exceedingly regret it, and tender to him my sincere apology.

Kindly give this the same prominence you gave to my letter.

Yours truly,
Jas. Guise-Bagley.

RHEIMS AWAITS HER RESTORATION

But They Are Those of "Dead" Projectiles Which Are Being Destroyed by German Prisoners.

(By Edwin L. James.)

RHEIMS.—Rheims is waiting. The bones of this once beautiful Champagne city lie bleaching in the sun of a hot June day. The wreck of the martyred city lies as the war left it. The stark skeleton of its noble cathedral raises its tortured towers in eloquent agony. Its wide avenues are tree stumps bordered with ruin in various degrees. The wreckage of a million German shells fills the eye on all sides. The streets in some places have been swept clear of debris. Otherwise all is as war left it. They tell me there are fourteen houses out of 14,000 in the city which were not hit.

Through this scene of desolation sight-seers prowl in their finery and spic-and-span automobiles, giving an incongruous touch to the place of sadness. Near the fence built around the cathedral to keep the curious from the peril of its trembing walls a few old Frenchmen vend their wares of postal cards and souvenirs. One old woman sells something pink to drink, while three small children cling in dirty array to her soiled skirts. Off to the north one hears the "Boom! Boom!" as German prisoners destroy dead shells—used to one who had been in Rheims in war days there seemed something lacking ,because these explosions were not followed by the whine of more shells hurled upon the noble ruin.

The allied delegates should have been seated in the ravaged square of Rheims when they received the German counter-proposals. The seven white roads across the plains to this graveyard should have borne the Commissioners of the pawers to the scene of final justice. For Rheims means sadness. Rheims shows best, it seems to me, what the Germans did in France. There is always something that touches the heart-strings about such a scene.

When a city is ground into the earth, when nothing is left but leveled brick and stone ,one's mind accepts blankly the fact that the city is done and is to be forgotten. But when the ruin is only 90 per cent. complete, when the bones of the city remain, when there is enough left to picture the glory that was, when just enough damage has been done to make that damage seem irreparable, then the sadness is more poignant. That is true of Rheims.

It seems a mockery of this tragedy to read in the peace terms that Germany is to rebuild ravaged France. Where in Germany is the power to restore Rheims Cathedral? From what part of Germany will come a master to restore the noble avenues of trees, the blasted stumps of which mark the lack of them? What German architect can rebuild the dainty, haughty mansions that lined the roadways to the west? How will Germany make again the city of homes and beauty she destroyed?

Yet Rheims is waiting. Nothing has been done since the days of last Fall, when the French and Americans drove back the Germans from before her ruins. One heard that Chicago had adopted Rheims and would rebuild it, but what has the Windy City done?

Germany's undertaking to repair devastation under the terms of the peace treaty is too vast for the average man or woman to keep watch on it. Why not centre attention on Rheims as the spot at which to gauge Germany's reparation? Why not admit Germany to the League of Nations only when she has restored Rheims as far as is humanly possible? Why not keep the eyes of the world on the restoration of Rheims as evidence of Germany's good faith?

Rheims will always be the Mecca of countless thousands who will come to Europe to visit the scenes of the war's desolation. Then, why not let the Germans do their best repair job on the scene of their wanton destruction, and, if it will make the job any better done, let them know that the world watches for and awaits the rebirth of the Champagne metropolis?

UP-TO-THE-MINUTE GIRLS DECLARE SMOKING'S GETTING TOO BEASTLY COMMON

However, a London illustrated paper which always sees things first declares: "That bright youth who said that he did not smoke cigarettes because they were so effeminate will find his gibe lose its point to-day. The newest girl considers it hopelessly old-fashioned to smoke. In fact, for a girl to pull out a cigarette case nowadays stamps her as painfully dowdy.

"At least, so I am told by my girl cousin.I do not think that many people will weep over the disappearance of the fag-stricken flapper, with her nicotine-stained fingers."

The aforesaid youth has a sympathizer in Toronto for the wife of a certain hotel man declares he closed his cigar box the other day and declared he was through with smoking.

"Those women who smoke disgust you so," he declared, "that if it's true a woman has as much right to smoke as a man I'm willing to stop it if it will only stop them!"

THE PROMOTER'S WIFE

By JANE PHELPS

IN THE BEGINNING

CHAPTER I.

I was born in a little mid-western town, and had lived there all my life. My home was a long, narrow, white building shaped a good deal like the toy Noah's arks they sell to amuse children. There was a small, unpretending entrance, which opened into a shallow hall. The interior was as unpretentious as the entrance, yet it was in every way comfortable.

The house was set almost in the centre of a large lawn ("yard," we called it.) In the season it was filled with flowers of all kinds, in not very symmetrical beds, and in borders along the walks that led both to the front and back door. Then there were flowering shrubs and bushes set down haphazard, and several large trees. When everything was in bloom it was a very attractive looking place. But in the late fall and winter when the wind whistled through the shrubs and rocked the giant branches of the trees, stripped naked of their summer dress, the long, low, white house had rather a pathetic look. I hated the winter. It was always so unattractive in Huntington, where many of the houses were almost a replica of the one in which we lived, and where the streets so beautifully shaped in summer by the interlaced shade trees, were bleak and unattractive because of the bare trunks and branches of those same trees.

I used to think that there could be no other place in the world where the wind howled and groaned, as if in agony, as it did in Huntington. But as my experiences afield had been only to neighbouring towns, I was perhaps incapable of judging. Yet now after years of city living I still shudder when I think of the way the wind whistled and moaned through the trees and shrubs in my old home.

Father kept a small store. We never knew what it was to really want for anything; yet mother counted every penny. I never had an allowance because there was only just so much, and nothing must be wasted. Yet as I look back it is the only criticism I would make of my father and mother. They brought me up without allowing me to handle a penny, or to use my judgment in spending. Mother bought my clothes and we made them together. If I had any little extras, as I grew older, she always got them for me.

I sometimes read stories of girls who had an allowance that they were permitted to spend exactly as they chose. These stories always made me envious, and I would wish I, too, might have money of my own to spend. Then I would weave dreams of the time when I would be married, and I, like mother, would buy for the family. But strangely I never dreamed of any of the town boys as a possible husband. I had played and danced—gone to school and Sunday school, with them, and in a way was very fond of them as one is in a small town where the boys and girls grow up together. But whenever I thought of marriage, it was not with one of them.

I was just twenty-two the summer that Neil Forbes came to visit his aunt. She lived next door to us, and I met Neil almost immediately. There is very little ceremony in a place like Huntington.

I was coming home from the store carrying a parcel for mother, when as I passed Mrs. Carter's gate she called to me:

"Come in, Bab. I want you to meet my nephew!" My real name was Barbara, Barbara Hill; but everyone called me "Bab."

"Neil, this is my neighbour, Barbara Hill," was the way she introduced us. A very common way in Huntington.

"I am glad to meet Miss Hill," a pleasant voice said, and as I laid my hand in the one he extended I looked into the handsome face of the only young man I ever had seen who in any way fulfilled my girlish ideals of what a husband should be.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat, which clogs Kidneys, then Back hurts and Bladder bothers you.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, then to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

FAMOUS ST PAUL'S CATHEDRAL, LONDON

Historic Edifice Beloved by All Londoners.

"Even the war could not stop work on St. Paul's cathedral in London. The famous church like the English constitution, represents a growth of centuries and not a definite period of construction."

This statement is made in a bulletin of the National Geographical Society in connection with a London dispatch which notes a request for additional funds to complete repair work on St. Paul's.

"England's esteem for the historic edifice is shown by the continuation of the restoration work throughout the war, despite the interruption to practically all other building," the bulletin says. "Still fresh in public memory is the notable service of consecration, attended by royalty and distinguished Americans then in London, held in St. Paul's April 20, 1917, to commemorate the entry of the United States into the war.

"St. Paul's is the largest Protestant church in the world. Its dome is one of the most beautiful. The church embodies architectual ideas of many periods, because it is not the product of a generation, or even a century. True, Sir Christopher Wren is credited with the structure as it stands today, but he embodied many features of the famous "Old St. Paul's razed in the Great London fire, 1666. Wren did not wish the restoration to be after the "Gothick Rudeness of the Old Design." But he was compelled to modify his own plans to a considerable extent. Said he, of the balustrade added over his veto: "Ladies think nothing well without an edging."

"To this famous mathematician, astronomer and architect the London fire blew much good. He had commissions to draw plans for rebuilding half a hundred churches. From these were modeled many of the American churches of colonial days. For his masterpiece, St. Paul's, Sir Christopher is said to have received less than the equivalent of $1,000 a year, an amount which might engage the attention of a modern architect of his standing for an afternoon's consultation. The building was paid for by a tax on sea-borne coal to London.

"The motto was appropriate. Some historians believe the cramped Ludgate Hill site originally was that of a Roman shrine of Diana. A christian church is known to have been built there in the early seventh century. It was burned two decades after William the Conqueror came to England. From the ruins emerged "Old St. Paul's." Fire destroyed that building, too, but it was restored on an even more pretentious scale.

"At the "Old St. Paul's" John Wycliffe faced the charge of hereay. Tyndale's New Testament was burned. Wolsey heard the reading of the papal condemnation of Luther and, under "Powle's cross," now marked by a memorial, heretics were forced to recant and witches to confess.

"Even before the great fire "Old St. Paul's was crumbling partly from a succession of lightning strokes and partly from neglect. Wine cellars and workshops were to be found beneath its lengthy corridors. The old building was nearly as long as the union station at Washington. The nave became "Paul's Walk," a promenade.

"Two towers, as well as the dome, make the new St. Paul's conspicuous.

GRAIN MARKET

Barley and oats are on the down grade in both cash and option markets. The favourable crop news and freer offerings are the dominating factors which brought corn prices down from 2 3-8c. to 2 7-8c. yesterday. Oats and barley were influenced by the corn downward movement. Talk of big foreign demands failed to check the prevailing bearish sentiment, and the market closed weak.

Rest Your Eyes.

The moment you are instinctively inclined to rub the eyes that moment cease to use them. Also it is time to give your eyes a rest when you become sensible of an effort to distinguish. Cold water is about the safest application for inflamed eyes. Never sleep so that on awakening the eyes shall open on the light of the window. Never read or sew directly in front of the light of a window, the better light being that that comes from above or obliquely or over the left shoulder. Too much light is an evil, just as is scant light. It creates a glare that pains and confuses the sight.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of his famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

A Century on the Sea

The former Allan Liner Alsatian, 18,000 tons, now with the C. P. O. S., and known as the Empress of France.

A little over a hundred years ago—on May 24th, 1819—there appeared in "The Glasgow Herald" a "notice to shippers and passengers for Canada" stating that the brig Jean, Alex. Allan, master, would clear from Greenock for Quebec on the 1st of June "and proceed to sea first favourable opportunity thereafter." Then in the "Herald" of June 11 there appeared the following item of shipping news: "Sailed, June 5th, Jean, Allan, Quebec."

These two notices marked the beginning of the Allan Line services between the Clyde and the St. Lawrence, and of the Allan Line as it existed through many later years, and as it still exists as a part o the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services (Limited). After the initial sailing of the Jean, Captain Alex. Allan obtained more vessels, and inaugurated a regular season service. In due time the fleet of sailing ships was replaced by iron ships, then by iron steamers and, later still, by steel steamers, but, all through, the continuity of the service was maintained and the company developed in importance as the Dominion of Canada was opened up and as the necessity for larger and faster ships arose. For many years they carried the Canadian mails, and their services between the Clyde and Liverpool and the St. Lawrence and seaboard ports of Canada were the principal links between the United Kingdom and the Dominion.

Captain Alexander Allan was a native of Saltcoats, Ayrshire, Scotland, and as he set out on that voyage little did he think of the great shipping possibilities of which he was laying the foundation. His voyage was purely a speculative one. Then the export trade of Canada was small, and this country was almost unknown in the world's markets. Captain Allan had a successful voyage over to this continent and back to the Old Country on his ship —which weighed only 169 tons When sailing for Canada again he brought two ships with him, and so the Allan Line begun its great work of linking Canada and the Motherland in closer union.

It was on May 21, 1826, that Captain Allan, accompanied by his son Hugh, afterwards Sir Hugh Allan, arrived in Montreal on the second of his ships, the brig Favorite. Shortly after this Captain Allan left the sea and settled in Glasgow, where he turned his attention to building other vessels for the Canadian trade. Among the ships owned by the Allan family at this time were the Canada, Caledonia, Cambria, Brittania and Albion. The first sailing vessels owned by the Allans after the brigs Jean and Favorite were only 250 and 450 tons register, but they were full-rigged ships.

In 1852, Hugh Allan, in conjunction with William Dow, a wealthy Montreal brewer, and a number of Montreal and Quebec financiers, formed the Montreal Ocean Steamship Company.

The first iron screw steamers in the Canadian service were then built. They were the Canadian and the Indian, of about 1,700 tons gross, with engines of 250 horsepower and cost about $250,000 each.

In 1852 the Canadian Government entered into a contract with a Liverpool firm for a fortnightly mail service to Canada. In 1854 this contract was cancelled, having proved unsatisfactory, and a new contract was entered into with the Allans, for which the steamers North American and Anglo-Saxon were ordered.

In 1858 a contract for a weekly service was entered into and the North Briton, Nova Scotian, Bohemian and Hungarian, all vessels of about 2,200 tons gross, were ordered. The Government subsidy at this time was $208,000 per annum, or about $4,000 per round voyage.

Soon after this, money having poured into the Allan coffers, the Glasgow-Montreal-Quebec route was included, and the St. George, St. Patrick, St. Andrew and the St. David were laid down in the shipyards at Dumbarton. The first three ships were 1,400 tons, and the St. David had a tonnage of 1,600 tons.

In 1861 the Norwegian and the Hibernian, of 2,400 tons and 450 horsepower, were added to the fleet. In 1863 they changed their shipbuilder, and the Peruvian and the Moravian, of 2,600 tons and 500 horsepower, were built on the Clyde. In 1871 Hugh Allan was knighted for his services to Canadian commerce.

The Allans have been pioneers in several important improvements in connection with shipping. They were the first to build vessels of steel, the Buenos Ayrean, built in 1872, being the first ship built of steel. They were the first to use bilge keels to minimize the rolling of ships at sea, these being attached in the first instance to the Parisian, launched in 1881, and they were the first to adopt the use of turbine engines as a means of propulsion for ocean-going vessels. The Victorian and Virginian launched in 1905, were the first vessels intended for the Atlantic trade to be fitted with the turbine engine.

In July, 1917, the Allan Line was amalgamated with the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services which now operates all the ocean going vessels of both.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

War-Time Speed

By CATHERINE PARSONS

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Gardner Lane was busy with the delightful task of painting Amy Roland's portrait. If you had seen Amy you would have really envied him, for she was truly lovely.

On this particular day Amy left the studio somewhat later than usual for the picture was just at an interesting stage and Gardner could not bear to stop work till the last bit of daylight had vanished. Mrs. Roland, who always came with her daughter, had left early to keep an appointment and Amy had promised to meet her at five.

Gardner had kept her till the last possible moment and she was hurrying toward the front door, when she ran directly into a young man who was coming in the opposite direction.

"I beg pardon," exclaimed Amy, as she bounced back in surprise. "Why, Billy Lane," she added, as she recognized him. "Where in the world did you come from? I haven't laid eyes on for over two years."

"Just got here, Amy. I've been out in Colorado working hard. But even an obscure farmer has a right to a vacation now and then, so I'm taking two weeks this time. Maybe it isn't good to see you again—you haven't changed much except to grow up more. I suppose you'd forgotten all about me, though."

Amy blushed slightly, but it was too dark to see.

"I hadn't, really; but of course two years is a long time. In another one I might forget whether your hair was red or brown. It's hard to remember much when you're kept pretty busy."

"For heaven's sake," cried Gardner, spying his brother from the floor above. "When did you get here? Well, maybe it isn't good to see you again, too! Is this a pleasure trip?"

"Not exactly. The truth of the matter is I'm enlisting in about two weeks and I wanted to see the old town before I went over."

"Great Scott, you don't say so! I would myself but I'm beyond the draft age and I hate to leave my work—I'm really needed here. Could they spare you all right?"

"Well, you see, I'm my own boss, so I just sold out and came along. I couldn't stay out of it any longer and I'd nothing to hold me back, either."

"I'm single, too, but I may not be long—that's one reason why I don't want to enlist."

"Who is it—Louise?"

Gardner laughed. "I should say not! I've had a dozen since Louise. It's Amy this time. I haven't told her yet, but I'm going to marry her."

Two days later Amy went for another sitting for her portrait and again she found Billy in the hall on her way home.

"Hello, Mr. Hermit," she scoffed. "You're not wasting time on your old friends this trip, are you?"

"Most of them seem to be pretty busy themselves."

"Well, I'm not for one, and to prove it I'll invite you to go for a walk with me now.

"Isn't it lovely out today?" cried Amy enthusiastically.

"Yes, but you'd never call this beautiful if you could see it out where I live. Mountains and hills and valleys everywhere you look. And the sunsets—you'd love those sunsets, Amy. They just make the whole world a blaze of glory and put peace into your soul. I can't explain how it is out there—it's too big for that. But I can tell you it impresses one. Maybe I'm daffy on the subject, but it's simply life out there to me. I feel like our poet friend who said: 'I want to go back, and I will!' You'd love it out there, Amy."

"Oh, I would love it!" she agreed, and almost surprised herself by her own fervor.

"Will you visit me some day then—you and your husband?"

"We'll be delighted—provided I have one by that time."

"In the meantime will you consider an invitation to dine with me this evening?"

"I'm sorry, Billy, but I'm going to dinner at the Seatons' with Gardner—they asked me ages ago. But I've had a lovely walk with you."

"So have I, too. Good night."

"Billy!"

"What can I do for you?"

"Don't you ever want to walk home with me again? I have three more sittings."

"Of course I want to. But a man doesn't do all the things he wants to—worse luck! I'll see you before long, though. Good-by."

"I think you're the limit, and you make me cross," flared Amy, and refused to notice his proffered hand.

Whereupon Billy pondered long on the vagaries of women and kept out of Amy's way for the next two days. But on the day that she came for her last sitting she found him standing before her picture in the studio with a strange look on his face.

"Don't look so sad, Billy—I'm not dead yet."

"Hello, Amy; I didn't expect you today. Gardner went to New York, but he sent you a message at the last minute—you must have left before the messenger arrived at your home.

"I did. You don't seem overjoyed to see me yourself—don't let me keep you. What have I done to you, Billy, that you should be so horrid to me? Don't you dare say you're not—you are!"

"I'm sorry, Amy—I told you I wasn't cut out for society in the first place, and I always make a mess of things."

Gardner came back from New York the next morning and in the afternoon he took Amy to tea at the most fashionable hotel in town. Gardner liked to be seen at smart places—especially in company with a good-looking girl.

"Billy's sailing tomorrow," he said, casually, in the course of conversation.

"Where to?" asked Amy, with apparent indifference.

"France. He's going in aviation over there. That's really why he came east, you know. I've got to go down town and fix up some things for him as soon as we leave here—you won't mind if I send you home in the car alone, will you?"

"Of course not, Gardner." Amy was trying hard not to choke on the delicious piece of French pastry which she was doing her best to swallow. Then she received another shock. Gardner leaned over the table and began to speak in a lowered voice.

"Amy—will you marry me?"

"Is this a surprise party?" gasped Amy.

"I shouldn't think you would be surprised—I made up my mind some time ago."

"But I didn't know that, and as much as I've seen of you lately, it never entered my head that you loved me. I like you, but I don't love you any more than you honestly love me. And I want to be friends—you're a better friend than you would be a husband—don't you truly think, Gardner?"

Gardner smiled in spite of himself. "Where did you learn so much about being in love, little Amy?"

"I learned the little I know from a very poor teacher who didn't even want me for a pupil. I'm sorry, Gardner, but I do care for someone else. He doesn't even know I exist—hardly. Forgive me, but it's the truth. And you'll still be my friend, won't you?"

"You can be perfectly sure about that," returned the rejected suitor promptly.

Amy waved her hand to him and then turned and walked rapidly in the opposite direction from her own house. Her head was dizzy and her feet seemed to travel too slowly. She dragged herself wearily up the steps of a familiar house and rang the bell.

"Is Mr. William Lane in?" she asked the man who answered her ring.

"In the library, miss."

Billy was sitting with his back to the door writing. Amy walked across the room before he saw her. Then he dropped his pen and sprang to his feet in amazement.

"Amy!" he cried. "Has something happened? You want Gardner?"

"No, I don't want Gardner—I've just refused to marry him. I just want to know why you are going away without saying good-by to me. It's unbelievable."

"Do you mean to tell me you're not going to marry Gardner? Why not?"

"It's really none of your business, but I'll tell you. For the simple reason that I don't happen to care for him—not in the marrying way of caring, I mean."

"What way is that?"

"I didn't come here to talk to you about marriage, Mr. William Lane. I only came to tell you how horrid I think you are—I think I almost hate you."

Billy covered the distance between them in less time than it takes to mention it. Then he caught Amy in his arms and held her till she had ceased to struggle.

"And I love you, love you, love you," he told her for about fifty times in as many different ways. "Look me in the eyes and tell me you hate me."

But Amy was too comfortable to look up, so she didn't even answer him.

After a little while Billy looked at his watch and found it was a quarter to eight.

"Will you go to dinner with me this time, Amy darling?" he asked her.

"It looks as if I'd have to. You don't know how much I wanted to go with you that day, Billy. Let's get out of the house before Gardner comes. I think it would be better to break it to him after you've been gone a few days, even though he didn't really love me at all. Oh, I wish you didn't have to go, Billy—I can't bear to think of it."

"Would you marry me tomorrow if I could get a special license?"

"Yes, any time at all."

"Then we'll go and see about it—will you come with me?"

"Anywhere. You won't be able to lose me now. And Billy, my husband and I will be glad to come and visit you on your wild and woolly farm as soon as you come back to us."

"Then, I'll have something worth fighting for now—that's what helps a man to do his duty even if it is hard work, too. I'm the luckiest person in the world today, Amy dearest."

"With the exception of one other," corrected Amy, and was immediately deprived of the power of speech again.

THE HONEY-MOON UP-TO-MINUTE.

A housemaid who had been a long time in her situation recently gave notice because she was going to have "the banns put up."

Her month had almost elapsed when the girl who was engaged to take her place wrote to say that she would be unable to commence her duties until a fortnight after the date her predecessor had arranged to be married.

The maid was asked by her mistress whether she would agree to postpone the ceremony, and stay on that length of time.

"Change the date, change your fate, ma'am," answered the girl. "It's like flying in the face of Providence to alter wedding arrangements; but if 'Erbert is agreeable, I don't mind getting married and then come back here for a fortnight."

The young man offered no objection, and half an hour after the ceremony the bride was busy at her usual duties.

"And has your husband gone back to work too, Mary?" asked her mistress.

"TREATIES BASED ON VIOLENCE CAN KEEP THEIR VALIDITY ONLY SO LONG AS FORCE EXISTS."

HUN COMMENT

(By John Graudenz, United Press.)

BERLIN, June 25.—The Berlin Vorwaerts, the Majority Socialist organ, to-day described the Peace Treaty as "a scrap of paper." "Exterminate pressure renders the signature of the Peace Treaty worthless," said the Vorwaerts. "We must never forget it is only a scrap of paper. Treaties based on violence can keep their validity only so long as force exists. Do not lose hope. The resurrection day comes."

The Prussische Kreus Zeitung, in an editorial headed "Finis Germania," declared that "It is our duty not to permit the Prussian spirit to be crushed."

The Taglische Rundschau blamed Scheidemann and Erzberger for the disaster. The National Volks party has announced the sharpest opposition to the new Bauer Government. General Von Lutvitz has appealed to the officers and soldiers to continue on duty.

Several minor food riots occurred in Berlin yesterday and last night, and it was feared they might grow in scope and violence to-day.

A strike involving postal, telegraph, and telephone employees seemed certain.

The Governor of West Prussia has announced his resignation.

AMENDMENTS TO THE MOTOR ACT

Provisions made to Facilitate Recovery of Stolen Cars.

Amendments to the Ontario Motor Vehicles Act include a raise in the speed limits from 15 to 20 miles an hour in the city and from 20 to 25 miles an hour in the country.

Dealers who receive cars to be scraped must keep all identification marks of the car.

All cars kept in garages over three weeks must be accounted for by the owner.

These two provisions were made to facilitate the recovery of stolen cars, and also to discourage the theft of motor cars.

Representatives of the Ontario Motor League waited on Sir Robert Borden yesterday regarding the promise of the Federal Government to expend $20,000,000 on Dominion roads, which promise seems to have fallen in abeyance for some reason or other. No local representatives were able to be at Ottawa yesterday although two delegates were invited to be present.

One provision which was not included in the recent amendments, and one which the local branch of the Ontario Motor League were especially in favour of, was comulsory non-glare lens on all cars. They are very cheap and give the owner a better light without putting his neighbor off the track.

Tooth powder is excellent for cleaning jewellery. Rub it on with a nail brush and then rinse off with scalding water.

CHIEF LIBERAL WHIP RESIGNS

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 25.—Charles M. Bowman, M.P.P. for West Bruce, chief Liberal Whip in the Ontario Legislature, has confirmed the rumour which has been circulated recently that he is about to retire from public life.

When the Examiner correspondent approached Mr. Bowman this morning and asked if the report were true, Mr. Bowman said: "Yes, it is quite correct. I think that the twenty-one years which I have spent in public life in this province is about enough for me."

Speaking of a possible appointment to the leadership of the Liberal party in Ontario at the convention to-day, Mr. Bowman declined to make any prediction, but he thought that the contest was going to be hot and exciting.

HARTLEY DEWART IS IN THE RUNNING

MAY BECOME LEADER OF THE LIBERAL PARTY IN ONTARIO.

(Special to Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 25. — A strong and progressive platform with a straight franchise for Ontario, is the platform which goes before the Ontario Liberal convention, in the Canadian Foresters Hall on College St., this afternoon. A number of delegates from all over the province are in the city and so far there are only four candidates for the leadership of the Liberal party.

The candidates are Mr. William Proudfoot, K. C., temporary leader of the party, H. Hartley Dewart, K.C., Major J. C. Tolmie, M.P.P., and J. C. Eliott, M.P.P., and there is very little indication up to 1 p.m. as to the field is the latest, is well supported by delegates from the west, and is out with the support of one of the richest districts of the province.

Non-Committal.

Around the hall this morning a number of the delegates were asked for their views and there was nothing in the answers received which favoured anyone of the candidates more than the others. It is stated, however, that it is not impossible that a last minute entry into the race may be made which may materially alter the situation.

The meeting this morning was a private one for the members, and was in the nature of a caucus for the general discussion of matters of interest to the Liberal Party as well as the approval of a platform to go before the convention.

At the Liberal headquarters in the Excelsior Life Building on Toronto street, delegates were arriving all morning and the general opinion held by the majority of the delegates was that the issue would narrow down to a fight between Mr. Dewart and Mr. Tolmie, with the probability that the Great War veterans will favor Major Tolmie, the soldier candidate.

Mr. Dewart, however, has wide support particularly in the eastern section of the province, and many of the delegates from the east were confident that he will be the next permanent leader for the Liberal party of Ontario.

ULTIMATUM TO THE RED ARMY

(Special to The Examiner.)

BASLE, June 25.— General Pelle, French commander-in-chief of the Czecho army, acting on authority from the Entente, has issued an ultimatum to the Hungarian Red army, commanding it to evacuate all occupied territory before midnight of June 26, it was reported in despatches received here to-day.

GENERAL SYMPATHETIC STRIKE OFFICIALLY CALLED OFF TO-DAY

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., June 25.—The general sympathetic strike which has been in progress here for six weeks was officially called off early this morning, and the workers who have not yet returned to work are expected to go back to-day, if their positions are still available. This is expected to facilitate negotiations with the metal trades men, for whose benefit this general strike was called.

Since the rioting on Saturday afternoon, the city has been quiet. There has been no further necessity for extra police or military protection. Street cars are running on practically nomal schedule.

CHANGED NAMES TO DEFEAT LAW

STRANGE CASE UNFOLDED IN TORONTO POLICE COURT.

TORONTO, June 25. — They were brothers, but not twins, yet it required the services of the Dominion Police to sort 'em out.

One was John J. John and one was David, and in order not to help win the war, John became David, and thereby hangs a tale. Inspector McClinton unfolded the romance in the police court to-day.

John, while of Toronto, was notified that his services were required in Flanders fields, but John failed to see the necessity of a trip to Europe, unless under the auspices of Thomas Cook and Son, but the call of Mars was insistent, and John suddenly found himself in the clutches of the Dominion Police. Was John perturbed—not so you would notice it.

"I'm a married man," said he, and out came the marriage certificate of one "David White." 'But you are John White," objected Inspector McClinton." "I'm David White," replied the accused. "There is no John White." "How long have you been married?" "Five years."

Then the insistent Inspector pointed out the certificate stated that David Whie was married in 1910, but that worried John not a little bit. He opined that a man might easily make a mistake of a year or two in his marriage day. Besides John also had a national registration card of "David White."

"Suppose you write your name," suggested the inspector. "I can't write, and I'm not going to talk to you fellows," accused was alleged to have replied. John admitted he was not David. He denied the inspector's story, and said that he was wearing his brother's overalls by mistake. In these overalls were the documents produced. He swore he had never received notification that he was to report for duty. In cross-examination he admitted that he might have told Inspector McClinton that he was married.

His Worship said he could see no excuse for the accused and fined him $1000 or twelve months.

MRS. ENSIGN DUNLOP VISITING IN THE CITY

Mrs. Ensign Dunlop of Vancouver B.C., arrived in the city Saturday night and is visiting her brother, Mr. Thomas Lang, 544 Elm street. Mrs. Dunlop is better known to her many friends in Peterboro as Captain May Lang, this being her home until about ten years ogo, when she was married to Ensign R. Dunlop at Vancouver, B.C., and together with her husband have been in charge of several Salvation Army Corps in British Columbia.

Mrs. Dunlop has had poor health for the last few years and it is hoped her few months visit to Peterboro will be beneficial to her health. While Mrs. Dunlop is here the Ensign is engaged in organizing the Red Shield Drive throughout British Columbia.

CHAPTER HELD ANNUAL OUTING

AFTER DINNER SPEECH TO THE LADIES' WAS A FEATURE.

Yesterday the Moore Preceptory and Corinthian Chapter held their annual outing. About thirty-five automobiles carried the members and a large representation of the fair sex to South Beach, where a sumptuous repast was served by Mine Host Brooks in the creditable manner for which he is noted. During the afternoon an exciting baseball match whetted the appetite of the guests for the turkey dinner which was in course of preparation by a chef specially engaged for the evening. After dinner in a speech to the ladies present, Mr. E. B. Fowler said that while he could not make the ladies members of the Preceptory or Lodge he was glad to make them members of the annual outing. Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner made a graceful response to the speech on behalf of the ladies. A splendid musical programme was given by local talent.

NEW METRO PLAY WITH EMMY WEHLEN AS STAR

Exquisite Actress Will be Seen at the Grand Theatre in "Sylvia on a Spree."

"Sylvia on a Spree," the latest Metro play in which charming Emmy Wehlen will appear as star, will be the feature at the Grand Theatre, where it will remain for a 3 day engagement, commencing Thursday.

The play is a brilliant romantic drama with a delightful amount of subtle comedy which will please all who see it. The plot centres around a young girl who finds that with all her luxury and riches she has missed much of the fun which other girls not so sheltered, get out of life. She is tired of being a petted and screened darling and plans a campaign by which she hopes to be able to see some of the gaiety she has so far missed.

In this she is clever but fate has decided to take a hand herself in this interesting, if somewhat unusual proceeding and Sylvia, played by Miss Wehlen, finds that instead of having things as she had planned she has to follow the dictates of fate. The clever story shows the happy finish of a romance begun in a most unconventional manner and in her portrayal of this headstrong but most charming young girl Miss Wehlen is her usual magnetic and alluring self.

The supporting caste of sterling players consists of W. I. Percival, Frank Carrier, Eugen Acker, Peggy Parr, Isabel D'Madigan, Francesca Ward, Rose Wood, Bliss Milford, Bert Tuey, Joseph Sweeney and Allen Turner. Harry L. Franklyn directed the performance.

THE STRIKE SITUATION

WINNIPEG WILL CEASE TO EXIST BY "ORDER OF STRIKE COMMITTEE" AFTER THURSDAY.

A LONG WINTER

By J. J. Conklin.
(Copyright.)

WINNIPEG, Man., June 25.—News that the sympathetic strike is to be called off Thursday at 1 o'clock in the morning thrilled many places last night, when the information was given out as the strike leaders left the Labour Temple at a late hour after deliberations which extended from 10 o'clock in the morning and took them to the Manitoba government buildings wtice and to the City Hall once. The metal trades seem to have gained out of the prolonged period of idleness. They have gained in collective bargaining being accepted and whether it goes as far as the unions desire it goes so far that it will make the unions the predominating factor in the shops where machinists and other iron and steel workers are employed. This is a distinct gain. Some of the firemen, postal and policemen have lost out for good. That fact seems inevitable. That is where the city of Winnipeg gains for the time being, if a labour council is not in control next year, which is among the probabilities. The telephone operators will be taken back almost enbloc. Street railway men will also all be taken back except those who took part in the riots, and the union will not ask that they shall. The building trades will also be fully employed, but they have lost two good months, and while there is sufficient new building in sight to engage all those who are willing to work, until winter, the loss early in the season will be severely felt. The railway shopmen will all go back and trainmen and engineers will also be taken back, but will be disciplined severely. The strike will have lasted six weeks, and in wages the loss to wage earners, and it is safe to say storekeepers also, will be nearly four million dollars. For the next few months and many times during the long, cold, hard winter that this city never fails to experience, the strikers will have time to consider whether, after all, it was worth the candle. The Norris goverument, it is understood, intends to appoint a Royal Commission consisting of Hon. H. A. Robson, formerly Judge of the Court of the King's Bench, and later Utilities Commissioner, and now General Counsel for the Union Bank, and possibly R. A. Rigg, an ex-employee, to investigate the origin and causes of the strike and to make recommendations. The difficulty of forcing reinstatement of all strikers is said to be one of the reasons why Labour favoured the Commission plan.

LAWS BECOME EFFECTIVE TO-DAY

FROM NOW ON THE ANTHEM MUST BE RENDERED.

To-day many of the important Acts passed at the last session of the Provincial Legislature become effective, it being sixty days after the Royal assent given by the Lieutenant-Governor. Among the more popular measures is the amendment to the Motor Vehicles Act by which motorists will be allowed a twenty mile rate in cities towns and villages and a twenty-five mile rate in the country except at intersections or where the road does not afford a clear sight ahead. At such points the speed is ten miles in the city and twelve and a half miles in the country. Cities, towns and police villages, however, have control of rate of speed within their own borders.

Beginning to-day the National Anthem must be played in all theatres after each performance. Matrons, too, must be appointed to attend the theatre performances where children are allowed to attend without guardians.

Three of the most progressive measures passed by the Hearst Administration which become effective to-day are those giving farmers' wives and daughters the right to election to School Boards, giving the women right to be elected to municipal Councils or to hold municipal office, and giving women the right to be elected to the Legislative Assembly.

An educational measure of considerable importance which also becomes effective to-day is that of compulsory school attendance, and the Consolidated Schools Act. The Act respecting compulsory attendance of adolescents becomes effective by Royal proclamation.

(United Press.)

PARIS, June 25. — Peace will be signed with Germany between 11 a.m. and two p.m. Friday, the ceremony lasting three hours, according to information received here to-day. The new German delegation, headed by Hermann Mueller, Foreign Minister, was expected to arrive at Versailles either Thursday night or Friday morning. President Wilson plans to leave for Brest immediately after the ceremony, sailing from that port for New York Saturday morning. Members of the Allied Peace Commission visited Versailles this morning and found the preparations for the formal signing in the Hall of Mirrors at the Palace had been completed. The Big Four yesterday discussed the sinking of the interned German fleet at Scapa Flow, but reached no conclusions in the absence of full official reports.

HOT WEATHER AFFECTS THE CROPS

Grain Crops Expected to be Up to the Average.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 25. — Excessive wet weather in the spring, followed by the recent hot spell, has had a detrimental effect on most of the fruit crops of the province, according to reports received by the Department of Agriculture. The outlook for grain and other farm crops is good, although late seeding and other conditions which existed in the spring, preclude any possiblity of high records being set. The yield is expected to be at least up to the average, however.

PARIS, June 25.—If the Heads of the Allied Powers in Paris do not hear from Weimar very soon regarding the German delegation for the signing of the Peace Treaty, an ultimatum will be sent to the German Government, according to the Paris official of Reuter's, Ltd.

The ultimatum will demand the appointment of plenipotentiaries within a certain number of hours.

It was announced to-day that President Poincare's official dinner to the Peace plenipotentiaries will take place on Friday night. It was originally planned to hold the dinner on the night of the signing of the Treaty, but uncertainty as to the date for the ceremony has caused Friday to be named definitely for the dinner, irrespective of the time of the event at Versailles.

A STORY OF CITY LIFE WILL COMMENCE TO-DAY

In to-day's issue the new serial begins. This gripping story of big-city life, throbbing with human interest coloured with the life led by some promoters, is one of the biggest stories ever appearing in print. "The Promoter's Wife," with Barbara Hill telling her own story, has not an idle moment in it, and interest grips the reader from the first to the last chapter.

Neil Forbes, college man, who is the promoter and man-about-town, is perhaps typical of many, and his ramifications are as puzzling to his wife as they will be to the reader.

To-day's instalment, "In the Beginning," tells of the early life of the promoter's wife. To-morrow's instalment is entitled "The Dawning of a College Education."

A CHEERFUL APOLOGY.

In another column of the Examiner to-day appears an explanaiton in regard to a recent letter on the Hunter street bridge controversy, a communication written by Mr. J. Guise-Bagley, that reflected most unfavourably and unfairly upon the professional reputation of Mr. Barber, the engineer engaged by the City Council to prepare plans for the new Hunter street bridge. The letter of Mr. Guise-Bagley was published without the knowledge or approval of the proprietor or editor of the Examiner, and its publication is regretted as being an untrue and unjust reflection upon Mr. Barber and the Russell Townsend Company. There has certainly not been, on the Examiner's part, any desire to interfere with Mr. Barber's work in this city, and with a clear conscience we can repudiate any charges of malice or gross carelessness in this matter. The retraction that appears elsewhere in to-day's issue, is most willingly published, and the Examiner tenders to Mr. Barber and the Russell Townsend Company an apology for the innocent part the Examiner played in giving publicity to the untrue, unjust and wholly unfounded statements, charges and innuendoes contained in the letter written by Mr. J. Guise-Bagley.

ABOUT WAR BADGES.

Some time ago the Examiner called attention in an editorial article to what seemed to be a conflict between the order-in-council in regard to the wearing of war service badges and the notice on the back of the badge which states that any misuse of the button renders the offender liable to a fine of $500 or six months' imprisonment. A case in the local police court in which Magistrate Dumble inflicted a fine much under the amount mentioned on the war service badge occasioned the article, and on investigation it was found that the judgment was founded on an order-in-council passed in 1916 which provided for a less severe maximum penalty than the inscription on the badge named. An explanation from Ottawa just received, however, clears up the mystery. Since the order-in-council upon which Magistrate Dumble acted was passed in 1916 there have been two new orders-in-council, both imposing a fine not exceeding $500 or six months' imprisonment for the offence in question. The inscription on the back of the war service badge merely states the maximum which can be imposed. The explanation will be of much interest to returned soldiers generally.

HELP THE PLAYGROUNDS.

Mr. J. W. Worth's plea for financial assistance for the supervised playgrounds is one that should have the desired effect of interesting the general public in the affairs of the Playgrounds Association and of bringing forward the subscriptions that are necessary to carry on the splendid work that the Association has undertaken. Mr. Worth has been associated with the movement since its inception in this city and his arguments cover the grounds thoroughly. He tells us that in Peterborough there are over 1,000 children who are compelled to spend the entire holiday season in the city. For them there are none of the pleasures of Chemong Park or Stoney Lake or of a visit to the country. Their vacation must be spent at home. It is on behalf of these thousand or more little ones that the Association asks the people of Peterborough to subscribe $1,000. It is the intention to provide them with the facilities for enjoying healthy exercise and the games and pastimes that delight the juvenile heart. Frequent trips to the swimming beaches in charge of competent instructors will be another feature of the summer's programme. The children will be looked after as carefully during the holidays as they are during the school term, which means that instead of the two months being wasted in aimless rambling around the streets, they will be busy at making better boys and girls out of the little folks. It is a great work—and should not be left to rely on the support of the public. Eventually this summer training of school children will be adopted as part of the regular school work, but in the meantime it is necessary to depend upon the citizens and to ask them to give freely to this fine cause.

There are subscription lists at both of the newspaper offices.

BACK TO THE OLD TIME.

The citizens of Peterborough who are enjoying the extra hour of sunlight afforded by the daylight savings scheme and are devoting it to better care of the garden or lawns, or to a leasant time in car or canoe or at the ball games, had better make the most of the arrangement this year for there is little likelihood of the plan being in operation next summer. The decision of the United States' government to do away with the daylight savings method at the end of the present summer will, of course, cause the American railways to return to old time, and the Canadian lines will per force have to follow their example if confusion is to be avoided at the border. The result will be that with the railways operating on standar dtime, there is little chance of urban centres adopting the daylight savings measure next year. Although it is undoubtedly favoured by the majority of city dwellers, there would be confusion if the railway time did not conform to that used in the cities, and for that reason the larger centres, which really want the new method, will have to gracefully yield, while the farmers will rejoice. In some cities, however, there is already an agitation to stick to daylight saving next year, the promoters of the scheme arguing that the benefits from its operation more than compensate for the possible confusion with the railways.

THE PEACE TREATY.

The one overwhelming impression given by the peace treaty is the profound distrust it shows of the German people. Never did a document bear such a black indictment of the very soul of a nation as this stupendous judgment handed down by the representatives of the whole civilized world. As we read over this arraignment clause by clause we can appreciate the colossal task with which our statesmen have been confronted, and the wonder now is, not that they have taken so long about their task, but that they have been able to complete it so thoroughly in the comparatively short time which has elapsed between the historic 11th of November last and the anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania.

If there remained any German who had any doubt as to the complete military defeat of Germany, this appalling document will dispel the last vestige of such doubt. It shows Germany to be crushed to the very dust, and places her in the position of a suppliant for mercy at the foot of the throne of justice. As far as Germany is concerned, this is not a treaty. It is a sentence pronounced upon a criminal nation—a sentence to be carried out by a people who must don sackcloth and ashes and in bitter humiliation expiate their crimes. That it will be regarded as such in Germany there can be no doubt. It is easy to imagine the startling impression it will create among the Germans, and the outburst of indignation and bitter anger which it will evoke from them; but that will avail them nothing. They must build their whole national life anew from the very foundations, and not until they have shown themselves worthy of trust will they again be received into the counsels of the nations on terms of equality with other peoples, and that will hardly be in this generation.

The terms of the indictment—for indictment it is—strip Germany of all the attributes of a great Power. All her outside possession are taken from her. Large portions of what she had been pleased to call the Fatherland are taken from her. The strategic frontiers which had been her pride and boast are gone never to return. The very heart of the country is left open to invasion at the first sign of a return of that insolent arrogance which for a quarter of a century kept the world in feverish unrest. Her army is to be reduced to the proportions of a mere police force, and her navy is to disappear. Only on the side where Bolshevist Russia threatens is she allowed to have any semblance of armed protection. Offensive and defensive treaties between her and other nations are all swept away; and thus rendered powerless, she is to be compelled to make what reparation it is possible for her to make for the agonies and losses she has caused.

There are expressions on the part of some of the Allied spokesmen of dissatisfaction with some of the details of this judgment. That, too, is natural; but on the whole it is quite beyond the most sanguine hopes. It is to be hoped that the Allied statesmen will show the same courage and determination in putting it into effect as they have shown in drafting it, and above all it is to be hoped that individual differences of opinion on the part of the Allied nations will not be allowed to develop into a division of counsels, for that would be fatal. If the Allies preserve their unity, then Germany has but one course to pursue, and that is to bow to the inevitable, and the sooner the better, for her and for the whole world.—Montreal Pharmaceutical Journal.

DISCIPLINE NEEDED AT INVERLEA PARK

The absence of a caretaker at Inverlea Park this summer is reported to have created an opportunity for rowdyism that is in striking contrast with the generally satisfactory conditions which existed last year. It is stated that the men's dressing quarters became so dirty that most of the bathers undressed behind the trees. Unseemly conduct has become a nuisance, and residents of the district have complained that the noise continues until after midnight.

It is further stated that there are no police detailed to maintain good order and as a result the conduct of some of the frequenters is anything but inviting to persons who desire ordinary decency in such places.

Many expressions have been heard in regard to the failure of the city to provide a caretaker and to impose a degree of dicipline that will warrant parents permitting their children to enjoy the bathing at the park which was provided last year under the charge of Mr. John Cooper. The season is just beginning, and it is felt that there should be no further delay on the part of the city, the Playgrounds Association, or some organisation that is anxious that decent conditions should prevail at Inverlea, in securing a caretaker or adequate police control.

Japanese Hotel Bedrooms.

In "Queer Things About Japan" Douglas Sladen gives a picture of the Japanese hotel bedroom, which still leaves much to be desired in comfort and privacy: "Before dinner is over you begin to long for your bed. You ask to be taken to your bedroom, but your bedroom is taken to you. Its walls and the bed are brought in. The walls are paper shutters which make a slice of the sitting room your own; the bed is a quilt. 'Take up your bed and walk' is an everyday occurrence in the east, where a bed is a spread. The only way a European can get any comfort out of a Japanese bed is to sleep on about half a dozen at once, one on top of the other. If you want to wash you must do it outside. The Japanese will not allow a basin of water on their precious mats."

Pepys' View of Baths.

Pepys' view of baths—probably representative of his generation—may be gathered from a contemptuous reference to his wife's whimsical notion, after spring cleaning, of going to a hot bath in town to "cleanse herself." However, he reflected consolingly, the new passion for cleanliness was not likely to last. The idea of Pepys' French contemporaries on the same subject is illustrated in a little book on Christian conduct, by Jean Baptiste de la Salle "For the sake of cleanliness," says the author, "it is well to rub the face every morning with a white towel, in order to remove the dirt. It is not advisable to wash with water, for this exposes the face to the chills of winter and the heats of summer."

His Birthmark.

An Irishman who had just traveled from Dublin to Glasgow to seek employment was informed that he had a poor chance of getting a job because he was displaying marks consistent with pugilism.

"You mane that I've a black eye, sir, eh?"

"Exactly."

"Shure, that's only a birthmark which I have. You see, sir, I was comin' from Dublin on the boat, and by a mistake I kept into the wrong berth and the fellow who was there gave me this."—London Answers.

Coleridge Revised.

"That's all very well," came echoing back over the watery lens, "but the thirst is yet to come."

Whereupon the ancient mariner rigged "verses" with "curses" and did other horrible poetical things.—Philadelphia Ledger.

How He Won.

First Business Man—To what do you attribute your success? Second Business Man—To the fact that I was always first at the office. For seventeen years I caught the 6:15 into town. First Business Man—Ah, I see! All due to your early training.—Columbia Jester.

The Good Old Times.

At one time in Rome political offenders were auctioned off in public to the highest bidder. In ancient Greece theft was not considered so much of a disgrace as being caught at it.

Our prisons are not ideal, but we have made progress in dealing with crime. There were formerly fourteen offenses in Delaware punishable by hanging. In the early history of Connecticut lying, "that foolish and grievous sin," was punishable with five stripes at the whipping post and confinement in stocks; people were imprisoned in awful dungeons for debt. In Rome men were sold into slavery to pay debts; creditors could tear the body of the debtor to pieces, each receiving a piece according to the size of his credit.

Today is the best day creation has ever seen. For 2,500 years the sermon on the Mount, like heaven, has been permeating the hearts of men. As in only that which is good can endure. The fires of time burn out the dross.

There is "one farout divine event, to ward which all creation moves." It is perfection—but it is not here.—Exchange.

Setting a Fashion.

Some years ago the coral fishers of Torre del Greco, near Naples, were in hard straits. The value of coral had fallen so low that they were no longer able to find purchasers for their harvest. At last in their despair they besought the queen to come to their aid. At the first great court ball that was held that year at the Quirinal the queen, to the surprise of all beholders, wore about her neck a collar composed of six rows of coral instead of her superb collar of pearls, and her black hair was crowned with a diadem of coral and brilliants. From that evening the mode changed. Old coral ornaments that had been hidden away for years and years were again displayed at the jewelers' and were snapped up by eager purchasers. Queen Helena's object was attained, and that court fashion marked the beginning of more prosperous days for the coral fishers of Torre del Greco.

OCEAN IS LITERALLY TEEMING WITH FOOD

What We Know About Denizens of the Deep Said to be Startlingly Limited.

Now that the seas are open to the pursuits of peace, and the world is sorely in need of food, many problems of ocean geography are likely to be solved in the course of the quest for deep-sea rations.

"The ocean literally teems with food," says a bulletin issued by the National Geographical Society. "The man who declared that humanity is a race of herring catchers might have overstated the case, but that the sea abounds in food fishes and fishes fit for food is well known. As soon as we begin to study the subject of ocean fisheries, however, we come up short against the fact that what we really know about the inhabitants of the sea is startlingly limited.

Whale Are Lure for Herring.

"Many fishermen of the North Sea believe that whale bring the herring in toward shallow water—a conclusion they reached from the observation that schools of herring are frequently found in the vicinity of spouting whales. In 1906 there was a failure of the herring fisheries, and the fishermen blamed the situation on the Norwegian whaling vessels operating in that region.

"Likewise, it is still a moot question whether or not modern fishing methods tend to deplete the supply and whether artificial propagation of sea fishes is a sufficient countermeasure. A few years ago a British Commission measured the intensity of fishing operations in the North Sea.

"Trailing bottles were set adrift, and it was found that more than half of them were recaptured. In certain localities they were captured at a rate that indicated 90 per cent. retaken each season.

"Marked fish yielded largely similar results and the conclusion was that a foodfish of adult size had at least three to one odds against its getting through the year uncaught.

How Ocean Fish Multiply.

"And yet there is so little race suicide in the ocean that even such intensive fishing probably has no effect upon the available adult supply. For instance, the female turbot lays 8,500,000 eggs a year, and the cod has 4,500,000 to her credit. The female flounder lays 1400,000, the sole 570,000, the haddock 450000 and the plaice 300,000. The poor herring must be content with a meagre 31,000.

"Much remains to be learned about the migration habits of the world's food fishes. The problem of life in the ocean is one full of interest and pregnant with valuable lessons for mankind. Even at the botton of the deepest trench in the abyssmal region of the sea's bottom, where no ray of the sun ever penetrated, where Stygian night is perpetual, where freezing temperatures never cease, and where inconceivable pressure prevails, the miracle of life still goes on."

HOSTS OF JOBLESS STARVE IN MOSCOW

AMERICAN FROM THERE TELLS OF CRITICAL SITUATION WHEN HE LEFT CITY.

OMSK. — Horse meat at thirty rubles a pound, dog at twelve, rye flour 800 roubles a pood (thirtysix pounds,) potatoes 249 rubles a pood—these were prices prevailing in Moscow last February, according to an American, Dillon, representing a large farm machinery establishment, who has just arrived here. Dillon left Moscow Feb. 9 and came through Penza, Saratov, Uralsk, Orenburg, after many difficulties, on April 2.

Moscow is half deserted, he says. All signboards of restwhile prosperous business houses are down since all such places have been "nationalized." To ride one verst (two-thirds of a mile) by cab costs 100 rubles. A box of matches if obtainable at all costs fifteen rubles. (A ruble was normerly fifty cents.) People were burning funiture to heat their rooms due to the shortage of firewood. Drunkenness was prohibited under penalty of death.

There is endless Bolshevist propaganda. Pamphlets and newspapers enlarging upon the benefits of Bolshevism flood the towns and cities, and proselytizing is carried on feverishly among returning Russian prisoners from Germany. Strikes in other countries are hailed with delight, and a worldwide revolution is represented as being in progress.

There are many Chinese and Mongol troops in Moscow, according to Dillon. The city is full of unemployed workmen. There are 75,000 idle metal workers alone ,and a greater number of idle textile workers. Bolshevist workmen who can find employment receive 650 to 1,500 rubles per month, and are barely able to live, though receiving special concessions in foodstuff prices in Bolshevist stores.

Non-Bolsheviki, who cannot buy in such stores at any price, are in desperate straits. There have been many cases of starvation and many suicides There is much sickness of every sort growing out of filthy conditions and malnutrition. Glanders is commons, due to eating of infected horses meat.

Insurrections among workmen are desperate over the merciless requisitioning of their property. Forty per cent of the Winter crop remains unplanted for lack of horses and seed. The annual partition of land among the peasants did not occur and little preparation is made for Spring planting.

Railroads are without fuel except such supplies as are brought from day to day green from the forests. All reserve supplies have been exhausted. Church services are being suppressed on all sides and the registers have nearly all been removed.

Factories have closed owing to lack of fuel. This is true even of munitions and arms factories, and there is a noticeable shortage of rifles and ammunition. Discipline in the army is maintained by terroristic methods, but even so mutinies constantly occur and desertions are frequent.

In the opinion of the narrator, all that is necessary to cause the early collapse of Bolshevism is a vigorous offensive by the Siberian Army.

PARSON TOOK EDITOR'S PLACE

While the editor of a certain newspaper was away from home for a while he left the paper in charge of a minister of the gospel. During the minister's stay, the following letter came from a sub: "I know very well that I paid my sub. to your paper the last time I was in your office. If I get any more letters from you as I received last week I will come in and maul it—it out of you." The minister answered the note like this:" I have been trying to get that out of the editor for ten years, and if you will come down and maul it out of him, then, my dear sir, I have twenty members in my church I will let you operate on."

LILY WHITE Corn Syrup

For Preserving

Thousands of the best housekeepers have discovered that using half sugar and half Lily White Corn Syrup makes preserving more uniformly successful.

To start with, the consistency is bound to be just right from the very nature of the syrup; there is no danger of the preserves crystallizing; the syrup brings out the natural flavour of the fruit; the keeping quality is excellent; and the preserves do not have the cloying sweetness of all sugar.

For better preserves, use Lily White Corn Syrup.

CAUGHT IN TRAP SET FOR DODGERS OF INCOME TAX

Jay Weber, of Pictorial Review Company, Seized for Alleged $5,000 Bribery.

NEW YORK.—Jay A. Weber, secretary to W. P. Arnold, president of the Pictorial Review Company, was arrested at the McAlpin Hotel when he was passing $5,000 to N. W. Gropper, an Internal Revenue agent. Mr. Gropper charges that the $5,000 was the first instalment of a promised bribe of $25,000 for the certifying of a false income taxe return.

With this arrest, the federal officials have started a round-up of tax dodgers who are said to be cheating the government out of millions. Several prominent persons and officials of big corporations have been resorting to all kinds of practices to evade the income levy, and it is understood the United States officials are after them.

The Pictorial Review Company, has offices at No. 222 West Thirty-ninth street and publishes several magazines. Mr. Gropper was assigned several weeks ago to verify the income tax return filed by the company and while alleges he was approached by Weber, who, it is alleged, suggested that $25,000 would be paid to the revenue agents if he would certify to the report as it stood.

Indicating he was willing to enter the deal, but advising greatest caution, Mr. Gropper reported to the revenue agents and was instructed how to act. Accordingly, it is charged, he arranged that the first payment be made at the McAlpin Hotel. The passing of money was witnessed by H. B. Stokes, W. D. Allen and J. M. Grossman, internal revenue agents. Weber was arrested as soon as Mr. Gropper had taken the money.

When Weber was arraigned before Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock Benjamin P. De Witt, Assistant United States Attorney, asked that bail be fixed at $100,000. Mr. De Witt said it was his understanding that a bribe was offered with the prospect of permitting the Pictorial Company to evade the payment of income taxes aggregating something like $500,000.

Commissioner Hitchcock decided that $50,000 bail would be adequate and fixed it for that amount for a hearing on June 13. Weber communicated with several friends and furnished a surety bond and was released.

It Helps Others Will Help Me

With This Belief Many Thousands Have Learned the Exceptional Value of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

You hear people talking about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You read about it in the newspapers. You wonder if it would benefit you. And while you are hesitating others are using it to great advantage.

This treatment for the restoration of the blood and nerves is so different to most medicines that you may not realise why you can be so certain of benefit from its use.

In order to maintain the vigor of the nervous system an abundance of pure, rich blood is necessary. When the nervous system becomes exhausted and you are easily tired and suffer from headaches, sleeplessness, irritability or indigestion, it is because the blood is failing to supply proper nutrition to the nervous system.

By forming new, rich blood, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food naturally and certainly restores the vigor of the nerves. Since it works hand-in-hand with nature, it cannot fail to be of benefit, and there is no reason why it will not help you just as it has the writer of this letter.

Mrs. Stephen G. Thwaites Box 295, Jordon, Ont., writes; "For about a year I was troubled with nervousness, and took doctors' medicine, but it did not seem to relieve me. I could not sleep nor content myself to do anything. I had severe headaches, was tired all the time, and afraid to stay alone. I also tried several nerve medicines until almost discouraged. At last I discovered Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found relief in this. I had only taken one box when I began to feel better. I continued using this treatment until my nerves were restored to perfect health. I think the Nerve Food splendid for nervous troubles of any kind, and cannot recommend it too highly."

(Rev. S. F. Coffman, Vineland, Ont., states: "This is to certify that I know Mrs. Thwaites, and her statements are correct.")

After making the arrest, the internal revenue officials went to the Pictorial Review offices and took possession of the books and records for the purpose of making a thorough investigation of the company's financial standing. The Pictorialy company is now building a twelve story addition to its offices.

Through the Canadian Alps

In Canada, opening up an Alpine region of entrancing beauty. It will be possible to motor from Calgary to Windermere between sunrise and sunset through a hundred miles of the most glorious scenery in North America. A good automobile road runs south to Fort Steele and Cranbrook, and from Cranbrook there are excellent roads to Spokane, or eastwards through the Crow's Nest Pass, and back to Calgary. The Good Roads Association of Alberta is enthusiastic over the prospect as this will mean the advent of many tourists from all over America. The new road will also be of great benefit to the Upper Columbia Valley which has many attractions for settlers on account of the fertility of the soil and suitability for mixed farming. This valley is served by the Kootenay Central Railway, a recently constructed branch of the Canadian Pacific.

Between Banff, the popular summer resort in the Canadian Pacific Rockies and Lake Windermere, the head waters of the great Columbia River, lies an Alpine ridge of spectacular beauty, forming part of the Great Divide. This ridge is penetrated by two comparatively easy passes, the Simpson, and the Vermillion which lead into the Valley of the Kootenay River, a region abounding in game on account of its being well south of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Between the Kootenay River and the Columbia River is a small range of mountains through which the Sinclair Pass and Canyon provide an easy road. When the first surveys were made for an automobile road between Banff and Windermere it was planned to use the Simpson Pass, named after Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, who made this crossing in 1841. But the route over the Vermillion was found to be easier and at the same time more beautiful, and construction of the Highway of the Great Divide was commenced from opposite Castle Mountain in this direction. At the same time the road from Windermere through the Sinclair Canyon was also commenced and at the time of the outbreak of war a gap of only thirty miles separated the two roads. Work put an end to construction, and a great windfall destroyed several miles of the western end, so that the project seemed to have been abandoned. Now, however, the Dominion Government has made an arrangement with the British Columbia Government by which the route of the road comes under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parks, and the unexpended appropriations have been allotted to finish the work. In this way visitors to every prospect of the early completion of what will be

REQUESTS FOR THE MACHINES FROM A NUMBER OF CANADIAN CITIES ARE TESTIMONY THAT THE MACHINES ARE IN DEMAND—ARRANGEMENTS UNDER WAY FOR A FACTORY HERE.

Most of our readers will agree that if there is any sight more obnoxious than the garbage waggon on the public thoroughfare, it is the fulsome open dirt carts being loaded and wheeled along our paved streets filled with the fresh horse droppings and other loathsome excreta.

To deliver or purify a city of this palpable evil seems to have engaged the attention of scientists from time to time. But not until quite recently has any real remedy been evolved or any real progress made in this direction, which afford strong hopes of solving the problem.

This desideratum our readers will be glad to know, is now about to be fully realized, through the practical application of what is known as the Blaney system of street cleaning, which not only does away with all the offensiveness of unsanitary exposure of street dirt, but has proven to be the most effective mode of securing clean streets. What the well known vacuum cleaner has proven to be in efficiently sweeping and cleaning the house, the Blaney system of dustless street sweeping has proved to be in cleaning paved streets.

The New System.

The Dominion Dustless Sweeper Co., Limited, after having expended about $45,000 in perfecting their new system, are making preliminary preparations for building their new street sweepers. The experimental stages in the invention have all been passed, and the company now holds patents in Canada, the United States, Great Britain, France and Australia.

Peterboro should have an option for this industry, and as The Examiner has always been active in helping to encourage industries to settle in Peterboro, it has been painstaking in procuring the leading facts concerning the new enterprise.

Upon investigation it has been learned that the company hope to begin the manufacture of their sweepers before many months. Evidence has been accumulating which justifies the company in anticipating an almost unlimited demand for their machines. Such being the case, the establishment of this industry in our midst is well worth the attention of the representative business men of the community.

Present System.

Motor Dustless Street Cleaning is "a consummation devoutly to be wished for" from every point of view. The present inadequate system of scraping, sweeping and sprinkling of the paved streets is fraught with unsanitary results as well as heavy expenditures to every city. Flushing and sprinkling only affords temporary relief. Oil has its drawbacks, because of the damage to auto tires and the shade trees. Catch basins are expensive to keep up—one city of which we are aware has 17,360 catch basins which cost $3.00 each to maintain every year.

For these and many other reasons, a dustless dry system of street cleaning has much to commend it. From actual demonstrations, the Dominion Dustless Street Cleaner has accomplished all that it claims to do; and the promoters of this company deserve much credit for their enterprise which has resulted in providing so efficient a medium for sanitary and decent street cleaning.

The demand for dustless street sweeping is unquestioned and affords sound grounds for the development of a well sustained industry. As regards the status of the company and the prospects for an early operation of the company's products, it was learned from Mr. H. M. Bishop, who is devoting his entire attention to the business, and the arrangements for manufacturing the machines, that the promoters have everything now well under way and are full of encouragement. Peterboro should be advised of the fact that responsible men well known in the city are identified with this industry, and hopes are entertained that Peterboro may soon see another thriving industry in its midst turning out machines not only for the Canadian trade, but for the Empire, and other parts of the world. Peterboro will then be able to boast of the fact that the first Dustless Sweepers came from their city—as Brantford boasts of the telephone.

The placing of this universally required machine on the market is in experienced hands. Mr. Bishop has had a wide practical experience in pioneer work of a similar character.

The mechanical end of the business will be superintended by the founder, patentee and inventor, Mr. W. T. Blaney, whose ability has been proven by the remarkable machine he has perfected.

SHE HAD SUFFERED FOR THIRTY YEARS

"TANLAC IS GRANDEST MEDICINE ON EARTH," SAYS KANSAS CITY WOMAN.

"For the first time in thirty years," said Mrs. M. Buckingham, residing at 2428 Kensington Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri, in an interview recently, "I am able to eat without suffering afterwards, and I can't sit down to the table without feeling thankful for what Tanlac has done for me."

Mrs. Buckingham is the wife of W. G. Buckingham, the well-known carriage and auto maker. He has been with the Russell Carriage Company for twenty-three years. Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham have lived in Kansas City for more than thirty years, and are highly respected by all who know them.

"What I would eat caused me pain," she continued, "and if I went without eating there was an awful gnawing sensation in my stomach; so I just suffered nearly all the time. The gas on my stomach affected me so that I could hardly breathe, and my heart acted so peculiar that I became alarmed for fear I had heart trouble. I could not rest and would get so nervous I did not know what to do. At times I was so bad off that I should have been in bed, and just dragged around at my work. I was so dizzy I could scarcely keep my balance, and couldn't stoop over without falling.

"Well, nothing ever helped me except just for the time being, until I began taking Tanlac, and that's saying, a good deal, for it seems to me I had tried everything. For a while I thought Tanlac was going to disappoint me, too, for I never felt much better until I had finished my third bottle; but since that time I have improved rapidly. I can eat just anything now, and since my food digests properly and the gas has stopped forming on my stomach I never have palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, or a pain. My nerves are almost normal and my housework is no longer a burden, but a pleasure to me. Really, I am feeling better than I have since my troubles began, and I just think Tanlac is the grandest medicine on earth."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

ANTWERP, "CITY OF SORROWS," ALWAYS COMES BACK TO LIFE

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Antwerp, which is being considered as the base for evacuation of the American army of occupation in Germany, is described in the following bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society:

"Antwerp, Europe's Hamburg of the sixteenth century and Athens of the seventeenth, compels American admiration by its phenomenal power to 'come back.' Crushed by wars, inquisitions, economic bans and persecutions of its people, Antwerp always has risen again.

"Figures tell the story. Population in 1568, 100,000; twenty years later, only 55,000. From 1609 to 1650 the population almost doubled. To its 300,000 in 1904, a hundred thousand more were added before the Germans came in October, 1914. The 12,160 vessels that passed in and out of its fine harbour in 1905 marked an increase of more than fifty per cent. since 1868.

"Not that Antwerp is a perennial boom town. It is at least fifteen centuries old. And during that time its story is one of struggle against repeated tragedies. When the Germans invaded the city its noble cathedral tower looked down on just one more, though infinitely more cruel, blow of the sort it had been receiving since the middle ages. Napoleon (some say Charles V.) compared this tower to Mechlin lace. Its delicate chiselling forms a network of stone embroidery against the sky that can be seen from the surrounding flat country, and from the winding Scheldt, long before any other building in Antwerp is visible.

Big Mercantile Mart in 1600.

"By 1600, five hundred ships often came into and went from Antwerp's harbour in a day and two thousand wagon loads of merchandise usually entered its gates. A thousand foreign business houses were represented there. Its own merchant princes dwelt in almost regal splendor.

"Amid this material wealth noble works of art were treated. In the city's museum were specimens of its glorious school paintings by Van Dyck, the Teniers, Memling, Massys, Jordaens, Jan van Eyck and Rubens, though the list named was better represented in the cathedral by his masterpiece, "The Descent from the Cross," and two other noted works.

"In the Museo Plantin were relics of that Elbert Hubbard of the middle ages. Christophe Plantin, whose press product was no less distinctive, when heretic pamphlets were struck off than when devout religious works were printed and embossed.

"During the religious disturbances of the mid-sixteenth century the cathedral, then considered second only to St. Peter's at Rome, was pillaged by the iconoclasts.

DR. ARTHUR W. EVANS A WONDERFUL SPEAKER

On the programme of lectures at the Peterborough Chautauqua, which opens here on July 7th, is the name of Dr. Arthur W. Evans, a Welshman, and a relative of David Lloyd George, who has been one of the leading attractions at the Chautauqua in other cities.

"What kind of a lecture does this young Evans give," is a question frequently asked of Lyceum representatives, and it isn't often that a representative can tell, for Dr. Evans has a habit of "putting over" a lecture which defies description.

Two years ago Dr. Evans made his initial appearance in a Pennsylvania town, in which a Lyceum Course has been conducted for many years. What he did to the folks there may be judged by the following extract from a letter received from the enthusiastic committee men in charge of the course:

"This young Welshman was the greatest Lyceum bargain we have had in a dozen years' experience. He had our folks hanging over the bleacher rail until the last man was out in the ninth inning. Even the gentlemen who got soaked under the fifth rib by his conclusions didn't realize they had been wounded. He has a voice which would coax the scariest Lyceum calf up to the trough and let him halter him, and his method of approach is fresh and daring.

"Some blase' course ticket holders went up to the auditorium with misgivings. They were afraid the "Lords of the Land" might be more dry and didactic than fresh and invigorating. They had the 'show me' stare when the curtain went up, and the perpetual introducer shoved young Evans into the fiery furnace with the failing faith of the friends of Daniel, kissing him good-bye with a tear. But he waded right in and turned the hose on. The fire spluttered and went out. Enthusiasm was born and the Missouri smile of distrust disappeared in a wave of Pennsylvania approval. A young gentleman from Wales arrived. Three hundred doubters died and three hundred boosters came to life. And oh, what a joy feast it was from that time to the finish. An hour and twenty-five minutes of unalloyed enjoyment, and when it was over there wasn't a man, woman or child in the house that didn't agree with the historic line from Holmes: 'Old time IS a liar.' Your representative told us that Evans was a comer. He's more than that. He's here."

Palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, inability to lie on the left side, feelings as if smothering, oppressed feeling in the chest, dizzy and faint spells, tired weak, worn out feeling, involuntary twitching of the muscles, sleeplessness, nervous, etc., all point to the fact that either the heart or should be. Any of these conditions nerves, or both, are not what they should be remedied immediately so as to avoid a complete breakdown of the whole system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will bring energy to the weakened constitution, strengthen and regulate the heart, and tone up the tired, overstrained nerves.

Mrs. William Steeves, Chemical Road, N.B., writes:— "I have been a great sufferer from nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart, which was so bad I had to sit up in bed to get my breath. I could not lie on my left side at all. I tried doctor after doctor, also several different remedies, but got no help from them. My mother insisted on me trying Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. By the time I had used one box, I was feeling very much better. I took in all three boxes, and now I am in perfect health and can enjoy a good sound sleep, and can lie on my left side without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A BRIDGE WITHOUT A TRACE OF METAL

The natives of Java have a bridge-building technique which utilized to the limit their slight resources for work of this character. Of raw materials they are acquainted with but two, and one of these is really a product of their own ingenuity. They have no nails, no iron, no true wood; they are forced to rely entirely upon bamboo for the structural parts, and upon a rope of their own manufacture to affect the junctures. In spite of these limitations, they achieve remarkable results. The span of a bridge over a river in the central part of the island is almost 100 feet, and the width of the roadway suffices four feet. The four bamboo columns at either side of the stream are built up of a double length of from 50 to 60 bamboos, tied up with rope and firmly pressed together by forcing a quantity of wedges between rope and bamboos. Such columns are found to be of remarkable strength and elasticity; they are, in fact, used throughout the Dutch Indies as derricks for lifting roofpans when building sugar factories, etc.

The original element which the Javan natives have brought to the construction of these bridges, as remarked is the rope. This is made of a fiber taken from the native arenpalm, which grows all over the island. This fiber is of a black and horny substance. It makes a rope that resists effectively the heavy decaying action of the hot and damp tropical climate with its legions of fungi; in fact, it lasts for many years without any indications of rotting. So between this rope and the bamboo, the natives are able to achieve a semi-permanent structure for which it would be hard to find a peer on the ground of cheapness and durability. Perhaps the most surprising feature of the whole thing is the degree to which has been approximated the best type of bridge arch. How does an ignorant savage know that a bridge ought not to be built perfectly flat?—Scientific American.

FLOWER BEDS WERE DESTROYED

It has been learned that several large flower vases and a number of smaller ones, were wilfully broken and destroyed in the Little Lake Cemetery a short time ago, by some unknown party or parties. The destruction seems to have been of the most wanton and deliberate nature, large stones, weighing several pounds having been found lying close to the destroyed articles.

Supt. James has been made acquainted with some circumstanies that may lead to the guilty parties being apprehended.

Oh! Such Pain! dizzy—dragged-down? With dull headache, backache — racking with pain here or there — poor woman, she's one of many. On those days each month, when in other circumstances she would go to bed, she must still be at the desk or counter, or struggle through the day as best she may with her housework or her family cares. Usually she who feels those dragging-down or dizzy symptoms, and other pains caused by womanly disease, can be cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures the cause of these pains. Faded, jaded, tired, overworked, weak, nervous, delicate women are helped to strength and health by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. In liquid or tablets.

CHESTER, ONT.—"Being a mother I have had occasion to use 'Favorite Prescription' quite a lot. I recommend it to my patients and it has been a wonderful help to many of them. I never know of a case where it failed. I have a patient who is using it now and is doing fine. I have taken it myself and get the very best results. I consider it the best medicine there is for women who are ailing."—Miss Rosie Mason, 20 Degree Branch.

WHEN THE WHEELS STOP TURNING

(REPORT OF A SOVIET MEETING)

Below is an utterly unreliable report of a meeting held the other day in Russia, where the Soviet in charge of the Sniffsky Glue Factory discussed business conditions and prospects. The report is taken from the local paper of the town of Buzzoff, in which the Sniffsky concern has a large establishment.

"A full meeting of the workers of the Sniffsky Glue factory was held last night in the large warehouse which was formerly used to accommodate the goods which used to be manufactured. As the meeting reflects in a striking manner the great strides which have been made in economic reform since the Soviet took charge of the country, we take the liberty of reporting the meeting fully.

"Chairman Rausmitten in opening the meeting, briefly outlined the objects of calling same. "We are confronted," he said, "by a state of affairs which I feel it my duty to explain to my fellow-workers. Owing to the fact that Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, part of Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday were holidays, the amount of production in our factory was not so great as it might have been if someone had been working, but the great benefit derived from our social gatherings during the week, and the friendly riot we staged on Thursday afternoon, amply compensate us for any regrets we may feel at not having put on the market any of the well-known Sniffsky Glue. It is with great satisfaction that I report that one of the former proprietors of our plant was shot when he attempted on Friday night to enter our office for the purpose of rescuing his pet canary, which, as you are all aware, has not been fed for the last few days, owing to strike among the canary-feeders of Buzzoff. However, the object of calling this meeting was not to gloat over our past triumphs, but to advise the members of a situation which may, perhaps, become serious. I decided early in the week to continue our policy of giving the worker his just dues, by increasing all wages the usual one hundred per cent. per week. Unfortunately, I discovered that the treasurer did not have any money. At first I thought that it was owing to his neglect that he had not had more printed and was going to have him executed, but I found on further inquiry that the money-printers were on a two months' vacation and would not resume work until after Christmas. On further consideration, and after a chat I had with Comrade Upagenztit, one of our members, I came to the conclusion that, perhaps, there was some thing else wrong. Comrade Upagenztit reported to me that he had gone down to purchase a loaf of bread. Bread that day was fifty thousand rubles a loaf, and Comrade Upagenzt it had to pay two carters thirty thousand roubles to take enough money to the bakery to buy bread. The worst part of it was that the baker told our comrade that he could have no more bread for any amount of roubles as his back yard was full of roubles, and the health department complained about it blowing around the streets. But he told our comrade that he could have a loaf of bread fr a small slab of the famous Sniffsky glue.

"Now, comrades, I do not wish to suggest anything radical, but it seems to me that it would be well for us to snatch a few days from our precious holidays next month, and make a little glue. That is the object of the meeting."

"Comrade Rhubitin (formerly Baron Rhubitin, one of the owners of the Sniffsky plant): 'I told you guys what would happen. If you don't stick around making glue, you can't expect bread. You've made a nice mess of this glue business.'

"Chairman Rausmittem: 'Sit down, cutworm!'

"Comrade Hatzwurk: 'The plight of our comrade Upagenztit is a serious one, and I agree with our chairman that something be done. I would suggest that we open up the factory tomorrow morning for ten or fifteen minutes to see if we can't make enough glue to trade for enough bread to last us until the Red Guard can find time to compel the bakers to make us a little more bread.

"On the advice of the chairman this suggestion was put in the form of a motion which was carried almost unanimously after an amendment by Comrade Rhubitin, that twenty minutes be wasted in work, instead of fifteen, was defeated.

"The meeting seemed to be on the point of breaking up at this juncture but Comrade Horsitch, who is chairman of the factory committee on raw material, asked permission to make a report, which was granted. The report showed a rather serious condition of affairs. He declared that although at the beginning of the month there had been a fair supply of dead horses on hand, from which a good supply of glue might be made, the stock had been depleted. He did not like, he said, to make any insinuations, but the man in charge of the stockyard had informed him that the wives of several of the managing committee, including the wife of Chairman Rausmittem, had removed all the choice steaks and titbits, with the result that only a small quantity of inferior glue material remained.

"There was the greatest indignation at this report, but a vote of censure on the managing committee failed to carry. It was later learned that this reluctance on the part of the meeting to censure the managing committee was on account of the fact that those who had taken the meat had seen that most of the members attending the meeting had been presented with a tasty dish of horsemeat. The chairman then asked Comrade Horstich if there was not enough material on hand to go ahead next morning for fifteen minutes, if the men did not work too hard. Comrade Horsitch, who explained amidst laughter that he might as well be honest about it and admit that he had not been meatless himself, thought that there was. This announcement caused great rejoicing until Comrade Nuttsky, the head machinist, informed the meeting that something had gone wrong with the big machine which mixed the minced horse with the glycerine, these being the well-known chief ingredients of Sniffsky glue. The machinist told the meeting that some new parts were required.

" 'For God's sake get them and let us make just a little glue for the sake of old times,' shouted a voice from the back of the hall.

Comrade Nuttsky stated that the parts could be obtained only from England.

" 'To Hell with England,' shouted a member, and got quite a hand-clap for his witticism.

"Affairs seemed to have reached a deadlock, but a way was found out of the difficulty by Comrade Shootup, who said: 'I don't think there is much in this glue business anyway. I move, Comrade Chairman, that we all join the Red Guard and help our brothers to carry the blessing of the revolution far and wide into every land.'

"This short speech was greeted with thunderous applause and the members rushed for the doors and engaged in a mad race to the recruiting office. Unfortunately, for the success of the plan, it was found by the winners in the race that the recruiting sergeant and his staff, not having been paid for two months, had chucked their jobs and were looking for the managing committee of the Sniffsky Glue factory, in order to apply for a job.

"Up to the time of going to press there have been no new developments but the situation is regarded with grave concern, and disorders are confidently looked for."—Turner's Weekly.

WHERE OUR KINGS GET HOOKED UP

It's a Tiny London Chapel

There are probably few, even of those who trink they know their London, who have discovered the Chapel Royal. It is possible, indeed to wander again and again through the maze of St. James's Palace without even suspecting its nearness although it looks out on you through a large window at the very portal. And yet this cunningly concealed chapel is one of the most historic and interesting buildings in England, well worth a long pilgrimage to visit.

For centuries it has been the matrimonial Mecca of Royalty. Queen Anne wore her bridal veil at its altar for George of Denmark; Frederick, Prince of Wales, put a wedding ring on the finger of the Duke of Coburg's daughter; and George IV., too intoxicated to stand without support, hiccoughed his vows to Caroline within its walls. It was the setting for Queen Victoria's nuptials eighty years ago; her daughter, the Princess Royal, stood at its altar with her German bridegroom; and our late King Edward was married there in 1863.

And not only has it been the scene of these and many other weddings of our Royalty and nobility; at its font scores of Princes and Princesses have received their christening.

And yet this ultra-Royal Chapel has no architectural pretensions to rival its splendid history. It is small—but twenty yards long, with accommodation for two hundred persons only. It is no larger in fact than many a parish room. Nor is it beautiful apart from its painted and panelled Holbein ceiling, on which you may see the name of Henry VIII; and the date, 1540. And yet it boasts three galleries, one for Royalty, another for peers and peeresses and other distinguished personages; and the third for its organ, one of the finest in England.

Here generations of Kings have worshipped more or less reverently. Charles I. attended his last service in this chapel before taking his walk to the headsman's block in Whitehall and George III. listened patiently to sermons two and three hours long, amusing himself by beating time to the anthem and boxing his pages' ears when they ventured to talk or gigle. And Queen Ann was so shocked by the ogling and sighing of the younger members of the congregation during the sermon, that she gave orders for the pews to be "raised higher and made into closets."

The Chapel Royal claims to have the best choir in London.

It is composed of boy choristers, arrayed in gold and scarlet uniform, white ruffs and bands, knee-breeches and stockings.—Pearson's Weekly.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor, Examiner:

Sir Rodolph Lemieux is, according to the member for Peterborough, a very bold, and a very sacrilegious man. In our ignorance of the facts of the case, we can only surmise that Sir Rod must be the happy father of a large family himself, or that he must have been importuned by delegations from the heads of many of these large families, for which the Province of Quebec is noted, and justly proud, ere he would feel himself impelled to take the stand he did the other day, with regard to exempting parents from paying income tax, at the rate of $1,000 per child, instead of $200 as at present.

Mr. Burnham considers this is flying in the face of the Almighty. He probably also sees in the move, that such a regulation would discriminate unduly in favour of our sister province of Quebec, and against Ontario. For when Jean and Marie line up their contribution of from 10 to 20 young hopefuls, they would not only claim total exemption from income tax, but should really be entitled to a bonus, per capita, on the surplus.

But why should the member for Peterborough be sore. This is a free country. Jean has no special privileges, and we believe he would be too good a sport to blame the Creator for wishing all those children upon him. If Ontario is to benefit from these exemptions, it will be necessary to extend the terms to include poodles and terriers. Many of Mr. Burnham's fellow citizens, however, would not only hold up both hands for Sir Rodolph's motion but would go further and add $1,000 to the assessment of every taxpayer, in whose home there have been no children. Altogether too many of our womankind are like the wife described in the old rhyme:

"She's a raspberry tart,
In a little poke bonnet,
With a great big bunch
Of thing-a-mess upon it,
A pinafore dress, that is just the thing,
"And a little pug dog on the end of a string."

Mr. Burnham thinks God has something to say about the birth of little children. Probably he can give us some light on God's views on race suicide.

Father of Three.

May 26, 1919.

Sir: I am engaged with Mr. Thos. Wright upon an important work, which will deal exhaustively with the history of lace making by hand, as carried on in Bucks, Beds, Northants, and other districts.

I should be glad if any of your readers who are interested in this subject would communicate with me. They could help in various ways: For example:

1. By giving an account of the progress of the industry in their own neighborhood.

2. By sending inscriptions on bobbins or trade tokens, or any anecdotes relating to the industry.

But there are many other ways in which correspondents could help; they would be doing service not only to me, but also to literature, and I should be pleased to hear from any one.

The work will be a demy 8 vo. of 300 pages and with 50 plates and it will correspond in size and general appearance with Mr. Wright's famous biographies of Cowper, Watts and Toplady.

I am, Sir,
Yours very truly,
Henry H. Armstrong,
High Street, South Olney,
Buckinghamshire England.

To the Editor of The Examiner,
Peterboro, Ont., Canada.

DEPORT ALL PROFITEERS AND UNREASONABLE STRIKE LEADERS.

Sir: It was with utter disgust I read the remarks of a Sherbrooks cloth manufacturer in your paper the other day. He said he did not "build his factory for the glory of God, or the people, but for the shareholders." And also, "any man that couldn't make money during the war was a fool."

Now, to my mind, any man who has the "gall" to say this should be put against his factory wall and a machine gun turned on him, because he is still soaking the returned soldier, who was over there, giving his life to keep the Germans from taking that man's (?) factor yfrom him,

But we don't have to go to Sherbrooke to find profiteers. We have them not a thousand miles from Peterboro. I know one place where a man gets $5.00 for making an article, and it is sold for $35.00. Of course there are a few intermediate costs, but nothing in consideration to the sale of the article. Other places I could mention, both stores and factories, are making wonderful profits and paying awful wages.

Of course strikes are not legal and sometimes out of all reason, but in the working classes knew as much as the business classes, God only knows what would happen. I would like to see the Government take a man's store or factory from him if he makes over a fair profit, instead of saying, or as good as saying "Make all you can providing you give me so much."

Thanking you Mr. Editor,
Returned Soldier.

Peterboro, June 23, 1919.

The Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—In regard to the drowning accident which happened on Monday afternoon at Inverlea Park when Miss Ruth Fanning was nearly drowned, was much surprised to see that all the credit was given to Miss Hood and Miss Elliott, when Miss Lucy Hawthorne of 197 Dublin street came to the rescue after Miss Elliott and the child went down for the second time. So really some of the credit is due to Miss Hawthorne.

Respectfully yours,
An Onlooker.

ANTICIPATE AN INCREASE IN FARES

EARLY SETTLEMENT LOOKED FOR IN THE TORONTO STRIKE.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, June 25.—Strikers and officials of the Toronto Street Railway Company to-day express themselves as more hopeful of a settlement, following various conferences during the last twenty-four hours. This is brought about by the general admission that an increase in fares will undoubtedly be an essenial to a settlement of the men's demands. This afternoon there will be another conference of all parties, with Mayor Church and a committee of citizens. Hon. Mr. Hearst, Provincial Premier, will take part in this meeting, or be represented by members of the Provincial Cabinet. Things were quiet this morning at Lansdowne avenue barns, where rioting broke out last night when strike breakers housed on the inside played a hose on the crowd without.

No attempt to run the cars has been made at any time since the inception of the strike.

The Toronto Strike.

TORONTO, June 25.—Mayor Church proposes to the Controllers that Sir Adam Beck be asked to acquire and operate the Toronto railway for the city. The Mayor would have the Hydro Commission run the system if the Railway Board takes it over temporarily. Police Commissioners the Mayor dissenting promise full protection to the company if it runs the cars. The Mayor attacks strike-breakers, saying some are aliens and slackers. Assistant Manager Hubbard says decorated men are among the strike-breakers. A wire from the Deputy Minister of Labour to the Mayor makes it clear that a Conciliation Board has no limiting instructions to the conference on this afternoon between the Ontario Cabinet and various other parties.

LEGISLATION FOR REMAINING DAYS OF THE SESSION

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, June 25.—It is not anticipated that the contentious Franchise Act will come before the Parliament this session, so Sir Robert Borden announced to-day in the House in outlining the legislation that will have to be handled during the remainder of the session. Instead, the government will introduce a temporary measure to provide for the holding of by-elections. He intimated that the report of the Industrial Relaitons Commission may call for legislative action and that the committee of the House, considering the cost of living ay make recommendations on which the Government may find it necessary to base legislation for presentation to the House.

NICKLE VOTED WITH OPPOSITION

Military Forces of Canada Will be Increased to 10,000 Men.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, June 25.—A last minute attempt by the Opposition to kill the measure giving the government power to increase, if necessary, the permanent military forces of Canada to 10,000 men ,failed to-day. No sooner did the Minister of Militia move that the bill be given a third reading than J. A. Robb, chief Liberal whip, seconded by J. A. Archambault, moved an amendment to the effect that the bill go back to the committee for the purpose of deleting clause one, which was the kernel of the measure, giving the government the above-mentioned power. When the vote was taken the amendment was defeated by 68 to 39. W. F. Nickle, of Kingston, who opposed the proposal last night, voted again with the Opposition. He was the only Unionist who did. The bill was then given a third reading.

GARDEN PARTY WAS A SUCCESS

Interesting Event at the Home of Mr. G. Curtis.

The garden party held at the residence of Mr. G. Curtis, corner of Aylmer Street and Manning Avenue last night was in every way a success. The affair was in charge of the ladies of Mr. Cruickshanks' class of the George Street Methodist Sunday School. The proceeds were for the building fund. The grounds were beautifully lighted and decorated with flags, while the lawn abounded with prettily-covered tables and easy chairs. The orchestra from the Sunday School, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Cunningham, rendered an excellent programme. Between the numbers, music was provided by the pathephone, loaned by Mr. J. H. Vance. There was a large attendance, and all appeared to have a very enjoyable evening. The ladies in charge are to be complimented for the manner in which they arranged the evening. Mrs. Curtis deserves many thanks for putting her residence and grounds at the disposal of the class.

HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

So interesting are the addresses of Evangelist H. D. Kennedy proving each night in the big tent on Hunter Street that many people are attending almost every service, and strangers are coming each night, with the result that the attendance continues to steadily grow. Last night Mr. Kennedy based his remarks on Revelation 3, 20; "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice and open the door I will come in to him and sup with him and he with me." At the outset he stated that there are numerous passages of Scripture which it is somewhat difficult for people to unerstanl who are not acquainted with Oriental customs. The verse of his text was one of these. In the time of Christ it was customary for people to keep all their doors barred for fear an enemy dressed as a friend might apply for entrance. For that reason they refused to admit strangers until they recognised them by their voice. Keeping the foregoing thought foremost, Mr. Kennedy proceeded to show that the Laodicean church described in the third chapter of Revelation was wealthy and prosperous, but that Christ was shown to be standing outside the church knocking on the door drying to gain admittance. To-day many churches are going through all the motions of religious service, including the preaching of sermons by well-educated ministers and the singing of difficult music by well-trained choirs, and still lack the spirit of Christ. In order to bring this thought home, Mr. Kennedy illustrated by asking his hearers what they would think if he invited them to visit him in his home, but later when someone else entered his home he should turn his attention to the newcomer and freeze them out. This, he said, was what many Christians were doing with Christ. They have frozen Him out of their hearts, their parlours, their libraries, their homes, and their churches. This they have done in their hearts by failure to surrender tteir wills, in their parlours by admitting worldly amusements, such as dancing and card-playing, from out of their libraries by admitting books and magazines dealing with higher criticism and full of teachings that dishonour Christ and by neglect to read God's word, out of their homes by failure to conduct family prayer and to honour God in the family relationships, and out of the church by adopting worldly methods of raising money, and using the church to amuse those who attend, rather than as a means of leading people nearer to Christ. This is a time, the speaker said, when the devil is going around dressed in the garments of the Son of God and endeavouring to get into the parlour, the library, the heart, the home, and the church under various disguises. Among the disguises described by Mr. Kenendy were those of spiritualism, Mormonism, the teachings of the Latter Day Saints, Russellism, Unitarianism, and other similar teachings. For this reason, Christians must be careful that they understand the voice of the stranger who knocks at the door of their hearts, and that they are sure that it is Christ that is knocking before they open their hearts to accept any of the teachings of the various isms that are being promulgated on all sides to-day. Although last night's service was not one that was intended especially for the conversion of sinners, appeals to whom will probably be made nightly from now on, one young man remained after the close of the service last evening and expressed his conversion before leaving. The musical service last evening included solos by Mr. Walden and Mr. Mulligan.

Delegations Being Arranged.

Arrangements are being made for different public bodies to attend the services. To-morrow evening the employees of the Quaker Oats Company have been invited. A double male quartette from the company will sing. Other delegations will be announced later. This evening Mr. Walden will give a special musical number during the cary part of the service. The members of St. Paul's Church choir will lead the service of song this evening.

On Thursday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. there will be an all-day prayer service in George Street Methodist Church. It is expected that many Christian people of the city will take part in this service.

Kennedy Nuggets.

Christ cannot get along without a church any more than you can get without a body.

Some people are so perfect, in arguing perfection, they never possess it or acquire it.

A man all reason becomes n infidel a man all faith becomes a fanatic. One who strikes the happy medium is a common sense useful Christian.

The most important business in life is to keep the soul so it will revolt from evil.

A sea captain once said: "This ship is not going faster because of the new coat of paint, but because we put in a new boiler."

It's not the beauty of the church building or the outward lives we ay live that counts for God, it's becoming new creatures through Christ and having our hearts changed."

We should make everything of the One we serve, not of our service or the people we serve.

David did not say "Search my neighbours", but "Search me, oh God!"

There is a big difference between having God search you and doing it yourself.

Ask God to show you His heart and your heart.

No one throws up his hands before a policeman ,and says "Search me" if he knows he has stolen money about him.

The thief has not repented, if he keeps the money he stole.

The man that owes a dollar that he can pay and won't pay is dishonest

If a man tells you he does not believe in the eighth commandment don't question him search him.

Better die in the good house and be buried in the potter's field, than to stand at last before Christ dishonest and unsaved.

Most people want others to think of them than they deserve.

Some never examine themselves, because they are not willing to face conscious guilt.

Is the presence of some person a greater restraint on you than the eye of God.

Are you as ashamed of your sin when committed as when found out by others?

Do you get real pleasure from prayer and Bible study or are you secretly glad when its over?

Some worldly people are counting on going to heaven when they die. It might be well, however, if they would take their summer clothes with them—they may need them.

Subject Wednesday night: "Hoeing Your Own Row."

All day prayer meeting held in basement of George street church on Thursday from 10 to 5.

Noon hour specially intended for business and professional men and women.

ROOSTER HOPPED OVER THE FENCE

Neighbourly Action Cost the Owner Two Dollars.

Michael Donaghue, who resides in the South end of the City did not think that his chickens ran at large and paraded in his neighbours gardens but one of his neighbours, Mrs. Wells did and laid information against Mr. Donoghue. Mr. Donoghue admitted that a banty rooster could not be kept within bounds, and usually hopped over the fence. The fine was $2 without costs.

CUT THE CORNER

Last Saturday afternoon Mr. Foster Eggleston of Ida, P.O., cut the corner with his team of horses at the corner of Hunter and George streets. He was served with a summons by County Constable J. Bullied and in Police Court this morning and pleaded ignorance of the law. The magistrate imposed a fine of only $2 on account of the large costs. It cost Mr. Eggleston $9.05 altogether.

Pimples Broke Out All Over Face, Arms and Neck

Pimples are sure sign that the blood is not in its proper shape.

While the skin is the seat of the irritating, unsightly pimples, the real disease is in the blood.

Medicated lotions and powders may allay the itching and the irritation, but never cure, no matter how long and faithfully continued, and the condition is often aggravated, and the skin permanently injured by their use. The disease is more than skin deep; the entire circulation is poisoned.

Burdock Blood Bitters quickly and effectually cures blood and skin troubles because it goes direct to the root of the disease and stimulates and restores normal, healthy action to the different organs, cleanses and enriches the blood, and thus relieves the system of all poisons & secretions.

B. B. B. cures permanently because it leaves none of the original poison to ferment in the blood and cause a fresh attack.

Miss E. M. Davidson Daysland, Alta., writes: "Last summer I was greatly troubled with pimples breaking out all over my face, arms and neck. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters and after taking two bottles the pimples had almost all disappeared. I shall always recommend this remedy to anyone afflicted with skin troubles."

From Fighting to Farming.

(1) A Soldier and His Family on a C. P. R. Colony Farm. (2) A Soldier Seeding the Soil. (3) A Typical Colony Farmstead.

Not many months ago two men were in the same battalion in France—the one an officer, the other a private. They both were in at the end and in the short interval since the armistice was signed have come back to Western Canada, received their discharge from the army, and are now occupying neighboring farms in one of the farm colonies prepared for returned soldiers by the Canadian Pacific Railway in Southern Alberta.

Here in these colonies are soldiers of all ranks, a number of whom were in the firing line up to the signing of the armistice. What surprises one most is that so many of them have so soon got back to practical work again and the Canadian Pacific Railway is to be congratulated on having had the foresight to adopt a practical scheme which has made it possible for a large number of men to begin farming on their own account in so short a space of time after their release from military duties. But this company has a reputation for making it easy for the right kind of men to get a start at farming, and its soldiers' settlement scheme is only an elaboration of its original "Ready Made Farm" and settlement plans, by means of which many of Western Canada's most successful farmers were enabled to begin farming in a new country under most favourable circumstances and which has contributed in no small measure to their present success.

The soldier settler in these farm colonies has an unusual opportunity to make good. He finds on the farm a comfortable house ready for him to move into with his family and effects. There is a good barn for his horses and cows, his water supply is provided for, his farm is fenced, and he has forty acres of land broken and ready for crop which will bring him a revenue during his first season. For this farm he is not required to pay anything for three years; that enough to give a man an opportunity to bring his farm to a fine state of development and with average luck to have acquired a fair sized bank account as well.

Moreover, if he is unable to purchase live stock, farm implements and seed, he is provided with a team of horses and harness, two cows, a sow, some poultry, some necessary implements and small tools and seed for his forty acres, for which payment is to be made under an agreement entered into for the purpose.

Some of the larger implements are available for use by the colonists in common, a set being allotted to every three farms and use by them in turn under the direction of the colony superintendent. A fixed charge per day is made for the use of these implements.

The colony superintendent is an expert agriculturist and it is his duty to assist the colonists with advice as to the best manner of conducting their farming operations. His headquarters is the central control farm, a farm somewhat larger than the rest of the farms in the colony, which is used largely for demonstration purposes, and among other functions, serves as a supply depot for such live stock. The central control farm is situated at a point most conveniently reached by all the settlers in the colony and will no doubt become their chief meeting place.

A more enthusiastic community of farmers will be hard to find anywhere than those in process of formation in these veterans' colonies in Alberta. To see the men at work, for themselves, on their own farms, after what they have gone through is an inspiring sight. The spirit of mutual help and comradeship that is everywhere evident, speaks well for the success of the venture. These farm colonies are sure to become centres of considerable agricultural activity.

ORIENTALS BEAT VETERANS IN CITY LEAGUE SERIES

TAIL-ENDERS WERE AHEAD 4 TO 0 AT ONE STAGE BUT WERE FINALLY BEATEN OUT 9 TO 5—FOURTH VICTORY FOR KIRN IN EIGHT DAYS —FIELDING WAS LOOSE BUT THERE WERE SOME CIRCUS STUNTS AT THAT.

The Orientals won their third successive victory and the War Veterans suffered their sixth straight defeat in the City League fixture at the Riverside Park last night, the Orientals grabbing the contest by a 9 to 5 score. As has been the case in the last two or three games the Veterans got the jump on the go in, and at the end of their half of the second were in front 4 to 0, but could not stand prosperity, and the Orientals taking tre lead in the third innings were not headed afterwards.

It was the fourth win in eight days for Pitcher Kirn of the Orientals, who in that period won a decision over each of the other three city league teams, and rounded out his record by a victory over Lindsay in the Central Ontario League Series. He was in good form last night, allowing only six scattered hits and striking out ten man, while none of the runs registered against him were earned. Allan Wade pitched for the War Veterans and was not hit hard, but his control was not of the best, seven passes and two hit batsmen helping the winners to get men on the bases, and across the counting station.

While the fielding was far from airtight on either side, there were some spectacular plays. Dan Lebar grabbed a smoking liner from Clancy's bat in the eighth innings with the bases full. It looked good for a double at least and for two or three runs. Foley made two nice catches at third that resulted in double plays, and Coughlin nailed a fly to short right with his gloved hand, cutting off a run.

Orientals' loose fielding gave the Vets three cheap runs in the first. Anderson led off with a double on the first ball and Stan Wade was hit. The base runners pulled off a double steal. Kirn then struck out Foley and Legros. A. Wade hit a roller to Murray, whose throw to first was bad and Anderson and S. Wade scored. A. Wade stole second and scored when Daynard singled to left. Clancy let the ball get away and the batter went to third, but Lebarr struck out.

The Orientals did not score in their half, and the Vets came back with another. Morrow was safe on Cherrett's fumble and stole second. He went to third on O'Heron's sacrifice and scored on Phelan's bad throw to catch him off third.

Kirn's single and steal, a passed ball, and Foley's low throw to first, on Coughlin's grounder, gave the Orientals one in their half.

In the third they took the lead. With one gone, Cherrett doubled. Heenan lifted one to O'Heron; Phelan singled to third. Good base running and a couple of loose plays on the Vets, let Cherrett and Phelan score. Clancy walked and Murray was hit, and after a double steal, Kirn's single between short and third scored, the pair giving the Orientals the lead.

In the fifth after an error by Legros that gave Heenan a life, and Phelan was passed, the former scored on Foley's miss of a throw to catch him off third. Phelan was nipped at the plate on Clancy's roller to A. Wade, Morrow getting the ball to the plate in good style.

The Orientals got another in the sixth when Kirn walked and was forced by Coughlin who stole second. McCarney was also passed and Head singled to right to score Coughlin. A double play killed further chances.

The Veterans got a funny run in the seventh when with two out Head missed the third strike on Stan. Wade. He started to steal on the first ball and went all the way home when Coughlin did not cover the bag for Head's throw.

The Orientals got a couple in their half. Heenan opened with a single to right, and Phelan was hit. Clancy moved the pair along with a neat sacrifice and they both scored on Murray's single over second. That ended the scoring.

SQUABBLE OVER A REFEREE FOR THE BIG BOXING BOUT

TEX RICKARD MAY BE FORCED INTO THE RING AS A THIRD MAN.

(By H. C. Hamilton, United Press.)

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 25.—Teck Rickard or Olhe Pecord will referee the bout between Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard, according to the best information obtainable here to-day. Willard has practically refused to accept any referee other than Rickard, but Tex is holding back.

It was believed he might be able to convince the champion that Pecord is competent and acceptable. Rickard has had practically no experience as a referee. He is a fight fan, and knows boxing, but his refereeing is practically limited to his session in the ring with Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries when they met nine years ago in Reno. Tex was forced into the ring at that time when the principals refused to agree on any man as a referee. He is a mere amateur, but Willard places great reliance on his honesty. He also would be acceptable to Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey.

Pecord's candidacy has received a great boost by the tactics of Willard for the Toledo Boxing Commission has entered the argument with a strong hand. It has sent word that it will brook no wrangles of any kind that are likely to cast a shadow on the boxing game, and Willard will have to do something soon. He is throwing up the only barrier to an appointment of a ring official. Rickard and Kearns are agreeable to several competent men.

Jack Welsh Mentioned.

The name of Jack Welsh, who was third man inside the ropes when Willard won his title from Jack Johnson, has been mentioned with considerable frequency, but his appointment is now considered a very remote possibility. Kid McFarland, who has officiated in some important bouts in New York most satisfactorily, also was brought into the argument.

The work of the two boxers in preparing themselves for the championship mill was much slower yesterday than it has been. Willard merely played in the ring after a lay-off the day previous. He boxed perfunctorily with Jack Hempel, Joe Chip, Walter Monaghan, and Steamboat Bill Scott. Monaghan succeeded in rocking the big Kansan with rights and lefts on one occasion when Jess elected to mix it with his sparring partner, but the damage was not noticeable. Training camp blows are having little effect on any one now.

Dempsey worked slowly under orders. He was taking punches rather than delivering them, although at times he went at high speed. He landed hard on Bill Tate several times and hit Jamaica Kid practically when he pleased, but he had been told to cut down the steam, and carried out the instructions to the best of his ability. He hit Jock Malone, middleweight, once with a left hook that almost sent Jock to his haunches, but eased up at a cautioning word from Trainer DeForrest.

Jack celebrated his twenty-fourth birthday last night with the aid of some kid friends. Little girls who have been at the camp a great deal took him a large birthday cake, on which burned twenty-four candles. Jack was spirited away in an auto while the little girls secreted the cake in a room at the Dempsey quarters. He was happy when he saw the token.

GOOD GAME IN CITY LEAGUE TO-MORROW NIGHT

The City League Race has tightened up considerably as a result of three straight wins by the Orientals, and to-morrow night's game between DeLaval and the Matthews-Blackwell team should be one of the most exciting of the season. If the De Laval team win the decision in this battle it would mean that the Orientals would be only half a game of the League leaders with the Separator crew right at their heels. At present the Matthews-Blackwell team are a game ahead of the Orientals, who in turn are one game in front of the De Lavals. The latter by winning to-morrow night would leave the three teams separated by only one game. It should be a tight fought game. Last time out Matthews-Blackwell beat De Laval 4 to 3 after a hard fight.

LASCAR SEAMAN PUZZLES MEDICOS

An Indian, a native of Calcutta who for the past two years has been a patient of the Marine hospital is proving a source of great puzzlement to local doctors as well as the officials in charge of the institution. The man, one of the crew of the transport Clan Urquhart, was left at the Marine hospital in 1918, when she called in port. His condition much puzzled the physician who examined him before he left his ship and the nature of his malady cannot be ascertained by local doctors who have since examined him. The man is of middle age, and apparently quite healthy. He has an enormous appetite, eating everything that comes his way, yet he cannot move without assistance. The nurses of the hospital wheel him about daily, in a wheel-chair, and, although, he cannot give expression to his sentiments, being unable to speak, or write the English language, he appears, very happy and contented. The condition of the man has shown slight improvement during the long period of confinement. When first admitted to the institution rice and other food by men of his race was given him as nourishment. Later his daily food of rice was changed, and the food eaten in this country substituted. The experiment proved a success, his condition improved as a result of the change of diet.

The seaman, according to marine laws, must be held here and supported by the government until such time as his condition improves, enabling his return to India.—Sydney Record.

FIRST IN THE HEARTS OF HIS NEIGHBOURHOOD

From The Indianapolis News.

One of the collectors of ashes for the city of Indianapolis was at work in an alley one day recently on the North Side. He was a large negro, and a property-owner stood in the back yard observing at two case with which the man handled large barrels of ashes.

"You're a fine specimen of manhood," said the admirer of the collecter of ashes. "What is your name?"

"George Washington is my name, sir," replied the negro.

"Let me see," replied the property-owner, "it seems to me I've heard that name before somewhere."

"Yes, sir; I guess you have, boss," replied the negro, "I've been collecting ashes in this neighborhood onto seven years now."

FEAT OF THE AGE, SAYS WOODHOUSE

AERO CLUB SECRETARY PREDICTS EARLY REGULAR COMMERCIAL FLIGHTS ACROSS ATLANTIC.

NEW YORK.—Henry Woodhouse, Secretary of the Aero Club of America, declared that the achievement of Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown was "the most stupendous feat of the age" and would advance the science of aviation to a degree not to be computed. One of the results that would be sure to follow within two years, he said, was that regular aerial express and passenger planes would be flying between the continents.

"Few persons, even those in the aeronautical movement, as we call it believed that a frail thing of sticks of wood, canvas and wire could be capable to such a revolutionary achievement. Most persons even some who had seen at close hand the remarkable progress of aerial science during the war, believed that the accomplishment of a non-stop flight across the ocean was at least five years off, and this opinion which was held almost unanimously, adds even more credit to the gallant pilot and navigator of the Vickers-Vimy bombing plane. It is my confident belief that the names of Alcock and Brown with that of Read and his gallant crew, will go down in history with that of Columbus as leaders of a new race of supermen and the leaders in a new era of communication between the continents.

"It is a stupendous think to think of men launching themselves into almost limitless space in an airplane, which after all, depends upon its success in flight more than upon the confidence and belief of its pilots than upon any other factor. The airplane remains aloft and continues its terrific speed only so long as the nerve and endurance of the pilots remain unswerving.

"This flight advances the science of aviation at least five years and, I believe, opens the way to permanent aerial mail, passenger and express service between this country and England and all the other countries in Europe. We may look for swift journeys over the ocean to be almost as numerous as flights over the English Channel are today. Alcock and Brown flew across the ocean in a shorter time than it takes the fastest train to run from New York to Chicago, and the actual time of transmission of material objects from this country to Europe is cut more than one-fifth."

TWO DRY DOCKS FOR NEW YORK ASKED BY MAYOR

Wants the Government to Retain Ownership or Control Their Operation.

NEW YORK.—Location of at least two of the 10,000 ton dry docks contemplated by the Emergency Fleet Corporation, in New York city, was urged by Mayor Hylan in a letter to that body. The Mayor said he believed that the government should retain ownership of the docks instead of selling them to private interests, as proposed. The letter follows:—

"I have noted the advertisement now running in the daily press announcing the fact that you are building several sectional wooden dry docks of 10,000 tons lifting capacity, and it is contemplated to sell these docks to responsible parties who can give assurances that they will provide suitable and adequate repair facilities for use in connection with the same and that these docks will be allocated to the Ports of Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

"It seems to me that at least two of these docks should be located at the Port of New York and that the ownership of the same should be retained by the United States government. If it be decided that the government should not operate these dry docks in connection with a ship repair plant, then I believe that these docks should be leased or rented to responsible parties under the control of a representative of the United States government.

"The city administration is trying to do all in its power to accommodate shipping in this port, and the United States government should have control over ship repair plants, in order to check the exhorbitant prices now being charged by ship repair plants in this port."

Murray Hulbert, Dock Commissioner, issued a statement asking public support for the efforts of the New York delegation in Congress to bring about the construction of a dry dock in the New York Navy Yard large enough to accommodate the Leviathan, the Imperator, the Aquitania and other vessels of that type.

AUTO THIEF LIVED WELL.

Young Musician Stole 30 Cars in Four Months in London.

LONDON—For four months, Sidney Meredith, an attractive musician of twenty-two, dressed like a prince and threw money to the winds in fashionable hotels on the $2,000 to $2,500 a week he acquired by the theft of automobiles in London. He has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Meredith has a thorough driving knowledge of cars, and this, with his appearance, was his stock in trade. He would climb into a car standing in front of a club or hotel and drive away with it. He confessed, the police say, to stealing thirty machines in four months.

Meredith is accredited with saying that he sold each car quickly to a syndicate of wealthy men, who, he believes, often made from 400 to 700 per cent profit after changing the appearance of the machines. He refused to divulge their identity.

NO "BIG BERTHAS" IF TREATY IS SIGNED

THESE AND ALL OTHER WEAPONS OF MORE THAN 4-INCH CALIBRE MUST BE GIVEN UP.

FRANKFORT.—The execution of the terms of the peace treaty will give the Allies Germany's great military secrets. Under the provisions of the document the Germans must turn over the "Big Bertha" with which they bombarded Paris at long range; they must give up the other guns they were preparing to "shoot up" London from across the Channel; they must give up the secrets of the manufacture of mustards gas, the production of which puzzled the allied chemists for so long. These are just a few of the secrets of the German military machine our fighting experts will soon have unless the provisions of the treaty in this respect are changed before the Germans sign it.

America knows that the treaty provides that the strength of the German Army must never exceed 100,000 men, and that by the terms of the treaty there may never be more than 4,000 officers. In providing for armaments, the treaty says that the German military machine must not have more arms than are specified in Table 2. Table 2 lays down a maximum of 84,000 rifles, 18,000 carbines 792 heavy machine guns, 1,134 light machine guns, 90 medium trench mortars, and four 77-millimeter cannon, and 84 105-millimeter guns. No larger guns than 105s are allowed. This is about a 4-inch gun. The "Big Bertha" was of 9-inch, and the Germans used many other guns of more than 12-inch calibre.

These must be given up for the treaty says: "Within three months from the coming into force of the present treaty, German arms, munitions and war material, including anti-aircraft material, existing in Germany in excess of the quantities allowed, must be surrendered to the Governments of the principal allied and associated powers to be destroyed or rendered useless." The manufacture or importation or larger guns is strictly prohibited to Germany.

Another paragraph provided that the use of asphyxiating poisonous or other gases and all analogous liquids, materials or devices being prohibited, their manufacture and importation are strictly forbidden in Germany. The same applies to materials specially intended for the manufacture, storage and use of the said products or devices. The manufacture and importation into Germany of armored cars, tanks and all similar constructions suitable for use in war are also prohibited.

There is a provision that within three months from the coming into force of the treaty the German Government shall disclose to the Governments of the principal allied and associated powers the nature and mode of manufacture of all explosive, toxic substances or other chemical preparations used by them in the war or prepared by them for the purpose of being so used.

One imagines that some one in Paris was thinking of Russia when this provision was adopted, namely, that Germany agrees, from the coming into force of the treaty, not to accredit nor send to any foreign country any military naval or air mission, or to allow any such mission to leave her territory and Germany further agrees to take appropriate measures to prevent German nationals from leaving her territory to become enrolled in the army, navy or air service of any foreign power, or to be attached to such army, navy or air service for the purpose of assisting in the military, naval or air training thereof, or otherwise for the purpose of giving military, naval or air instruction in any foreign country.

How the Germans navy will be cut down to six small battleships, six light cruisers, twelve destroyers, twelve torpedo boats and no submarines has been published. Germany will not be allowed to have any military airplanes.

All these military, naval and air clauses are to be enforced by an inter-allied commission of control at Germany's expense.

CENSORS THE LETTER AND GETS HIS DIVORCE

LONDON, June 24.—Capt. A. J. Cunningham, British Postal Censor at the little town of Cyprus, some time ago came across a letter addressed to his wife that aroused his suspicions.

He petitioned for a divorce, named the writer as co-respondent, and was quickly granted legal separation when the letter was produced in court.

The bride was attended by Miss Violet Patterson of Toronto, while Mr. Alan Catchpole supported the groom. After the ceremony the wedding party returned to the home of the brid 288 Sherbrooke Place, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served after which amid showers of confetti Mr. and Mrs. Lightheart left by the noon Grand Trunk train for a honeymoon in Rochester.

MARK—McINTYRE

On Wednesday, June 18, at three o'clock, a pretty home wedding took place, when Pearl Viola, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McIntyre, was married to Mr. George C. Mark, of Hamilton, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Mark, Fenelon Falls, Ont., at the home of the bride's parents, Lobo, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. M. Corkery, M.A., B.D., of Hamilton, uncle of the bride. The house was prettily decorated with roses, palms, and ferns, and the bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Jean Griffith played Lohengrin's Wedding March. The bride wore a gown of white Georgette crepe and military braid with tulle veil and carried a beautiful bouquet of sweetheart roses and orchids. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Olive McIntyre, who wore a gown of apricot Georgette crepe and carried pink roses. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Thomas Mark, of Peterboro. After the wedding breakfast the young couple left for a trip up the lakes. The bride travelled in a French serge suit of novy blue with hat to match and the groom's gift, a scarf of Hudson seal. The pianist was presented with a cameo and pearl ring. The bride's sister with pearl bar pin, and brother of groom with gold cuff links. Mr. and Mrs Mark will be home to their friends after July 10, at 22 Charlton avenue, Hamilton.

BROCK—LEWERS.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on June 18, 1919, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Brock, Ops township, when their eldest daughter Alma Jean, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony, to Frederick Joseph Lewers, of Cavan Township. The ceremony, which was witnessed by only the immediate friends of the bride and groom, was performed by the Rev. Val E. Tilton, of Lindsay.

The bridal couple, who were unattended, stood under an arch of weeping birchs and orange blossoms, with background of yellow roses. The bride entered the room with her father, to the strains of Wagner's bridal chorus, played by Mrs. Harry Deyell, sister of the groom, and was becomingly attired in a gown of crepe de chene draped with Georgette, and trimmed with beads. She carried a large sheaf of roses, carnations and ferns.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl sunburst and to the organist, a fleur-de-lis pin set with pearls.

After congratulations were extended the bridal party retired to the dining room which was prettily decorated with pink and green where a hearty wedding dinner was partaken of by all present.

Costly and numerous were the presents, showing the high esteem in which the bride was held, among them being a miscellaneous shower from the Institute in which the bride was a valued worker. The happy couple left Lindsay for Toronto and other points, the bride travelling in a suit of sand colored silk poplin with hat to match. On their return they will reside on Cedar Springs farm, Cavan.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewers will be at home to their friends after July 7th.

HOGG—STARKE.

The marriage of Miss Mary A. Starke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Starke, Norwood, to Mr. Ellsworth Hogg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. PETERBORO BOY KILLED AT NIAGARA

Herbert O'Brien, who was killed on a railway at Niagara several weeks ago, was the son of the late Alexander O'Brien, formerly of Peterboro, the family having lived for a time on Stewart street, north of Rink street. He was 17 years old and had many relatives and friends in this city.

According to the evidence brought out at the inquest his dead body was found by a section man who hesitated to move it, and while he was gone for assistance or advice a fast passenger train passed over the body, crushing and mangling it. Several hundred dollars which were known to have been in possession of Mr. O'Brien, were found to be missing, and the jury in deciding that he had been murdered, concluded that the motive had been robbery. The father of the deceased died about a year ago, but some members of the family are now living at Niagara.

FORMER KAISER STILL SAWING LOGS

(Canadian Press.)

AMERONGEN, June 25.—News of Germany's decision to accept the peace terms, including the clause providing for delivery of the former German Emperor to the Allies, reached the Castle late yesterday evening. Exactly how the former Emperor was affected by the tiding cannot be ascertained, but the attitude of members of his party gives rise to the belief that the news was a considerable shock. When the Associated Press correspondent talked with attendants they declared the news was already known at the castle. They made a most scathing criticism of the German National Assembly for its action. Evidently they had held to the hope that some way would be found for the former Emperor to return to Germany. Now, however, it apparently is realized that he is exiled forever from his country. The former monarch resumed his customary log sawing at the usual hour.

ALLIES WILL ISSUE ULTIMATUM UNLESS THE GERMANS SPEED UP THEIR PEACE CARAVAN.

STAGE ALL SET

(Special to The Examiner.)

VERSAILLES June 26.—"The situation is greatly improved. Unless the unforseen happens, the treaty will be signed Saturday," Paul Dutasta, secretary of the Peace Conference, told the United Press to-day, following a conference with the German representatives at the Hotel Reservoirs.

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, June 26. — An ultimatum will be sent to Germany threatening an advance of the Allied armies, unless word is received soon regarding the signing of the peace treaty, it was learned on high authority.

The German government was still unable to obtain a delegation to sign for it, according to the latest advices. A wireless despatch to Secretary Von Hancl at Versailles notified him that Chancellor Bauer, Foreign Minister Mueller and former Premier Scheidemann had all failed to organize a new Peace Commission. It was reported at the same time that three members of the recent Scheidemann Cabinet had accepted tentatively. A later message to Von Hancl said: "Notify Clemenceau we are having the greatest difficulties."

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, June 26. — The Paris correspondent of the 'Daily News' reported to-day that the new German peace delegation is expected to arrive in Versailles to-morrow night.

An Ultimatum.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, June 26.—It is understood that if no official communication is received by nightfall from Berlin relative to the plans of the German government for signing the peace treaty, something in the nature of an ultimatum will be sent to Berlin by the Peace Conference.

BERLIN, June 26.—Identity of the men to be delegated to go to Versailles as German representatives to sign the treaty of peace will not be announced before Thursday, according to an official statement.

Has Declined.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, June 26. — The "Tageblatt" is informed that Hermann Mueller, Minister of Foreign Affairs, is urged to accept the assignment to go to Versailles, but has declined on personal grounds. The newspaper says, the best and most natural solution of the situation would be to have Mathias Erzberger set his name to the peace instrument.

He, however, is evidently not inclined to draw the logical conclusion from the peace policy he has been pursuing in recent months.

The "Tageblatt" also states that it has been suggested that a committee of officials who were outside the pale of politics, or former members of diplomatic corps, should be appointed, provided such individuals would accept the assignment.

A Proclamation.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BERLIN, June 26. — The government issued the following proclamation to-day: "Peace is concluded. All efforts must be directed towards fulfillment of the treaty."

The "Tageblatt" said to-day that hostilities are progressing against Poland in the region of Notec, north of Posen.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, June 26. — Hermann Mueller, Foreign Minister, and Dr. Bell, Colonial Minister, it was announced, have been selected as the German envoys to sign the Peace terms.

They will leave Berlin on Friday.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, June 26.—Representatives of Industrial Councils have assumed full political and military power in Hamburg, and are sitting in the Town Hall, according to advices from Berlin, quoting newspaper advices received here.

General Von Lettow von Berk has been ordered to Hamburg with strong forces to restore order.

DISORDERS INCREASING.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, June 26.—Disorders are increasing in Berlin, the Exchange Telegraph correspondent reports.

Many streets here are barricaded, and there have been serious engagements between Government troops and mobs.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, June 26.—Efforts were being made to-day to arrange for the signing of the peace treaty at three o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Council of Three is apparently satisfied with semi-official assurances that Germany would be on hand.

ALLIES DEMAND REPARATIONS FOR LOSS OF FLEET

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS June 26.—Germany has been notified in a note sent today by the Allies that they possess the right to punish those responsible for destruction of German ships and to collect reparation for the loss. The sinking of the fleet is denounced as a violation of the armistice and a deliberate breech in advance of the conditions of peace.

PETERBORO NURSE RETURNS HOME

NURSING SISTER PEARL EASTWOOD WAS AT KIMMEL PARK AT TIME OF RIOTS.

Greeted at the station by a host of friends, Nursing Sister Pearl Eastwood, who went overseas with the Canadian Army Medical Corps in December, 1917, arrived in the city last evening and is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Eastwood, 308 George street, previous to leaving for New York, where she will visit friends.

Since going overseas Miss Eastwood has been stationed at Moore Barracks, Shorncliffe, and later at Kitchener Hospital, Brighton, and subsequently at Kimmel Park, where she was in hospital at the time of the riots. In speaking of the riots at Kimmel, Miss Eastwood stated that many more were killed and injured than was reported. She said that the whole affair was instigated by the foreign element in the forces, and said that she was much amused to see amongst the leaders a Polock, a Russian and an Indian.

Apologized For Intrusion.

Contray to the reports appearing in many of the newsapers the rioters in no case molested the women in the camps and tales of the W.A.A.C.S. or any other women being treated with any disrespect are quite untrue. The quarters in which Miss Eastwood was stationed at the time of the riot had been an officers' mess and at the time had still the posters proclaiming it to be such. The rioters, mistaking the quarters to be still those of the officers, tore down the signs and attempted to enter the building, but on finding it to be the nurses, quarters, immediately apologized for their intrusion and withdrew.

There are dozens of nurses still waiting to return to Canada and they are taking their deferred return according to their temperament, some impatiently and complaingly, but the majority with good grace. "None of us have any complaint to make of the way the English people treated us," she said.

Before returning to Canada Miss Eastwood made a tour of France and Belgium and brought back many valuable and interesting souvenirs.

BILL RETURNED TO THE SENATE

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, June 26.—Sir Robert Borden, in the morning session of the Commons, presented a motion returning the amended Prohibition Bill to the Senate, and asking for reconsideration by the Senate of its amendment, which means that the Dominion Prohibition Law is repealed when Peace is signed.

Sir Robert declared that as the Commons assented to the Senate's amendment, the very principle for which the Bill was passed would be denied.

WINNIPEG STRIKERS ARE APPEARING AT THEIR OLD PLACES OF EMPLOYMENT

STREET CAR SERVICE APPROACHES NORMAL—POLICEMEN SIGN ULTIMATUM.

LEAGUE FORMED

(Special to The Examiner:)

WINNIPEG, June 26.—The grand "walk-in" started with a rush yesterday, when thousands of strikers appeared at their old places of employment and asked to be taken back. Hundreds of street car men have returned. The service on all lines was resumed. Company officials said virtually a normal service will be restored by to-day. Two hundred and fifteen police signed the ultimatum yesterday. Judge Robson begins his investigation of the strike causes on July 3. Trial of the strike leaders begins on the following day before a jury. A fine of $1,000 is said to be the heaviest punishment they will face. Mass meetings of soldiers outside the city limits clamored for deportation proceedings. A Soldiers' and Sailors' Labour League, similar to that formed at Vancouver, which endeavours to further the interests of returned men by political action, was organized last night. A meeting of nearly 1,000 returned men approved of the scheme at the Norwood baseball grounds. It was declared that 9,000 more could be interested.

ITALY WILL SIGN TREATY

New Government authorizes the old Delegation to Attach Signatures —Still Stand for London Treaty.

(Special to Examiner.)

ROME, June 26. — The Italian Peace Commission now in Paris has been authorized to sign the German treaty, it was announced to-day.

The new delegation was expected to leave Saturday for Paris. The empowering of the old delegation to sign was believed to result from a wish not to delay in any way the ceremony at Versailles.

Following Foreign Minister Tittoni's address before the Senate last evening that body voted 94 to 7 in favor of Senator Prince Colonna's resolution expressing confidence in the new Italian peace delegates and the firm belief that Italy's claims will triumph. Tittoni declared that the new commission will not abandon Italy's original claims. "Italy's foreign policy must be the people's policy," said Tittoni. "The time for secret formulas and conventional appearances is definitely over."

MR. TRENER TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION

BLIND ORGANIST OF ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH WILL TAKE ARTS COURSE.

Mr. Herbert Treneer, organist and choir leader of St. Andrew's Church, has tendered his resignation and leaves about the first week in August for Toronto to work on his matriculation preparatory to taking an arts course at the University. While Mr. Treneer's resignation is dated to take effect in September he will probably play for the last time on Sunday, August 1st, as after that the two congregations of Trinity and St. Andrew's will be united for the balance of the Summer.

Mr. Treneer came to the city in June 1911 when he succeeded Mrs. Charles McLeland as organist and took over the duties of choir leader. His leaving the city will mean a serious loss to musical Peterboro. No successor has as yet been appointed.

THE FORMER GERMAN CROWN PRINCE ESCAPES TO HUNLAND "BIG THREE" ARE ADVISED

MUST WAIT UNTIL ALL PEACE TREATIES SIGNED.

(Special to Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, June 26. — Official information that the "booze lid" cannot be lifted until Bulgaria, Turkey and Hungary have signed the peace treaties, as well as Germany, was received by the Manitoba government from Ottawa. Commission merchants and others who expected that interprovincial trading could be resumed as soon as Germany had signed the treaty, are doomed to disappointment. Many had already gone to Kenora and rented premises.

FIRE DAMAGED A GROCERY STORE

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION WAS THE CAUSE—A NARROW ESCAPE.

Spontaneous combustion set fire to the grocery store of Mrs. M. Grady, at the corner of Rubidge and Townsend streets this morning. Mrs. Grady was awakened about five o'clock this morning by dense clouds of smoke which filled the whole upstairs where Mrs. Grady and her daughter reside. Mrs. Grady groped her way to the telephone and telephoned for the fire brigade, but unable to find her way to the head of the staircase, she with her daughter, took refuge in the flat roof over the store which is used as a balcony. Sharp at 5.08 a.m. Chief Grange's men arrived on the scene and a thirty foot ladder was used to rescue Mrs. Grady and her daughter from their perilous position on the balcony.

The fire was caused from a number of empty sugar bags which Mrs. Grady had stored under one of the counters. A number of damp dusters had been thrown on top of the bags and in the night the bags set fire and the flames spread in all directions, consuming the counter and a number of shelves filled with groceries. The whole of the inside of the store was in flames and the heat was so great that a plate glass window valued at $300 expanded and broke. The brigade laid a line of hose for emergency, but had no occasion to use water, as a 45 gallon tank of chemicals extinguished the blaze in less than a half an hour. A coal oil tank inside the store three-quarters filled was so warm when Chief Chief Grange put his finger in it that he could hardly hold his hand there, and the Chief is at a loss to understand why the tank did not ignite, which would have resulted in the whole building being blown up.

The loss is considerable, and is thought to be beyond $800, although the store and most of the groceries were saved. The fire was confined to the store downstairs, although the floor above was in such a heated condition that it would have been painful to walk on it with stocking feet.

LOST FIFTEEN VALUABLE CHICKENS

Weasel Blamed for Crime Committed in East City.

Last night an animal, thought to be a weasel, killed fifteen valuable Barred Rock chickens, only five weeks old, the property of an East City resident. The chicks were valuable, having been brought from the Guelph Farm.

This morning the fifteen chicks were found lying together on the ground, and first appearances did not show any marks of violence, but a closer inspection revealed a small mark under the throat and in some cases under the wings. The size of the mark and the fact that the blood had been sucked from the bodies led the owner to believe that it was a weasel which killed them. No other marks were found on the chicks.

There were seventeen chicks altogether, but apparently two of them managed to escape, as they were content this morning with the old hen.

HYDRO WILLING TO PURCHASE RAILWAY

REFUGEE WAS ACCOMPANIED BY A STAFF OFFICER—EMBARASS THE ALLIES?

NEWS FROM GERMANY

(Special to Examiner.)

PARIS, June 26. — Friedrich Wilhelm Hohenzollern, the former German Crown Prince, has escaped from Holland into Germany, the "big three" were advised to-day.

The former Crown Prince was accompanied by a staff officer, the report said.

The former Crown Prince remained with the German armies for some time after the Kaiser's abdication on November 9th. He later made his way to the Dutch border and was temporarily interned at Naastricht. He left for Mosterland, a little fishing village on the island of Wieringen, near the Dutch naval station at Helder, on November 21st. He has remained there with only occasional visits to the mainland ever since.

A Trouble Maker.

Hints have come from Germany within the past few days that the military caste there would not be averse to bringing about a military situation within the former empire that would embarrass the allies in putting the peace treaty into efect, and it seems probable that the move made by the ex-Crown Prince is connected with some such plan.

The former Crown Prince made his way into Holland shortly after the signing of the armistice last November and was interned there by the Dutch Government, taking up his residence on the island of Wieringen in the Zeyder See.

NEWS OF ESCAPE.

(Special to Examiner.)

PARIS, June 26. — News of the escape of the ex-Crown Prince caused considerable stir in peace conference circles. While it is not felt that he is a figure around which reactionaries and monarchists would gather enthusiastically, nevertheless his act is regarded as an event of considerable significance.

(Special to Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, June 26. — Confidential reports that the former German Crown Prince, and also probably the former Emperor, would attempt to re-enter Germany after the signing of the peace treaty, were received recently by government officials here. This became known to-day after a despatch telling of the escape of the Crown Prince had been received.

INCLUDED IN LIST.

The belief has prevailed in some quarters that Friedrich Wilhelm's name will be included in the list of those accused of war crimes which the allies will present to Germany after peace is signed, with a request they be turned over for trial by an international tribunal.

Recent reports from Germany indicate that the Royalist faction is gaining strength. A note was recently sent to the Dutch government by the German Officers' Association, demanding that Holland refuse the allies request for extradition of the former Kaiser. Several incipient movements for the restoration of the monarchy have been reported in the Rhine provinces which have always been particularly loyal to the Hohenzollerns.

COMMITTEE WILL WAIT FOR TENDER

LEONARD CONSTRUCTION COMPANY PROMISED GUARANTEED COST BID.

A majority of the Board of Works have signified their willingness to extend beyond Friday noon, as proposed at Monday night's meeting, the time for the receipt of the Leonard Construction Company's expected tender for the construction of the Hunter Street bridge. Replying immediately to the committee's telegram asking them whether they were prepared to submit a guaranteed cost bid, the company requested a week or ten days to present their tendr, and having obtained the assent of a majority of the committee, Mayor Duncan notified the company to proceed with their estimations and computations. This simply means that the further delay until Friday will be spread over the holiday, and that the Leonard Company's bid should be received some day next wek. It is felt that in view of the postponements that have marked the progress of the Council's deliberations, another few days will not cause any disappointment.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

CANADAS PERMANENT FORCES.

The authorization by the Dominion Parliament of the increase of Canada's standing army to 10,000 men, just double the former authorized strength, is a step that many Canadians will view with amazement and misgiving. During the war, speakers at every recruiting meeting told the people that the Canadian army was fighting against militarism. And now that the conflict is over and the allies have been victorious, and the League of Nations plan is being adopted to make impossible further wars, the Canadian government announces that it is desirable that it shall be given the power to double the size of Canada's permanent forces. General Mewburn, Minister of Militia, intimates that this increase is not necessitated by danger from outside, but rather because "circumstances have arisen that Canada must have an increase in the permanent force in order to maintain law and order." The Minister obviously refers to the industrial disturbances and unrest. Are bayonets and machine guns the only remedy the government can suggest to meet the situation? Does the Administration intend to convey to the people of Canada the idea that force is the only cure for the unrest that exists? The conditions that have called the present industrial crisis must be squarely met and dealt with; an attempt to overawe the people by a big standing army will not solve the problem.

THE WINNIPEG STRIKE.

The Winnipeg sympathetic strike, after continuing for six weeks, has been called off, and the men who have been idle for a month and a half returned to work this morning—at least those who had a position to which they could return. As far as the firemen and policemen of Winnipeg are concerned they find themselves without employment, for the civic authorities have steadfastly refused to reinstate them, although there is a possibility that the policemen may save their scalps by signing an agreement not to participate in general strikes hereafter. The postal employees are in the same position—the Dominion government declining to re-employ those who engaged in the strike. These civic and government employees are the hardest hit victims of the strike and they are doubtless asking themselves this morning if the sacrifice was worth while. The demonstration is over, the metal trades employees have gained to the extent that a wider definition of collective bargaining has been adopted, but the thousands who went out in sympathy have reason to wonder if the game was worth the candle. Thousands of dollars in wages have been sacrificed and much valuable time lost that might have been devoted to the production that is necessary. The more the situation is studied the more apparent becomes the folly of this Winnipeg demonstration, which has, however, shown that the One Big Union movement is impossible in Canada; that the mass of the people will not submit to government by Soviets. It has also shown that public servants must not be permitted to form alliances that may require them to neglect their duties at a time when their services are needed. The lesson, in the case of the Winnipeg firemen and policemen was a harsh one; it has cost these civic employees their positions, but the rest of the country must not fail to note and appreciate the significance of the Winnipeg test.

THE NEW PENSIONS

The new Special Committee on Pensions which has for some time been considering the general question of pensions has filed its report in the House of Commons and it is expected that its recommendations will be speedily adopted. The Committee has apparently decided upon a temporary policy, the present pensions being increased by a bonus for one year doubtless in the hope that by the end of twelve months the cost of living will have dropped to such an extent as to make it continuation of the bonus unnecessary. At the same time the committee has taken a step in the direction of the equilization of pensions. Although so far the levelling only extends up to the rank of sergeant. Under the scale that has hitherto been in vogue sergeants received a larger pension than lower ranks but by the new arrangement by which a bonus of 20 per cent. is to be paid to corporals and privates and a bonus of 13 per cent. to sergeants the pensions for all ranks from sergeant down will be equalized.

The recommendation are such as to render the Canadian pension scale a fairly generous and adequate one. The extra allowance to disabled mamed soldiers has been considerably increased and the committee has wisely decided that the 20 per cent. bonus shall be given to the widows of Canadian soldiers who were killed in action. There are arrangements for larger allowance for children as well and for attendance in cases where a totally disabled soldier is unable to wait upon himself. The bonus system extends through the various degrees of disability. For instance a private who under the present scale is receiving $30 per month will for the next year get a pension of $36 each month.

In response to the urgent appeal from the Great War Veterans Association, supported by many of the newspapers throughout the country, the Special Committee has recommended that the British reservists who were resident in Canada before the war and who are in receipt of British pensions, shall be given an allowance by the Canadian Government sufficient to bring their pension up to the Canadian standard while in the case of the widows and dependents of British reservists who lived in Canada before the war and who were killed in action, the Canadian pension scale should also be used as long as the widows continue to reside in this country, the Dominion Government making a supplementary allowance. The decision of the committee in this respect will meet with approval throughout the country.

GERMANY'S "HEREDITARY PRESIDENT."

It is pleasant to note that in his temporary asylum at Amerongen the fugitive Kaiser has been kept fully informed concerning the provisions of a treaty of peace that places in formal record the extent and magnitude of his own downfall. The fact, chronicled in cable despatches, that the Hohenzollern advised the signing of the treaty by German commissioners is of interest principally, however, because of the light it throws upon conditions in Germany and upon the character of the so-called "German republic."

The Kaiser once boasted that if Germany became a republic he would be its first "hereditary president." If not yet in name, he is in fact the recognized overlord of the something at Weimar which calls itself a government; he is still the All Highest in the eyes of German politicians and the German people just as clearly as he was when he ordered them out to make a reality of his dream of world conquest. At every stage of the peace negotiations the fugitive Kaiser has been consulted by those who are pulling the strings and by the puppets who have been placed in office by them.

Of all farces which the great war brought into existence that "German republic" is the most glaring and the most transparent. It contains not an ounce of democracy or of republicanism. There can be neither republicanism nor democracy in any land until its people think for themselves. The subservience of the Eberts and Scheidemanns and Erzbergers to the house of Hohenzollern proves all that has been said about the German people being incapable of thinking for themselves because they surrendered through so long a period the right to think.

The civilized world is on notice that in dealing with the so-called "German republic" it is dealing with the fugitive Kaiser and with Kaiserism. This means that German promises are without a scintilla of value; that they are made to be broken by Germany whenever occasion may permit; that any and every treaty made in the name of the German people is a "scrap of paper" from their viewpoint; that instead of being repudiated or crushed Prussianism remains in control of Germany — waiting for the creation of a new force to strike again at liberty and civilization.

The fugitive Kaiser and his minions cry out that the treaty is a "treaty of force." It is good to know that they recognize the fact. The Prussianized German is incapable of understanding anything but force. That must be kept constantly in mind by the nations of civilization in putting into effect the punitive provisions of the Treaty of Paris. They must understand the obvious — which is that they still are dealing with the Hohenzollerns and with the Kaiserism that they have endeavoured to crush.

Unquestionably the fugitive Kaiser is humiliated, deeply humiliated; but in fact, if not in name, he is to-day the head and front of the something that calls itself a "German republic," with full power over the German people, who, instead of repudiating, glory in their old subservicency.—New York Herald.

MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION HELD A LARGELY ATTENDED MEETING

SPECIAL INDUSTRIAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED BY MR. W. R BREYFOGLE—THE HOUSE COMMITTEE.

The Manufacturers' Association of Peterborough held a largely attended meeting last evening in the Council room of the Board of Trade. Those present were W. R. Breyfogle of the De Laval Co., chairman; Edgar Worth of the Bonner-Worth Co., treasurer; J. J. Turner of J. J. Turner & Sons, secretary; E. Roland Wilson of the Peterborough Machine and Lubricator Co.; Gordon Matthews of Matthews-Blackwell, Ltd.; E. G. Patterson of the Canadian General Electric Co.; T. C. Donaldson of G. Walter Green Co.; Adam Hall of Adam Hall, Ltd.; D. J. Holland of the Campbell Flour Mills; A. E. Coulthard, Colonial Weaving Co.; P. P. Westbye of the Wm. Hamilton Co.; W. C. Ackerman of B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co.; and B. Homer Meyers of the Peterborough Cereal Co.

The deep interest of the association in the Board of Trade was evidenced by a unanimous vote to instruct Treasurer Edgar Worth to transfer to Treasurer J. W. Fraser of the Board the sum of $18,000 to increase the staff for the general and associated work of that body.

British and American manufacturers are now active in locating industries in Canada, and they are naturally favouring those localities where the relationship between the workers and employers are cordial and intelligent. Members of the association are enthusiastically in favour of a better understanding on the part of all concerned in manufacturing, whether they are engaged in shop or office, and it was voted to ask the Board of Trade, which is an impartial civic body, to arrange for a series of meetings to discuss united service to the city, and by that means to promote a better acquaintance and understanding among all concerned.

The association believes that better business is ahead and they propose to make a special effort by concerted action to speed increased employment in the city.

Will Make a Report.

A special industrial committee was appointed by Chairman Breyfogle to look into the whole question of industries in Peterborough and make a specific report with recommendations. This committee is composed of P. P. Westbye, general manager of the Wm. Hamilton Co., chairman; Chas. H. Thompson, of the Brinton Carpet Co., and E. Roland Wilson, president of the Peterborough Machine and Lubricator Co.

The House Committee of the Board is preparing for an active get-together season after the summer vacation, and will have facilities for meetings such as the ones proposed by the Manufacturers' Association. It has gone so far as to discuss the advisability of serving luncheons in the Council room of the Board, so that men may leave their work or office and come directly to the rooms, thus using their time economically. The Housee Committee is made up of Chairman A. G. Roberts, Russel V. Copping, Chris. G. Graham, Percy Hooper and Joseph John.

All requests for meetings for the use of the Council room must be made to this committee in advance. The Board is glad to have meetings of citizens in its rooms and arranges for them without charge.

RUSH TO PROROGATION IS ON HUSTLE IS ORDER OF THE DAY

SOME BILLS WHICH PRESENT DIFFICULTIES WILL BE JETTISONED—A CAUCUS OF UNION GOVERNMENT SUPPORTERS IS SOMETHING TO AVOID THESE DAYS.

OTTAWA, June — The rush to prorogation is on earnest, and there are unconfirmed rumours that the indemnity cheque will be issued before the week is out. Sir Robert Borden was not in the House yesterday. He is resting at the Country Club, where "from the madding crowd's ignoble strife" he can think great thoughts and contrast the hurly burly of Canadian politics with the calm dignity of peace making in Paris.

For he surely turned into a bunch of dog fights when returned to his native land. In the first place Hon. T. A. Crerar had his trunk packed, and Hon. F. B. Carvell was running out on the budget and only waiting till he got the last soldier home to follow suit. Then Sir Thomas White was declaring that his financial health was delicate and that he needed a course of private life to recuperate. As for private members, they were kicking and running out in bunches. Under the circumstances one would have thought that Sir Robert's first act would be to call his family into caucus and breath into them the spirit of amity and confidence. But he didn't. It may be that the western strikes were occupying his mind. It might even be that he was struck speechless with surprise that even western farmers should bolt on such a trifling issue as the tariff. Anyway the caucus was not called, and the discontent is not allayed.

"No More Patronage."

From the old Tories is coming a howl because J. H. Bertram of Toronto, is said to be the selection to succeed the late J. McDougald, as Commissioner of Customs. Some of them say that Hon. Arthur Sifton made appointment and then lit out for Paris. They contend that R. R. Farrow, the assistant commissioner, is the man best qualified for the job, but that he is handicapped by the fact that he is a Tory. But this can't be true. The poor Tories have often been told that politics died a natural death when the Union Government was born. Also everybody else knows that patronage has been abolished and that promotion has taken its place. Of course it might be in order for a well qualified assistant to succeed to a vacant commissionership, but — well no doubt Arthur Sifton could give the "but" if the peace of the world had not necessitated his hurried trip abroad.

A Golf Instructor

Then that new civil service reclassification is disturbing the calm peacefulness of the Privy Council. According to people who should know it is a joke. And it may be. It gives as the duty of the clerk of the Privy Council that he should report the proceedings of that august body. Everybody knows the clerk is kept outside and the keyholes stuffed while the council is in session. Also it requires that the sergeant-at-arms shall be a university graduate, probably that he may shoulder the mace more gracefully. It is also whispered that it defined the duties of a golf instructor," but that some discerning mortal with an eye to the eternal fitness of things, destroyed that official position with a hurried stroke of the pen before the revised edition broke into print.

Will be Sidetracked.

Anyway the reclassification is a joke. Everybody agrees to that, and the reasons given are these. The Cabinet didn't want to be bothered with it so they, as usual, dumped it into the basket of Hon. A. K. MacLean. Hon A. K. being a bit of a trouble dodger himself, passed the buck to the civil service commission. The commission not feeling over active, sublet the job to a bunch of American experts. The latter expert-ed all right, but they knew little about conditions in Canada and about what was expected of the respective officials. Anyway the reclassification is before the House, and Hon. A. K. says the Government will go on with it. The Government, as usual, is not unanimous. In fact, it is said to be even less unanimous than usual. So the bill will be sidetracked in the most ingenious way that can be invented. And that will be the first hurried step towards prorogation.

Went Through Easily

That everybody is in a going home mood was evidenced when Hon. Arthur Meighen's soldier settlement bill slipped through its committee stage as if it was greased. Nobody seemed to think it unusual that a grateful country should reward its fighting soldiers by presenting them with farms on which the principal decoration will be a $7,000 mortgage. No practical farmer expects that ten per cent. of the soldier farmers will stay on the farms But, it looks like an easy way out, and though Dr. Michael Clark figured that the experiment might cost the country something like $280,000,000, nobody seemed to care. What's a few hundred million more or less, when the country is already a couple of billion in the hole!

Avoid a Caucus

Anyway, the bill's as good as out of the way. The Pensions Bill is not expected to take more than a day to go through, and Sir Robert is expected to announce just what other measures he intends to hustle through. It will be hustled. For you know some members want a caucus. Some even have an idea that Sir Thomas White would look better as Premier of Canada than as president of the Canada Life. Sir Robert's favorite argument in caucus is said to be, "If you can find anyone who can do better I am willing to resign."If he used that argument right now it is just possible that some back benchers might rise up and mention Sir Thomas White. All of which might not only be embarrassing, but interfere with the welfare of Canada and incidentally the peace of the world. So a caucus is something to avoid, prorogation is in order. —Telegram.

The Women Teachers' Guild held their last meeting for this term on Tuesday. Mr. S. R. Armstrong gave a very interesting talk to the teachers on "Women's Franchise," after which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered him by the Guild.

A motion was made that the sum of $110 from the Children's May Festival for the support of a French orphan, be sent at once. It was decided by the Guild to donate the sum of $35 to each of the following: The Playgrounds Association, Women's Council for clinical work, and the Children's Aid Society.

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL FOR ST. ANDREWS

Building Will Cost in the Neighbourhood of $35,000.

Last evening at a special meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's church, the committee appointed to look into the matter of the cost of a new Sunday school building for the church, reported that to construct the modern building required an expenditure of $35,000 was required. Following the report of the committee, in a general discussion by the members of the congregation present, it was conceded and generally thought throughout the congregation that the new Sunday school was needed, and a resolution was passed by the meeting to forward to the congregation in general, that in the opinion of those present at last nights meeting a new Sunday school is necessary.

Financing the School.

The next steps to be taken are those of financing the building, and towards this end the members of the Finance committee appointed will call a meeting and see what can be raised by subscriptions covering a period of three years, and if a satisfactory amount can be raised in the near future, one of the most modern schools in Canada will be erected. The school will be not only a Sunday school, but a home for the people of the church and will be built so that the different departments will be separated, in keeping with the modern idea of a Sunday school, and each of the officers will have their own quarters.

DIVIDES HIS TIME BETWEEN CATCHING STRAY DOGS AND WAYWARD YOUTHS.

James Gates appears again as an employee of the city in a dual role. James is again official dog catcher of the city, but attends to those duties only in the morning. In the afternoon James is caretaker and general manager of the Inverlea Park bathing beach. He refused to divulge this morning what he received in compensation from the city for the capture of wayward canines. James' heavy hand has already been felt at Inverlea Park, as five youngsters in the neighbourhood of 16 years were hailed before Chief Thompson this morning and asked to explain why they made a battle ground of the dressing house at Inverlea Park. Ten boys yesterday were participating in the sport of using the benches in the bathing house as clubs, with the partition between the girls' and boys' compartments as the object of attack. The five ringleaders were ordered to report to the Chief this morning by James Gates, D.C. and caretaker of Inverlea Park. Sergt. Blade supplied the necessary official authority. The boys were warned by the Chief what would happen if any more pugilistic proclivities were engaged in in Inverlea Park, and with the

MAYOR IN QUANDARY OVER PEACE HOLIDAY PONDERS THE EFFECTS

Discussing Peterborough's celebration of the signing of the peace treaty, Mayor Dingman stated this afternoon that he was averse to declaring a public holiday on Saturday should the official announcement be flashed on that day. He believed that because of the disorganization of business that might ensue on an unanticipated lapse of the day into proclamation would be futile, and its purpose defeated. Those locally keen on celebrations from a moral point of view citi-

prepared for them, that it would be more acceptable to celebrate on Monday, and thus provide a full day's rest from Saturday until Tuesday night.

Several persons have given the opinion that there is no occasion for a demonstration, that the signing of the treaty may be very properly recognized here by church reference on Sunday. Again, His Worship is anxious to avoid any situation that might prove a counter-attraction to the Exhibition Board's celebration of Dominion Day. If Monday is declared a holiday many persons will go out of town for the three days and they may lose their appetite for the days and become fatigued before Tuesday arrives. However, it is understood desired that the Mayor's decision should be made before Saturday, though it might be considered

GIFT WAS ACCOMPANIED BY A UNIQUE ADDRESS.

THE AUTHOR

The people of Murray Street Baptist Church have their own quiet way of doing the beautiful thing, but they always do with heartiness and taste what they undertake. By some means they discovered that June 25th is the anniversary of the wedding of their pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb and Mrs. Webb. During the day there was sent to the parsonage a full silver tea service and tray with suitable engraving and inscription.

No greater surprise could have come to Mr. and Mrs. Webb than when at the evening hour this was on their table. The costly gift was accompanied by an address, which is both unique in its style and beautiful in its composition:

To Rev. J. R. and Mrs. Webb

"Twenty-five!
Within that compass
Loving, honoring and obeying,
Each supporting and upholding,
Carrying on
In God's great vineyard,
Making ready for The Master.
Thus you've gone
In splendid teamwork,
June vows living—justifying,
Planting flowers along the wayside
As you've travelled.
Perennial bloomers,
To remind those coming after
Of the fragrance and the beauty
Coming from your lives of service.
Through the dark to-days of sorrow,
Smiles a glorious to-morrow,
Faith enfolded, hope developed,
Charity your constant consort.
So you're wending—onward—Homeward,
Being loved as you are loving.
May God spare you both a long while
In His service here amongst us.
All of this to have and hold
Our silver thoughts in the Webb of Gold."

The Author.

The Examiner, making enquiry as to the authorship of the lines above, discovered that they were written by one who is at the head of one of Peterborough's largest business enterprises, which fact proves that the weight of heavy business responsibilities are not inconsistent with sentiment and literary ability.

MANY PARIS GOWNS WORN BY STAR OF METRO PLAY

Of the many women noted for their exceptional taste in clothes, Emmy Wehlen, Metro star of "Sylvia on a Spree," has richly gained the enviable reputation of being the "best dressed woman on the screen." Not only is Miss Wehlen's taste exquisite but she has the unusual art of making her clothes look a natural part of herself.

In "Sylvia on a Spree," which will be shown at the Grand theatre today for a 3 day engagement, this beautiful star displays an entire new outfit—sport clothes—morning and motoring costumes,— dainty and delicate frocks of chiffons and silks for afternoon wear, tailored, and more elaborate street clothes and evening gowns of the most beautiful description.

All the accessories which go to make up the complete wardrobe of a well-dressed woman—such as shoes, gloves, hats, veils, and the countless little touches of which every well dressed woman is familiar, add to the beauty of this star's wardrobe, and will be seen to great advantage in the many scenes of the picture.

Two of Miss Wehlen's fans in particular are worth mentioning—one is a huge affair of beautifully curled black ostrich feathers, mounted on a hand carved tortoise shell stick while the other is made from stiff brown and white, the barred wing feathers of the golden eagle.

OTTAWA, June 26.—The immediate creation of a tribunal, with power to investigate mergers, trusts, monopolies, and all other matters affecting the cost of articles of food and apparel used by the Canadian people, is recommended in an interim report presented by G. B. Nicholson, chairman, and his Cost of Living Committee of Parliament.

The committee says it has not yet reached the final conclusions, and will make further reports later.

The interim report says legislation creating this tribunal should be enacted at once.

Hunter Street Campaign

Those who find fault with evangelists on the ground that they do not make the way of salvation sufficiently clear or that they cover it over with needless words, could have found no reason to fault the message given by Evangelist H. D. Kennedy last night in the big tent meeting on Hunter Street. Never in Peterborough was the way of salvation made more simple and clear than by the speaker last night. There is only one way, he stated, of finding God, and that is through faith in Christ as the sinner's substitute. Mr. Kennedy said that there are many people who are trusting to be saved somehow because they belong to churches, and quoted the great evangelists, Dr. R. A. Torrey and Dr. Wilbur Chapman, as authorities for the statement that four out of five members of the churches of the United States are unconverted. There are many people who hope to get to heaven because they live moral lives or are good to the poor or because they pray to God. None of these methods will save any one. Some people talk of Christ as the "way-shower." He is not. He is the "Way." Only through Christ can anyone reach God. Some people speak of Christ as the "Revealer of Truth." He is more than that. He is the Truth. God will not save anyone. Christ is the only one that saves. God has decreed that only through faith in Christ will He accept us. Christ is the door and sinners can enter God's presence only through that door. People who try other methods of being saved than the method God has provided are lost. It does not matter how good they may be in the sight of the world, in their own sight. The one thing that counts is how do we stand in God's sight. Unless we have recognised our sinfulness and our helplessness to find God and unless we have accepted Christ as our Perfect Sacrifice, we cannot have peace with God. Mr. Kennedy quoted, "Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." (Romans 5, 1), and asked how many present had peace with God. He showed that every one might have that peace which comes through faith. At the close of the service four definite conversions were recorded—two young men and two young women. Mr. Kennedy shows great tact in handling his audiences. He "divides" his audiences by asking all Christians to stand, thereby making those who are not Christians feel uncomfortable and singled-out by the fact that they are left sitting. Last night he first asked all Christians who joined the church before they were really converted, but who later became saved, to stand up. There were fully 125 people, including a number of well-known church members, who stood up. In ways such as these he makes it easy for those who are not Christians to take the stand if they so desire, by getting Christians to lead in taking the first steps.

Meeting To-night.

To-night a large attendance of the employees of the Quaker Oats Company, including a number of the heads of the departments, purpose attending in a body. Special seats are being reserved for them. The subject to-night will be "The Only Way of Salvation." There will be a double male quartette by members of the staff of the Quaker Oats Company. The girls, including those not now working, are asked to meet at the west door at ten minutes to eight and the men at eight. Last night the members of St. Paul's Church choir turned out well, considering the weather, and led the singing. To-night the singing will be led by the members of Park Street Baptist and Bethany choirs. To-morrow night the Salvation Army Songsters will lead. In the early part of last night's service, Mr. Waldon gave an instrumental selection. The ministers who assisted last night were Revs. Messrs. Thomas and Mallott. The services are growing in power and interest night by night. There is abundant reason to believe that as they progress they will be the means of accomplishing a great work in Peterborough. The fact that no collections are taken up on week nights continues to make a good impression. It is understood that Christians of the city are being given an opportunity to contribute privately to meet the expenses. Those who care to have a part in this may do so by sending their remittance to the treasurer, Mr. William Madill.

ALBION KNITTING CO. HAVE SIGNED LEASE

Paul Parker of the Albion Knitting Company, who are locating in the old West Ward School, has signed a lease of the property, and is in the city attending to the details of making the building ready for occupation and operation. The company proposes employing about 12 persons at the commencement of business, manufacturing various kinds of knitted goods, including jerseys.

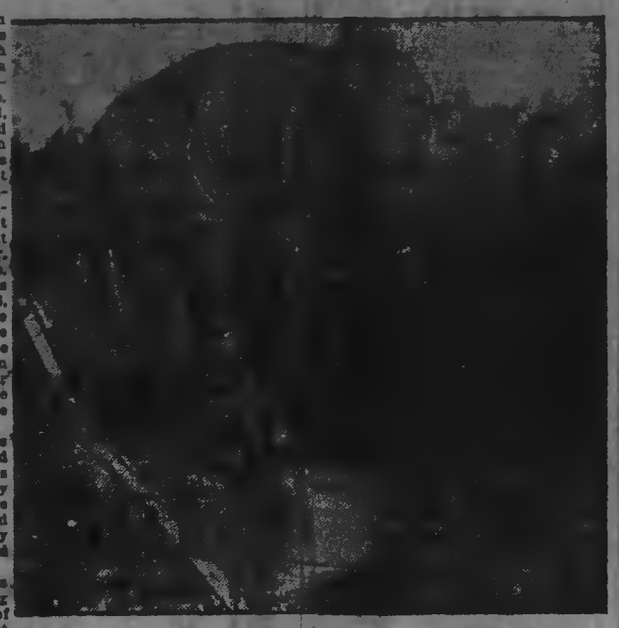
Growing Tomatoes in Alberta

The production of tomatoes in large quantities on the prairie does not appear to have been a success in the past, but prairie people are of a type who are forever doing something which was never done before. Messrs. G. O. Kerr and J. E. Terrill, of Lethbridge, Alberta, have observed for some years that tomatoes in small quantities were matured in the Lethbridge district and decided that there was no reason why the experiment should not be made on a commercial scale. As a result about two acres of tomatoes were set out last summer on land farmed by Mr. Kerr, a few miles east of Lethbridge. The plants were started under glass in Lethbridge and set out on June 6, 7, and 8, at which time they were from 6 to 8 inches in height. Three thousand five hundred plants were set in the plot, some of them three feet apart and some four feet apart. The experience of the season seems to indicate that the four foot plant is preferable.

The soil secured was an old pasture which had since been in alfalfa and is protected by a wind break of trees on the western side. It is a very rich loam with a gentle south slope and, of course, is irrigated. The land was cultivated in the ordinary way and irrigated before planted and three times afterwards.

The first of the ripe fruit was available seven weeks after setting out the plants, or about the end of July. During the month of August from five to six hundred pounds of beautiful ripe fruit was taken off the plot each day and this rate of production continued into September. The total yield of the plot is estimated at 25,000 pounds and a ready market was found for the product in the city of Lethbridge, the early ripe tomatoes bringing twenty-five cents a pound and the latter crop fifteen cents a pound. The gross price of 25,000 pounds at the latter figure is $5,250.

According to Mr. Kerr, no difficulties were experienced in the production of this crop. The vines were trimmed early in July for the purpose of producing heavier fruit and also admitting more sunshine which ripened it very rapidly. The tomatoes were as large and as well developed as the best imported stock from British Columbia or Washington and, being local grown, they, of course, reached the consumer in better condition. The crop was so heavy that in many cases the support stakes which had been put in for the vines to climb on were broken down. One vine was noted which had eighty-three tomatoes on it.



Gathering Tomatoes in Alberta.

Up to the middle of September no damage had been experienced from frost, although as a precautionary measure flax straw had been dumped about the plot, so that smudges could be started if necessary. Mr. Kerr points out that the essential thing in the production of this crop was the irrigation, which not only increased the amount of fruit but by affording ample moisture at the right time resulted in early ripening. Without irrigation it is doubtful if the experiment would have been at all successful, and while it is not suggested that every person can go into tomato raising in Southern Alberta and produce $2,600 per acre the experience in this case is at least instructive as to what these irrigated lands are capable of. It is not too much to say that such lands, if located in the mountainous part of the continent, would be sold at many hundreds of dollars per acre, but because they are found in Alberta in practically limitless sweeps of prairie they are still sold ready for the plow at less than what would be the cost of clearing them in even lightly timbered regions. Their very abundance makes it difficult to grasp their value but there is little doubt that some day they will be the home of the most productive and closely settled agricultural community on the continent.

HEART FLUTTERING EASILY CORRECTED

GOOD ADVICE TO FOLKS BOTHERED WITH PALPITATION, WEAKNESS, ETC.

If your heart flutters, be careful.

An attack is liable to come on at any time. Excitement, over-exertion or emotion may cause it.

If blood rushes to the head, if palpitation and short breath are noticeable, there's cause for alarm.

If you want a good honest remedy try Ferrozone. We recommend Ferrozone because we know it's just right for heart trouble. It cured A. F. Beattie, who lives at Allen Hotel, Bay City, Mich. See if your symptoms resemble these:

Nervousness,	Palpitation,
Trembling,	Dizziness,
Sinking Feeling,	Heart Paint,
Short Breath,	Weakness.

Mr. Beattie says:

"I was weak and miserable.

"I was subject to heart palpitation and dizziness.

"As I grew worse I began to have trembling and sinking sensations.

"Ferrozone strengthened my heart, gave vigor to my nerves, soon made me well. It's a great rebuilder."

By strengthening the muscles of the heart, giving proper circulation and causing a general rebuilding of the whole system, Ferrozone is bound to do grand work in heart trouble; try it. 50c. per box, or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

FROM THAT CAUSE.

From The Passing Show.

A certain bishop, having partaken rather freely of lobster salad and mince pie, was suffering torments, both physical and mental. When he began to improve his hostess badgered him a bit. "Why, bishop," she said, "surely you weren't afraid to die?"

"Afraid to die? Oh no," replied the bishop, "but I would have been ashamed to."

THE SCUTTLING OF THE GERMAN NAVY

(Special to Examiner.)

PARIS, June 26. — "The sinking of the German fleet in Scapa Flow is not only a violation of the armistice, but can only be regarded as a deliberate breach in advance of the conditions of peace," the allied powers declared in the note forwarded to Germany yesterday. The same was also said to be true of the burning of the French battle flags in Germany.

"It is evident that any repetition of acts like these must have a very unfortunate effect upon the future operations of the treaty which the Germans are about to sign," the note said. Notice was given that the allies would demand reparation for the sinking and the trial of those responsible.

ROCK OF MOSES.

The "Rock of Moses" lies in the wild valley at the base of Jebel Musa, the Mount of the Law, in the Peninsula of Sinai. The rock is eighteen or twenty feet high, slightly inclined. A rough indentation runs over each side, which is intersected here and there with slits, and the stone is worn away in places as if from the effects of running water. It is beyond doubt the oldest known legendary object in the vicinity. The Koran refers to this rock more than once, and from these allusions arose the reverence from the Bedouins, who hold it sacred. From the Middle Ages onward it has been visited by Christian pilgrims, who have carved rude crosses in its side. Of all the objects in the desert, it is most closley bound up with the simple faith of its wild inhabitants and of its early visitants.—The Masonic Sun.

BIG BEEF SURPLUS NOW.

Packers Have 100,000,000 Pounds More a Month Than Public Buys.

CHICAGO,—Wartime economy of meat has become a habit, with the result that the packers have some 100,000,000 more pounds of beef to sell every month than the public desires to eat. This means, it is claimed that until the domestic demand can be increased there will be a surplus of beef on the markets of the United States.

"Voluntary conservation of meat and other food products, which became a patriotic duty during the war, has to a certain extent become a habit especially among the trade accustomed to choice beef. We think that the people of this country are still conserving beef for three reasons:

"First, because of the wartime propaganda.

"Second, because wartime prices made it necessary for many families to economize.

"Third, because many people believe that by abstaining from beef now a supply will be made available which is sorely needed by European countries.

"The last, we think, is a wrong conception, because few refrigerator boats are available to transport beef to Europe. Owing to the ending of the war, practically all dressed beef from this year's killing has been sold on the domestic market, resulting, so far as Swift & Co., are concerned, in approximately 20,000,000 pounds more beef to be sold through domestic channels during May this year than last.

"Taking all packers into consideration, this would probably amount to 60,000,000 to 100,000,000 pounds increase in the supply for May this year for domestic consumption."

Proper Thing Now Is to Peel Off Soiled Skin

Those who abhor sticky, greasy, shiny, streaked complexions should religiously avoid creams, powders and rouges during the heated days. There's no need for them anyway, since the virtues of mercolized wax have become known. No amount of perspiration will produce any evidence that you've been using the wax. As it is applied at bedtime and washed off in the morning, the complexion never looks like a make-up. Mercolized wax gradually takes off a bad complexion, instead of adding anything to make it worse. It has none of the disadvantages of cosmetics and accomplishes much more in keeping the complexion beautifully white, satiny and youthful, free from freckles and other blemishes. Just get an ounce of it at your druggist's and see what a few days' treatment will do. Use like cold cream.

When you come to the Eyesight Cross-roads and realize that you must either become possessed of a pair of correct Glasses or go down, down, down Misery Road towards Bliad Man's Alley you should at such time consult us. We will prescribe for you a pair of Glasses that will help repair the damage that use or age has done your Eyes and allow you to see clearly again.

DEMPSEY KNOCKS OUT HIS TRAINERS DURING WORKOUT

REFEREE QUESTION WILL BE SETTLED TO-MORROW—WILLARD IS TAKING IT EASY.

By H. C. Hamilton.
(United Press.)

TOLEDO, O., June 26.—Jess Willard's training stamps him as a very queer individual. We have here in Toledo a world's champion pugilist who is training without doing any road work and he says he will be in just as good shape as if he were doing lots of it every day. Willard's temper is the next queer thing. Easy going, good-natured Jess often times flies into a half rage in the training ring and sparring partners get some awful maulings while Jess is cooling off. Old timers have always made it a habit to point out that a man who loses his temper in the ring is whipped that instant, yet Jess works better when riled than when he's in his pacifist mood. His blows carry more snap along with natural steam, and the terrifying look on his face never gets there until his temper is ruffled. One gets the impression, in fact, that Jess is working too slow for his own good, but occasional flashes he shows are enough to prove to anyone that he is a very dangerous man to battle. Also the tactics of the champion lead one to wonder what will happen when Jack Dempsey smacks over one of the famous sleep producers he carries in his mitts. There is no doubt in the minds of most critics regarding Willard's ability to take anything Dempsey sends over for a time, but the force of these pile-driving blows may rouse the champion to a fury that will sweep Dempsey off his feet. Then again, the argument turns to the vast difference between Dempsey and the men who are training Willard. Walter Monahan would not last long with Dempsey, and Hempel's presence in the same ring with the challenger would be even more brief. Therefore it is hard to draw a comparison between the men solely by what is shown in their training. Yesterday Dempsey again knocked out Bill Tate—this time with a right hand smash delivered as Jack was tearing in, Tate collapsed when the glove hit his jaw and was out cold. Tex Rickard said to-day the refree question would be settled to-morrow and announcement of the appointment will be made here. Some trouble has been experienced in winding up the details of the selection.

HAMILTON CITY LEAGUE LEADERS HERE SATURDAY

Peterboro fans will get an opportunity of comparing the ball played in the local City League with the brand displayed in Hamilton on Saturday when the Westinghouse team, leaders in the Hamilton City League will meet the Matthws-Blackwell team, Peterboro City League leaders in what should prove to be a great game of ball. Riverside Park will be the scene of the contest, which is called for 2.45 o'clock. The Westinghouse team have been paying great ball in Hamilton, and they will undoubtedly prove doughty adversaries for the Packers. The latter, however, are not worrying anything about the reputation of the gang from the Ambitious City and the Westinghouse team will know they have been in a ball game before the last man is out in the ninth.

BELLEVILLE-PETERBORO GAME TO BE RE-PLAYED

At a largely attended meeting of the Central Ontario Baseball League, held in the Butter House, Lindsay, last night, at which representatives were present from the Belleville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Oshawa, Lindsay and Peterborough clubs, it was decided that the game between Belleville and Peterborough in Belleville on June 14th, which Belleville won by 5 to 4 in ten innings, should be thrown out and ordered to replayed in Port Hope on Friday evening, July 4th. This action was the result of the interference with the Peterborough players by a section of the crowd at Belleville. There was no police protection, and as the only remedy Umpire Rosevear had was to award the game to Peterborough, which he did not want to do for the sake of the majority of the spectators who had no connection with the rowdyism, the disturbers had things their own way. The League executive, after hearing the evidence of Umpire Rosevear, Manager Solomon of the Peterborough team, Catcher Mills of Belleville and others, decided that the Peterborough team had not been given the protection that the League insists shall be given to visiting teams, and accordingly Peterborough's protest was allowed. Manager Solomon urged that the protest deposit made by Belleville should be returned to them, as the Belleville management, he considered, had done their best under the circumstances. This was agreed upon.

The play-off game was ordered to take place in Port Hope, the League to take charge of the arrangements.

A protest entered by the Port Hope Club against Belleville on the grounds that players of the Belleville team had participated in games in another League contrary to the O.B.A.A. rules was thrown out. The players admitted the offence, but Belleville maintained that they had no idea they were infringing on the O.B.A.A. regulations, and accordingly, on a vote being taken, the protest was disallowed and the game won by Belleville in Port Hope stands as a victory for the G.T.R. team.

BIG GAME IN CITY LEAGUE

MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL AND DE LAVAL WILL CLASH AT RIVERSIDE PARK.

The game between De Laval and Matthews-Blackwell in the City League series to-night should be a real battle. Both teams expect to win, and the game is one of the most important in the series, as a defeat for the Packers will make their hold on first place very shakey, while, on the other hand, a loss for the De Laval will put the Separators practically out of the running.

Frost and Swanston will be the Matthews-Blackwell line-up, while Prest and Bergoine will be in the points for De Laval.

Is Unfavourable.

Oshawa to Play Here On the Holiday Morning

The fans will be glad to learn that the Central Ontario League game to be played here on 1st July between Oshawa and Peterborough will be called at 10.30 o'clock on the holiday morning at Riverside Park. The management of the Peterborough club have decided on playing the game in the morning in order that baseball fans will have a chance of seeing the big programme in the Exhibition Grounds in the afternoon.

This change will be appreciated by everybody, and the probabilities are that the Dominion Day morning will see a record crowd at Riverside Park.

The game promises to be one of the most exciting battles of the season. Oshawa, who are only a game behind the Petes in the league standing, have a dangerous, fast-fielding, hard-hitting aggregation. In Patton, who hails from Billings, Montana, they possess an experienced and clever pitcher, while Schultz, the first baseman, and Jacobi at third, are among the best infielders in the league. The Petes will have to be on their toes, all the way to carp a decision over the Oshawa crew; and the game should be a corker.

HOW RUSSIANS WERE CAPTURED

(CONTRIBUTED)

The following is contributed as a true account of the arrest of the five Russian desperadoes at Indian River by Constable Whibbs of the village and John Riseborough, Station Agent. It is a question whether Sherlock Holmes in his clevarest work ever accomplished, more simple or clever arrest. The chances which the local men took of their lives and their clever deception of the desperadoes calls for the highest praise and reward from everyone and especially the government and police officials.

About 8.45 a.m. Sunday, June 22 Mr. Riseborough, the Station Agent received a message from the Norwood agent informing him of a murder committed at 'The Rock Quarry' east of Havelock and a robbery in connection. The message also stated that three foreigners had passed Norwood about 6.30 a.m. and asked the local agent to be on the lookout. Mr. Riseborough at once went to notify Constable A. Whibbs and upon returning to the station saw two strangers coming up the east track about 100 yards from the station. Before Constable Whibbs annoyed the strangers were at the station. The agent stopped them and asked where they were going. They replied to Peterboro in order to catch a train for Toronto. They asked for a drink of water and the agent took them to the pump where he delayed them until Whibbs arrived. When Constable Whibbs arrved he asked where they were going and if they did not know that it was against the rules to walk on the track on Sunday? He being unarmed willingly told the men they would have to sign a paper before they could proceed. This they consented to do. It was now 9.30 and while in the station the wily constable began to prepare papers for the men to sign. In the meantime Riseborough sent a message to Norwood and Havelock that they had two of the men. In a short time the agent saw the other three men about 200 yards east of the station on the track. When they arrived at Fitzgerald's crossing two went to Fitzgerald's pump for drink and the third came towards the station. The shrewd constable walked up the tracks examining it in several places as though he were Mr. Woodcock, the section foreman. When the stranger arrived Whibbs told him it was against the rules to walk the track and he would have to enter the station and sign a paper before he could pass through. This the stranger did. Now three of the desperadoes were in the waiting room. The other two shortly arrived from the east and were met by Whibbs who brought them in to sign the paper. They did not object. Now the five prisoners were in the waiting room and the agent locked all doors leading from the waiting room. The desperadoes were arrested by the clever deception of Whibbs and the agent. By the time Geo. Woodcock, section foreman and Thomas Whibbs arrived Constable Whibbs and Riseborough were now busy getting the men to answer questions and sign papers which Whibbs pretended was a difficult task. The greater part of the time until 11.40 a.m. was spent in getting them to answer questions and sign papers. At 11.40 Constable Williams of Havelock and Puffer of Norwood arrived Whibbs told them he had arrested these men, through information from Norwood. Williams asked if he had searched them? To which Whibbs replied no, as he had no revolver and thought the quietest way was the best. The prisoners were then searched and while the search was proceeding Oliver Riseborough, son of the agent, found a search light on the floor. He showed it to Whibbs and then a general search was made. They found three revolvers, cartridges, a flashlight, a jack knife and some papers.

The prisoners were then handcuffed, placed in automobiles and taken to Peterborough.

Near Drowning.

Another drowning accident was narrowly averted on Friday last when the young son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Turner while playing on the wharf, fell into the deep water, and only for the prompt action of some on nearby who rescued him from his perilous position the young lad would no doubt have lost his life. The parents are deeply grateful to his rescuer.

The I.O.D.E.

The I.O.D.E. has donated the sum of $80 to each of the churches of the village to be used towards the erection of some suitable memorial for the brave boys who so nobly gave up their lives in the late war.

A rousing reception was held in the town hall Westwood during the week, in honour of three returned heroes, Pte. W. Wilson, Pte. S. Wilson and Corp. R. Dickson. A good programme of addresses, music and recitations was given, after which each of the boys was presented with a handsome gold watch.

One evening during the week, under the auspices of the I.O.D.E., a number of friends met at the home of Nursing Sister Helen Fowlds, who has recently returned from overseas, and presented her with an address and a handsome pearl necklace in recognition of her services to her country. Helen left the next day for Toronto, where she will go on duty in a military hospital.

Constable Dixon is on the search for them, but as yet no clue has been found, although two strangers were noticed around the streets here on Sunday evening.

DECLARE A HOLIDAY ON MONDAY NEXT

Suggestion has been made that the Signing of Peace be Observed on Monday.

In view of the fact that the peace treaty will not be signed until Saturday it has been suggested by a number of citizens that the Monday following be declared a holiday, thus linking it up with Dominion Day, which follows, on Tuesday, and which is a legal holiday.

The signing of the treaty will be one of the biggest events in history, and a two-day holiday, Monday and Tuesday, would not be too long to honour such a great event.

Many prominent citizens are behind the idea, and if Mayor Duncan should declare Monday a holiday, no doubt Calithumpian parades and rejoicing in general rivalling the demonstrations which followed the news of the signing of the armistice, would take place.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Flowers. The bride looked very charming in a suit of sand cloth with hat to match and marabou stole and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

She was attended by Miss Violet Patterson of Toronto, who wore a pearl grey silk dress with hat to match and carried carnations, while Mr. Alvin Catchpole supported the groom.

WEARER OF NINE MEDALS CONFESSES HE IS A FAKE

OTTAWA.—Robert William Gunter, who, under the names of "Major Campbell" and "Sir James Cologne," posed in Montreal, New York, Rochester and half a dozen other cities as a returned war hero with a sensational record, was remanded for sentence in a police court after pleading guilty to all the charges of deception brought against him. When arrested he was wearing a Canadian major's uniform adorned with nine war decorations.

One of Gunter's favourite stories was that he was in charge of the firing squad which executed Carl Lody, the German spy, in the London Tower. After pleading guilty he said that he had really held a commission in the Canadian army and blamed drink for his downfall.

RAIN MARRED SECOND ANNUAL PICNIC OF PETERBORO FARMERS

CROWD OF 700 REPAIRED TO SKATING RINK WHEN DRIZZLE DEVELOPED INTO DOWNPOUR—MR. ERNIE M'DONALD, U.F.O. CANDIDATE IN EAST RIDING WAS GIVEN AN OVATION.

SPORTS PROGRAMME SPOILED

A slight drizzle which soon developed into a steady downpour of rain, tended to dampen the spirits of the big crowd who attended the second annual picnic of the County organization of the United Farmers of Ontario held in Keene Fair grounds yesterday. The rain left the grounds in poor condition, but did not prevent the two football teams, Warsaw and Keene, getting into action, although the pigskin rolled like a mastless ship at sea before the game was over. A baseball game was started, but before the first innings was completed the rain changed from a haphazard drizzle to a regular downpour, and the big crowd "hit the trail" for the old skating rink just to the right of the entrance of the Fair grounds, where the Great War Veterans' band of Peterborough, under the direction of Sergt.-Major Tom Miller, dispensed a fine programme, which was keenly appreciated. Long benches were grouped around a platform, upon which Deputy-reeve Eason of Otonabee, called for the nomination of a chairman for the day's programme, which honour was accorded Mr. Morley Smithson, son of Mr. Joshua Smithson, of Otonabee, and one of the foremost workers in the county of the United Farmers' movement.

The large rink was crowded with people, and it was estimated that there were considerably over seven hundred people assembled when the band started to play "The Rose of No Man's Land." The shed was gaily decorated with Japanese lanterns which seemed to nod in unison with the crowd as the various speakers gave their opinion of the present political situation and the planks of the United Farmers' platform were enumerated. Among the crowd was a large percentage of women, whose presence disproved the general opinion that the female sex cares nothing about politics and "planks." The large crowd surged into the huge barn until standing room was at a premium and many stood at the doors listening to the speeches. There were people from all over the county present, even though Keene is in one corner of the county, and the speakers took it as a good augury for the future development of the farmers' movement that such a tremendous crowd should turn out under such discouraging weather conditions. There were a number of cars from Peterborough present, and some of the Peterboroughites noticed were Mr. Frank Whitehouse, Mr. A. G. Campbell, of the Union Bank, and Mr. Jack Gillespie, with Miss Eva Sullivan, Miss Esther Collins, Miss Corrine Delaire and Miss Edith Delaire, of this city, as representatives of the fair sex. They evidently did not believe that the objects of the United Farmers were prejudical to those of the city residents.

Mr. McDonald Greeted.

Mr. E. N. McDonald, the standard bearer for the United Farmers in the east riding of Peterborough at the next Provincial election, was given a tremendous ovation as he arose to speak. He gave some amusing anecdotes of incidents which occurred at the Farmers' convention held in Norwood some time ago at which he was nominated. Some people told him he must cater to the Grits if he wished to be elected, and others pointed the way to the Conservative vote. He didn't like it.

"We are united farmers," stated Mr. McDonald emphatically, "and we must forget our old political bias to make the movement a success. Some of the city people did not like it because we did not ask them to the convention, but they had no organization and it would have been useless to invite them. If a man is sent to Toronto he will not only represent the farmers, but the public at large, but the farmers are to be represented, which they haven't been. (Cheers.) Mr. McDonald also warned the audience that religion must be kept out of politics.

Initiative, Referendum, Recall.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, of Peterborough, gave a brief address, in which he gave the aims of the United Farmers of Ontario. He spoke of the great impresions made by the speech of the Hon. T. A. Crerar, who resigned as Minister of Agriculture because he could not swallow the protectionist policy of his colleagues. He said that day the members saw the writing on the wall, although they did not know to what an extent the people of the west stood behind him. Mr. Cowan declared that protection, instead of building up the interests of the manufacturers, was destroying those of the small man because, behind a high tariff, the manufacturers began to form trusts and combines and squeeze out the small manufacturer. He told how the Canada Cement Company bought the Lakefield, Belleville and Orangeville cement companies, then closed them up and immediately advanced the price of cement. He touched on rural depopulation, which is a serious factor to be reckoned with in Canada's growth. Three planks in the farmers' platform are initiative, the referendum the measure could have the first he related the ramifications of the government in giving the Mackenzie & Mann interests millions of dollars which was used in paying large wages, and which drew the men from the farms. If the people had the referndum the measure could have been nullified and knocked out, and the liquor question could be kept out of politics, which it should, and the people allowed a chance to register their opinion without prejudicing their party allegiance, which system so many people are not yet above. Under the caption of the recall he told how many members of the Commons did not truly represent the opinion of their constituents, and if the recall was available the unrepresentative member could be asked to seek for a new election.

The Service of Mr. Purvis.

The principal speaker of the day was Mr. T. Purvis, of Uxbridge, who unsuccessfully sought nomination for the United Farmers in North Ontario. Mr. Widdifield secured the nomination and Mr. Purvis, although generally conceded to be a Conservative, worked tooth and nail for the election of Mr. Widdifield as against Major Cameron, the regular Conservative candidate. Mr. Purvis to-day is considered the biggest factor in swinging an almost solid Conservative constituency which regularly returned Col. Sam Sharpe with huge majorities, over to the United Farmers. He condemned the great number of middlemen who might well be turned to the output of produce, but he said that was a question for each individual organization to decide.

The Political Side.

"Look at our representation in the Commons," continued Mr. Purvis. "There are only 161 farmer representatives as against 684 others, although agriculture is the basic industry of the country. Only lop-sided legislation is to be expected from such lop-sided representation, and we are getting it. There will likely be thirty U.F.O. candidates for election, and then we will be able to present our views, as they are not presented now. What has the National Policy of Sir John Macdonald done for us? It had depleted the ranks of agriculture from 46 to 20 per cent. Mr. Thompson, the late chairman of the Food Board, said that the interest on the huge war debt had to come from the top six inches of soil, and if he did not think the manufacturers an asset to the country, isn't it time for us to organize? The Hon. I. B. Lucas, the Attorney General in Hearst's Cabinet, speaking of the candidature of Mr. Widdifield in North Ontario, said he thought the farmer ought to be represented, but not as a class. But Mr. Lucas is a lawyer, and they are represented in the Legislature, one to sixty, while the farmer has a representative for every 13,000 of the rural population. We are not fighting for class legislation, but for the good of Canada at large," concluded Mr. Purvis.

Mr. G. A. Brethen, County Political Organizer for the United Farmers, spoke of the social, financial and political benefits brought to the farmer by the organization.

Mr. Sexsmith Under Fire.

"Mr. Sexsmith when elected for Union government, said he was through with partyism," continued Mr. Brethen, "but he went to North Ontario and opposed Mr. Widdifield. Down here he was a farmers' candidate, but in North Ontario it was not good politics, and further it must be a government measure or Mr. Sexsmith would not support it." He told of the setback received by Mr. Sexsmith from Mr. Crerar, how Mr. Sexsmith asked if the separator companies in Ontario were paying, and the sharp answer came back quick as a shot:

A few more selections were rendered by the band, but the promised long list of sports which were to be run by Deputy-reeve Eason's sport committee were rendered 'hors de combat' by the inclement weather, although the Warsaw and Keene football teams played a 1-1 football game, which tie was not broken, although the game was continued ten minutes overtime. The booths in the grounds were working overtime and in the evening the young people repaired to the Keene town hall for a big dance, with Tucker's orchestra of Peterborough producing the jazz. Early this morning saw the end of the second and biggest picnic of the county organization of the United Farmers of Ontario.

PRICE OF GASOLINE HAS BEEN REDUCED

Coincident with the removal of the 7 1-2 per cent. war tax on crude oil the Imperial Oil Company has made a reduction of one cent per gallon in gasoline, and from one to two cents per gallon on crude oil, according to the grade. Taking the price of the crude oil at the wells the removal of the war tax to a manufacturing concern like Imperial Oil Company makes possible the reduction in gasoline and lubricating oils announced as effective on June 2nd.

In Western Canada, which is now buying considerable quantities of these products for farming operations the aggregate saving will resolve itself into a large sum annually. Apart from auto and motor truck uses Eastern Canada, both for the farm and mechanical purposes, will also benefit largely by the change.

LEGISLATION SURRENDERS TO FACE BRIBERY CHARGES

COLUMBUS.—Frank Delehanty, of Cleveland, member of the Ohio legislature, surrendered himself to the sheriff of Franklin county to answer to two indictments charging him with soliciting and offering bribes in connection with pending legislation.

One indictment charges Delehanty with soliciting a bribe of $500 from Dr. Russell Skeels of Columbus, for his (Delehanty's) influences in procuring the passage of the non-medical practice bill. The other indictment charges offering a bribe of land, for Wright's assistance in procuring passage of the bill.

GRAIN MARKET

Manitoba oats came up strong again in the Winnipeg market yesterday, closing 1 3-4c. up on Sept. and Dec. options. Barley was stronger on the July option, closing 1 1-8c. up, but weakened on Dec., closing 1 1-2c. down. Corn markets were again strong, influenced by crop damage reports and by the drought reports from Europe. In the local market there is very little grain coming out excepting oats, which still seem to be fairly plentiful at some points. Fixed prices for Ontario wheat expire the end of this month. It is still uncertain as to what action the Government will take as regards the new crop.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts: 737 cattle, 310 calves, 2,212 hogs, and 388 sheep and lambs.

There was a "comeback" to the market yesterday, and the 50 cents lost in Monday's cattle prices was fully made up, bringing the market again up to last week's top levels. There was only a moderate run of less than 800 head of fresh cattle offering, and these met with a good active demand. Small bunches of choice butcher steers and heifers were selling strong at $13 to $13.50, and a few extra choice lots sold at $14. A special choice load sent in by the United Farmers stood at $14.75 bid, but was held for a better offer.

Lambs and calves steady and strong.

The hog market situation has once more resolved itself into a question of endurance between the packers and the drovers, the former standing to their bid of a dollar lower than last week, and the latter holding out for a higher bid. Up to noon no tickets were marked.

CITIZENS TO DECIDE.

Clean Bread or Many Germs? M.O.H. Is Testing Public.

Wrapped bread in now available in Toronto. The bakers have an ample supply on hand, they think, to meet all present demands.

"What we wish to do now is to find out just how many people in Toronto want clean bread," said Dr. Hastings.

The demand for wrapped bread will prove whether or not from the citizens' point of view the move for having bread wrapped is a good one."

"Would you be willing to pay a cent a loaf extra for wrapped bread?" was asked.

"I suppose I would, I hadn't thought about it," was the reply from housewife number one.

Housewife No. 2 most emphatically would pay more if she had to.

Housewife No. 3 made her own bread, thank you, and didn't depend on the bakers.

The investigation stopped here, the investigator being convinced that Toronto was unanimously in favor of clean bread—not at any cost, but at an extra cost of one cent certainly.

THE GLAMOUR OF A COLLEGE EDUCATION

CHAPTER II.

Neil Forbes was a college graduate. That too was another attraction to me. High school had been all possible for me and for most of the boys and girls of the town. One or two of the boys had gone away to work their way through college but they never had returned to their native town. So Neil was the first college man with whom I had come in contact.

He had been graduated about a year. He was just twenty-seven the spring he came to Huntington. He was working in a capitalist's office in New York. His father was dead but he had a mother and two sisters in Canada. Of course he did not tell me all this the first time I met him but gradually as we became better acquainted.

His vacation lasted a month. We got up picnics and did all the things small town people, without much money, can do to entertain a visitor. He taught me to play tennis; but I beat him always at croquet. The time fairly melted away. I never had been so happy in my life as I had been since Neil came to visit his aunt. It had soon become "Bab" and "Neil" with us. And he spent almost as much time at our house as he did with his aunt.

Neil admired everything in the town. He often said how restful it was after the hustle and bustle of the city; and he thought the trees and flowers wonderful. When we told him that a place very like ours could be rented for about fifteen dollars a month, he said one could not get a single room for that in New York. That such a home was out of reach of all but millionaires. It made me quite proud of my home when he talked that way.

His aunt told mother in confidence—they didn't know I was where I could hear—that Neil was getting a hundred dollars a week in the office, and that he was expecting a raise.

A hundred dollars seemed a fortune to me. It didn't need mother's surprised exclamation to make me fairly gasp. Why, no young man in Huntington ever earned as much as that. I doubted if more than two or three of the men in town had more than that to spend—men with families. It gave Neil an added interest in my eyes. Not that I consciously liked him any better because of his riches—as such an income seemed to me. But it proved his ability.

Neil, was a happy-natured fellow always joking and smiling. He was tall, straight, without an ounce of superfluous flesh, although no one could speak of him as "thin." He had dark brown hair and laughing eyes. He dressed well and was thoroughly well groomed. Is it any wonder that I should have loved him almost from the beginning. And that my dreams were colorful because of the part he played in them?

Now, that I have told how Neil looked, I suppose I should try and describe myself, Barbara Hill. Well, I was neither short nor tall. I was very light with almost gold colored hair, but instead of the blue eyes that usually go with such hair I had deep violet eyes. I had a good complexion, and for the rest a nose, eyes and mouth like other girls. Although Neil said I had the sweetest mouth he ever saw. But that was because I had dimples in the corners.

When Neil told me that he must go the next day—he had already overstayed his time, and could not go to Canada for a few days, as he had intended—I cried all the night long. Then it took me an hour in the morning to remove the traces of my tears.

We spent that last morning together, wandering through a little wood near the house and sitting on a log where we had often sat and talked of different things—Neil doing most of the talking. Someway I felt my lack of knowledge when with him, although he never in any way obtruded the fact of his better education.

"I shall miss you all," he had said, digging his stick in the soft moss at our feet.

"And I shall miss you," my voice trembled.

"Shall you really, Bab?" then he put his arm around my waist, and kissed me on my cheek. "Will you answer my letters if I write you?"

"Indeed, I shall," I returned as brightly as I could; yet with a queer little feeling of disappointment that he hadn't said more.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Headache.

Here is a homemade remedy for headache which may work a cure, if taken at the beginning of an attack: Cut a lemon in half and squeeze its juice into a tumbler. Add a few—a very few—grains of sugar and fill up the glass with cold water. Fill it, that is, about three-quarters full. Now stir into this lemon mixture half an eggspoonful of ordinary baking soda. This will fizz up, of course, and the draft must be swallowed while it is still effervescing. If one does fails to arrest the attack, repeat it three hours after. This mixture, taken fasting, the first thing in the morning, will do much to settle the stomach after a sick headache and will prevent recurrence for some time. This kitchen physic has been found to prevail when phenacetin and all other nerve quietare have signally failed.

A Rare Bird.

The lowest form of bird life which exists is believed to be the kiwi, or Apteryx mantelli, of New Zealand. It is so scarce, however, that scientists consider themselves lucky to get a specimen in any condition. It is without wings or tail; its legs are short, but very strong, and are used for digging. The chief food of the bird is earth worms. The body covering is a cross between hair and feathers. The kiwis develop great speed and make a desperate fight when attacked. A peculiar characteristic is that during the day they concent themselves under rocks or roots of trees and when at rest resemble to some extent a hedgehog when it is curled up. Efforts to breed them in captivity have utterly failed, and only a few museums can boast of specimens.

It Would Help.

A facetious bishop went to preach a charity sermon a short time ago in a church. The rector said:

"I am grieved that you should have to come on such a windy day."

The bishop replied: "Tut, tut, my friend. Didn't I come to raise the wind?"—Wisconsin State Journal.

To Unify Work.

That the whole of the Gilbert group of Islands in the South seas should be given over to the care of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions was decided at a meeting of the London missionary board, held some little time ago. The American board had long been anxious for the arrangement, which entails the work there, and offered to pay $27,000, which sum and the contributions of the islanders, all expenses of the staffing of the Northern Islands to be met for ten years. The group is under British government, and in 15 years of vigorous work in the Southern Islands, a strong church has been built up, and many able native pastors have been and are being trained.

Greatest Rule of Health

And How it May be Carried Out With Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

You sometimes hear it said that the most important Rules of Health is "Daily movement of the bowels."

Constipation begins with the bowels but it does not end there.

You must also consider the way it effects the liver, the kidneys, the digestive system and in fact the whole human body.

Headaches, backaches, aching limbs, indigestion, biliousness, kidney derangements, appendicitis, and the most serious diseases imaginable often have their beginning with constipation of the bowels.

There is one treatment which has a direct and combined action on the bowels, the liver and the kidneys and gets these organs into good working order in remarkably quick time, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They afford relief quickly, but they do more than that. They positively cure constipation, and insure lasting regularity of the bowels by setting the liver right.

Mr. M. Lock, 30 Home street, Brockville, Ont., writes: "For many years I have been troubled with constipation and have tried a number of remedies, but without obtaining much benefit. About a year ago I started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and have found them to be the best medicine for constipation that I have ever used. I would strongly advise anyone troubled with this complaint to try the same remedy."

Mrs. R. Childs, Harriston, Ont., writes: "I suffered from constipation and kidney trouble for some time. One day I bought some of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to see if they would help me, and to my delight, I received great benefit from them in a short time. They are a splendid medicine, and I always keep them on hand as a household remedy."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so universally used as a treatment for constipation and liver and kidney troubles that you can obtain them at any store where medicines are on sale. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Why the Blues?

Every one loves the blue sky with its brightness, warmth and softness. Hundreds have written of it in glowing terms of praise, while the inarticulate millions have felt what they expressed. Who does not love a pair of blue eyes—laughing blue eyes, true blue eyes, tender blue eyes, Irish blue eyes? The men who follow the sea love her every mood and hue, and yet 'tis her sparkling sapphire cloak they would have her don on the happiest occasions. "It is impossible in our condition of society not to be sometimes a snob," wrote Thackeray—not to have a heart that would relish pumping a little blue blood along with the red. But when our thoughts are dull, depressed and drear, like an unkind wintry gray sky, we are in the blues. Why this periodical defamation of the color which is associated with so many of the fair and pleasing things of life? If we must vilify a color there are yellow, canaries and jaundice. There are red devils and danger. Why the blues?—Boston Globe.

Smokeless Powder.

Ordinary powder produces smoke when fired because of the quantity of fine particles formed from the breaking up of the saltpeter and from some of the charcoal which is not completely burned. To get rid of smoke, so long a handicap in the use of guns, it was necessary to produce a substance that would explode without leaving any solid residue. This was accomplished by the use of guncotton or nitrocellulose, from which the most satisfactory smokeless powder is made. The substance is a chemical compound, not a mixture like gunpowder, and is made by treating cotton with a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acids. When exploded it is all converted into gases. Burning is not necessary to cause an explosion, a mere shock or jar being sufficient. It is too violent an explosive to use in small arms or in cannon, but guncotton can be made into less forceful forms, suitable for use in guns, and most brands of smokeless powder are made in this way.—Boston Herald.

GATUN LAKE IS BIG AFFAIR

Reservoir, Built by Americans, Far Outdoes Anything Else That the World Has Known.

The government fisheries bureau is planting Gatun lake with fishes. The first shipment for the purpose, made by steamer the other day, consisted of catfish, sunfish, carp and black bass, all of "fingerling" size. The bass were planted in the Chagres river, the principal tributary of the lake.

A Pharaoh of the twelfth dynasty constructed a reservoir (known today as Lake Moeris) which covered 63 square miles. It was an artificial lake, regarded in its day as one of the wonders of the world, and was designed to regulate the flow of the Nile.

In its way it was the most remarkable engineering achievement of antiquity. But Gatun lake, on the line of the Panama canal, beats it, being about three times as big. Its object is similar—namely, to take care of the flood waters of the Chagres river and prevent them from doing mischief.

Gatun lake is the largest artificial body of water ever known in the world. It is, in fact, the most important feature of the transisthmian canal, extending two-thirds of the distance from the Caribbean sea to the Pacific ocean.

It occupies a basin that was dry land before the canal was built; and because the area covered by it is very hilly and topographically irregular, it stretches in a multiple of arms far up into its marshy shores.

One reason why its shores are marshy is that in its shallows there develops with astonishing luxuriance a kind of grass which sends out runners in all directions. On this account its banks are not easily accessible even to small craft.

As for fishes, it is hoped that they will multiply and furnish a worthwhile food supply.

"Hush Hush!" Cruiser.

The idea that Great Britain is secretly constructing tremendous cruisers, carrying batteries of 15-inch guns and traveling faster than any naval ships now float, has become almost an obsession with the German press, whose naval experts recognize that these ships present a problem that cannot be met with submarines. The new British cruisers are termed "hush hush" cruisers because of the supposed secrecy with which they are being constructed. Captain von Kuhlwatter, a famous German naval authority, believes them to be 886 feet in length and probably more effective naval units than any yet constructed. No doubt the prime cause of interest in their building is the realization that a complete fleet of fast cruisers could annihilate a whole squadron of slow and ponderous German dreadnaughts if the German fleet ever again aspires to the open sea. In the Jutland and other fights such a unit of fast and heavily armed ships might have cut off their retreat. That England is constructing a number of large battle cruisers of a new type is not denied by the admiralty.

Three Seasons in Year.

The Egyptian year was divided into three seasons. These were Shait, the season of waters, being the time occupied by the rising spread and recession of the Nile; Pirut, the season of vegetation; the Shonnu, the season of harvest. These seasons are supposed to have been arranged by the god Thot. Each season was divided into four months and they were known in official documents by numbers only. Thus we have the first, second, third and fourth months of Shait, the months of each of the other seasons being designated in the same manner. Each month, however, had a patron god and the people ordinarily gave to it, in their daily intercourse, the name of its god. These deity names of the months were transcribed into Greek, then into Arabic and are now largely used by the Christian inhabitants of Egypt in preference to the Mussulman appellations.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Blood Pearl

By ALBERT DORRINGTON

(Copyright)

"The thief must be punished," Sashino intimated blandly. "It was a gem of strange orient and milkiness. I am told it had a blood mist. There are men here who saw it!"

The crew of Japanese shellers mustered silently on the oyster-strewn deck of the Three Moons. The sea was as still as a sleeping child. In the far south a few ragged palms marked the limit of the Vanderdecken bank, where the cheeping sun birds drowsed over the mile-long fleet of working luggers.

Sashino was captain of the Three Moons, and he resented bitterly the frequent thefts of pearls from his lugger. The tricks of the average diamond thief become ludicrously apparent when compared with the almost superhuman evasions of the Japanese shell opener. Captain Sashino had grown subtle with experience, but his smiling patience gave out before the constant pilferings of almost priceless gems.

Four coolies appeared from the forward hatch escorting a naked Japanese diver. A stern silence awaited him. For a few moments he remained sullenly irresolute, cigarette in mouth, his bare toes kicking scraps of opened shell across the deck.

"You steal my pearl, Insumi, the one you found on the Black Lip bank. I am willing to hear you. Say what!"

"What made you steal?" Sashino repeated. "The German buyers or your sweetheart in the town? Say quick!"

Insumi frowned.

"I work hard, Captain Sashino, for small pay. Only once or twice have I taken a little pearl. My sweetheart does not ask me to steal."

He turned again to the crew, as though expecting a friendly demonstration on his behalf. There was none.

A windlass-hand, wearing a coolie loin-cloth, was holding a baited line over the port bow. Incidentally, a pair of tiger sharks drifted from the shadow of the lugger's keel, and remained motionless within a few yards of the bait.

The pearl thief folded his arms submissively, as one expecting punishment swift and unannounced. The silent wrath that moves Japanese legions to impossible assaults flowed from the captain's gestures. He turned to a diver at his elbow and whispered. The crew, catching his meaning, became suddenly alert. A volcanic rage swept over them. Oaths of strange origin and dialects filled the air. Captain Sashino nodded twice, and called to the windlass-hand with the baited line.

Three men caught Insumi by the shoulders, and fastened the line about his waist and hips, leaving his arms free.

"Over!" shouted the captain. "Let him keep his knife."

Insumi was dangling over the bows, his breast and feet nearly touching the water. The tropic sun pierced almost to the sandy floor of the straits. A tiger shark does not always swoop to the object in sight, but will sometimes inspect it for a short period, then vanish for a brief space and return with the speed of a hawk.

The thief lay suspended within an inch of the water, his knees slightly updrawn. The knife in his right hand was held point out from his face. Above him leant the crew of the lugger, telling him in fluent Japanese that thieves and sharks were the spawn of devil men.

An inquisitive snout appeared under the lugger's bow; a pair of swinish eyes began to regard the suspended Insumi with patient interest, then, moving slowly in a straight line, flashed suddenly under his chest. Insumi's back arched as the gray belly swept beneath; a quick, grunting stab followed, and the water grew crimson for several yards. He breathed hoarsely and wagged his bullet head.

"Fool!" sneered the captain. "The scent will bring others, and they will hustle him to death like Americans!"

A loud thrashing was heard near the beam. The strong tide swept the red stains clear of the lugger. For a period that seemed like eternity the suspended man looked eagerly into the water as though listening. Then, with a sudden frantic movement, he tried to turn toward a torpedolike shadow that rushed from the shelter of the lugger's stern. A gash, wide as a sabercut, appeared on his naked hip.

"A fin-stroke!" chuckled the captain. "The old shark has got him now. It will be a slow fight, my children."

A hot stillness hung about the straits. The Jap lay motionless, eye and ear almost touching the water, his glance fixed immovably on the trowel-shaped fin that stayed within gunshot of the vessel. Neither the tide nor the shouts of the divers could urge it on.

"The big fish is playing with him," smiled the captain. "Do not make too much noise, my children."

Then an unexpected commotion happened in the water; a school of small sharks began to sport about the thief's ankles. With a rippling movement of the wrist he slashed into them right and left, dispersing them like a shoal of mullet. One blue-snouted invader, more cunning than the rest, tore at his ribs as it escaped under the lugger's stern.

Within thirty seconds the school returned and the fight began again. The watching pearlers screamed excitedly over the lugger's rail, while the baby sharks grew clever and harassed Insumi on the off side. They clung like leeches, eluding his knife thrusts, retreating and attacking with the speed of torpedoes.

Breathing stertorously, he held up an appealing hand, once, twice. A cold, unresponsive silence followed, while the captain lit a cigarette.

Then, as if by a signal from the outer deeps, the swarm of sharklets drew off. Some one pointed to the trowel-shaped fin moving once more to its quarry. Many of the pearlers knew it for one of the oldest monsters that inhabited the great reef-passage. Dozens of trepang fishers had attempted its capture without success, but the human bait now offered was more than it could resist.

There was no deviation from the line of attack; it flashed straight under the Jap's ribs. With the strength and fortitude of his kind the suspended man thrust his left hand into the open jaws. A second later his knife arm was slashing at the upturned throat.

For a moment it seemed as though the rope would break under the strain. With lunatic strength he appeared to be holding the shark at arm's length beneath the water. Then, with a cry, he stabbed downward again and again until his head dropped forward.

"Heave up!" shouted the captain.

Slowly they hauled him over the rail, and they saw that his left arm was torn and shredded where it had entered the gaping mouth.

The captain surveyed the hurt man calmly. There was no trace of emotion in his voice as he addressed the assembled crew.

"Fear will not make him speak. The pearl is somewhere and we may yet find it. Take him below and see that his hurts are attended to. There is an English doctor in the town."

Late in the afternoon, when the sun's rays lay in streaks of fierce red across the straits of Torres, a dead tiger shark drifted under the lugger's stern, past the bobbing heads of the naked divers. Around it swarmed a ravenous shoal of black bream and yellow-tails guzzling, flashing their silver sides near the wide gash under the upturned throat.

Incidentally a dory pushed off from a tiny pier at the inlet's mouth, and rowed slowly in the wake of the dead monster. A Malay diver and a Japanese coolie sat at the oars.

The dead shark drifted beyond the great oyster bank where the long sea grass swayed and rippled in the outgoing tide. Leaning from the dory the Malay thrust a boat-hook under the shark's dorsal fin, and drew it with much labor under the lee of a palm-sheltered promontory.

"Sashino's glasses cannot follow us now," he panted. "There will be no need to hurry with our work."

The shark was beached, and, after a careful survey of the surrounding scrub, the Malay drew a long sheath knife and passed his thumb gently over the point. Then with a dozen deft strokes he laid bare the huge gullet while the Jap coolie plunged his fists inside.

The two men grunted on their knees beside the dead shark, searching and probing with the craft of deep sea fishermen. The surf rippled and screamed over the low sand dunes as the tide receded beyond the mangrove belt.

The Malay's head came up with a sudden jerk. Drawing his hand from the bared throat of the monster, he held it aloft exultantly.

A pearl of peculiar luster and orient gleamed between his finger and thumb. The sun rays seemed to illumine it with supernatural radiance as he held it up for the Jap's inspection.

"If a thief cares not where he puts his arm, comrade, there are always good hiding-places for a ten thousand-dollar pearl!"

A chuckling sound escaped the Jap as he leant forward to inspect the pearl which the desperate Insumi had thrust into the monster's throat.

"Insumi was born with a crease in his palm. I saw Sashino look into his hand before they swung him to the shark. I could not hide a bend in mine!"

A few days later Insumi, his left arm swathed in bandages, met his two confreres at the house of a Chinese pearl buyer near Deliverance Inlet. After much haggling and delay Insumi received $50 for his share in the deal.

INFLAMED GUMS— THE CAUSE OF TOOTH-BASE DECAY

Just as the strength of a building is dependent upon its foundations, so are healthy teeth dependent upon healthy gums.

Permit the gums to become inflamed or tender and you weaken the foundation of the teeth. This condition is called Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease). Loosening of teeth is a direct result. And spongy, receding gums invite painful tooth-base decay. They act, too, as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) attacks four out of five people who are over forty. And many under that age, also. Its first symptom is tender gums. So you should look to your gums! Use Forhan's, which positively prevents Pyorrhea if used in time and used consistently. It also scientifically cleans the teeth—keeps them white and clean. Brush your teeth with it.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

CHURCH OBSERVED ITS ANNIVERSARY

WARSAW HAPPENINGS—VISITORS TO THE VILLAGE.

WARSAW, June 25.—The Presbyterian Church at Cotessloe held its Anniversary services on Sunday. Rev Juli of Lakefield preached at both services. The church was well filled. In the morning the preacher dwelt on the fact that men must work, irrespective of what others think, must not look for applause, for applause comes of the crowd.

The anthem was "Let the People Praise Thee" and Mrs. Foster sang.

The evening text was "He that hath ears to hear let him hear." The preacher emphasized the fact that organized Christianity, Liberty, Education, Science, nor anything else could save a nation. The individual must be filled wit hthe love of God and do God's work because it is His work. The family altar must not be forgotten. There are recruits needed for the ministry at home and abroad, and their recruits must not look for worldly goods. Christ does not offer wealth or greatness, or any other such thing. He offers, the consciousness of work well done, a joy and peace of heart. The safety first man was a coward. He said anniversaries are often a curse, the church is well filled that day, and then empty. He made a strong appeal to that particular congregation to work as Christians.

The Warsaw choir, which led the music at both services sang the Anthem "Almighty God" and Mesdames Munroe and Crapp sang a duet.

Well Represented

Warsaw was well represented at the Cotessloe tea last evening. It is long since the Cotessloe people have had any doings and things certainly had a successful tea and entertainment last evening. Tea was served in the sheds, which were converted into a pretty dining hall. $96.00 was taken at the gate, and all the ice cream was sold.

It was so very warm that the programme was given outside. It consisted of an opening selection by the choir, addresses by Rev. MacCormick of Norwood, also the Norwood Presbyterian Minister, as well as Rev Hugh Brown and Rev. Percy Robert of Warsaw. Miss Alice Wasson gave a patriotic recitation. Mrs. Foster, Warsaw, gave a solo.

Personals

Miss Booth, Peterboro, spent a few days with Mrs. John Crowe.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Lathrope, Castleton spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. David Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Stark and little daughter, are visiting with Mrs. Stark's sister, Mrs. (Rev.) Robert.

Rev. Hugh Brown took Rev. Juli's services at Lakefield yesterday.

Mrs. Wilkens has her house-front and lawn beautifully decorated in anticipation of the home-coming of her son from overseas.

Miss Menzies, Peterboro, is visiting at the home of Mrs. A. F. Choate

Mrs. Donald MacIntosh is visiting in Fenelon Falls.

Rev. Jordan Crowe preached at Warsaw Methodist Church, Sunday evening.

Mr. John Dewart spent Sunday with relatives near the village.

There weekly union prayer meetings will be omitted until the first Wednesday in September.

Owing to the Anniversary services at Cotessloe yesterday, there was no service in the Pereshyterian church here yesterday.

As next Sunday is Patriotic Sunday the Presbyterian Sabbath School will not hold its regular service, but unite with the congregation at the 11 a.m. service.

There will be service in the Anglican church next Sunday at 2 p.m.

Meeting Postponed

On account of a funeral on Friday afternoon there was no meeting of the King's Daughters. Friday's meeting should have been the last until September but as there is a little business to be done, there will be a special meeting called soon.

All ladies are cordially invited to attend the meeting of the Women's Institution Friday afternoon, June 27, at 2:30 p.m. Miss Clayton will give addresses on "Citizenship" and "The Possibilities of the Institute". These meetings are free to all women and girls over fifteen.

NO CONSTIPATION NO PILES

We think, without a doubt, that constipation is the most prevalent, and at the same time, one of the greatest troubles human nature is afflicted with, and causes more sickness than anything else.

Unless a free action of the bowels occurs at least once a day, constipation is sure to ensue, then comes the sore and uncomfortable piles, sick and bilious headaches, coated tongue, obnoxious breath, sour stomach, heartburn, water brash, and many other ailments.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus removing the constipation and its allied troubles.

Mr. Dan Doucette, Eel River Crossing, N.B., writes: — "Having been troubled for years with constipation and trying everything I know of, a friend advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I used four vials and am completely cured. I can gladly recommend them to anyone who suffers from constipation."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have been on the market for the past 32 years, and have been used with the best results by thousands of people in that time, and we have yet to hear of a complaint as to their curative powers.

Rhubarb may be served in many ways, scalloped, in a sponge, in marmalade, pie, or stewed.

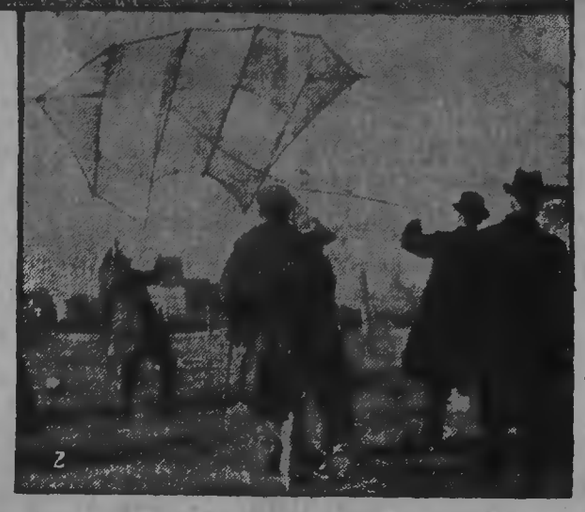
TAKING AIR SOUNDINGS ON THE ATLANTIC



In future days when one takes a casual flight across the Atlantic, in a Detroit flying flivver, the success of the trip can be credited to the British Air Ministry in general, the meteorological in particular and Lieut. Guy Harris, F.R.M.S., R.A.F., specifically.

Lieut. Harris arrived in St. John recently, the only passenger on board the Canadian Pacific Steamship Montcalm. He is the commander of the Atlantic upper air investigation expedition which under the control of the Royal Air Ministry will chart every air current and make the air route across the Atlantic as sure and safe as the water pathway. Weather news bureaus will also be inaugurated to furnish up-to-the-second information regarding all aerial conditions.

A representative of the press visited the vessel and examined the special apparatus with which she was fitted for the experiments. At first sight it seems to be simple enough, for it consists only of winches, wire, box kites, and a meteorograph, but the meteorograph is itself a complicated and intricate instrument, and kite-flying for scientific purposes it not quite the schoolboy fun that many people imagine it to be. The kites used are of three types, and the largest of these, which measures roughly, 8 ft. by 6 ft., exerts a pull in a strong wind sufficient to strain the holding power of four men.

Besides the box kite there is a crown kite, 16 feet long and 12 feet high, with a main plane and two keels; the keel kite is smaller and is used mostly as a pilot kite to assist the others up.

There are two winches, one placed on the fo'c'sle deck for use when the wind is aft, and the other for use when the wind is ahead or abeam, is to be sent off on the gun platform in the stern of the ship. By these means the mooring cables which are of fine steel wire very similar to marine sounding cable will be kept clear of rigging and derricks whatever may be the angle from the ship at which the kite is flying.

When the soundings are taken two kites are attached to the cable-end a pilot of light make and 400 feet behind it one of the bigger box kites carrying meteorograph. The air currents and varieties of atmospheric pressure vary in layers upwards, and soundings can be taken up to a height of four or five miles. The meteorograph, a comparatively small instrument combining three devices in one, records at the same time, by pen points marking a chart on a revolving drum, the humidity of the air, atmospheric pressure, and the speed of the wind, all factors of the utmost importance in the consideration of flight.

If the soundings experiments made from the Montcalm are successful a number of ships will be fitted forthwith with similar gear to that which she is to carry. Soundings in great numbers will be taken, and the information obtained will be distributed by wireless from ship to ship, and to stations in London, Lisbon, the Azores, and Newfoundland. There is also to be an immediate station on a battleship cruising on a definite area between Newfoundland and the Azores. These are the points at which it has already been decided by the ministry to establish ports of call for cross Atlantic air traffic. At each there will be repair shops, spare parts, stores, and petrol for refuelling the aeroplanes. The type of machine to be used will be a "flying boat" and thus when the proposed method of gathering news about weather conditions is in full working order, and when in a month's time official cross Atlantic flight by aeroplane begins, as it is hoped it will, pilots will be able to have their machines overhauled to "refill," and to learn the latest tidings of weather ahead at five halts on the journey. Thus the Air Ministry is reducing the risks of flight to a minimum.

It was at first proposed that these atmospheric readings should be made using balloons of the type employed by the Meteorological office in carrying out daily readings over land, but there are many objections to flying balloons from ships. The kite which is made of fine linen stretched between bamboos is strong and serviceable, and can be folded away for storage in a very small place, it is also cheap to make and quickly turned out. It may be remarked that the officer stationed at Lisbon is to be allowed full use of the observatory there for gathering weather news. The official view is that the prospects for cross Atlantic flights by aeroplane are entirely favourable, and it is hoped to make the journey without touching the Azores. Early news of conditions ahead will have the greatest influence on the success of the venture.

Lieut. Harris said that there were many difficulties experienced in the kite flying at sea, but thanks to the valuable assistance of Captain Hamilton and other members of the ship's staff everything worked out remarkably well. It is a far different thing, he stated, to fly a monster kite from a moving, lurching ship than it is from the steady ground. It is very difficult to get the kite away from the ship, and for a long time he had to puzzle out a method of getting the recording instruments up to the kite after the ascent had been successfully made. To the best of his knowledge, kites had been flown from ships only once before, and that long before the present war. During the voyage across he had made several altitude flights of 7,500 feet, and many over 6,000 feet.

(2) Crown kite flies.

The air service mentioned above, he added, will be used and charted for every sea and will cover a service of airships and the larger heavier-than-air craft, as well as planes. His records made during the voyage across are in rough shape and of course, nothing can be published regarding the trip until the official reports have been passed through the ministry at London. But, he added, "I am very well pleased with the results obtained and I can state without qualification that the expedition, so far, has been most successful."

Mr. Harris is a fellow of the Royal Meteorological Society, and has been engaged in scientific pursuits for the past 12 years, making his first experiments when but a mere lad. He had been engaged in scientific kite-flying several years before the war broke out, and his services were keenly appreciated by the air service.

For three years he has been attached to the Royal Naval Air Service operating around the British Isles and Dunkirk in anti-submarine work. It has been frequently stated that there never has been a ship attacked by the German U-boats while it was convoyed by a flyer.

NARCOTIC DRUGS.

Awful Ravages of "Dope" Reported In United States.

Little short of astounding is the report of a special committee appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury to investigate the use of narcotic drugs in the United States. It estimates that there are not fewer than 1,500,000 drug addicts in the country. How serious is the situation is revealed in New York City, where recently the police made a determined effort to stop the illicit trade in cocaine, morphine and heroin. The Health Department thereupon had to open a special clinic where habitues of the drug could be supplied with their favorite dope. Otherwise the lunatic asylums of the city would have been overcrowded. It has been found that it is dangerous, if not fatal, to abruptly deprive drug-users of their rations. If cures are to be made they must be made gradually, and in order to give the confessed fiends the necessary supplies to soothe their quivering nerves and support their tottering reason, they were treated at the rate of one hundred an hour. A special call for more workers was issued, the doctors on hand being utterly unable to cope with the awful demand made upon them.

It is to be borne in mind that the 700 addicts treated by the New York Health Department in one day were the sodden and helpless drug users who depended upon the illicit sellers for their daily supplies. There were not included those who had a supply of the poisons on hand, or who were not so desperately in the clutch of the habit that they would face the publicity of appealing to a clinic or those who have other sources for procuring the dope not known to the police. The situation is not worse in New York than in other parts of the country, according to the committee's report. The drug habit appears to have penetrated every part of the community, and in proportion to population seems not rarer in isolated farms many miles from a railway station than in the great cities. For instance, in one Kentucky "dry" county it was found that about two per cent. of the population were resorting to paregoric as a stimulant. In Jacksonville, Florida, out of a population of 7,000 there are 800 drug fiends. In this city there is a strict law compelling registration, so that the statistics are correct, although it would be rash to presume that every drug user would register if he felt that he could secure a supply of his favorite beverage without registering.

One point which the committee was expected to determine was whether the use of harmful drugs would be likely to be increased when national prohibition came into effect. The evidence appeared to be conflicting on this point. In the larger cities the drug habit and the liquor habit were found to be gathering fresh victims side by side. In prohibition regions, on the other hand, a great consumption of patent medicines and drugs containing morphine was discovered, as in the Kentucky county mentioned. Prohibition advocates demand figures from those who insist that total prohibition of liquor will be attended by a great increase in the demand for more deadly narcotics than alcohol. On the other hand it is argued that the drug traffic is so susceptible of secret dealing because of the highly concentrated nature of the drugs that a veritable army of detectives would be necessary to stamp it out or to show to what an extent its growth has been contemporaneous and co-extensive with that of prohibition.

The drugs most generally used are cocaine, morphine and heroin. It is said that cases are on record of a victim breaking the cocaine habit by sheer force of will, but there is no such record with heroin. This is an opium preparation, three and a half times the strength of morphine. Naturally enough it was invented in Germany, where it was hailed by the beer professors as being free from the baleful effects of morphine. In that country it is said to be under the strictest control, so that Germany herself may suffer no little from the diabolical discovery of her chemists. The commission reported that very rarely was a drinker a drug user. One habit seemed to extinguish the other. Men graduate from whiskey to cocaine, but never from cocaine to whiskey. Once they have experienced the "kick" of the real dope, alcohol becomes insipid in comparison. It has been admitted that many cases of drug addiction are the result of doctors ignorantly or good-naturedly administering morphine to ease pain, thus fatally exchanging a normal pain or ache for a soul-destroying craving.

No Social Barriers in Turkey.

To those unfamiliar with Turkish customs it may seem strange that Talaat Pasha, who has just resigned the highest dignity in the Ottoman empire, should have been earning his living only a few years ago as an obscure telegraph clerk. Yet such big jumps are perhaps easier in Turkey than in any other country. For although the Ottoman Turks often show the utmost contempt for the numerous subject races that help to make up the Turkish empire, they recognize no social barriers among themselves. In the eyes of the sultan all are equal. Thus it may easily happen that, given the necessary ability, even an emancipated Ottoman slave may become grand vizier, and perhaps marry into the sultan's own family.

ARE ALMOST HUMAN

Monkeys in Their Native Wilds Shew Keen Wit.

Clever Manner in Which One of Them Got the Best of Crocodile Is Proof of Their Possession of Intelligence.

The nature and character of the monkey are not changed by any training that he may receive. All the little tricks that may be taught him in captivity will add little to what he is accustomed to practice in his wild state. The chief difference to him is that he has a different set of victims to torment. Those who have had a chance to watch the rascals in their native wilds and native wildness find them up to the same mischievous pranks they play in captivity.

Every little while our expedition passed under trees occupied by troops of monkeys, some of them of the large kind that had given the explorers much trouble on a former occasion. One large tree in which they had established their quarters stretched its branches over a stream twenty yards or more.

While the leader of the expedition was watching the antics of the monkeys, two crocodiles showed their heads just underneath and remained stationary with their ugly snouts sticking up in the air. In various countries this is a common dodge of the crocodiles to entice the monkeys within their reach, and it was expected by the witnesses of this incident that one or more of the noisy animals would fall victims to the goggle-eyed monsters below, and it was with considerable curiosity that the result was awaited.

As soon as the black-looking heads popped up the monkeys became silent. Presently one big fellow, evidently of authority in the monkey republic, came down to reconnoiter. He returned, and in a few minutes came back with a long, thin stick in his hand and accompanied by about a hundred of his friends. They began to chatter and to pelt their foes, but the crocodiles took no notice. The onlookers thought they seemed to give a wink of satisfaction at seeing their silly victims coming within their reach.

Nearer and nearer they came, until some of them were barely six feet above the crocodiles, and the men watching were expecting every instant to see one of them dragged under the water. All of a sudden the monkey with the stick leaned over and drove it into the eye of the crocodile nearest him. The wounded reptile sank like lead and was quickly followed by its comrade.

There was no mistaking the howl of delight that greeted this stratagem and its success. It was perfectly human in its tone and was taken up in vengeful glee by all the monkeys in the neighborhood. The gravity of demeanor with which the old fellow committed this assault was laughable in the extreme. He went to work with all the caution of an old lawyer, and when he had inflicted the poke he hauled himself up with an alacrity that showed he could form a very good estimation of the danger that he ran.

COST OF STRIKE

By J. J. Conklin.

WINNIPEG, June 27. — The Building and Metal Trades are still seriously affected by the strike. The Building Trades strike may be settled by to-morrow, according to A. E. Godsmark, secretary of the Builders' Exchange, who said that negotiations are now under way.

The Metal Trades employees remained out yesterday. It is reported that none of them had gone back to work at all.

B. Lyall, the manager of the Manitoba Bridge Company, said that no negotiations were in progress.

Many union men returning to their jobs yesterday found that they were too late. Approximaelty about 75% of them, it was estimated, after a rough canvass, found their positiins waiting for them. The situation was further complicated by extensive trading of jobs. Strikers who stayed out the entire period of the walkout in many cases went back to their places only to find that other strikers had gone back a few days ago.

Most of the policemen were in favor of returning to work on the terms of the committee.

A. J. Andrews, K. C., special prosecutor, in the cases of the government against the six labor leaders arrested on charges of sedition, said that the end of the strike would not alter the government's policy in the matter.

May Stay Out.

The striking metal workers may stay out, pending a full settlement with the metal trades employers. The ironmasters announced that they had not been notified of any intention to call off the strike, and that the negotiations had gone no farther than a presentation of their terms to collective bargaining in writing to a committee of their own employees.

The building trades strike has cost contractors and workmen in Winnipeg $4,000,000, according to estimate of Secretary Godsmark, of the building exchange. Most of the important building for the summer has been called off. He said the owners feel that by starting work now they merely tie up their plants.

The necessity of retaining a large force of special constables having disappeared with the ending of the strike ,and the return to duty of the regular policemen, six hundred of the specials will be dismissed to-day by Chief Newton

Between 200 and 300 former telephone employees applied for employment yesterday. George A. Watson, telephone commissioner stated, "We cannot employ them all, as we have only about two hundred vacancies."

Operating civic utilities during the strike, paying for a special police force, and arranging for other necessary expenses during the strike, cost the city approximately $250000. the city authorities estimated.

BOARD'S OFFER WAS REFUSED

Street Cars May Be Tied Up Over the Week-End.

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, June 27.—The Toronto street railway employees' strike promises to continue indefinitely after a two-hour meeting this forenoon, at which the strikers were made an offer by the Ontario Railway Board of an eight-hour day and payment of wages on a sliding scale same as on the civic railway up to 48 cents an hour. The strikers, by a vote of 1,511 to 21, rejected the offer.

The men held that, by working an 8-hour instead of a 10-hour day, as at present, they would, by the acceptance of the new offer, be receiving less for a day's work than before they went on strike.

The men are holding out for 55 cents an hour. It is probable that other offers of settlement will be made, but the hope of having the cars run this week was practically given up this afternoon.

FORMER EMPEROR WILLIAM PLANNING TO SPEEDILY RETURN TO GERMANY

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, June 27.—"After Peace is signed, I will return to Germany to live on my estates in Silesia, and perform my duties as landowner," said the former German Crown Prince in an interview last week at Wieringen. The Prince is also quoted as declaring that "East Prussia and Silesia will never consent to be governed by Poland. There will be another war in ten years."

Former Emperor William is planning to speedily return to Germany before the Entente can demand his surrender from Holland, according to a Stuttgart despatch to the N. Euberliner Zeitung. The despatch states that the Dutch Government thoroughly approves of his return, as the former Emperor is an unwelcome guest, and his presence in Holland is increasing the problem before that country.

EDMUND C. WALL IS CLARINET SOLOIST WITH THE HUNTSVILLE BAND

Edmund C. Wall, clarinet soloist, with the Anglo-Canadian Leather Company Band, Huntsville, was born in 1895 and, at the early age of six years, received his first tuition from his father, the late Edmund A. Wall, who played with the celebrated Mme. Patti, when she first toured America; also, with the Emma Abbot Opera Co., and was a staff member of Sousa's Band during all the European and World Tours of that famous organization.

It was some three years ago, when Mr. Chas. O. Shaw, Vice-President and General Manager of the Anglo-Canadian Leather Company, and to whose love of good music is attributed the organization of the now "much talked of" Band, bearing the Company's name—was studying under Mr. Herbert L. Clarke, and asked information as to where he might secure a competent professional musician to take charge of the band—then in its infancy—not as bandmaster, but as general instructor for all sections and instruments. Mr. Clarke recommended Mr. Wall, Sr., who after negotiating with Mr. Shaw and, like many other good musicians, wishing to discontinue extensive travelling and touring, moved to Huntsville in June, 1916, together with his two sons, Edmund C., and Chas. A., all three of whom were clarinet players and who comprised then, practically the entire reed section of the band, and almost immediately, the Band, under his scholarly tuition, made noticeably rapid strides towards a perfect organization, a reputation which it now bears, under the leadership of the world's premier coronet soloist, Mr. Herbert L. Clarke. Unfortunately, Mr. Wall did not live to witness the best results of his efforts, he having died in October of the same year.

His work, however, has been continued with marked success by the elder son, Edmund C. Wall, who received all his tuition from his father, with the exception of one year, when he studied with the great Selmer. Mr. Wall Jr., who has always played solo clarinet in every organization with which he has been associated, is now a soloist of the highest order—one whose acute sense of rhythm and delicacy of tone and phrasing are outstanding features and whose quiet calm and perfect composure are always in evidence. It is doubtful if his superior has ever been heard in Canada or the United States. Mr. Wall is also a member of the staff of the chemical laboratory of the Anglo-Canadian Leather Company.

It might be added that one of these days, Musical Canada will be called upon to hail Mr. Chas. A. Wall, who is fast following his brother's footsteps, as a musician.

INTERNAL DISORDERS

UPRISINGS REPORTED IN HAMBURG AND BERLIN—A COUNTER REVOLUTION EXPECTED.

PEACE TREATY

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, June 27.— With every preparation completed for the signing of the peace treaty at Versailles at three o'clock to-morrow afternoon, the Allied delegates to-day turned their attention to the internal situation in Germany. The Communist uprising in Berlin and Hamburg, together with the reported escape of the former Crown Prince from Holland into Germany, were regarded as possibly significant in view of the last ditch fight made by the German government against unconditional acceptance of the terms. Germany, it was believed in some quarters, is on the verge of a counter revolution, and possibly two. While the present Government's attention is directed toward the radical revolts in Berlin and Hamburg, it was thought the Royalists in the eastern territories might seize the opportunity to attempt a restoration of the Empire. The success of either possible movement was doubted here, but it was admitted that further internal disorder in Germany at this time would prove embarrassing to the Allies. What part the former Crown Prince might play in a Royalist counter revolution was the basis for considerable speculation.

Very Unpopular.

Although known to be unpopular even with the majority of the militarists, it was pointed out that he, as the HohenzoBern heir, is the most eligible candidate for the throne in the event of an attempt being made to restore the empire. The new German delegation which will sign the treaty was en route to Versailles from [illegible]. A change in the personnel was necessitated at the last moment, through withdrawal of Herr Giesbert and Herr Leinert. As now constituted, it consists of Foreign Minister Mueller and Colonial Minister Bell, accompanied by a small staff of assistants. These two officials were scheduled to arrive here at seven o'clock to-morrow morning. The ceremony beginning in the palace at Versailles eight hours later.

News Alarming.

(Canadian Press.)

BERNE, June 27.—The general situation in Germany is becoming steadily more serious, according to latest despatches. The railroad strike, it is reported, is about to extend throughout the whole country. The Spartacans do not conceal their belief that their hour has come. In view of transportation strike and poor food supply, some reports state that a famine appears imminent. On the other hand it is said, a counter revolution seems to be brewing in the east, and news from there is increasingly alarming.

BERNE, June 27.—A coutner revolutionary movement in Hungary, during which a monitor on the Danube was seized by anti-government forces, has been put down, according to advices to the Vienna correspondent's Bureau from Budapest.

DR. C. H. AMYS ON SMALLPOX SCARE

ADVISES VACCINATION FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN.

In reference to the supposed smallpox epidemic in the city, Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, said to-day: "Personally I do not think it is smallpox, but have given the citizens the benefit of the doubt, and have placarded the houses and quarantined the cases.

"Several of the local physicians say it is smallpox; and if it is, we are liable to have an epidemic this fall. As the school term is over, I would strongly advise all children who have not been vaccinated of late to be vaccinated at once, and thus possibly avoid considerable loss of time next term. They may go to their own physician for the same."

PHILIP YANNOFF KILLED BY A BULLET FIRED BY ONE OF FIVE ROBBERS

FORMER CROWN PRINCE IS STILL IN HOLLAND

(Canadian Press.)

THE HAGUE, June 27.—Frederick William Hohenzollern, thef ormer German Crown Prince, whose escape from Holland to Germany had been reported, was still at his residence on the Island of Wieringen in the Zuyder Zee this morning, it was officially announced here this afternoon.

NEWS CAME FROM OFFICIAL SOURCES

DUTCH GOVERNMENT ASKED TO INCREASE THE GUARD.

Canadian Press:

THE HAGUE, June 27.—Thursday's report of the escape of the former Crown Prince from his internment in Holland, it appears from available advices, came from British official sources in Paris. The accuracy of the news apparently was accepted without question in Peace Conference circles. As the hours passed without details of the reported happening, doubts began to arise that the advices were correct. It was even suggested by one of the Paris newspapers that the ex Crown Prince had been out on a lark within Dutch territorial limits, and that this had given rise to the reports that he had fled into Germany. Until fuller cable advices are received, however, the circumstances surrounding the origin of the report cannot be but a matter of speculation.

FURTHER DENIALS.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, June 27.—As the hours have passed without further denials of the escape from Holland of Frederick William Hohenzollern, some doubts have been created in Peace Conference circles as to the accuracy of the advices. Nevertheless the Council of Four, newspapers state, has decided to call the attention of the Dutch Government to the grave consequences which might follow should the former Crown Prince escape, and to ask that watch over the former Emperor be increased in vigilance.

WOMEN WON'T BUY IF PRICE LOWERED

ANOTHER SHOE DEALER GIVES VIEWS ON FEMININE PSYCHOLOGY.

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, June 27.—Ottawa boot and shoe retailers were examined by the Cost of Living Committee of the Commons yesterday afternoon. E. Letellier, Rideau Street, said that a shoe costing $5.75 a month ago cost now $6.50. He sold it for $9.50. He and his brother-in-law receive salaries of $2,400 each, and they had left a net profit of $2,619.

Witness said that on one line of shoes he paid the manufacturer $8.10, and sold for $12; on another line he bought for $6.75, and sold for $11.

Remarking that he kept a large staff for a small turnover, Mr. Pringle said Mr. Letellier was making an average of 60 per cent. on the shoes he bought.

Witness said he had to have this staff to attend to customers, or they would get away.

There was merriment when Mr. Pringle rejoined: "You don't want to let a man escape. I dont blame you if you can get 60 per cent. out of him."

After further cross-examining, the witness said he fixed prices to get about 50 per cent.

Mr. Pringle—You try out a customer with 50 per cent., and if he stands for that, it's all right; then you try him with 60 per cent., and if he stands for that, it's all right.

Then the examination turned to expensive ladies' boots. The most expensive sold at $18, and these, the witness said, cost him $12.65.

Asked as to why the high profits: "When a woman wants something, and we have it, she's willing to pay the price."

Questioned as to what would happen if the price was knocked down, he replied that if he had an $18 shoe, and marked it down to $9, the women wouldn't buy it at all.

CORONER'S JURY INVESTIGATE THE DEATH OF MAN WHO MET DEATH ON SUNDAY LAST.

THE EVIDENCE

"We find that Philip Yannoff came to his death from a bullet fired by one of five men who robbed the bunk-house of the Ontario Rock Company, three miles east of Havelock, between three and four o'clock Sunday morning."

HAVELOCK, June 27.—At the continuation of the inquest held here last night in the Armstrong Hotel to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of Philip Yannoff, only one witness, Charles Johnston, was called, who proved, to the satisfaction of Coroner Dr. Holdcroft and the jury, that the man found dead in the bunk-house was the same man who was lying in Curtis' Undertaking Parlours.

It took the jury only a short time to bring in a verdict.

Yesterday afternoon the inquest to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of Philip Yannoff, an Austrian alleged to have been murdered last Sunday at the camp of the Ontario Rock Company three miles east of Havelock, came to an abrupt conclusion when no witnesses could be found who could identify the body which was in Curtis's undertaking parlours on Sunday as the same one as found in the bunk house at the quarry early Sunday morning. Dr. Holdcroft, of Havelock, the coroner, was the only person present who could identify the body, but as he had charge of the inquest he could not give evidence [illegible] of necessity the inquest was adjourned until last evening at Havelock where Mr. Curtis, the undertaker, who transported the body from the quarry to his undertaking establishment, and Mr. Steve Bradley, superintendent of the camp, will be present and identify the body.

The Jury.

Crown Attorney Hatton and Mr. G. N. Gordon were present and examined the witnesses called up.

Dr. A. S. Thompson, of Havelock, the first witness called, conducted a post-mortem on the body of Philip Yannof, assisted by Dr. S. B. Ford, of Norwood, and he had no hesitation in saying that the direct cause of death was an internal hemorrhage, due to a bullet wound in the right lung. They

TO CELEBRATE PEACE.

The suggestion that in the event of the peace terms being signed on Saturday, that Monday be declared a public holiday by His Worship Mayor Duncan, has met with a great measure of approval from the citizens. It is true that there are some individuals who do not consider a holiday a necessary factor in the celebration of peace, no matter when the treaty may be signed, but they are strongly in the minority, for most people believe that the successful termination of the greatest war in the world's history is worthy of an unusual celebration. Tuesday is, of course, Dominion Day, and a legal holiday, and if Monday were to be declared a holiday to celebrate peace, it would provide the citizens with an opportunity of properly observing the occasion.

A number of business men have spoken to the Examiner, strongly endorsing the proposal of a Monday holiday, but they reasonably point out that sufficient notice should be given them in order that they can make the necessary arrangements. An official statement from the City Hall as to the programme in the event of the signing of the treaty tomorrow would help to relieve the situation.

THE NEW TRIBUNAL.

The Cost of Living committee of the House of Commons must be given credit for transacting its business with much greater celerity than the usual Parliamentary committee, and for its apparent desire to get at the conditions which are causing the present high cost of food stuffs. The appointment of the committee some weeks ago was regarded merely as a subterfuge on the part of the government, an attempt to divert the attention of the people, and while this may have been the intention of the government, the committee has taken hold of its important task in a manner that indicates that no matter what the Administration desires, it is determined to do all it can to solve the problem. The committee has already made an interim report to Parliament urging that a tribunal be appointed at once, empowered with authority to investigate mergers, trusts and monopolies. This tribunal, it is presumed, is to be a permanent one, on lines similar to the Board of Railway Commissioners, and its powers, if its work is to be effective, should be wide. A tribunal of this kind, dealing with the most vital question of the cost of living, must be given a free hand and furthermore must be composed of capable men, big enough in business ability and training to grapple with the problem in an intelligent and effective manner. If it is to be made only a soft position for some of the government's faithful workers, men who are abler more for their unswerving adherence to the government than for their zeal on behalf of the people, then it would be much better if no tribunal were appointed.

A Board given scope enough, and composed of the right calibre of men, is no doubt what the Cost of Living committee has in mind; nothing else will serve the purpose.

THE LIBERAL PLATFORM.

The platform enunciated at the Ontario Liberal convention as embodied in the various resolutions that were passed, is composed of a number of policies that should be enthusiastically supported, not only by the Liberals of the province, but by those citizens who had begun to think that the old parties were not equal to the task of keeping step with the march of progress.

Especially should the labour interests find in the Liberal programme a remedy for some of the conditions which needed to be remedied at the present time. The convention supported the principle of the eight hour day in industrial concerns, the recognition of collective bargaining, insurance against unemployment and sickness, better working conditions and a more effective system of inspection and the establishment of pensions for mothers. These proposals were not vague or visionary, but were definite and to the point. Unequivocal resolutions endorsing the principles of public ownership, better provisions for settling returned soldiers on the land, more generous pensoins and a more effective system of vocational training, were other features of the convention.

The delegates unhesitatingly voted for the abolition of the patronage system in the purchase of supplies and in the civil service, and for the establishment of a system of rural long-term credits at cheap rates.

There was a spirit of advancement and progress in the tone of the resolutions that indicate that the Liberals of Ontario are awake to the fact that the end of the war has opened a new era in Canadian life.

THE NEW LIBERAL LEADER

The people of Peterboro County should be particularly interested in the election of Mr. Herbert Hartley Dewart K.C., M.P.P. as the leader of the Ontario Liberal party. The man upon whose shoulders the mantel of leadership was put by the convention yesterday is the son of the Rev. Edward Hartley Dewart, who in his early years was a resident of Peterboro county, his family settling near Warsaw on their arrival in Canada from Ireland. The new Liberal leader in Ontario has been interested in political activities for many years, his ability as a public speaker making him a valuable asset to the Liberal organization and he has spoken at political meetings on many a platform throughout the province. He has been a member of the Provincial Legislature since 1916 when he achieved the notable feat of defeating a Conservative in a Toronto riding winning Southwest Toronto from Mr. James Norris and converting a Conservative majority of some 4000 into a Liberal majority of over 600. Mr. Dewart has been one of the leading figures in the Legislature since his election. He has been a thorn in the flesh of the Government, his vigorous speeches especially on the nickle question being especially noteworthy. He has the necessary qualifications of leadership in as much as he combines eloquence and debating power with a geniality that enables him to make friends easily.

Lamp burners should be washed frequently to remove dust and carbon that choke the perforations. Occasionally they should be boiled in a washing soda solution.

BREAD, "DOUGH" AND DIVIDENDS.

Judging from the testimony before the Cost of Living Committee, the Maple Leaf Milling Company, the Ogilvie Milling Company, and the Lake of the Woods Company not only made flour but they also made "dough"—all kinds of it. In the case of the Ogilvie Company, for example, their profits last year ran up to 72 per cent. on the common stock, equalling the record of the illustrious Paton Cloth Manufacturing concern of Sherbrooke, Que., which worked not for "the glory of God," but for the shareholders; the Maple Leaf Company was able last year to pay 22 per cent. dividends to its almost destitute stockholders and still have left the comfortable little surplus of two million dollars; while the Lake of the Woods Company showed in 1918 gross earnings of over 25 per cent on its capitalization — much to the disappointment, we have no doubt, of its shareholders who had hoped for better things from the poor people who were buying the mills' products.

Of course this isn't profiteering; not at all! It's just "easy money" contributed by the people of Canada who felt that in war time it was incumbent upon them—a pleasant duty as well as a privilege—to help the poor millers out and to see that the price of bread didn't come down. It would never do to have bread prices lowered while the price of meat and other such necessaries were away up! Dear no!

And so the people—the real grist in the millers' wheels—gladly—so gladly!—went down into their jeans, to the end that they might not be accused of the selfish desire of wanting cheaper bread; to the end, also, that the poor struggling flour mill men might not be deprived of their 22 or 27 per cent. dividends. Better no bread at all than no dividends!

Which all goes to show what a wonderfully fine thing this war has been—fine, that is, in the uplifting influence it has had upon the minds and the morals of many of our largest capitalists and corporations, who, in the true spirit of brotherly love, instead of refusing to let the poor people have any bread or clothes at all rose nobly to the occasion and provided all these necessaries of life to a grateful people for a mere song, showing only 72 per cent. profits and the like.

These millers and cloth manufacturers—these and others yet to be heard from—have put the country under a lasting debt of gratitude to them. How we can ever repay them, The Standard fails to see—unless we decide to let them double their dividnds without further ado.

Certainly these men have got something coming to them for their glorious self-denial, their amazing public-spiritedness and their astonishing loyalty! What that "something" will be we shall see in due time.—Kingston Standard.

"BILL" CROWLEY IS ENTERTAINED

FORMER WELL-KNOWN PETERBORO ATHLETE IS GUEST OF HONOUR AT ENJOYABLE BANQUET.

A most enjoyable event was held at the Empress Hotel last night, when Mr. Chris. G. Graham entertained a number of friends at a delightful banquet in honour of Sergt.-Major "Bill" Crowley, one of the most popular athletes who ever wore the uniform of a Peterborough club. Sergt.-Major Crowley, who is home after four years' service with the Canadian Engineers in France, is visiting in the city on his way to his home in the West, and advantage was taken of his presence here to hold last evening's re-union. Mr. Graham presided, and around the daintily appointed table were Sergt.-Major Crowley, Lieut. Alex. Gillespoe, another well-known Peterborough athlete, just home from overseas; Fred. Davidson, of Calgary, a former well-known local ball player and bicycle rider; R. M. Glover, E. J. Dillon, Eugene Hurtubise, Roland Denne, Ed. Disautel, Reg. H. Turner, W. J. Grady, Geo. Lynch, Harry Lacheur, Will Menzies, Charlie Westbrook, and F. D. Craig.

After justice had been done to a most appetizing repast, the toast to the King was heartily honoured, and then Messrs. Graham and Glover proposed the health of Sergt.-Major Crowley, referring to his great ability as a hockey, baseball, lacrosse and Rugby player for Peterborough, his splendid work overseas, and the pleasure that all his friends felt in having him home safe and sound.

The toast was marked by the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and three cheers for the guest of the evening, who was at this stage presented with a very handsome signet ring, inscribed with the insignia of the Knights of Columbus, of which Sergt.-Major Crowley is a member.

In reply, Sergt.-Major Crowley said that he always had a warm spot in his heart for Peterborough and for his Peterborough friends. He gave some interesting reminiscences of his experiences in France, and told how well the Canadians had deserved the recognition they won in France.

Speeches were made by the majority of those present, and stories and reminiscences of the old days made a couple of hours slip by unnoticed. It was a most successful evening, and Mr. Graham's hospitality was thoroughly appreciated.

WILL RETURN TO WORK.

(Canadian Press.)

VANCOUVER, June 27. — Independent of whatever action may be taken at a mass meeting of strikers, the sheet metal workers will return to work at noon, according to a vote taken at a late hour last night.

PHILIP YANNOFF KILLED BY A BULLET, ETC.

were not successful in locating the bullet until Tuesday afternoon when, at Nicholls Hospital, in Peterborough an an X-ray examination conducted by Dr. A. Moir, of this city, revealed the bullet in the lung. The bullet was extracted by Dr. Thompson and shown to the jury. Dr. Thompson unfolded a diagram showing the course that the bullet took. It went in at the right of Yannoff's neck and went down the vertabrae and through the top of the right lung, breaking the sixth and seventh rib in its course. It finally lodged in the lung, where it was recovered. An internal examination showed that all the organs of the deceased were normal and healthy.

Dr. Ford corroborated his evidence in every detail.

The foreman of the carpentry work at the quarry, hearing of the affray, went to the bunk house where Yannoff was lying on his bunk and was just expiring. His lips moved for a few seconds.

Principal Witness.

The principal witness was Peter Caranoff, a Macedonian, who talked very little English, but could not understand Mr. A. Low, who was present to act as interpreter. He said that he was a Christian, but did not know what the Bible was when it was presented to him to take the oath. He stated that he would tell no lies and his evidence was taken. He has lived in Canada for the last five years and has worked for the Ontario Rock Company a number of times, the last time for only three weeks. He knew Yanoff well and they were personal friends, and in Macedonia the Yannoff farm was only 15 minutes' walk from his own homestead. After a few incoherent phrases he managed to make the coroner understand that he was one of the men who slept in the bunk house the night that Yannoff was killed. The shot awoke everybody, and the robbers, with handkerchiefs covering the lower part of their faces and their caps well pulled down, pressed their guns against the men's chests and ordered them to hold up their hands. Caranoff was quite certain that each of the men held a revolver. He was not present when the body was at the undertakers and therefore could not identify it as the one and same body. The inquest then decided to adjourn until this evening.

HAVE FAILED TO GET BACK JOBS

OTTAWA, June 27. — A general strike has been declared in Brandon, Manitoba, to enforce the reinstatement of the men who lost their positions as a result of the recent walkout, according to a despatch received here to-day.

In Winnipeg, advices said, many police and postal workers who joined the recent strike have failed to get back their jobs.

PROTEST AGAINST INTERVENTION IN BOLSHEVIK RUSSIA

LABOUR WILL STAGE A DEMONSTRATION SOMETIME IN JULY.

(Canadian Press.)

SOUTH PORT, Eng., June 27. — British, French and Italian labour representatives have decided to make a general demonstration on July 20 or or 21 to protest against Allied intervention in Russia. This announcement was made by Arthur Henderson, British labour leader ,at a labour conference here to-day.

Mr. Henderson explained that the demonstration would be an attempt to prevent the governments of Europe from adopting reactionary police throughout the continent. It would be left to each country, he added, to decide whether the demonstration would take the form of political or industrial action. Resolutions would be passed protesting against any intervention in Russia and demanding the abandonment of conscription.

GARDEN PARTY AT CONSERVATORY

Three Hundred Pupils Took Part in Affair.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Gibbon and the teaching staff of the Conservatory of Music, entertained over all the 300 pupils of the Conservatory, and a large representation of their friends and relatives. It was originally the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Gibbon to have the affair on the grounds around the building, which are looking their best, with the profusion of rose bushes in bloom, gay decorations and flags of the nations, but the inclement weather which intervened, forbade the carrying out of this plan, and an agreeable substitute was found in the splendid hall where a charming programme was presented. Those taking part in this where Miss Florence Hall, Miss Helen MacLaren, and Miss Freyche, each of whom contributed much enjoyed solos.

Some of Miss Littlefield's pupils who gave the "Sunbeam dance," contributed to the enjoyment of the evening. In addition to this the Conservatory orchestra rendered several selections. Dainty refreshments were served at the conclusion of the programme.

COMPLETED THEIR EXAMS YESTERDAY

The sixteen candidates who wrote this week on the Civil Service Examinations completed their exams. yesterday, and Mr. Dela Fosse, who supervised the work sent the papers today to the department. Two members of the post office staff wrote in compliance with the present day regulations, which stipulate that everybody connected with the post office, except the men who deliver the rural routes, have to pass an examination, showing that they were at least qualified as letter sorters.

EMMY WEHLEN APPEARS IN CLEVER METRO PLAY

As is usually the case when Emmy Wehlen, the charming Metro star, appears at the Grand Theatre there was a large, appreciative audience to welcome this popular actress in her latest production, 'Sylvia on a Spree' which opened yesterday and which will remain at the Grand theatre for a three day engagement.

Delightful and dainty as her acting always is, Miss Wehlen has excelled in this her latest production, which brings into play her winsome charm and personal magnetism which has endeared her to so many thousands of theatre goers.

The story is that of a young girl brought up in luxury and sheltered ease, watched over and protected on all sides, but who discovers, when she at last makes her debut into society, that she has missed much of the fun and excitement which other girls, possessing less wealth, are accustomed to. She decides to remedy this and includes in her many plans the bright life of Broadway, the crowded restaurants, cabarets, after-theatre suppers and all the other gaities which she considers go to make up the sum and substance of the word "life."

The plot is original and the happy outcome of this somewhat risky scheme is cleverly carried out in the play which was directed by Harry L. Franklyn. The cast consists of names known to all who are familiar with the celebrities of the stage and screen and include such players as W. J. Percival, Frank Currier Eugene Acker, Peggy Parr, Isabel D'Madigan, Francesca Ward, Rose Wood, Bliss Milford, Bert Tuey, Joseph Sweeny and Alice Turner.

FAST HAMILTON TEAM PLAYS HERE TO-MORROW

As there will be no Central Ontario League game to-morrow, the Matthews-Blackwell team will be at full strength for their game at Riverside Park with the Westinghouse team of Hamilton, and the game between the two teams, who are leading their respective city leagues, should be a hard-fought struggle. The Westinghouse team must be a strong aggregation to be on top of the Hamilton League, which has always played good ball, and the fans will have a good chance to size up the brand of ball played in the two leagues. Frost and Swanston will be Packers' battery, and the home team will have the strongest line up of the season out. The game is called for 2.45 o'clock, and should be a rattling good exhibition.

OFFICIALS NAMED FOR THE BIG FIGHT

(Special to The Examiner.)

TOLEDO, June 27.—Ollie Pecord was named to-day to referee the Willard-Dempsey championship battle on July 4. Pecord will be assisted by Major A. J. Drexell-Biddle, of Philadelphia, and Tex Rickard, who will act as judges. Pecord and his associates were named by the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control. Rickard announced their appointment this morning on receipt of a telegram from the Board headquarters in New York. Jack Reilly, Yonkers, N.Y., was named as an alternate referee, W. Warren Barbour New York, will be timekeeper.

GAME TO-MORROW AT COBOURG POSTPONED

The Central Ontario League game scheduled to take place at Cobourg to-morrow between Cobourg and Peterborough has been postponed owing to the Cobourg grounds being not available, and the Petes will journey to the Lake-shore town later in the season, probably about the middle of next month.

The next game in the Central League series is on Tuesday next, Dominion Day, when the Oshawa team, who are right on the heels of the Petes in the Central race, will be here. The game is called for 10.30 o'clock on the holiday morning, to suit the convenience of the fans, and should be a great drawing card. A win for the Petes over Oshawa will give Peterborough the edge in the League race, and they will be out with the strongest line-up available for this all-important game. Patton, the twirler from across the border, will be on the firing line for Oshawa, and Kirn will do the honours for Peterborough. It looks like the big game for the season.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS CLOSED TO-DAY

FEW CHANGES IN THE TEACHING STAFF FOR COMING YEAR.

The Collegiate Institute and public schools of the city closed for the summer vacation this morning, the Normal last Friday.

On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of next week the annual entrance examinations will be held in the Collegiate Institute building. Mr. Mowat stated this morning that the number of candidates writing on the examinations is unusually large, and including those who will pass on recommendation will number approximately 250, or about twenty-five more than the number who tried last year.

The teaching staff will remain practically unchanged for the coming year.

BIG DOCKET IN POLICE COURT THIS MORNING

DOMINION POLICE IN A RUNNING MATCH—MOVING DAY FOR THE C.P.R.

A large number of charges were laid on Police Magistrate Dumble's desk this morning, and the afternoon was well advanced before the last case was disposed of.

The Dominion police in giving evidence stated that two brothers residing in Douro had given the Dominion constables the time of their life. Five or six excursions had been made to the family homestead for the boys, but only once was even a glimpse of one of them obtained. A man ran out of the barn into a ploughed field and two constables took after him. He was a fast runner and left the two officers away behind, who had much trouble in "navigatin'" in the gluey soil. Across the field the "Flying Dutchman" dropped his sweater coat, in which was found a grocer bill with the man's name on it. The father on being questioned, denied that it was his son, but the boys voluntarily surrendered this morning and one of them admitted that it was he who fled from the barn.

For the extra trouble given the Dominion Police the two brothers were each assessed $250 and costs, instead of the usual $250 and costs.

Two other defaulters, one from Otonabee and the other from Douro, were each fined $250 and costs.

Cars Broken Into.

It was moving day for the C.P.R. and Constable Bickford and Investigator Donnelly of the Railway Company, moved into town and arrested twenty boys residing on or near Chamberlen street, who moved into police court this morning. Each pleaded guilty of stealing grain from a grain car on the siding near Chamberlen street. The car was broken and the grain spread on the ground and the residents requisitioned the chicken feed for their fowl. Nobody moved until a fine of $1 and costs, with restitution to the railway company of the cost of the grain, when all moved downstairs to the sergeant's desk to pay fines ranging from $7.50 to $17.90.

Constable Bickford, not content with arresting twenty men, made a bag of nine encroachers on the C.P.R. tracks last Friday. They each paid $9 and $9.10 costs.

Malcolm Vincent, a chauffeur for Mr. Benny Dunsford, looked lonely in police court this morning, as he was the only citizen charged with a breach of the Motor Vehicles Act. He drove across Charlotte street on George street Wednesday at an excessive speed. A policeman's vigilant eye cost Mr. Vincent $8.10.

It is better to cook carrots whole and then skin them.

GARDEN PARTY WAS A SUCCESS

Inclement Weather Did Not Keep the Crowd Away.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather the garden party given yesterday by the Women's Guild of St. Luke's Church on the grounds of Mr Alex. Fitzgerald's home was well attended, and over $80 was realised. The prettily decorated lawns, with their bright lights strung about the trees formed an attractive background for the tents and booths in which the refreshments were served and fancy goods sold. During the evening Moher and Fitzgerald's orchestra provided a practically continuous programme of excellent music, augmented by a solo by Miss Mildred Greene, accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Dawson. During the showers which interrupted the afternoon proceedings, the guests were made at home on the verandahs surrounding Mr. Fitzgerald's home

TRINITY SCHOOL SPEECH DAY HELD

PORT HOPE, June 27.—The annual Speech Day was held yesterday at Trinity College School. The day began with celebration of the Holy Communion at 11.30. The annual Speech Day service was held in the School Chapel, the special preacher being Right Rev. C. H. Brent, D.D., Bishop of Western New York, and Senior Chaplain to the United States Expeditionary Forces.

The service was fully choral, and the music was beautifully sung by the chool choir. The Bishop preached a most impressive sermon on "The Cloud of Witnesses," elaborating the thought that those old boys who had sacrificed their lives on the war front form a cloud of witnesses that compass us about and urge us to lay aside every weight and run with patience the race that is set before us.

After luncheon, the prizes were distributed in the gymnasium by Major-General Sir A. C. Macdonnell, K.C., C.M.G., D.S.O. The Bishop of Toronto occupied the chair. Rev. Dr. Bethune, for thirty years headmaster and Rev Canon Rigby for ten years headmaster, and Bishop Brent, were on the platform.

FORMER RESIDENT OF PETERBORO FATALLY INJURED

TORONTO, June 27.—Mr. Alexander Bertram, aged 77 years, 106 Hazleton avenue died in Grace Hospital from injuries which he had received on College street near Spadina avenue. Mr. Bertram, it was stated by the driver of the automobile, J. C. Weiderhold, 50 Wroxeter street, stepped from the street in front of the automobile, and was thrown to the pavement, sustaining head injuries. He was taken to Grace Hospital, where his injuries did not appear to be serious when he was admitted. He sank rapidly and died within two hours.

Driver's Story of Fatality.

The young man, Mr. Weiderhold, gave this version of the accident at the hospital when he brought Mr. Bertram to the institution. He filed his report with the police, who had not established the full facts regarding the accident late last night through difficulty in securing the witnesses. They were not able to learn if Mr. Bertram had not been struck by the automobile as he was walking across the street.

"According to Weiderhold, Mr. Bertram was walking north on Yonge street, with an umbrella over his head, and was struck by the automobile as he stepped from the curb. The automobile was turning into College street from Yonge street," said the desk Sergeant at Agnes street station.

Mr. Bertram is an uncle of the Collector of Customs, Mr. J. H. Bertram, and a brother of the late Geo. H. Bertram, M.P. Mr. Bertram was a manufacturers' agent and active for his years.

The deceased was a former resident of Peterborough and was widely known in the city.

WHEEL CAME OFF.

A Sad Little Tragedy on George Street

Something was amiss, but ex-Constable Graham Bromley, attracted by something walking on the sidewalk, did not notice the slight halt of his new truck until crash, one of the back wheels came off and rolled towards Grafton's store. The axle hit the pavement with a thud, and sundry iron beds, dressers and kitchen chairs had a narrow escape from falling out. Mr. Bromley reluctantly withdrew his gaze from the sidewalk to find out what had occurred. The car was a new one, and the car had left the garage without a nut on one of the back wheels. Mr. Bromley carefully explained that it was not the dazzling new paint on the car which diverted his gaze from the steering wheel.

WEDDING BELLS

McCORMICK—STARR.

TORONTO, June 25.—Old St. Andrew's church, Toronto, decorated with June's loveliest flowers and greenery, was the scene this afternoon of the marriage of Jessie Moffatt, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Starr and Mr. Russell Norman McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McCormick, Ottawa. Rev. Alex. MacMillan, D.D., performed the ceremony, and Mr. John Allan was at the organ. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Charles Starr, wore a lovely robe of ivory crepe de chine with Chantilly lace and pearls and tulle veil and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white roses, showered with sweetheart roses. Her gift from the groom was a diamond ring. Mrs. Gordon Lovell, her matron of honor, was in pink tulle with black picture hat and nosegay of Lady Russell roses. Miss Mary Elizabeth Starr, her other attendant, was in white net with pink sweet peas. Dr. A. Mowat McCormick was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Norman Keye and Mr. Elmer Bryan. At the conclusion of the ceremony, Mr. C. Douglas Carlisle of Peterborough, sang "Until." Afterwards Miss Moffat, the bride's aunt, who was wearing grey charmeuse with black hat, held a reception. CLOSING CHAPTER IN GREAT WORLD WAR

ENDORSES CANDIDATE

MR. JOSEPH WEARING'S REPORT OF THE ONTARIO LIBERAL CONVENTION.

LOCAL OPINION

Mr. Joseph Wearing, who attended the Ontario Liberal convention, has the following to say regarding the meeting:

The meetings were held in the Foresters' Hall on College street and were very largely attended by delegates from every part of the province. This was the first time in the history of the province that women were given equal rights with men at a political convention and they took full advantage of it. As far as one could judge there were about as man ladies present as men and they took quite as active a part in all proceedings. The presence of the ladies and the general behaviour of the delegates gave the impression of some kind of a religious rather than a political convention. Looking down from the platform the audience appeared to be as representative as one could imagine; one saw well dressed men and women, with keen, intelligent faces and it would be difficult to separate the city delegates from those of the rural districts.

Time and again the delegates made it know that they were bent on business. Long winded speakers were given plain hints to "cut it short" and every point decided upon by the chairman was approved or disapproved by the voice of the audience. With the exception of some who were forced to leave to catch a train, every delegate remained until the close of the final meeting at half past three Thursday without lunch although many had eaten of a very early breakfast.

The Chairman.

The chairman, Mr. Charles M. Bow- ... M.P.P. ... acted as official chairman and had the open respect of the convention. For over twenty years he has been one of the most active Liberals in the Legislature and is known as a right good fellow. Several times during the convention proceedings he found himself in a mighty ticklish position, but each time his tact and fairness saved the situation and eliminated discord.

Perhaps the most striking feature of the convention was the constant display of real live, up-to-date Liberalism. Every speech and resolution thrilled it and the delegates were by no means behind the leaders in voicing the strong progressive Liberal sentiment which was the vital factor of the convention. The platform laid down for the party was such as to appeal to everyone who believes in advancement and better conditions. Never before in the history of this province has the old party publicly pledged itself to a programme that shows such progressive Liberalism. It was easily seen, too, that the programme had the solid support of the convention.

The Candidates.

The real candidates for the leadership of the party were Wm. Proudfood, K.C., Huron Centre, one of the veterans of the Legislature, and temporary leader since the retirement of N. W. Rowell; H. H. Dewart, K.C., South-west Toronto, who is as famous as a lawyer as he is a politician; Major J. C. Tolmie, Windsor, who until his election, was a Presbyterian preacher, and who since his election, has been for the most part a soldier, and J. C. Elliott, of West Middlesex, one of the younger men of the House, who is both a lawyer and a farmer. Mr. Proudfoot killed his chances by a speech in which he gave the impression of defending the present Union government. The fight narrowed down to Dewart and Tolmie, with the odds in favour of Dewart, because of the presence of every Toronto delegate, and also because the supporters of Dewart had taken the trouble of procuring for the Toronto men the votes of some distant delegates who were unable to attend. A convention held in London would have put Tolmie in.

The Present Leader.

The present leader, Hartley Dewart, K.C., is well known as one of the shrewdest and most brilliant lawyers in the province and a most able politician. In capturing South-west Toronto for the Liberal party he immediately stepped right into the political limelight, and his energy and ability have kept him there ever since. There can be no doubt that his election was due to the demand for capable, energetic leadership. It has been said that he is rather luke-warm with regard to the cause of temperance, but he made it very plain that he stood squarely upon the resolution carried by the convention, which declared that the Liberal party "affirm its attitude in favour of progressive temperance legislation to the fullest extent of provincial jurisdiction." Mr. Dewart is a lawyer who is used to looking

IT IS CLAIMED THAT EMPLOYERS ARE HAND-PICKING THE MEN—TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT LEFT ON THE OUTSIDE LOOKING IN.

SEVERAL DISTURBANCES

(By J. J. Conklin.)

WINNIPEG, June 28.— Winnipeg faces the possibility of another large strike. Labour leaders declare that "if indications of wholesale discrimination by employees against the reinstatement of striking workers continued, the matter of going out again would be laid before the various unions. The movement for a resumption of the old strike or the beginning of a new one is led by strikers whose places have been filled and who have been refused jobs when reporting back for work after six weeks' idleness. "We cannot stand for 75 per cent. of our men being taken back and the other 25 per cent. being left out," said J. L. McBride, treasurer of the Trades and Labour Council. McBride said that evidence of widespread discrimination among employers was coming into labour headquarters, although the problem of reinstatement was being handled by individual unions and no official reports to the central body had been made.

"We have no objection to the discharge of men on legitimate grounds," said McBride, "but we can't allow men to be held off their jobs just because they were prominent in the affairs of their unions or active in the strike, and if men come out again it won't be on a sympathetic strike, either." The Strike committee retains its organization, but it is not known whether it maintains authority to call the men off their jobs without a new vote.

May Form Committee.

Various unions are handling all the matters connected with reinstatement, according to McBride and no general committee for the purpose has been appointed. It was rumoured about the Labour Temple that a committee might be organized if the reinstatement tangle is not hurriedly unknotted. There seemed to be a feeling closely akin to indignation at the action taken by the Strike committee. There could be no mistaking the temper of the tense groups as they met and eagerly discussed the situation around the Labour Temple to-day. The feeling everywhere was that they would not yield. A sample of this is the vote of the C.P.R. storemen who voted 98 to 5 to stick. Federal railway trades are reported to be still solid to remain on strike. Metal trades are reported to be still solid to remain on strike, and the metal trades refuse to return to work. The Building Trades Council has recommended that each union concern deal directly with employers, but carpenters and others by a vote rejected this proposition and have issued a call for a mass meeting of all unions of the Council to reverse their decision. Principally among the strikers now unemployed are railway firemen and switchmen, certain civic employees, policemen, firemen, electrical workers and telephone workers.

Nothing Official.

Although no official statement was made by the iron masters to-day, it was declared that negotiations have not been resumed, contract shop managers maintaining that their joint statement on collective bargaining, recently published, was the final word. Only 160 men have returned to the C.P.R. Weston shops, the remainder numbering over 1,500, desire to assure themselves that they will be re-installed in a body and not individually. Picketing still is in force around the works and attempts were made all day to influence workmen desiring to return to alter their decisions. These pickets became menacing, but dispersed on the arrival of a party of police. An effort will be made to open up the C.P.R. shops at Weston today. This district is the hotbed of strike sympathizers. The majority of residents are English and even women made it dangerous for anyone to make deliveries to homes there during the strike. Serious trouble is expected and many special police are being sent there to protect men who go back to-morrow. Thirty-one former constables and four detectives were refused re-instatement by the Police Commission at a special session yesterday afternoon. The men were "blacklisted" by Chief Newton because of their radical tendencies and activity in conjunction with the sympathetic strike.

Alderman J. K. Sparling, chairman of the Commission announced: "More than 700 civic employees, covering every branch of municipal service, have been re-installed since the strike was called off. All of these men have signed the agreement demanded by the Council."

TOWNS ARE PLACED OUT OF BOUNDS.

LLOYD GEORGE FOR WASHINGTON?

MAY RELINQUISH HIS PRESENT PRESENT PRECARIOUS POSITION.

(Special to Examiner.)

LONDON, June 28. — The London Daily News seriously professes to have made the discovery of a widespread belief in political circles that Lloyd Geroge will himself undertake the duties of British ambassador to Washington. Reports of his intended visit to America have more in them than meet the eye. In lobby and the public press there are signs of the disintegration of the coalition and it is pointed out that Lloyd George has not had a taste of diplomatic life and may think he would be more usefully employed in Washington than as the precarious head of a divided and unpopular administration.

MEMBER ARRESTED

FRED. J. DIXON, A WINNIPEG STRIKE LEADER, GAVE HIMSELF UP.

WINNIPEG, June 28. — Fred J. Dixon, one of the members of the Legislature, sitting with Hon. Thos. Johnson, for Centre Winnipeg, walked into the police station last night, and gave himself up. A warrant was issued for his arrest on Thursday. The charge is sedition. He is the tenth strike leader to be arrested. Dixon was taken to the jail and no bail was allowed.

The Metal Trades at a mass meeting last night decided not to return to work, so it seems the collective bargaining that they secured is somewhat of a myth.

The Secretary of the Builders' exchange states that while the men have not yet decided to go back that every indication points to the return of all the trades on July 2nd.

AT THE GRAND MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY

The patrons of the Grand Opera House will be delighted to hear that the management have arranged to present on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Mabel Normand in her new big picture, "Pecks Bad Girl." Miss Normand will be remembered by all who saw her just a few weeks ago in her big success, "Mickey." Critics claim that Peck's Bad Girl, her new picture, is a worthy rival of "Mickey."

As an added feature

VIOLA DANA PLAYS PARIS GRISETTE

Metro Star to be Seen in "The Parisian Tigress" at Grand Theatre.

Viola Dana, the versatile and winsome Metro star, will be seen in a role of power and attraction in "The [illegible]."

The [illegible] character of Jeanne, a child of the gutter, who is compelled by a young Apache to dance for his gains in the cafes of the Parisian Latin Quarter. From this life of the slums she is suddenly transplanted to the luxurious and fastidious home of titled aristocrats, where she rightly belongs by birth. A romance of rare charm is added to the many adventures which go to make this play one of unusual value and entertainment.

The clever cast supporting Miss Dana are Darrell Foss, Henry Kolker, Edward Connelly, Clarissa Selwynne, Louis D'Arclay, Paul Weigel, Mitzi Goodstadt and Maree Beaudet. Herbert Blanche directed the play and the production was made under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, director general.

It is the intention of the management of the Grand during the months of July and August to offer a special motion picture programme every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and every Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a complete change. Twice each week, Monday and Thursday. Two double features will be seen at evening performance, and a special comedy and travelogue. 16 reels of the very best in pictures.

MUSIC IN THE SUMMER HOME

A Victrola is perhaps the most complete of all instruments for the summer home. You can get one at almost any price from "Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Ltd., George and Hunter streets, Peterboro, and anything you want in Records. Here are a few: "Silver Threads Among the Gold," Matrimonial Difficulties" and "Evening Chimes."

THE WEATHER

There is a decided difference between the weather prevailing now, when June is nearing an end, with that prevailing when the month was ushered in. This Saturday morning the temperature was down to 41 degrees, and it is quite possible that white frost may have been noticed in some low-lying sections. It is not likely that any harm would be done, there being considerable breeze blowing. The past week had no such high figures as have heretofore occurred this month. 88 degrees being the highest. The rainfall has been considerable, however, over one inch falling on one day alone.—W. P.

HUN DELEGATES ATTACH SIGNATURES TO DECLARATION OF A WORLD PEA

A NEW CHAPTER WAS WRITTEN INTO HISTORY IN THE FAMOUS HA... VERSAILLES—PEACE TREATY WAS SIGNED BY THE GERMANS A... 3.12 P.M., PARIS TIME AND WERE FOLLOWED BY THE ALLIED DELEGATES.

"I NOW INVITE YOU TO SIGN," SAID PREMIER CLEMENCEAU TO THE GERM...

United Press 10.45 a.m.

Versailles, June 28---The peace treat... has been signed. The German delega... placed their signatures on the document ... 3.12 p.m. to-day. President Wilson sign... two minutes later and was followed ... Premier Lloyd George who signed at 3. ... The German delegates arrived at the pal... at 3.08 and the meeting was commen... one minute later.

(United Press.)

VERSAILLES, June 28.—Foreign Minister Mueller was the first to sign for Germany, and Colonial Minister Bell signed immediately after Mueller.

Premier Clemenceau, opening the ceremony, assured the Germans that the Treaty text was the same as previously furnished them, and said: "I now invite you to sign."

The British Colonial representatives signed immediately after the British delegation. General Smuts, of South Africa, signed under protest, issuing a long statement explaining his objections to the Treaty. Clemenceau signed at 3.23. The Chinese delegates refused to sign. The Japanese signed sixth at 3.30.

The signing was by delegations in the following order: Germans, Americans, British (including Colonials), French, Italians, Japanese, and the smaller nations.

The Chinese delegates were not present. They were reported to have sent to Pekin for instructions.

"The conditions of Peace are now an accomplished fact. The proceedings are closed," Premier Clemenceau said.

VERSAILLES, June 28.—Foreign Minister Mueller and Colonial Minister Bell, the German signatories of the Treaty, to-day made the following exclusive statement to the United Press:

"We are signing without mental reservation. What we are signing will be carried out. The German people will use every means to meet the terms. We believe the Entente will, in its own interest find it necessary to change some of the terms, or they will see that the Treaty is impossible of execution. We believe the Entente will not insist on the delivery of the Kaiser and other high officers. The Central Government will not assist in any attack on Poland. Germany will make every effort to prove herself worthy to enter the League of Nations."

GERMAN DELEGATION REMAINED IN BED UNTIL TEN O'CLOCK THIS MORNING.

(By Fred S. Ferguson, Unied Press.)

VERSAILLES, June 28.—The German delegation who will sign the Peace Treaty, arrived here at 3 o'clock this morning. It consisted of Foreign Minister Mueller and Colonial Minister Bell. They were accompanied by a small staff of secretaries.

An official of the French Foreign Office obtained the German delegates' credentials at 9 a.m., and took them to the Quai D'Orsay for examination. Dr. Hermann Mueller and Dr. Johannes Bell, the German signors, were still in bed at 10 a.m. Big crowds were in the streets at an early hour.

The programme was changed to-day so that the Germans could sign earlier than the original schedule. According to the new plan Clemenceau, Wilson, Lloyd-George, and the two Germans will sign the Treaty at the centre table in the order named. Then the Protocol of the Rhine Convention will be signed by the same delegates at their own seats. Next all documents will be taken to the centre table, where the other delegates will affix their signatures.

The Germans' credentials wer approved this morning. Dr. Mueller, of the German delegation, ordered a special train to be ready to start for Berlin at 9 p.m.

Every preparation had been completed for the ceremony to begin in the Palace at three o'clock this afternoon. It was expected to last at least three hours.

The Germans expressed fear hat the Treaty to be signed might contain variations from the original, it was learned to-day. Secretary Dutasta, of the Peace Conference, thereupon delivered to Secretary Von Haniel, of the German delgeation, a letter signed by Premier Clemenceau, guaranteeing that the copy signed to-day would not vary from the text handed to Count Brockdorff-Rantzau, the former head of the German Commission.

"THE SECOND PEACE OF VERSAILLES" WAS SIGN... IN THE LONG "HALL OF MIRRORS."

(Associated Press.)

VERSAILLES, June 28.—The credentials of Dr. Hermann Mueller and Dr. Joannes Bell, the German Plenipotentiaries who are here to sign the Treaty of Peace, were approved this morning.

The signature of "The Second Peace of Versailles" in the long "Hall of Mirrors," in the Chateau of France's great monarch, Louis XIV., to-day restores to Versailles its old place as the scene of all the glories of France, dimmed in more recent days by the memories of such excesses during the French Revolution, the military downfall of France in 1870, and the proclamation of the German Empire in the same hall.

The ceremony was set for three o'clock in the afternoon, but hours before that time an uninterrupted stream of automobiles began moving up the cannon-lined hill of the Champs Elysees, past the Arch of Triumph, and out through the shady Bois de Boulogne and the Paris [illegible] Gate, carrying plenipotentiary officials and guests to the ceremony.

They reached Versailles over a thoroughfare kept clear by pickets, dragoons, and mounted gendarmes, and were cheered by

A PUBLIC HOLIDAY MONDAY

To celebrate the signing of the Peace Treaty, Mayor Duncan has proclaimed a public holiday for Monday.

His Worship has called a big public meeting in Central Park at 8 p.m., when addresses will be given by himself, Judge Huyeke, Bishop O'Brien, a representative of the Ministerial Association, the Warden of the County and the chairman of the Reception Committee.

The meeting in the Park will be followed by a torchlight procession.

LABOUR BUREAU HAD BUSY WEEK

MANY APPLICATIONS FOR EMPLOYMENT—A FEW PLACED.

At the Employment Bureau this week the number of applications for work were larger than in any previous week since the opening of the agency. In all, 76 applications for work were received, 51 men were placed and 52 vacancies reported. One woman who applied for work was placed.

An urgent call for girls to work on the fruit farms has been sent out by the Ontario Government, and applications for the work will be received at the Employment Bureau, where full particulars and application forms may be secured.

Workers For France.

The Bureau is in receipt of an application from the Canadian Des Moines Steel Company, of Chatham, for 60 to 70 men to work as steel erectors and riveters for steel towers 820 feet high to be erected in Bordeaux, France. Transportation will be paid both ways and time on the boat.

The age limit for the men is 40 years, the hours 50 a week, and the wages 70 cents an hour, plus board and lodging. The work will extend over a period of nine months. Particulars may be had at the Government Employment Bureau, 190 Charlotte Street.

FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

Five years ago this day, Francis Ferdinand, Austrian Archduke, was assassinated at Sarajevo. His death, furnished the excuse for the world war which ended today with the signing of the Treaty of Peace. The shots which led to the war were fired by Gavrio Prinsip, a student. He leaped out from a crowd watching the Archduke and his wife as they drove by in a carriage on June 28, 1914, and poured a stream of bullets at them from an automatic pistol. Shortly afterwards Austria made demands on Serbia for the trial of the principals. These demands resulted in international complications, and the war. Prinsip died in jail.

NEWS CAME TO EXAMINER FIRST

Once again the United Press has demonstrated its wonderful facilities for getting the news to its clients. By this means the Examiner was able to bulletin the news of the signing of peace half an hour earlier than any other paper in the city. The Examiner through the medium of the United Press was able to score innumerable beats throughout the war including the signing of the armistice which was received in this city an hour ahead of any other source. Read the United Press story of the final chapter of the greatest war in the history of the world.

NO PAPER ON MONDAY OR TUESDAY.

Monday having been declared a public holiday, and Tuesday being Dominion Day, there will be no issues of the Examiner until Wednesday.

"Der Tag" is Here

(By HENRY CHAPPELL)

You boasted the Day, and you toasted the Day,
And now the Day has come.
Blasphemer, braggart, and coward all,
Little you reck of the numbing ball,
The blasting shield or the "white arm's" fall,
As they speed poor humans home.
You spied for the Day, you lied for the Day,
And woke the Day's red spleen.
Monster, who asked God's aid Divine,
Then strewed His seas with the ghastly mine;
Not all the waters of all the Rhine
Can wash thy foul hands clean.
You dreamed for the Day, you schemed for the Day;
Watch how the Day will go,
Slayer of age and youth and prime (Defenceless slain for never a crime),
Thou art steep in blood as a hog in slime.
False friend and cowardly foe.
You have sown for the Day, you have grown for the Day;
Yours is the harvest red.
Can you hear the groans and the awful cries?
Can you see the heap of slain that lies
And sightless turned to the aslime-split skies
The glassy eyes and the dead?
You have wronged for the Day, you have longed for the Day
That lit the awful flame.
'Tis nothing to you that hill and plain
Yield sheaves of dead men amid the grain;
That widows mourn for their loved ones slain.
And mothers curse thy name.
But after the Day there's a price to pay for the sleepers under the sod,
And He you have mocked for many a day—
Listen and hear what he has to say,
"Vengeance is mine, I will repay."
What can you say to God?

THE UNIONIST PARTY.

The Union Government, organized as its promoters claimed on every platform throughout the Dominion during the election of 1917 to win the war, has decided to stick to the reins of office as long as possible. A permanent Unionist party has been formed. The only indication of what policy it is to follow is furnished by the address of Sir Robert Borden, who intimated that a compromise is to be made. It is apparently the Premier's plan to adopt a policy that will concede enough to please the Free Traders and the Western grain-growers and at the same time convince the Eastern exponents of Protection that their interests will not be neglected. If he succeeds in laying down a programme that will satisfy the varying factions outside of the House, Sir Robert will have qualified as a magician rather than as a political leader. Satisfying the members of the present Union Government does not present so much difficulty — the majority of them are so enamoured of the pleasure of holding office that they are prepared to make concessions as long as they can enjoy the privileges of being a member of Parliament. It will be a much different task, however, to make the country at large swallow a programme that the Unionists in the House will eagerly gulp down, and while the caucus the other day was enthusiastic and cheerful, doubtless because there is no election on the horizon, and they are safe in their seats just now, there is not the same enthusiasm evinced throughout the country. Even in journals which have been favourable to the Government there are inquiries as to the policy the new Unionist party propose to enunciate and misgivings as to the outcome of the formation, on a permanent basis, of the new organization.

WINDSOR MAN KILLED, NOTHER BADLY HURT WHEN AUTO SKIDS.

Stenlake Dies Instantly and John Morkin Seriously Injured.

WINDSOR, June 24.—Travelling along the concrete-paved Walker Road, six miles outside the city limits, a small automobile speedster, driven by John Morkin, a returned soldier, swerved from its course and plunged into a nine-foot ditch bordering the road.

Sidney Stenlake, 35, a meat butcher, of Wilkerville, who had been invited by Morkin to take a ride, was instantly killed, and Morkin so badly hurt that he is not expected to recover.

At the Hotel Dieu, where he was removed, he was unable to make any statement as to the cause of the accident, but Coroner Labelle believes it was due to the speed at which the little car was being driven.

The auto was reduced to a mass of junk. The spot where the accident occurred is between the Tecumseh Road and the railway crossing of the C.P.R. and some time elapsed after the accident before news reached the city. Stenlake is married and lived in Cartier Place, Windsor.

NOT ALLOWED TO USE KIDNEY PUNCH

RULES OF THE TOLEDO BOXING COMMISSION WILL GOVERN THE BIG BOUT.

(By H. C. Hamilton—United Press).

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 27. — Ollie Pecord, referee for the championship bout here between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey, sees no reason why there should be undue excitement over what shall or shall not be done in the ring by the boxers. "The rules of the Toledo Boxing Commission will govern the bout," he said to-day. "The boxers will be allowed to fight in the clinches so long as one arm is free, but they must break at the word of the referee. I will protect them coming out of the clinches. They need not worry about that; otherwise, the straight Marquis of Queensbury rules will be followed." Pecord said he had heard that both boxers have practiced the kidney punch in their training. This, he pointed out, is barred by the Commission rules, and will not be tolerated. He was asked regarding the rabbit punch, a blow delivered on the back of the neck while the boxers are in a clinch. He said there was no rule against it, and it would be permitted. "If the men care to meet me before the bout I will be glad to go to their camps and talk over the fight," he said, "but I see no real reason for it. We can have our argument in the ring before the scrap starts. There is nothing to be said further than that the rules of the Commission must be observed."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said

"After all, what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to invest it than in Life Insurance."

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man, sixteen years of age, took out a 15-year Endowment (No. 210980) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years, and he has now, through that investment, an immediate estate of $1,495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15% COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR HE PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said (and he might have added, No better place than the Sun Life of Canada), "There is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

"Here's my idea of a razor
—one that sharpens its own blades"

"Yes, sir, you certainly must admire the AutoStrop Safety Razor when it comes down to real shaving."

"Why, I remember with my other razor I always had to throw away a blade after a couple of shaves. Now, I simply take it and give it a few turns on the strop and it's as good as ever."

"As for shaving, well, when I get through—and it only takes three minutes—my face is as smooth and slick and comfortable as when the head barber used to go over it. When it comes to cleaning, all I do is simply put the blade under the tap and wipe it off. There's no taking the razor to pieces and messing around with parts. In fact the whole thing is so simple and easy, I wish I had had one long ago."

For $5.00 you get razor, strop and 12 blades, complete—and a money-back guarantee of satisfaction.

GROCERY STORES ARE CLOSED FOR THREE DAYS

A Rush for the Stores is Contemplated.

Every house out of necessity must be a veritable storehouse for foodstuffs next week. Since the Mayor has declared Monday a holiday and July 1 is Dominion Day, the stores will be closed from to-night until Wednesday morning. Those who are lucky enough to own a poultry run may not be forced to work overtime to-night to lay in a stock of provisions but it is safe to say that the grocery stores this evening will be regular Meccas of trade.

The two were out fishing and threw out an anchor to snub the canoe. The anchor line was believed to be too short, and it capsized the boat.

The body was recovered shortly afterwards.

The accident happened below the Lakefield Lock shortly after ten o'clock.

FATEFUL YEARS FOR ALL WOMEN

How Best to Overcome the Troubles That Afflict Women Only.

How Best to Overcome the Troubles That Afflict Women Only.

The most fateful years in a woman's life are those between forty-five and fifty. Many women enter this term under depressing conditions through overwork, worry or a neglected condition of the blood, and so they suffer heavily. Still, variations of health at this time can be relieved by home treatment.

Among the commonest symptoms are headaches and pains in the back and sides, fever flushes, palpitation, dizziness and depression. Women stand in need of rich, red blood all their life, but never more so than in middle age, when the nerves are also weak and over-wrought. Now every woman can prove the prompt help afforded to her health by renewing her blood supply. It is a test that any ailing woman can make by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for these pills make rich red blood, which in turn helps the appetite, strengthens the nerves and restores robust health. Thousands of women have found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the means by which new health and a brighter outlook of life were gained. In proof of this is the voluntary testimony of Mrs. H. S. Peterson, Milford, Ont., who says:—"I have suffered greatly from those troubles that afflict my sex, and I have found that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in such cases not only do all that is claimed for them, but more. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done so much for me that I urge every weak woman to try them, and they will soon realize the great difference in one's health they make."

If you suffer from any of the ills that particularly afflict womanhood you should avail yourself at once of the health help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get them from any dealer in medicine or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TAKE PRECAUTIONS IN OCCUPIED AREA

NIGHT LEAVES CANCELLED TO AVOID CLASHES BETWEEN GERMANS AND SOLDIERS.

Coblenz, June 26. — (By the Associated Press.) — Captain Bachhauser assigned by the German army to duty in Coblenz, was fined 1,000 marks to-day for refusing to salute an American lieutenant. The captain contended that war was over, and that anyway, the regulations did not call for his saluting an officer of lower rank. This is the first instance of an action of this kind since a definite turn was taken in the peace situation.

Allied officers say that after the treaty of peace is signed the regulation issued last December compelling German officers to salute will probably not be enforced. Civilians generally have seemed relieved as a result of the action of the German National Assembly at Weimar in reference to peace. Several individual instances have been reported here, however, in which civilians in the streets have assumed a haughty attitude towards the soldiers without serious results.

Trouble between civilians and soldiers is not expected but extra precautions have been taken by the miltary police at Treves, Coblenz and other towns to prevent trouble. With a view to avoiding clashes, no night leaves will be allowed in any of the towns within the occupied area, the officers desiring to have their men in the barracks at night when most of the quarrels and fights between Germans and soldiers have occurred.

SIMPLER COURSES IN THE NORMAL SCHOOLS

Regulations Will Relieve the Pressure in Study and Examinations

The following changes in the Normal School regulations designed to relieve the pressure of the courses and the examinations have been made by the Ontario Government.

History of education has been discontinued as an independent examination.

Algebra, geometry, bookkeeping and manners have also been dropped, but the department is providing for a more careful supervision of the reportment and social life of the students through the appointment of special household science teachers a part of whose duties it will be to visit students in their boarding places and give assistance and advice.

The examination tests have also been simplified.

The academic test held at Christmas is to be dropped.

The examinations in the majority of subjects of the course are now to be conducted by members of the staff of the schools.

The number of examination papers to be written upon by the students has been lessened by combining certain subjects as grammar and composition, elementary science and nature study, reading and literature, and agriculture and horticulture.

Instead of holding one final examination in all subjects, the principle of completing certain subjects in limited terms and of the distributing the examinations throughout the year, has been extended.

The present system of grouping for examination purposes has been abandoned, and the requirement of a minimum total of marks in these groups has been abolished, and, in its place a standard on individual subjects has been adopted. Students who fail on a limited number of subjects will be required to rewrite only the examinations in the subjects in which they fail.

The regulations provide also for a change in the validity of kindergarten certificates. In future any person holding an interim or a permanent kindergarten-primary certificate may act as a provisional director of a kindergarten.

DOMINION POLICE IN PETERBORO DISTRICT COLLECT $25,000 IN FINES SINCE THEIR ESTABLISHMENT HERE

THEY HAVE LED THE DEFAULTERS A MERRY CHASE OVER HILL AND DALE —JUNE WAS A RECORD MONTH—A VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN WILL BE INAUGURATED NEXT MONTH.

Since the special service branch of the Dominion Police established in Peterboro, (last October,) as headquarters for the district, which includes the counties of Peterborough, Haliburton, Victoria and Northumberland, over 210 men have been arrested as defaulters under the Military Service Act. When Inspector Harry F. Ward first came to the city with only three constables, he had 960 names of men who were to be apprehended, and he states that he will remain in this district until the last man is brought in. Thirty-eight men have voluntarily surrendered to the Dominion Police and sixteen deserters have been arrested for the military police and sent under escort to Kingston and other centres, from which they have deserted, for court martial. Besides these arrests, between 35 and 40 people have been asked to explain why they did not carry the necessary military papers and in a large number of cases, fines were imposed by the magistrate.

A Good Record.

With this creditable record, the local detachment of Dominion Police has been surprisingly small, and at no time have there been more than ten constables in the four counties embraced in this Dominion Police district. The strength at present is only four men besides the inspector, H. F. Ward. All the constables have seen service in France with the single exception of the inspector, who was not allowed to go farther than England. In addition to their regular duties the police have done work of a semi-private nature for the Federal Government, such as information regarding Bolsheviks and aliens. Most of their work has been done between the hours of 11 p.m. and 5 a.m., and the constables can tell many interesting stories of nights slept in haystacks and incidents that happened while searching houses where defaulters were supposed to be hiding.

Never Misfired.

In spite of the large number of arrests, the officers have never made a mistake in their man and in every case a conviction has been made, except in two cases where the defaulter was insane or had been sick and had not recovered until after the armistice had been signed.

There are still a large number of names on their books as the list has been added to from time to time, and they will be given the same consideration as the other men who voluntarily surrendered, if they will come to Inspector Ward's office and surrender. Although after June 30, a vigorous campaign will be started for the apprehension of men whose names are still on the books. Any man who can give a reasonable excuse to Inspector Ward why he did not surrender prior to July 1, will be given the same consideration as the other men who voluntarily surrendered. There are a number of men, according to Inspector Ward, who think that they are safe but whose names appear on the books of the Dominion Police. The Dominion officers have received great assistance from the civil police in the discharge of their duties and in giving information. The secretary of the local branch of the Great War Veterans, Mr. Sidney Whatley, has volunteered to give every assistance to the Dominion Police in the discharge of their duty.

Approximately, 230 trips have been made by the police after defaulters and numerous dances, picnics, houses, haystacks and barns have been visited in the hope that one or more of the defaulters may have left his refuge for a short carnival of entertainment. Before fines were imposed on defaulters, the minimum penalty was two years and the total number of convictions sent defaulters to the prison farm for a total of 14 years. One man received a two-year sentence term but was allowed out after serving three and a half months of his sentence.

Fifteen men whose names appeared on Inspector Ward's books were apprehended or surrendered in other districts through information given to other dominion headquarters.

The amount of money collected in this district in the way of fines from defaulters, reaches the enormous sum of $25,000, which is sent to the Receiver-General of the Department of Finance, by City Clerk Armstrong. All of the fines have been $250, except one $1,500 fine, three $500 fines, and two $350 fines.

The record for the month of June shows that 35 defaulters have voluntarily surrendered. Five have been arrested and the total fines for the month amounted to $6,500.00.

After July 1 a vigorous campaign will be started to round up all defaulters in the district and many more dominion constables will be drafted in the district, probably including a number of mounted men. Aeroplanes have been used to advantage in other districts for this work and might be resorted to here.

ANGLO-CANADIAN BAND ACCEPTS ONLY FEW ENGAGEMENTS

NEARLY ALL THE PLAYERS ARE EMPLOYED IN THE FACTORY, THUS PREVENTING ACCEPTANCE OF INVITATIONS.

By contributions that have ranged from $100 to $1,000, manufacturers, merchants and other business men, have demonstrated the sincerity of their interest in the efforts of the Peterboro Exhibition Board to build up in this city an agricultural fair that will not only be an advertisement for this city, but will also have adequate grounds that can be used the year round by citizens and farmers alike.

The citizens as a body have likewise given proof of their desire to co-operate in this enterprise by attending in large numbers the fall fair and the mid-summer attractions of the past two years.

On Tuesday they are offered the biggest programme the Board has yet attempted, and while setting out to enjoy themselves on the holiday, they should not overlook the fact that their admission payments will pile up into a sum that should make Tuesday the biggest success the directors have realized this year.

The Band Concert.

Special attention is directed toward the concert by the Anglo-Canadian Leather Company's band on Tuesday evening. All lovers of good music should avail themselves of the visit of this splendid organization to hear a programme which may be promised with full assurance to be more than satisfactory. It may not be generally known that this is no ordinary touring concert band, without reflecting upon the musicianship of the travelling bands, whose records are their own certificates of ability. The Huntsville band, however, has played comparatively few engagements out of town for the simple reason that its members, musicians of the first rank though they are, have other duties in the Leather Company's factory, which preclude extensive travelling. Of the fifty-five players, all but two or three of them are employed in the Anglo-Canadian plant. This is a rule which Mr. Shaw insists upon and which experience has shown does not militate against the thoroughness of the men's training, but rather seems to promote it. When the band comes to Peterboro they will not resume work the next day until noon, in order that they may have a chance to rest after this outing. It is apparent therefore that only engagements in cities or towns near at hand may be accepted if the industry is not to be affected by the absence of the bandsmen.

In Mr. Herbert L. Clarke, the conductor of the Anglo-Canadian Leather Company band, the music-loving public will be introduced to an artist of rare perceptions and discernment. He began his career in the Queen's Own Band of Toronto, and at that time Mr. Rupert Gliddon was a fellow bandsman. It may not be necessary to point out that it is Mr. Clarke's genius for leadership, backed by his keen interpretative powers that gives the band the qualities of enunciation and instrumentation that have impressed the critics who have heard it.

As a last word, in brief, the citizens are assured of a treat on Tuesday night, and it is understood that should the weather be rainy, the concert will be held in the Armouries.

BEACON SHOWS HERE NEXT WEEK

ONE OF THE BIGGEST ATTRACTIONS FOR THE HOLIDAY.

BEACON SHOWS ENTERTAINING.

Many Kingstonians Attended Carnival Last Night.

Attraction Being Staged by Army and Navy Veterans.

The Peterboro Exhibition Association have secured the Beacon Show for all next week. This attraction is, no doubt, the largest and best now before the public. They are playing Kingston this week and the Kingston Daily Standard has this to say of the attraction:

"Once again after a considerable lapse of time the old familiar midway circus is in Kingston, with its curious side shows, and all the other attractions, such as a merry-go-round and ferris wheel, which delight the children and afford the grown-up many a happy moment of harmless amusement. The midway circus in question is run under the auspices of the Army and Navy Veterans and is W. E. Polhill's Beacon shows. They are displaying their attractions to great crowds of delighted Kingstonians for the remainder of the week. The circus has located itself on Rideau street in the lot just north of the Imperial Oil Company's warehouse. Besides the usual midway events, such as merry-go-round, ferris wheel, fortune-tellers, wrestler who will throw any man in Kingston on his back before the show leaves town; Egyptian dancers, animal show, Cleo the Vamp. There is a main midway which includes a snake charmer who gives an interesting and instructive history of the snake ever since the time it induced woman to eat forbidden fruit, to the present day, a human volcano, a petrified monkey, a tatooing artist, and last but not least the human spider. The human spider is in itself a display of cleverness that should make the show pay for itself. It was indeed the talk and wonder of the night and was considered by many to be the cleverest trick ever performed in any side show or midway. In fact to appreciate it, one must indeed behold this most curious specimen of humanity. Besides these attractions there were many others, but the final attraction of the evening, which took place at 10:30 in the evening, was one of the most genuine and amazing feats that has been seen in Kingston for many years. This was the back dive, which Matt Gay, an Englishman, took from a height of 102 feet into a tank of water hardly 5 feet deep. Many hundred pairs of eyes gazed at him as he let himself fall backwards and many held their breath to see him turn over and over in the air and hit the water with a resounding smack; but great was the din and rejoicing to see him come to the surface and stand on the edge of the tank quite well and safe and sound.

WILLIAMS

NEW SCALE PIANO

YOU would be very much interested if you could see the wood being scientifically prepared for the Williams New Scale Piano. Every inch of it goes through a special process which removes all sap and sugar. When this wood is being cut up, there is a great deal of waste, because only absolutely flawless pieces can measure up to the standard that we have maintained during many years for Williams Pianos. The woodwork on this famous Canadian piano—not only the case, but on all the unseen parts also—will never shrink, warp or decay. The Williams is built to last a lifetime.

Write us for Illustrated literature and ask any Williams dealer to show you this beautiful instrument.

INTERMISSION

PART TWO

Second Hungarian Rhapsody.....Liszt

There are sixteen Rhapsodies written by Liszt for the piano, but the most familiar is the second, which has been transcribed for orchestra and later on for military bands. The opening theme is characteristic of real Magyar music, followed by the vivace, which is made up of short transcriptions of Hungarian tunes as they were played by the wandering bands of gipsies, the national musicians of Hungary. This Rhapsody was composed in 1853. Franz Liszt was born 22nd October, 1811, and died 31st July, 1886.

Saxophone solo—"Helen" .. .. Clarke
Mr. Chas. G. Shaw

Concert waltz—"Des Fleurs" .. .. Tschaikowski

One of the six movements of the celebrated "Casse-Noisette" suite (The Nut-cracker), written in 1891 and first produced in Petrograd on 19th March, 1892, arousing immense enthusiasm and receiving such applause that five of the six movements had to be repeated. Peter Ilich Tschaikowski was one of the great Russian composers. Born 7th May, 1840, and died 6th November, 1893.

Cornet solo—"The Southern Cross" ..
Mr. Herbert L. Clarke

Finale—"William Tell" .. .. .. Rossini
(by request)

"Tell" has become a study for the musician from the first bar of the overture to the storm scene and brilliant finale. The opera, one of his forty-eight, being undoubtedly Rossini's masterpiece, first produced at the Academie, Paris, on 3rd August, 1829, and in London, 11th July, 1839, at King's Theatre. Gioacchini Antonio Rossini was born 29th February, 1792, at Pesaro. He died 13th November, 1860, at Paris.

NEW DRUG STOPS HEADACHE IN 2 MINUTES

100% BETTER THAN ASPERIN

This drug which we are hearing so much about is another step up in the discoveries of the medical world. It almost seems impossible to stop a headache in two minutes without doing some harm to the heart, or some other organs of the body.

Painol, the new drug, does not act on the heart to stop your headache; instead of doing you harm it does you good, for the popular belief now is, that headaches are caused from uric acid in the blood. You know the pains of rheumatism are caused from uric acid just the same as headaches are.

Take a Painol tablet now and the stomach dissolves it and is taken up by the blood, and your headache is gone in two minutes. Just like magic. Painol tablets are dispensed in Peterboro by McDermid & Jury, Druggists. Remember to ask for Painol Tablets instead of aspirin. Learn to protect your health by taking harmless drugs.

Makes Wrinkles Go "As If By Magic"

Want to banish every wrinkle—from face, neck, hands — easily, quickly, completely? Try the famous saxolite formula. Nothing else so nearly meets every requirement. Why? Because it is correct in principle and really, truly assists Nature. Possessing remarkable astringent and tonic properties, it both tightens the skin — thus naturally smoothing out the lines —and improves capillary circulation and nerve tone—tending to strengthen loose tissue and bring about a healthy condition. Yet, powerful as the saxolite lotion is, it won't harm your skin in the least. And it's so easy to get the inexpensive ingredients at your druggist's, and so easy to mix them.

Just dissolve one ounce powdered saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel—that's all. Bathe your face in this—immediately—every wrinkle and crease are affected, even the deepest. You are perfectly astonished, and delighted, with the result. You look like you've lost years from your age!

WEST WILL SEND A BIG DELEGATION TO THE CONVENTION

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., June 28.—Manitoba will send a big delegation to the Liberal convention at Ottawa in August. The Western representatives will be large and influential.

All the three Western provinces are in accord with the fiscal policy to be urged on the convention. It will be lower than present tariff by long ways. The Unionists in the West, from indications, are about to jump back to the regular Liberals.

The delegation from Manitoba will include fourteen members of the present Legislature.

A crowning curative triumph in medicine is now given to the world, and all who have been sufferers from stomach ailments, indigestion and headache can be cured by a purely vegetable remedy.

Calomel, salts and such like are no longer necessary. They are harsh and disagreeable. Science has devised something far superior, and you can go to-day with 25c to any druggist and buy a box of Dr. Hamiltons Pills, which are considered the very quickest and safest cure for the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys.

Half sick men and women who scarcely know what ails them, will be given a new lease of life, with Dr. Hamiltons Pills. Depressed spirits disappear, headaches are forgotten, appetite increases, blood is purified and enriched, pains at the base of the spine are cured, the nerves are toned up, ambition to work is increased, and day by day the old-time health and vigor return.

A trial only is necessary to prove how beneficial Dr. Hamilton's Pills are to all who are weak, nervous, thin, depressed or in failing health.

GARDEN PARTY HELD IN OMEMEE LAST EVENING WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL EVENT

OVER FIVE HUNDRED TOOK PART IN THE FESTIVITIES—THE LADIES IN CHARGE.

OMEMEE NEWS

Out distancing all previous records the town has made, from a standpoint of numbers and attractions at such an event, the garden party given last evening by the Ladies Aid of the Omemee Methodist Church sustained the reputation the town had previously made in providing an ideal entertainment. From early in the afternoon young and old people flocked to the grounds of the Methodist church where the entertainment was held and by evening when the Lindsay train brought in still more pleasure seekers, the ladies in charge of the dining room had provided a sumptuous repast for at least 500 people. No pains or ingenuity had been spared in making the garden party the success it proved to be. The grounds were charmingly strung with Chinese lanterns and pennants and booths laden with good things to eat were cleverly decorated while comfortable seating capacity had been provided for the visitors at intervals on the lawns.

In Charge

In the dining room, where tables charming with the huge bouquets of roses were set to accommodate forty at each table, the ladies in charge were Mrs. T. J. Parsons, the President, Mesdames Wm. Earle, J. G. Lewis, Jas. Bushnell, T. C. Ivory, D. Rae, T. Mitchell and M. Bradburn. The ladies proved ideal hostesses and welcomed the guests in so hearty a manner that every one immediately felt at home. At the ice cream booth Mr. Bushnell and Miss E. McQuade were in charge and at the candy booth Miss Lila Parsons and Miss N. Nichols. Mr. W. K. Kennedy made a genial door keeper.

The Programme

Arranged by Mrs. J. G. Lewis and Mrs. Bushnell an attractive musical programme was given on the lawn at which Mr. H. Treneer of Peterboro, rendered instrumental and vocal solos, Mr. Ernest Bushnell a solo, Miss L. Parsons and Mr. Bushell a duet. Miss James a wand drill and Mr. Earle and Mr. Hornby selections on the violin and piano. The excellence of the programme provided quite made up for the disappointment felt at first in the fact that illness prevented the members of the Millbrook Band from giving the programme.

Those Present.

Among those who attended were Rev. and Mrs. Johnson, Lindsay, Mr. Hillier Williamson, Haliburton, Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Laing, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Weaver, Reeve and Mrs. R. W. Wilson, Mrs. D. Rae, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cornell Mr and Mrs. McKee, Rev. and Mrs. Herrington, Dr. and Mrs. Earle Mrs. Staples, Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. Moore combe, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Connell Mrs. Mulligan, Mrs. A. R. Campbell, Mrs. Millard, Miss Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. T. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McGee, Reeve and Mrs. T. J. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. McPherson Mr. and Mrs. Milton Staples and Mr. and Mrs. A. Rutherford. Eighteen of the returned men who came back to Ommee since the big banquet which was tendered in their honor recently were presented with complimentary tickets to the garden party.

Bought the Foundry

Visitors from out of town who took the opportunity of strolling bout Omemee were delighted to see promises of a resumption of activities at the Foundry which has been closed since some years before the war. Mr. T. C. Ivory who bought the building recently from the Evans estate is having the entire building remodelled and put into readiness for use confidently expecting to rent or sell it to some enterprising company.

Mr. Lewis Leaving.

Rev. J. G. Lewis, pastor of the Methodist Church stated last evening that he is exchanging his position for a year with Mr. Stillman of Lardner, B.C., and leaves for his Western trip next week.

Mrs. McCrae is at Muskoka, visiting her daughter, Lady Eaton.

Mr. Wm. Stevenson returned last evening to Omemee after an operation for appendicitis in Toronto.

County Roads

As the County Roads System has been adopted in Victoria County and work is being proceeded upon in the town of Omemee Lady Eaton's yearly gift of oil for the streets has not been utilized this year. This gift comprises about 60 barrels in the summer.

to the interests of his clients, he will no doubt ably lead the party in the way they wish. Peterborough people are glad to remember that he hails originally from Dummer, where many of his relatives still reside.

An Able Seconder.

Mr. Dewart is ably seconded by his wife, who easily the best looking and best gowned woman at the convention. They say she is always right close to her husband and on this occasion she sat in one of the front seats and was his most appreciative listener, vigorously applauding whenever he made a good point. It was also noticeable that she made herself very agreeable with the delegates.

Two vivid impressions of the convention were the unpopularity of the Union government and N. W. Rowell, and it would be hard to tell which appeared the most unpopular. The present government at Ottawa has certainly lost whatever savor it may have had with Ontario Liberals, and as for Mr. Rowell, if he had made his appearance at the convention, he would have found himself as welcome as a skunk at a garden party.

Chatting with members of the Legislature it was easy to see that our own representative, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, is admired and respected by his colleagues and considered an authority on agriculture. At the convention he saw to it that the delegates from West Peterborough were propertly entertained, and their thanks are due him for his hospitality.

Mr. G. N. Gordon's Opinion.

Mr. G. N. Gordon was asked to-day his opinion of the new leader of the Liberal party in Ontario.

Mr. Gordon said that the leadership was apparently still among the Methodists, which was very gratifying, and his opinion of Hartley Dewart was that he was the brightest mind in the Legislature. He said that Mr. Rowell had tasted the flesh pots of Egypt and had become a rich corporation lawyer, so no one need expect him, after sacrificing the Liberal party, to be any other place than among the war profiteers, the concessionaries and others who are seeking to get rich at the expense of the consumer.

Mr. Gordon said it was very unfortunate that the Review, being such a well known temperance journal, was not supporting Mr. Hartley Dewart. The Review, according to Mr. Gordon's opinion, should be consulted before there are any steps taken among the Liberals because that journal is such an outstanding advocate of temperance, moral reform and other great issues before the people, that its support should be obtained first. Then ,of course, everything would go right.

(From Mr. R. R. Hall)

"I think that the Provincial Liberal Convention made an excellent choice in Mr. H. H. Dewart K.C., as leader of the Liberal party. Ever since his election in 1916 he has been the outstanding figure in the Legislative Assembly. The great weakness of the Liberal Party in Provincial affairs has arisen from the lack of leadership during this last ten years. Undoubtedly results have proved that neither the Hon. N. W. Rowell nor the recent leader Mr. Proudfoot K.C. enjoyed the confidence of the working men or the farmer in Provincial affairs.

Those who have followed Mr. Dewart's course in the Legislature can see for themselves that he is worthy of the respect and confidence of the Ontario Electorate. It was due to his efforts that the great nickle corporation was forced to pay a very large increased taxation and much more will be done with the nickle industry in the interests of Ontario and Canada under his leadership.

Mr. Dewart's leadership will aim for economy and increased development."

HUN DELEGATES ATTACH SIGNATURES TO DECLARATION OF A WORLD PEACE

throngs gathered in the flag-decked suburban towns of Boulogne, St. Cloud, and Sevres-Ville D'Avray for a passing glimpse of the world's celebrities of the Conference.

A company of the Republican Guards, in brilliant full dress uniforms, drawn up at the end of the Court as a guard of honour, presented arms as the leading plenipotentiaries passed. On entering the building by a portal through which a Paris mob burst in the early days of the French Revolution, the delegates mounted by the Marble, or Queen's, Stairway to a suite of the Queen's Apartments, and the Hall of Peace, through which they gained access to the Hall of Mirrors.

There was no guard of honour to render the Germans military honours, which were reserved for the Allied representatives. Dismounted guardsmen, with drawn sabres, who lined the Marble Staircase and the Queen's Apartments when the Allied delegates passed, remained in their places, however, for the entry of the Germans.

ALLIED SOLDIERS AND SAILORS PRESENT THE CLOSING CHAPTER OF THE WORLD WAR.

Seventy-two chairs for the plenipotentiaries were drawn around three sides of the table, which formed an open rectangle, fully eighty feet in length on its longer side. The chair for M. Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference, was placed in the centre of the long table facing the windows, with those for Premier Lloyd-George and President Wilson on the left and right hands respectively. The Allied delegates were arranged in the same order as when the terms were prsented to the Germans. But the German delegates this time, instead of facing their accusers, were assigned seats at the side of the table nearest the entrance, which they could take after all the others were seated.

The Treaty will be signed under the watchful eyes of forty-five stalwart British Tommies, French Poilus, and American Doughboys, the real artisans of the Peace which has been slowly taking definite form during the long months of the Paris Conference.

Marshals and Generals of the Allied Armies will take first place on the benches provided for privileged guests invited to the ceremony. But fifteen privates from each of the principal Armies will stand within the enclosure reserved for the plenipotentiaries and high officials of the Conference as visible sign of their role in bringing into being a New Europe.

The ceremony of signing the Treaty will be shorter than expected, as most of the seventy-two plenipotentiaries will have to write their names only twice. Even the full number of seventy-two may not sign the Treaty, since the Chinese have indicated that they are opposed to signing the instrument on account of the Shantung settlement.

Arrangemens were made by the French authorities to keep the hour of arrival of the German plenipotentiaries a secret, it being desired to keep it from the public, so that the possibility of a repetition of the unpleasant incidents attending the departure of the old delegation from Versailles might be avoided.

CHINESE DELEGATES REFUSE TO SIGN.

(Canadian Press.)

VERSAILLES, June 28.—A few minutes before three o'clock fifteen enlisted men from the British, French, and American Armies entered the Hall amid decorous cheers.

The Germans' credentials were approved this morning. Dr. the Treaty, reiterated their intention not to sign.

At 2.50 o'clock, all the delegates were seated except the Chinese, who did not attend. The Germans entered the Hall at exactly three o'clock.

AGRICULTURAL BOARD HOLD ANNUAL MEETING AT CHEMONG PARK YESTERDAY

GOOD SPEAKERS ENLARGE ON THE FARMERS' OUTLOOK AND GOOD ROADS —WARDEN M'INTOSH PRESENT—THE NEW OFFICERS— THE QUESTION OF RURAL SCHOOLS.

THE STRINGED ORCHESTRA

It is not every picnic, nor even every farmers' picnic (or agriculturists, as Father McAuley would have it,) who can boast of an orchestra, yet the annual picnic of the County Board of Agriculture, held in Chemong Pavilion yesterday afternoon, not only had an orchestra, but they had a string orchestra de luxe, from Toronto, which could imitate everything from a train whistle to the bagpipes. The musicians call themselves the Skye Orchestra and hail from Toronto and intend to stay in the park for some time. The weather was ideal and all the farmers, (or agriculturists,) were happy as they contemplated how much good Wednesday's downpour had accomplished. All of the crops are in excellent shape and some of the hay fields are already in the hands of the haymakers.

Mr. Dan Sullivan, keeper of the booth and official weigher of the big fish caught in the Chemong ocean, wore his biggest, best and most accommodating smile as motor cars arrived by the dozen and found a shady spot under the trees in the park.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The County Board of Agriculture has had the most successful year in its history and the attendance is reaching such a point that it will not be many years before the membership can be counted in thousands instead of hundreds. It is beyond the ken of even the oldest member when the first meeting of the Board, or the Farmers' Institute, as it was then called, was held. Some have dim recollections of the meetings held thirty or thirty-five years ago in the days when Hon. John Dryder was in his prime and when the attendance could be counted on the fingers of the two hands, but beyond that there is hardly a record. Of late years the organization has extended marvellously, both in its attendance and the scope of its activities.

The seats in the pavilion were not numerous enough to accommodate the gathering and the seats under the trees near the booth and the green sward, was utilized. Numerous cars lined the railing just in front of the ruins of the old hotel and held their coterie of listeners.

A BIG FUTURE.

Mr. Clayton Telford, of Ennismore, the president, acted as chairman and called on the various speakers. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P. of Peterboro, was the first speaker and predicted a bigger future for the farmers of Ontario. Mr. Gillespie is very enthusiastic in the work of the Board and of farmers' meetings in general. He has not only attended the meetings of the Board for over a score of years but has attended nearly every recruiting and Red Cross meeting held in either East or West Peterborogh, doring the war. He said that he thought the farmers could find no fault with the prices received for produce these days but stated that the farmer must depend on the married man in future for farm labour. In order to do this he must build a house on his farm. The single man will not stay on the farm the year round and the married man must, in future, be the mainstay of the farmer. "The people of this country must make up their minds that the farmer, in future, is not going to accept the price for their produce that was prevalent before the war," concluded Mr. Gillespie.

Mr. Allen B. Mann, the secretary, reported that the balance on hand was $35.73, quite an advance over last year's budget of $13.00. Mr. Mann, who has been secretary of the Board for the last five years, asked to be relieved but the election of officers still shows him secretary of the organization.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The officers elected were as follows:—

President — Mr. Joseph Mann.
Vice-President. — Mr. Sherman Garbutt.
Secretary. — Mr. Allen B. Mann.
Auditors.—Mr. R. N. Scott and Mr. Sidney Blewett.

County Clerk Edward Elliott, spoke on the good roads question although he began in speaking of the agricultural communities in general. "The agriculturists of Ontario at last are coming into their innings."

"The farmers have been divided but in future we look for unity.

"We look to the betterment of the agricultural class which rebounds to the betterment of all.

"There should be a larger representation of farmers in the Commons but it is the farmers' own fault. The only way to do it is to have such meetings and also to throw politics to the winds.

"Although we don't want autocracy where democracy exists the pork packers and the railway magnates, etc., rule. The only way to get our representation is to stick together."

"Recently at a court sitting, (he ors composed the jury, the lawyers eracomposed the jury, the lawyers kept the court sitting for three nights and every time the court crier officially opened the court the sheriffs, clerks of the peace, crown attorneys and almost everybody else except the jury were entitled to ask for extra pay. We must do away with this."

GOOD ROADS.

The good roads question then came in for a thorough discussion and he stated that the good roads scheme discriminated against the farmer. He stated that the Government officials held that the Government paid for most of the improvement but did not say that the cities and towns paid nothing. Further he said that the farmers paid seventy per cent. of road improvement, under the good roads scheme, and the rest comes out of the Provincial Treasury but the farmer fills the treasury to the extent of 47 per cent.

"I hope you will send representatives pledged to support the platform of the United Farmers of Ontario and the Board of Agriculture."

REV. JOHN GALT.

Rev. John Galt, of Gilmour Memorial Church lent humour to the occasion and also touched on the need of better education facilities and better social conditions for the rural communities. He thought the country should have as good schools as the cities. He said that the consolidated schools in Manitoba and other parts of the Dominion and the United States had solved many problems and that the movement from the land to the city would continue until social advantages equal to those in the city were obtained.

Father McCauley, of Ennismore, did not take kindly to the name of farmer as the city people associated high prices with the appelation. He suggested that they be named agriculturists in future. He was of the opinion that the County Clerk could well qualify for a place in the House of Commons, judging by the calibre of the speech he made. He would be a good country representative. Although he was not an enthusiast of the condition of Peterborough County Roads, he hinted that he might be converted to Mr. Elliott's opinion regarding the good roads idea after what he had heard on the matter. He played a compliment to the orchestra which enlivened the proceedings and stated that he thought when he arrived that he was entering the portals of a big hotel when he heard the harp, the violin and the guitar playing.

A MEMORY.

Rev. Mr. Webster, of Bridgenorth, brought the memory of many to the days when barley sold at 28c a bushel and other prices accordingly. But the days are gone now, he said.

"The farmers don't seem to stick together," said Mr. Webster. "All classes seem to strike except the farmers and preachers and if they did we would be very badly off."

After the National Anthem was played the meeting adjourned to the green slope just to the right of the pavilion, where he ladies had spread the cloth and an array of eatables, salads, meat and pastry completely dispelled the idea that there was such a man as the High Cost of Living Commissioner. The good things disappeared in record time and the people mingled among each other exchanging, ideas and the condition of the crops during which she hat of the violin player of the orchestra was filled with "change" and they retired to prepare for the big dance held at the pavilion, which brought out another smile on the face of the genial proprietor of the booth.

THUNDER SCARED TEAM OF HORSES

Mr. Dan Murphy Injured in a Runaway Accident on Thursday Afternoon.

Mr. Dan Murphy who resides near Lindsay, met with an accident on Thursday when his team of horses ran away. Mr. Murphy had just completed plowing and was walking the team home, and crossing the Otonabee bridge, when the animals became frightened at a sharp clap of thunder. They bolted, dragging Mr. Murphy off his feet and for a considerable distance. He was finally compelled to let go and the runaway continued until the horses reached the barn, one of the horses crashing into the stone foundation with such force as to knock it out for half an hour.

In the meantime Mr. Murphy also succeeded in reaching home, the extent of his injuries consisting of a bruised hip and an arm that was slightly torn.

BASEBALL NOTES

UMPIRE KAY'S REPORT.

The reports of Umpire Alex. Kay, who officiated at the big Peterboro-Lindsay game in Peterboro last Saturday was as follows. Secretary Dedman received both reports:

"On Saturday, June 21, as requested by you, I acted as umpire-in-chief in the game played in this city between Peterboro and Lindsay, and which Peterboro won by the score of 5 to 2.

"The game was witnessed by the largest crowd that has attended a game here since the old Canadian League days, which speaks well for the interest taken and the support given your Central Ontario League.

"Kirn, of Peterboro, pitched a steady game and so did Scott, but Scott's "fast one" did not have the "smoke" on it that it usually has, with the result that he had to use his curve ball and it was working fine.

"Lindsay lost a great chance to tie up or win the game in the ninth, when with three on and nobody out, the batter hit a fly to the outfield. With the crack of the bat the runner on third tore for home, and, of course, was easily doubled at third and killed off whatever chance they had.

"Dick Butler assisted me as base umpire, and did his part well as no disputes or arguments whatever took place during the game."

BIGGEST GAME OF THE SEASON HERE ON DOMINION DAY MORNING

The Central Ontario League game at Riverside Park on Dominion Day morning promises to be the most exciting game of the season. The Oshawa team, who will be the adversaries of the Petes on the holiday, beat the local aggregation in the opening game of the season at Oshawa on Victoria Day, and now that the Belleville game has been thrown out that defeat is the only one that appears in the official standing against Peterborough. The Petes will endeavour to get revenge on Tuesday for the trimming they got at Oshawa, and it will be a fight all the way. The team from the automobile town is dangerous at any time. Patton is one of the best pitchers in the League, and the Oshawa infield compares favourably with those of the other Central teams. Patton and Hall will be the Oshawa battery, while Kirn and Swanston will be the Peterborough selection. It will be the best game of the year, and, coming on the holiday morning, should attract the biggest crowd in years. Alex. Kay will be the umpire-in-chief. The fans are asked to remember that the game is called at 10.30 o'clock sharp.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

"How to Handle a Grafter," or to use a more euphonious expression, "a Profiteer," is a much talked of subject nowadays. Evangelist Kennedy thinks this subject a little more timely just now than ever before and it will be his subject at the big tent meeting on Hunter street, this evening. "The Devil's Cradles," will be the subject of his Sabbath evening address; "and there are a lot of them in Peterboro," he commented in his announcement. The meetings continue to grow in interest and in power. Last night there was a greater crowd than on any week night yet. To-night a still larger attendance is confidently expected. There will be a fine musical programme.

"The story of the most unhappy man in history," was the way in which Evangelist Kennedy described his subject, "Judas," in his addressat the big tent last night. Judas was not held up as a devil but as a man who by transgression fell. The audience was the largest yet in attendance at any week night meeting and had anyone of them been asked before Mr. Kennedy began his address as to which they considered the greatest sinner, Judas or Peter, the decision would probably have been an unhesitating condemnation of Judas. But the Evangelist differed. Judas was elected by the eleven as their treasurer. Had his besetting sin been greed of money, Jesus would not have tempted him by putting the bag in his hand. He may have been selected also because he had the biggest heart as well as the most ability. His first recorded offense is toward the close of our Lord's ministry on earth when "he bought a field, entered a real estate speculation on the side," just as many others do. The money to finance this transaction was borrowed from "the bag." Here it was that Judas became a thief. And it was during this period that Jesus gave his greatest talks on covetousness, evidently in an endeavor to keep a member of his flock slipping from him. "I don't think it ever dawned on Judas that his [illegible] could take Jesus," Mr. Kennedy declared. He had seen them try time and again and fail.

Peter was one of the inner circle. His light was greater than that of Judas. Yet he denied his Master with oaths and curses in the very time when his loyalty would have been appreciated. But he repented and the Master forgave him. Judas went out and hanged himself, "and that was where Judas made his greatest mistake," Mr. Kenendy is sure that the same love that forgave Peter would have forgiven Judas even as He is still forgiving all trangressors who come unto Him. And a number in the audience last night followed Peter's example and became followers of the same Master.

QUESTIONS THE ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

Magistrate Dumble Imposes Fine on Emily Township Resident.

Magistrate Dumble refused to take an Order-in-Council as supreme authority regarding his jurisdictions.

A resident of Emily pleaded guilty to being a defaulter, but the Magistrate hesitated in trying the case, as he did not reside in Peterborough County. Crown Attorney Hatton pointed out that an Order-in-Council gave him authority to try any defaulters, no matter where they resided.

"I was appointed by the Ontario Statute, an Act of Parliament," explained Mr. Dumble, "and I refuse to believe that an Order-in-Council is superior to an Act of Parliament. There are many things in Orders-in-Council that is questionable law."

Before fining the young man $250 and costs the Magistrate informed him that if he thought that the Court had no jurisdiction he could appeal.

The man paid the fine, delighted to escape with the minimum penalty.

Another defaulter from Douro paid $200 this morning.

WEDDING BELLS

EVANS—CHARD.

On Wednesday, June 25, at 7 p.m., a very pretty home wedding took place when Elsie Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chard, of Fraserville, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Francis Henry Evans, of Peterborough. The ceremony, which was performed by Adjutant Buntin, took place at the home of Mrs. Quibell, 148 Park Street.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white crepe de chene, and wore a spray of orange blossom in her hair, and also wore a bouquet of roses and maidenhair fern. She was attended by Miss Edith Chard and Miss Annie Quibell, who were respectively bridesmaid and maid-of-honour. Both were attired in white voile dresses with pink sashes and hair-bows to match. Master Ralph Quibell acted as ring-bearer. The bridal couple stood under an arch of weeping birchs, marguerites and orange blossoms, and the Union Jack formed the background. The groom was supported by Mr. Dan. Quibell and about sixty friends witnessed the ceremony. After congratulations were extended, one and all retired to the dining-room, where a hearty wedding supper was enjoyed by all. Many and valuable were the presents, among them being a set of silver from the girls among whom the bride had worked. The happy couple left for London, Ont., where our best wishes follow them.

CAUGHT A LOON AT BOBCAYGEON.

J. A. Willis of Akron, Ohio, had quite an experience last week while fishing at Bobcaygeon. Silas Nichols, his guide, was just getting his muscles loosened up into good working order, when Mr. Akron felt a tug on his line, and he sure thought he had the catch of the season; imagine his surprise when he discovered he had a large loon on the hook. Mr. Willis was successful in landing it, and after going to the shore and taking some snaps, they let it go, none the worse for its experience. It is not safe to say "fish" every time you feel a tug at your line while fishing at Bobcaygeon.

RECORD PRODUCTION.

A record production of wool is reported this week from J. H. Clare's Oxford Down sheep at Tweed.

From eleven head of sheep there was 145 pounds of wool, which is an average of over 13 pounds to a head. The sheep producing the largest was a one-year-old, its fleece weighing 17 pounds. We understand that seven or eight pounds of the sheep has been considered a good average, but evidently the above flock have set a new pace.

Mr. Clare specialises in Oxford Downs and has refused fancy offers for some of them.

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

To-morrow at St John's the service at 11 a.m. is intended to be a Thanksgiving for the end of the war. The presence of returned soldiers and war workers will be appropriate. At 7 p.m. Rev. J. Cooper Robinson, of Japan, will give some information as to the present position and outlook in the east.

ASPHODEL SOLDIERS PRESENTED WITH WATCHES

WESTWOOD PUBLIC HALL UNABLE TO ACCOMMODATE THE WELCOMING CROWD THAT GATHERED FROM THE COUNTRYSIDE FRIDAY NIGHT—INTERESTING PROGRAM.

PATRIOTIC ASSOCIATION'S WORK

Westwood probably was not marked on the German war lords' maps of the countries they set out to conquer and occupy, in fact its record in the war may not have come to the notice even of any of the allied powers, there were so many hamlets and scattered rural communities that combined their individually meagre forces to swell the armies of victory, but Westwood rests content and quietly proud in the knowledge that it did its bit. The Asphodel Patriotic Association faithfully kept the home fires burning, and as the boys come home they are tendered warm and affectionate receptions in the old village hall. And at these public meetings the returning soldiers are not only welcomed and honoured, but each of them is presented with a gold watch engraved with an inscription to the effect that this gift is a token of respect and appreciation for the Asphodel Patriotic Association.

Friday night before a crowd of perhaps three hundred or more farmers and their wives and children, Private Thomas Lowe and Private Robert J. Lancaster were the recipients of gold watches, bringing the total number presented thus far to fourteen. Miss Gladys Humphries read a very cordial and eulogistic address of welcome and Miss Mabel Harrison and Miss Elsie Knox made the presentations. Privates Lowe and Lancaster with the characteristic modesty and reticence of men who have seen much and have played their part in the great adventure, expressed their gratitude in brief little speeches of a few sentences, in which they thanked the ladies for their kindness in sending supplies of comforts and special parcels they sent so regularly overseas, and questioned their own worthiness of the eloquent reception.

So, Asphodel may have been left out of the reckoning of the factors of victory, but in its own estimation its men have been tried and proved worthy sons of the pioneers who volunteered for the Northwest rebellion, and of the older brothers who went off to the South African war. Its manhood contributed its share in the great struggle that called almost the whole world to arms, and some of the Asphodel boys are not coming back. One of these at least was well known in this city, Max Breckenridge, a son of one of the oldest families in Asphodel. But there were others who remained on the farms and volunteered as farmers. Of those Peterborough county boys who were the first to respond to the call and who have safely returned, Lieutenant-Colonel Everett Birdsall, son of Colonel Richard Birdsall, is widely known in this city. He went overseas as a lieutenant in the second battalion. These names are singled out only because they are familiar locally, but Asphodel cherishes them all. There are no distinctions, and in the references to these recurring receptions it is only just to indicate the spirit of the community by the fact that the Patriotic Association has not slackened in its enthusiasm for its men because the war is over and they are straggling home singly and already forgotten by the big world beyond the township.

Some of the Workers.

Mr. William Knox, who was chairman Friday, is the president of the Association, Col. Birdsall, the vice-president, and Mr. G. A. Humphries is secretary-treasurer. But while the men hold the distinction of office in the Association, the women have borne the willing burden. Among those who are mentioned among the most industrious have been Mrs. Birdsall, Mrs. Humphries, Miss Margaret Comstock, Miss Margaret Cardwell, Miss Janet Breckenridge, Mrs. Duncan Drummond, Misses Lizzie and Jessie Davidson, Mrs. Bert Lancaster, Mrs. Albert Wilson, Mrs. George Pringle, Mrs. Hilliard Neilson, Mrs. Gilbert Elmhurst, Mrs. Louis Elmhurst and Miss Alice Douglas, who placed her home at the disposal of the knitters and other workers. The ladies have sought no publicity of their work, their recompense has been the grateful acknowledgments from the men on their return. Incidentally, they propose to retain their organization for the purpose of helping the French orphans of the war.

The Programme.

The public reception last night was also the occasion of the annual strawberry festival of the Association. The programme was as follows:

Chorus by the Westwood choir, "Sussex by the Sea."

Recitation—"Edith Cavell" by Miss Gladys Humphries.

Chorus by the South Dummer choir.

Address by Major (Rev.) Harry Frost.

Vocal duet — Mrs. Gordon Faux and Miss Ruby Comstock.

Recitation by Miss Would.

Vocal solo— Miss Lizzie Fowlds, of Hastings.

Address by Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M. P.P.

Recitation by Mr. Charles Plant of Hastings.

Instrumental by the Comstock orchestra.

The last number was decidedly praiseworthy, the orchestra of five pieces being composed of members of the same family, each playing a different instrument as follows: Organ, guitar, mandolin, violin and zither.

With His "Ain Folk."

Mr. Gillespie congratulated the two townships on the splendid showing they had made in the war in which they had fought for the protection of the British Empire and for the freedom of the world from German domination. It was a special pleasure to welcome back the boys of the old neighbourhood in which he had also spent his youth, and in joining with the Westwood and Asphodel people he said he shared their pride and pleasure in welcoming back their own. It was evident to all that the country was disturbed by unrest, but it was noticeable that the very men who had endured the most during the past five years were the most anxious to preserve Canada in this seeming crisis, desirous only of securing employment, and of helping to build up the country to the estate they had dreamed of when they fought for her. Mr. Gillespie appealed to the women to develop the community spirit by such public meetings. They would thus become a steadying influence, and at the same time they would contribute in the development that is bound to come with the reasonable changes that are now sought by so many sections of the people.

Hall Was Crowded.

So large was Friday's crowd that the hall simply could not accommodate them, and the small boys and youths crowded the porch for occasional glimpses of the proceedings, which they enlivened with the usual "more more" chorus after every number. Some of the audience were from Hastings and Keene, several from Peterborough, but for the most part they were Asphodel farmers. And the spacious park of cars was significant of the motorization of rural traffic. Rev. Mr. Frost had driven from Lakefield and was given a fine reception. His address was a tribute to the [illegible]

COUNTY COUNCIL APPROVES GOOD ROADS SCHEME FOR 3 TOWNSHIPS

FORMAL BY-LAW PASSED AT SPECIAL SESSION ON MONDAY, ROADS FOR IMPROVEMENT DESIGNATED AND ONLY ORGANIZING DETAILS REMAIN

ANOTHER SESSION REQUIRED

At a special session on Monday, the County Council gave assent to a system of good roads which has been adopted by the townships of North Monaghan, Otonabee, and Asphodel, and which is held out to the other municipalities whenever any or all of them are prepared to accept it, providing they are contiguous to any township of the compact group that have taken the initiative in this movement.

A by-law was passed authorising a special tax levy of two mills to be [illegible] this year in the three townships: Otonabee $4,540.88, Asphodel $2,048.63, Monaghan $1,372.68, making a total of $7,962.19.

In another by-law the roads designated for improvement were set forth, but the appointment of a road superintendent and the question of his salary were left to a committee composed of Warden McIntosh, Reeves Anderson and Brown, and Deputy-Reeves Eason and Bell, who were instructed to submit their report at another special meeting which, it is expected, will be called in the near future, for the purpose of giving the final flourish to the long-deferred good roads action in Peterborough County.

Other Municipalities Willing.

The Council devoted the entire day to the discussion of the problem, which had been kept in the background since 1914 on account of the generous response the county made to various patriotic funds. By seven o'clock Monday night they had completed details for the southern townships, and left the programme ready for launching as soon as the appointment of a road superintendent is [illegible] commended by the special committee and endorsed by the Council.

During the afternoon there were suggestions that the entire county make the plunge into the Provincial scheme, but after lengthy discussion Reeve Shaw advised the Council to omit the northern townships from the project.

Others Are Willing

Reeves Squire of Norwood, Mattson of Havelock, and Holland of Belmore signified their readiness to link up with the southern trio, but it was pointed out that the chain at Havelock is incomplete until Belmont signs up, and on the west end Smith is holding aloof, thereby leaving a gap between Ennismore and Monaghan. Moreover the villages do not bulk as large as the townships in the county scheme, hence the main load of responsibility falls upon Otonabee, Asphodel and Monaghan.

Comments by Reeves Nicholls of Smith, Coughlin of Douro, and Griffith of Belmont, were directed to the lateness of the season, and the likelihood of the [illegible] imply that there might be converts to the scheme next year.

"Eventually, why not now?" was in brief, the attitude of the pioneers, who preferred to begin this year in the hope that they would have some results to show for the season's operations, however late they may be in starting, and also an efficient organization for next year.

Explained the Act.

Mr. W. A. McLean, of the Highways Department, was present during the afternoon, and explained certain details of the Highways Act.

A point of interest to the city which he mentioned, is that the lengths of suburban roads to be assisted by the city, shall be determined by a commission of three, a member to be appointed by the county, another by the city, and a third to be chosen by these two commissioners. On suburban roads the province pays 60 per cent., city, 20 per cent., and the county 20 per cent. The city's expenditure on roads shall not exceed one-mill on the tax rate.

Mr. McLean subsequently Warden McIntosh's contention that the government will pay 60 per cent. of the cost of bridges on county provincial roads. There is such a bridge in Monaghan which requires rebuilding. Warden McIntosh pointed out that by the adoption of the Good Roads system a saving was thus saved 40 per cent. the cost of constructing this bridge.

On provincial roads the government pays 70 per cent. of the cost, and the county 30 per cent., and in suburban areas the province pays 60 per cent., and the city and county 20 per cent. each.

The Roads Named.

The roads listed in the by-law passed yesterday are officially known as follows:

Monaghan — Gravel, the river road running south and the road extending from the end of Sherbrooke street to the [illegible] boundary of the township.

Otonabee — 1, The Lakefield Point road; 2, the Block [illegible] extending from the city easterly and southerly; 3, the Keene road; 4, the Hastings road, leading east from Keene; 5, a road from Lang to the Hastings highway; 6, a road [illegible] Keene to the Norwood road; 7, the Norwood road; 8, a road [illegible] 6; 9, the road leading north to the Indian River;; 10, the Keene road extended west to the Wallace bridge; 11, a road crossing [illegible] from Lang and continuing [illegible]

Asphodel — 1, The Norwood road from the Otonabee [illegible] ly; 2, the Norwood road from the Otonabee [illegible] wood; 3, a road east from [illegible] to the boundary; 4, [illegible] from the northern [illegible] tings; 5, a road running from the Hastings road to the Norwood road; 6, a road [illegible] line to the Belmont [illegible]

TO DUMP GERMAN DYES

Report That Large Quantities Will be Shipped to United States.

An authority on the dye industry in the United States has reported to the Ways and Means committee at Washington that the German dye syndicate has resources of $400,000,000, and has ready a list of dyes, $200,000,000 in value, which is now ready to send to the United States in payment for food. This is made possible largely owing to the fact that dyes are a by-product of explosive and poison gas factories, and therefore they have been steadily piled up during the war. Great Britain and France have closed their markets on the German dyes, and the only remaining markets of any size are China and the United States. Germany is prepared to sell these immense quantities of dyes at almost any price in order to hold the American market. "No tariff," said the authority mentioned, "would protect us against competition of the German industry. It is imperative that a licensing system be established at once."

THE TONE OF NELL'S LETTERS MORE LOVING

CHAPTER V.

Neil sent the books and the picture. He answered my letter almost at once, which made me very happy that I had not allowed my pride to make me wait as long as he did before writing.

The books I not only read, but studied. When he wrote of them I was thus able to discuss them intelligently with him. They were mostly light reading, but by well-known authors. The picture I placed on my bureau. I begged mother to buy me a frame for it. She bought me a very pretty one, better than she could afford, yet it seemed but a poor setting for Neil's handsome face.

We now wrote regularly. As the fall ran into winter, and the wind again whistled through the brown stalks of the shrubs and the naked tree branches, I longed for more of these expressions of friendship from Neil. Although I neglected none of my duties, helped mother, joined in all the little affairs at the church and at the homes of my young friends, my heart was not in any of them. Neil was constantly in my thoughts.

At Christmas he sent me a set of O. Henry. He was a great admirer of that writer, and had said in one of his letters that he wanted me also to become familiar with his work. I was surprised and delighted, but when in addition I received a wonderful box of American beauty roses I was so happy I cried.

"Looks pretty serious to me," father said, as I arranged the flowers. I recall now what a time I had finding holders for them. I couldn't bear to cut the stems, as mother suggested, so I placed them in the big water pitchers we used in the bedrooms. The only receptacles in the house deep enough to hold them.

One, a beautiful half-opened bud, I carried upstairs and pressed it between the leaves of my Bible. That I would keep always.

As winter waned and the spring winds blew softly and warmly over my cheeks, Neil's letters grew a little more affectionate. Now he often said something about other girls, comparing them to me, always in my favour. Once he said:

"There is no one like you, Bab. No one a fellow feels is so brave, so true, so good. The more I see of these New York girls the more I think of you, dear, and your girlish ways. Keep all your ideals, Bab. The world is pretty hard and sordid at times. We all need something to cling to."

He often now wrote somewhat in this vein. Then at times he would ask me to excuse a short letter, saying that the market had gone all to pieces, and he was terribly busy. I had no slightest idea what he meant. That he was busy was all I grasped. Or he would tell me the market was scooting upward so fast no one could catch it.

I asked father what he meant, but he hadn't any more idea than I had. He answered:

"It is sort of banking business, I guess."

But as a rule Neil wrote nice, long satisfactory letters. And in reply I also told him of everything I thought would interest him. I too allowed myself a little more freedom as time went on, and several times I had signed them "with love" as I had longed to do at first.

Then one day in early spring when the leaves and buds were pushing themselves into a warm sunlit world I almost fainted from sheer joy. Neil was coming!

I went about the house singing in my heart the refrain, "Neil is coming! Neil is coming!" It seemed to me that the soft winds whispered it; that the birds caroled it. Nothing else could possibly engage even their attention, save the one wonderful fact that Neil ("my Neil" I called him blushingly) was coming.

It was the last of May when he arrived. The village never had been prettier, the flowers and shrubs never bloomed more bravely. I had been sewing for weeks so that I too might appear bravely attired. I don't know that I have mentioned my one accomplishment, but I was "a wizard with the needle," so mother and the girls said. And I put all my ingenuity to work so that I might look attractive to Neil. The materials I had to work with were the simplest, but they were all I had been accustomed to wear, and I had not even wished for better.

The Most Beautiful Queen.

Queen Helena of Italy, who played such a big part in the entertainment of President and Mrs. Wilson on their visit to Rome, has been called the most beautiful queen in the world, and the most cultured and gracious as well. She speaks French, German, English and Spanish fluently, in addition to Italian and Latin. She knows Greek as well and is familiar with the literature of all ages. She is a great lover of flowers, fine old lace and rare jewels. In Rome she takes interest in the social life of the court; in her country home at Monza she is a country woman; in the Alps she is as hardy a climber as the Tyrolese, going over glaciers, along narrow paths or to the edge of a precipice with charming indifference.

Airy About It.

"Where are you going, John?"

"To raise the wind."

"What for?"

"To start a draft."

Altruism.

"Jim," said an honest coal dealer to one of his drivers, "Jim, make that ton of coal 200 pounds short. It is for a poor, delicate widow, and she will have to carry all of it up two flights of stairs. I don't want her to overtax her strength."—Philadelphia Kromkie Herald.

LIFE GROWS UNPOPULAR.

Nationalization of Women Causes Trouble In Russia.

The law providing for the nationalization of women in northeast Russia has been suspended in one province as the result of popular outcry, according to information reaching London from Stockholm. The commissariat at Vladimir has, by decree, appointed a committee of women who are to inquire into the operations of the law, and make a report with the least possible delay. His action has been approved by the local soviet. The Krasnaya Gazeta publishes an account of the results of nationalization.

The system provides that every girl on reaching the age of 18 must register her name in the bureau of free love, after which she is compelled to select a partner from among men between 19 and 50 years old. The law led to lamentable confusion, says the Gazeta in "judicial errors as to personal invisibility."

A few days after the soviet decree which women were generally ignored, two men, known to the city, arrived in the town and seized two daughters of a "well-known anti-bourgeois comrade" declaring they had chosen them as wives, and the girls, without further ceremony, must submit as they have not observed the registration rule.

"Comrades Yablonovski and Kuriakin" who sat as judges on the claim, decided the men were right, and the girls were carried off. They have not since been heard of by their village folk. This, says the Gazeta, was done in the name of the nationalization of women.

Many other instances of the fantastic operation of the law, not to speak of its inhumanities, are given by the Gazeta. Enthusiasts for nationalization, naturally all men, said whole villages, see young women and demand proof that they are over 18. As this proof is difficult to give, many of the girls are carried off, and there have been suicides and murders as a result.

On the committee that is now revising the decree or to recommend its complete abrogation, sits Madame Vera Arkadieff, a Bolshevik enthusiast, who commanded a detachment of women soldiers during the recent operations against Admiral Kolchak's Army at Perm. She was badly wounded twice wounded.

Liable to Be Misunderstood.

A prohibitionist told the following story at a banquet: "Once, as I stood at the door of a Savannah club, a banker came forth and sent a footman down to call a cab. The footman, in his zealous hurry tripped on the top step and fell full length. As he gathered himself up, the banker said to him: 'My man, you should be more careful of your reputation. If you do down the steps like that, people will take you for a member.'"

Colors to Glass.

A Frenchman has invented a process for applying colors to glass by heat so that stained glass windows can be made without fastening many pieces of glass of different hues together.

A flowering plant, according to the scientists, abstracts from the soil 200 times its own weight in water during its life.

More Worry.

"Don't worry. Worry affects the ductless glands of the body, thereby causing actual physical ailments."

"Gosh, I'm sorry you told me that. It will make me worry."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Mother"

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

(Copyright, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Hustle out there—we've no room for tramps!" shouted Jabez Tull, proprietor of the leading haberdashery store of Milton.

"I am looking for work," spoke the seedy-looking individual who had crossed the threshold.

"Hurry up, Barlow," came the order to a clerk, who made a dive for the intruder and gave him a rough push. Its recipient resembled a convalescent just out of the hospital, and he went headlong across the sidewalk. His hat fell off. The clerk gave it a kick. His foot went through the worn-out headpiece, which fell in the gutter. A stray dog seized it, scampered away with it, and Ben Dalton arose to his feet weakly but with glowing eyes of indignation.

A crowd had gathered, laughing at his discomfiture. Ben rubbed his bare head, disconsolately, and observed to a policeman who had approached him:

"I sort of want to remember that mean cad yonder. Somehow I feel as if the chance to get even with him is going to come along some fine day."

"Well, you move along," commanded the officer and Ben, hatless, turned down an alley to get free from his defiders of the public street. Homeless, he did not know of a relative in the world. The storekeeper had called him a tramp, but this was a misnomer. Ben had never associated with the genus hobo. Until two years previous he had worked on a farm. Its owner sold out and Ben took to the road. He worked just enough to keep him in pocket money. Then he got sick, was two months in a hospital and was now just regaining his strength.

Ben scanned ash piles and rubbish heaps vainly for a substitute hat. Finally, passing the rear yard of a little cottage with quite some ground about it, his eyes brightened.

An old lady, frail and bent, had built a fire to get rid of a lot of house rubbish. She had just emptied beside the fire a clothes basket filled with rags, old paper and the like. As she tipped its contents over the smoking cinders Ben noticed among them a derby hat. He startled the lady by a sudden spring forward.

"Excuse me, ma'am," he spoke, rescuing the hat from the blaze, "but if you don't mind, I'll take this."

"Why, surely, assented Mrs. Worden, "if you can use it. My husband used to wear it, but now he is dead," and she wiped the tears from her faded eyes with the corner of her apron.

"I lost my hat," explained Ben, "and I'm truly grateful for this one."

Mrs. Worden became garrulous. "I'm cleaning out all the old rubbish," [illegible] "because—I've got [illegible] owned the house, but there was an [illegible] hundred dollar mortgage on it. "[illegible]aybe he lost it, or was robbed, or [illegible] he invested it," suggested Ben.

"[illegible] too bad, anyway. Now, ma'am, [illegible] you start out and burn the stuff [illegible] for the hat. Wish you were [illegible] to stay here; wish I could camp [illegible] down and help you, for I've got [illegible]ome and you remind me of my [illegible]old mother."

[illegible] worked about the place for [illegible]ours and his kind-hearted hostess [illegible]him a famous meal and a quarter [illegible]ollar for his help. She became [illegible]ested in his story and told him he [illegible] come back and sleep in the [illegible]s and have his meals until he [illegible] work.

SEES A LIGHT AHEAD

(BY H. F. GADSBY)

OTTAWA, June 28.—The budget made a break in the clouds just large enough to show the Liberal partp where it stands. The best judges say the political position is hopeful.

Long as the war had to finish before we could know what the war meant, so the budget had to be voted on before we could analyze its political results. It seems plain enough that there are to be two great political parties in this country and that the Conservatives—they may call themselves Unionists—will be the High Tariff party and the Liberals will be the Lower Tariff party but not so low as to stop the goose from laying eggs. Both parties will be safe and sane and they will absorb one way or another, the groups which are now making so much noise in the country.

Of the two parties I could say that the Liberal party has better organization, better prospects and a better knowledge of its own aims and objects. The budget vote makes it clear that Free Trade, as Mr. Crerar and a faithful band conceive it, is still nothing of an ideal and that there are not many members even in the West, who are prepared to hazard their political existence for it. The movement may grow as the West comes up but just now Mr. Crerar's gospel which commands only twelve seats out of fifty eight is only twelve per cent. valid.

This means that the West is more an influence than it is a power in Liberal party politics. It is a good influence to be sure, and it may have considerable effect in shaping a radical platform for a Liberal party at the big convention in August but I am disposed to think that the platform will be more radical than the party's performance if it achieves office. The Liberal party can do a lot of tariff reforming and still leave a substantial margin of protection. It must be remembered that comparatively nothing has been done in the way of tariff reduction except on certain agricultural implements. All that was taken off was the war tax of seven per cent. so that the tariff practically remains where it was in July 1914. The British Preference is put back where it was—nothing is added, nothing is taken away—so that our old friend, the tariff, is apparently in the same robust health as it was five years ago.

I say apparently" because there are signs that the National Policy is not as cocky as it once was. We have been familiar with it forty years and forty years of familiarity with high protection, if it does not breed contempt breeds at least a knowledge of its weaknesses. As Dr. Michael Clark aptly remarks. "We have at least got the cursed thing defending itself."

It is not likely that the Liberal party will lay reeking hands on the tariff—which commands respect as a revenue producer—but neither is it likely that the Liberal party will get the manufacturers' vote which will go Conservative as usual.

The Liberals will probably indulge in nothing more than moderate reform of the tariff—not because they love the tariff more but because they favor national bankruptcy less. Land tax, income tax, inheritance tax—all these are good, as far as they go but they don't go far enough to pay the bill. The tariff we shall have with us for many years to come but we can ease it in the right spots by having freer trade in food, shoes, clothing and the necessaries of life.

Of course the Liberal party will not get another leader like Sir Wilfred Laurier—they breed his kind only once in a hundred years—but it has several admirable contenders to choose from. Not a day goes by that a dark horse is not mentioned. There are enough dark horses on the list right now to make up a squadron of black cavalry. So far as leaders go the party suffers from an embarrassment of riches. Where so many have equal claims to the job, somebody's nose is apt to be put out of joint.

To begin with there are seven provincial premiers, any one of whom,—not to mention any of their many brilliant colleagues—might be promoted to Ottawa. I do not think, however, that a leader will be chosen from any of provincial legislatures I am inclined to believe that choice I [illegible] will be an old Parliamentary hand with a long Ottawa experience, and a sound record on the tariff, and that the stand he took on conscription will make little difference one way or another. He will probably be a member of the Old Guard and the older he is the better for that will mean that he will drop out after a decent interval and give the Young Brigade their chance.

The Liberal party has a very promising Young Brigade—young, that is to say, as politicians go—and among those present are Mackenzie King, Premier Martin of Saskatchewan, Parliamentary, General Hudson of [illegible] Hughes, Dewart and Frell [illegible] when the Old Guard retires [illegible] the breach of brigadiers [illegible] only a leader but a capable headquarters staff to draw from.

I do not need to name over the Old Guard—all of them doughty but I repeat my belief that one of the Old Guard will be the next Liberal leader, not only to keep the young Guard quiet, but to give Canada a sizable figure of national reputation and approved record. Several members of the Old Guard answer this description—Frank Oliver, George Graham, Rodolphe Lemieux, Jacques Bureau, Sir Allan Aylesworth, D.D. Mackenzie, William Stevens Fielding and others. Quebec is not disposed to act as a [illegible] in the path. She has her favorite sons to be sure—and they are second to none in ability and renown—but the assents to the proposition that it is an English Protestant's turn and will make no difficulties.

I miss my guess if the chosen leader is not from the East not because the East has a monopoly of wise men, but because the Western tail isn't big enough yet to swing the Eastern dog, though it may be allowed to wag freely enough while the convention is making the platform.

When I say a man from the East my thoughts naturally turn to D. D. Mackenzie, who is keeping the seat warm. D. D. has developed great social qualities during his short tenure, tells a story with all the esprit of the late Sir John Macdonald, and is a "mixer" of no mean proportions. Somebody said the other day "If D.D Breezes into that convention and gets off three of his best stories I think he'll capture it hands down." And there is just that chance. D.D.—as he is affectionately called—wants it which I do not believe he does. The genial D.D. will lay his golden crown, plentifully lined with thorns, cheerfully down when the Shining One comes along.

Who is that Shining One? More and more opinion here tends to W. S. Fielding who has all the marks that lead the seekers to him. He is from the East, he has a national reputation; he has done notable things for freer trade—wide Reciprocity and the British Preference; he is the author of the German Surtax, which should be a feather in his cap just now; he is one of the best finance ministers Canada ever had and heaven knows financial expert is what this country needs; and he is old enough not to stand too long in the way of that aspiring youth which wants to have its fling now that the Liberal party has got over its unreasonable opposition to young men in office.

Moreover Mr. Fielding came out strongly against the budget and in favor of the McMaster resolution which is a sign that he is back where he belongs. It is true that Mr. Fielding gave Sir Wilfred Laurier a brief Gethsemane in 1905 on the Autonomy Bills, but in the end he stood fast. Quebec has forgiven him not only for the defection he did not make in 1905 but for the defection he did make in 1917—for no other reason than that he looks like the Joshua who is to lead them into the promised land. It is understood here that the combination is Fielding-Gouin, with Quebec strong man in the second place. At all events the Quebec members take Fielding-Gouin with nobody in particular objecting except one or two who apprehended that such a partnership would push them into the background.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Colour, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or grey. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hair has disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

BEWARE OF TENDER, INFLAMED GUMS

Pyorrhea, with a premature loss of teeth, is almost inevitable if you do not properly care for your gums. Here is the explanation:

As you age, the body tissues naturally relax. You see this tissue loosening in the neck. It goes on in your gums, too. As you grow older, your gums shrink below the normal gum line. Through lack of care they become spongy and inflamed. Then you have Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease). Four out of five people over forty have Pyorrhea. And many under forty, also.

Don't let a tender gum spot develop. These tender spots breed disease germs which enter the system through tiny openings—infecting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments. Immediately get Forhan's, which positively prevents Pyorrhea if used in time and used consistently. Forhan's tones the gums and hardens them. They in turn keep the teeth healthy. Brush your teeth with Forhan's. It cleans them scientifically—keeps them white and clean.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment: 35c and 60c tubes. All Druggists.

ODESSA AND WASHINGTON.

Two Cities Were Planned by Brilliant Frenchmen.

Before the war the city of the Near East, save Bucharest, so nearly resembled Paris and Vienna in its hectic night life as did Odessa. Odessa had hundreds of sidewalk cafes, its municipal opera, its palaces of chance, and its gilded halls of the half-world. It had more than half a million population, yet is one of the newest cities in Europe. Moscow's history extends over a thousand years, that of Odessa only a little beyond a century.

There is a unique analogy between Odessa and the capital city of the United States. Both were started about the same time—during the last decade of the eighteenth century—and both were begun because the far-seeing wisdom of the chief executives of the two nations.

Perhaps the oddest coincidence is the fact that they both were aided by foreign civil engineers of fame and nation. While Major L'Enfant was devising the "City of Magnificent Distances" to be erected on the banks of the Potomac, Volland, a Frenchman, laid out Odessa at the shore of the Black Sea. While President Washington was during into being the beautiful city which bears his name, Catrina Catrine the Great was sponsoring the building of a municipal spring stone toward the chief object of the Russian Bear's stealthy trek—Constantinople.

Like Washington, Odessa is not in the midst of a virgin forest and swamp. An isolated Turkish fort, Khaji-Bey, stood on the site of the present city at the time of 1789, when it passed to Russia. Early years of the Christian era Greek colonists had taken advantage of the Bay of Odessa.

Until five years ago the sea-way distance between Odessa and Odessa was more than a thousand miles, but a new line, via Baltimore reduced that distance to 8,200 miles. The steamship distance between Odessa and Constantinople is 1,000 miles.

From its history it is evident why Odessa was far from a typical Russian city. Mark Twain found the only Russian things about it to be the shape of the droshkis and some of the drivers. Heinzelman mentioned the gilded domes of new churches. There the likeness ends.

A few miles to the north and to the southwest are three "limans," or lagoons, famous for medicinal mud to benefit persons with rheumatism, gout and skin diseases. The most popular of these is 20 miles long, a mile wide, 10 feet deep and from 16 feet below the level of the Black Sea.

PREVENT POTATO ROT

Spraying With Bordeaux Mixture Proven Very Effective.

Machinery Must Be Kept Well Oiled If It Is to Work Efficiently—An Expert Discusses the Question From Every Angle.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

LATE Blight and Rot of Potatoes can be prevented by spraying with Bordeaux mixture. Commence spraying when the plants are from five to eight inches high and keep the foliage covered with Bordeaux throughout the season. Take special care to see that the spraying is very thoroughly done if the weather is at all damp about the 15th of July, as Blight often begins about this time. Add a poison when necessary for potato beetles—arsenate of lead paste 3½ lbs. to each 40 gals. of the liquid spray, or Paris green 2 lbs. to 40 gals., or a mixture of 2 lbs. arsenate of lead paste and 1 lb. of Paris green to 40 gals. From three to seven applications should be made, depending upon the season—the wetter the weather the larger the number. Do not put off spraying because it looks like rain. If the spray is on the plants half an hour before the rain comes it will be dry and sufficient of it will stick to prevent infection, which takes place during or soon after rain. Such spraying should prevent not only Late Blight and Rot but also Early Blight and potato beetles.

Thorough spraying only is effective. If thorough spraying is to be done sufficient Bordeaux mixture must be used. From 50 to 150 gals per acre should be applied at each spraying, and when the plants are large not less than 100 gallons per acre should be used. Thorough spraying means the covering of every portion of the potato plant with Bordeaux mixture in the form of a fine mist. This can only be done when the solution is applied with good pressure, so as to insure covering every portion of the plant. The best results from spraying are obtained when potato sprayers are used which are fitted with a T-joint attachment so as to insure covering both surfaces of the leaves at each spraying. When the plants are large it has been found that it pays to go over each row twice at each spraying.—Prof. J. E. Howitt, O. A. College, Guelph.

The Importance of Keeping Machinery Properly Oiled.

The importance of keeping machinery properly oiled may be better realised when we try to compute, in dollars and cents, the annual sacrifice in machine efficiency through friction. Carelessness in lubrication may easily reduce the efficiency of a machine fully fifty per cent. At the same time the machine itself is wearing out faster, on account of the needless friction, than owing to the real work done.

The microscope reveals the fact that the surface of the most highly polished shaft ever made is as rough and untrue as a rough casting appears to the unaided eye. In practice it is not possible to make a metal surface that is absolutely smooth, incompressible, or even a true circle, hence inequalities of pressure at the bearings, grinding and tearing of the metal fibres, causing friction, producing factors of inefficiency and wear and tear. Though these faults of construction cannot be avoided, we can, in a great measure, overcome the effect in machinery, by judicious application of a lubricating agent.

The lubricant consists of minute balls or globules. These readily insinuate themselves between the faces in mutual contact forming a cushion, keeping the metals apart. Its use is not only to reduce friction, but also to carry away whatever excess of heat is generated. All liquids have not sufficient sustaining powers to be used as efficient lubricants. Some cannot be retained between the metals; others do not cling together persistently enough. To resist the tendency of the metal to tear the lubricating film apart, these globules must have a good deal of internal strength, and must stick together well. They must also cling well to the metal, or they will be squeezed out of the bearing.

The oils and the fats are the principal lubricants. The mineral oils are thin, and so are lard, olive, and sperm oils. Castor oil, neatsfoot, tallow and rape are thick. Nothing is better for high speed bearings and light spindles or shafts than sperm oil, but it is costly; for heavy bearings castor oil is superior to this, but it is also expensive.

But there is relatively little pure lubricant used in machinery, for it is usually more economical to employ a compound oil, compounded for special uses, than to use pure lubricants which, after all, are often heavily adulterated — gum, soap lime, alumina soda, and free acids have their own distinct purpose to serve in the composition of cheap oils. The chief advantage, however, pertaining to the use of compound oils is, that the objectionable qualities, of one kind of lubricant can be neutralised by mixing it with a lubricant of another kind. For instance, vegetable and fish oils are drying oils, that is, they oxidize rapidly, and cause gumming or clogging of the bearings to which they are applied, and if allowed to drop and accumulate upon dust, cotton waste, and timber are liable to develop an internal heat that will cause spontaneous combustion. Mineral oil does not oxidize, neither does animal. But mineral oils have what is termed a low flashing point; that is, they fire or ignite at a low temperature, some at 212 degrees Fah., or under. Animal oils develop fatty acids, and these corrode and pit the surface of the metal which they are used to lubricate.—Prof. John Evans, O. A. College, Guelph.

CONNIE MACK IS RETIRING.

Famous Manager Through.

Will be Succeeded as Head of Athletics by Harry Davis—Great Career.

Connie Mack (McGillicuddy), the famous manager of Philadelphia Athletics and one of the greatest leaders in baseball of all time, is retiring from the handling of the team and will look after the business of the game henceforth. He started his managerial career with Pittsburg in 1894, remaining with them 1895 and 1896. From there he went to Milwaukee, and in 1901 he became manager and part owner of the Athletics when Philadelphia became a member of the American League and has been so ever since.

Always a Gentleman.

Connie Mack besides being a splendid strategist and a close student of all things, in baseball never ceased to be a gentleman on or off the field.

He was the first to use a fine tooth comb on all the colleges of the country in building up his teams, and he more than any other raised the tone of the game by bringing these clean-cut college lads into professional baseball.

His success is recent enough not to require any further comment than a reference to the Baseball Guides. He has had world's champions and all the honor that baseball can give besides the good-will of every baseball fan in America.

Harry Davis, long Mack's lieutenant, it is said will succeed him manager of the Athletics. He was the Athletics first baseman from 1901 to 1911. He went to Cleveland to manage in 1912, but returned to Athletics before half the season was over. He retired at the end of 1917.

OUT OF REACH.

There is a darky in Savannah who has been forever in trouble with his wives. He is now getting a divorce from his third dusky helpmate.

Not long ago his employer, a bachelor, remarked to a friend:

"Why don't I get married and settle down? Well, Walter, I'll tell you: I'm in the market, but I come high. When I can find a nice sweet girl with at least two hundred thousand dollars in her own name I'm going to grab her."

The victim of three matrimonial ship-wrecks, who was scrubbing the office floor, straightened up on his knees.

"Mistah [illegible]," he said, "scuse me; but it [illegible] do look to me lak nigger woman, I's gwine be price-you is holdin' yo'se'f mighty cheap, fer a handsome w'ite genelman, sech ez you is. Two hund'd thousand dollars—huh! Ef ever I gits out of de mess I'm in wid dis here present less!"

First Steps in English.

The police in Calcutta caught a native coming out of a shop early in the morning and arrested him on suspicion. The man had on the previous evening concealed himself inside the shop and had employed the time until morning in fitting himself with a complete suit of clothes, including a white shirt, with studs and links, a red tie, carefully put on, black socks, a pair of patent leathers, watch and chain, handkerchief, pocket knife, straw hat and cane. He was [illegible] the [illegible] of writing his name inside the hat. On being arraigned before a magistrate he gave the queerest excuse imaginable. He said that he wanted to learn English and, as a preliminary step, thought it best to dress like an Englishman.

Where Mirrors Are Forbidden

The followers of [illegible] de Labadie still flourish in some parts of Holland. The tenets of the Labadists forbid the use of mirrors as tending to foster vanity and a love of fine clothes. This self denying ordinance is all the more creditable, seeing that, next to the founder, the leading figure among the Labadists was a woman. When [illegible] de Labadie left the Reformed church and founded a sect of his own [illegible] dox beliefs made it impossible for him to [illegible] his flock. A [illegible] man came to the [illegible] and [illegible] the Labadists to settle at Wieuwerd in Friesland. LARDNER TELLS ABOUT JESS WILLARD'S SPARRING PARTNERS

THEY BOX AT 3 A.M. TO FOOL THE NEWSPAPER MEN—DANBURY HATTER'S SCHEME TO KEEP THE RAIN AND SUN OFF THE BIG BATTLERS.

.... By RING W. LARDNER. ....

Toledo, Ohio, June 27. — Gentle: This thing is becoming more involved every minute. Today we have the rumor that Willard has got a lot of spies over at the Dempsey headquarters every afternoon, and vice versa. If this is true that they are cheating on each other like that it seems to me that the fight ought to be stopped, and if Governor Cox won't stop it I will stop it myself.

Rumor number two is that Jess has got a concaled sparring partner that is bigger than himself, and that they work out together at three o'clock every morning, when the newspaper men are not out there, or if they were out there they couldn't see. This man is said to be living in a two-acre lot adjacent to Willard's camp, and when he sleeps during the daytime he disguises himself as a fallen tree, and fools not only Dempsey's spies, but also the newspaper men, the latter of whom have been heard when they saw him to say, "My you must have had some storm around Toledo to blow that big tree over." This afternoon there is supposed to be a meeting going on somewhere in the hotel between Tex Rickard and Mr. Biddle of the Philadelphia Biddles, to decide on the referee question, but I shall have to leave it to some o fthe regular newspaper men to find out how they come out, as I don't know Mr. Biddle and am not on speaking terms with Mr. Rickard after him not telling me about the oil stock.

.... THE MAD HATTER. ....

So the only big news of the day that I have been able to get hold of is that Joe Mulvihll, the Danbury, Conn. hatter, as Ted called him, has invented an umbrella that is 70 feet in diameter, to hold over the fighters during the fight in case it rains, and it will serve as a parasol if the sun shines, and if it neither rains nor shines it can be used as a bumbershoot, and Joe's idea is to have it held steady by four captive balloons, but he don't know where he can capture the balloons, but if my ideas about the referee question are carried out, and they have a male quartet in the ring instead of one referee, the four singers could each grab a hold of one corner of the bumbershoot and hold it steady without interfering with their songs.

EIGHTY TONS OF NAILS.

This same Joe Mulvihill told me today that I could get a great story if I went out and looked at the arena and talked to the bird who is constructing it named Mr. McLaughlin. So I asked him if he couldn't give me the story without me going out, so he said, "Yes, there is going to be 180,000 feet of lumber used and 75,000 seats and 80 tons of nails." So there's the story, and I am sorry I forgot to ask him about the number of splinters.

Also the last time I was on speaking terms with Mr. Rickard he told me that Mr. McLaughlin, the bird who is building the arena, was going to sit in a ten-dollar seat in the back row of said arena during the fight, presumably so he can look at the arena and see how it behaves without being bothered by looking at the fighters.

I finally saw Mr. Willard last night without having to go out to his training camp. He came downtown and right into the hotel, presumably looking for me, and I saw him, and went up and spoke to him, and asked him if he objected to me nicknaming him the big fellow, and he said he didn't care, so we are getting along all O.K.

Another piece of news that I got was that Joe Chip, the Scranton middleweight, had come on to help Jess get in shape. Joe is George's brother, and Tad says he wears a seventeen and a half collar, and can draw it on either over his head or over his feet. Dempsey's workout yesterday consisted of him practising standing on the ropes, so he can reach Willard's jaw. Jack wanted Mr. Rickard to let him have stilts or roller skates, but Tex wouldn't stand for it.

The Bull.

The bull is a male ruminant, specifically a he cow. The bull is a historical animal. He has been worshiped in Egypt, thrown in the cattle country, fought in Mexico and Spain and canned in Chicago. The Egyptians called him Apis and built temples to him, but bull worship was not a profitable business, as all the Egyptians who followed the bull are either dust or mummies and have been so for centuries. On the other hand, canning the bull has made a flock of millionaires, so the live ones everywhere have adopted the western idea and pretty generally can the bull. Don't be a bull thrower.

Between the Poles.

Although Lord Rayleigh is a noted scientist and a profound scholar, he has a humorous side to his nature, and he once played a neat little joke on a learned friend with whom he had been discussing some deep subjects.

"What is the difference between the north and south poles?" he asked gravely.

His lordship's friend thought he had a new scientific problem to grapple with and brought all the weight of his brain to bear upon the question.

"I really must give it up," he said at last.

"The answer is simple enough," replied Lord Rayleigh with a smile. "There is all the difference in the world."—London Answers.

MOVIE WRITER HAS GAINED 28 POUNDS

MRS. COOPER, AGE 72, SAYS SHE NEVER FELT BETTER IN HER LIFE—TANLAC ENDS 25 YEARS TROUBLE.

"The past winter was the first one I have gone through in fifteen years without having La Grippe, and I attribute it to the way Tanlac built me up," was the remarkable statement made by Mrs. T. A. Cooper of 1147 Irola street, Los Angeles, in an interview recently.

Mrs. Cooper, who is well known in the literary field, has been writing for some of the magazines for years. She also writes "movie" stories, and is at the present time writing a special story for one of our most popular screen actresses.

When asked if she was willing to have her statement regarding Tanlac published, Mrs. Cooper said: — "Yes, indeed, and you may tell them that when I began taking the medicine I only weighed ninety-eight pounds; but that I now weigh one hundred and twenty-six, making an actual gain of twenty-eight pounds.

"For twenty-five years I had catarrh in my head. Ten years ago the trouble reached my stomach and made me most miserable. I got so I could not eat at all without bloating all up and suffering for hours. The gas would press on my heart, and bring on such awful spells of palpitation that I would almost faint. I was so nervous that the least noise would startle me and make me tremble like a leaf. I tried many different kinds of medicines but gradually got worse until I reached the point where I could not get around at all.

"I was almost a confirmed invalid for a long time and not until last fall when I got Tanlac was I able to find anything to help me. Well, almost from the time I began taking Tanlac I commenced to improve. Of course when I found that it was helping me I kept on taking it until now I can eat and drink just anything I want. The gas has left my stomach entirely and my nerves are as good as ever, and while I am now seventy-two years of age I don't believe I ever felt stronger and better. The only medicine I keep in my house now is Tanlac and the Laxative Tablets that come with it. I consider it the finest treatment for stomach trouble and a run down condition there is and I will be glad to tell anyone who cares to call me up what it has done for me and what I believe it will do for them."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers' Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle and Son.

Why Tennyson Wrote No Letters.

Tennyson once told Sir Henry Taylor that he thanked with his whole heart and soul that he knew nothing and that the world knew nothing of Shakespeare but his writings and that he knew nothing of Jane Austen and that there were no letters preserved either of Shakespeare or of Jane Austen; that they, in fact, had not been "ripped open like pigs."

Great Age of Halley's Comet.

While Halley's comet has been identified as a member of our system for over 2,000 years, certain characteristics of its orbit lead us to believe that it has been with us at least ten or a hundred times as long as that. According to all accounts, it was a magnificent object at the time of the Norman conquest in 1066. Its head was equal to the full moon in size, and its tail increased to a wonderful length.

Trick of the Lemon Growers.

By an interesting yet simple method two crops of lemons are obtained [illegible] thrifty during the year, though the second is in every way inferior. The abnormal fruit is known as the Verdelli lemon and is marketed during the summer months. The Verdelli lemon, green in color, grows contemporaneously on the same trees with the ordinary or yellow lemon of commerce and is obtained by the following method: The lemon tree, which flowers in April, is kept without water from that period until July, when the roots are heavily flooded for a time. This results in a second set of blossoms, from which will come the Verdelli lemons. The ordinary lemon crop is picked in the months beginning with October. The Verdelli lemons do not mature until the next May.

How He "Looked."

Two young men were standing in a hotel where they had gone to use the free comb and the free brush. One of them seemed to think he looked rather nifty. He had on a new suit of clothes and he turned and twisted as he admired himself in the glass. Finally he could not resist the temptation to hear the spoken word of commendation.

"How do you think I look?" he asked his companion.

The other looked at him and sniffed. "You look like an accident going somewhere to happen," was his reply.

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer
This is the season when she who would have a lily-white complexion should turn her thoughts to mercolized wax, the firm friend of the summer girl. Nothing so effectually overcomes the soiling effects of sun, wind, dust and dirt. The wax literally absorbs the scorched, discolored, withered or coarsened scarf skin, bringing forth a brand new skin, clear, soft and girlishly beautiful. It also unclogs the pores, removing blackheads and increasing the skin's breathing capacity.
An ounce of mercolized wax obtainable at any drugstore, applied nightly like cold cream, and washed off mornings, will gradually improve even the worst complexion. There is nothing better for the removal of tan, freckles or blotches.

PICNIC AT MAY'S SCHOOLHOUSE

Thursday afternoon May's school closed for the summer term, and the children hurried gaily home to dream of the picnic on the following morning. Great preparations were made in many homes, and in the afternoon a large crowd gathered at Jackson's Park to enjoy a pleasant outing. Not only the teachers and pupils were present but also the parents of the children and many other people of the section who have no children in the school but who are interested and have the welfare of the school at heart.

After a few days of rain the afternoon turned out delightfully sunny with the air just cool enough to make it enjoyable. About two o'clock the crowd began to gather at the park, and every street car brought fresh loads until a very large crowd had assembled.

A good programme of sports had been arranged and the races were graded so that not only the senior girls and boys were included, but also the little tots under five.

A Mother's Race.

Then there was a mothers' race, a slow bicycle race and several other special features after which suitable prizes were distributed to the winners. The sports were supervised by Mrs. H. Jackson, Miss D. Stoker, and Miss V. Watt.

A booth had been arranged where fruit, candy, pop corn and ice cream cones were sold and many pennies, dimes and quarters found their way into the money box. The booth was presided over by Miss F. Nicholls and Mrs. Alice Stilson.

About five o'clock table cloths were spread on the grass and the large crowd all sat down together to a bounteous repast.

The school board had granted $10 to give the children a treat of ice cream, so all the children received this special treat in addition to all the other good things. About eight o'clock the party broke up and all declared that they had spent a most enjoyable time. A vote of thanks is extended by the teachers to Mr. W. Yale and Mrs. J. Davis, who so kindly helped with all the arrangements, and also to the ladies who so willingly came forward to help serve.

A Large Crowd.

The large crowd of adults who attended and the kindly interest shown promises well for the future "School and Home" organization, which is to be established in September, in connection with this school. There is nothing that will more firmly establish the bond of sympathy so essential to success, between the school and the home, than this "School and Home" forward movement, and the community gatherings.

The past year has been a very successful one at May's School and the school board are pleased to announce that the same staff of teachers will take up the work in September. An increase of $100 each per annum has been granted to the teachers for the coming year.

Harold Kingsley came to Eagle Heights for a month's recreation from his literary labors. He was tall and ... almost to the point of lankiness, and he had black hair and deep brown eyes from which a soul seemed to shine.

... when he came along the beach Martha was throwing sticks into the water for a white fox terrier to chase. Harold stopped and watched, standing some distance behind the girl, so she did not become aware of his presence.

"Come on, Knight," she admonished, and the dog emerged from the water holding a jagged stick which he dropped at the girl's feet. Then Knight spied Harold and crept to him just as a shaking spell seized him.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," Martha exclaimed, when she turned and saw Harold brushing drops of water from his clothes. "That is, Knight begs your pardon."

Harold laughed lightly and reaching down patted the terrier regardless of the latter's dripping skin.

"Don't bother about the apologies," he remonstrated. "I was dry and again. ... this is not ... their ...

From that time they were friends, the three of them. Nearly every evening they were together, walking along the tanbark paths in the woods or seated in a secluded nook on the lake shore.

Sometimes he talked to her of the big town and the sights he had seen on his travels; at other times he read or recited poetry.

As the days rolled past their relations became more intimate, and frequently they talked of personal things. The man proved fascinating beyond her most imaginative dreams of knights, and she held an attraction for him to which none of the patrons of the hotel, who were bound to notice what went on, could reconcile themselves, especially the feminine element, which was in the majority.

One night Harold grasped Martha's hand and told her:

"Martha, somehow, I've come to care for you a lot."

"Why?" she wanted to know. "Why do you like me? I know I am not good looking, and I have just lords of freckles."

He was silent, while he watched a seal blink from afar and wondered whether people lived on it.

"Because you are so natural," he finally said. "You're not the least bit artificial, like most girls I know. You are not tainted from contact with the world. You are just yourself, and you don't try to be anything else. And do you know, I'm rather fond of freckles, particularly that one on the end of your nose."

The next night—it was nearly a month since his first appearance at Eagle Heights—his manner was entirely different. He answered her in monosyllables and appeared wrapped in thought.

"Why are you so very ... night?" she asked. Th... and came to the steps ... veranda before he answe...

"I hate that girl!" said Martha, and she meant it so much she broke the point of the pen when she jabbed it into the potato that served as a holder.

Martha's feelings toward Elizabeth Ross were not improved by an incident which took place the day after the latter's arrival. Knight, the terrier, liked to be friendly with all the guests, and he tried to be with Miss Ross when the latter ascended the steps to the veranda after a walk with Harold along the shore.

Did Miss Ross stoop and pat Knight as he frisked about her? Decidedly she did not. Instead, she kicked him with her dainty foot, and Knight went away with his tail between his ... surprised and mortified.

Came the day when Harold and his bride-to-be were to leave. Martha had her eyes open for a last glimpse of him, and she finally spied him through a window, coming toward the hotel, in company with Miss Ross. They were talking earnestly—at least, the girl was—and Martha rejoiced that there might be some kind of a dispute.

* * * * * * *

Slowly the sun crept out of sight behind the rim of Walloon lake, leaving a streaked blaze of blended red, gold and blue. In a secluded dell, fringed with faintly rustling maples, stood a freckled-faced, pug-nosed girl, one arm against a tree, her gaze following a little steamboat that was ... placid water.

A shrill scream pierced the sky as a seagull, circling overhead, spied a dinner and swooped down to snatch it from the blue. The little boat plugged steadily onward, the sound of its exhaust carried distinctly on the clear air. The waves lapped against the shore at the girl's feet. From the hotel came the phonographic notes of a jazz band melody.

The girl stooped and patted the head of the white dog, which stopped snapping at a fly long enough to caress the hand with his tongue.

"He's gone, Knight," she said. "He's on that boat, see?" And she turned the animal's head toward the ferry, which just then uttered a hoarse blast and glided behind a point that shut it from the view of the watchers. Tears could not be kept from Martha's eyes, and Knight sniffed as though he were crying, too.

"Now you're my only Knight," she told the dog.

Something rustled behind them and the dog growled as he sprang toward the sound; but the growl was smothered in his throat and his tail began to wag furiously.

For a moment Martha was too astonished for words.

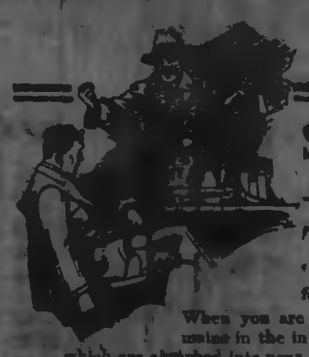
He reached and picked a leaf from a tree, and crumpled it in his hand.

"You thought right, partly," he said. "Miss Ross is on that boat, but we—well, we had a disagreement after she made a show—after she kicked this little dog, and so things are not—they are different now. You see, she's ...



Spring Fever —What Is It?

THREE o'clock in the afternoon — and absolutely no "pep." You call it spring fever, but is it?

When you are constipated waste matter remains in the intestines, decays, forms poisons which are absorbed into your blood and carried by it to every cell in your body. When your cells are thus poisoned, of course you have no "pep."

Pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil, etc., merely force the bowels to act, and make constipation and self-poisoning a habit.

Nujol is entirely different from drugs as it does not force or irritate the bowels.

Nujol prevents stagnation by softening the food waste and encouraging the intestinal muscles to act naturally, thus removing the cause of constipation and self-poisoning. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Warning: Nujol is sold in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. Ask druggists. Insist on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

World Has Little Use for Man Who Wastes His Time and Theirs Talking Hard Luck.

"Bad luck never comes singly," is an old proverb and an untrue one. Its fallacy lies in the word luck. A man invites most of his misfortunes. Let fate hand him one body blow and he proclaims the fact that something has gone wrong. Men are so busy at their own affairs in the world, so engrossed in the struggle of accomplishing what they have set out to do, that a hanging head and a dismal countenance as a rule only serve to send them on faster about their business. ... have no time to stop and ask ... wrong. They are apt ... to jostle anyone who stumbles in their path. But let the man who has incurred one body blow at the hands of fate remain indomitable, let him continue his course aggressively, and he will find that those about him are as ready as ever to greet him. He will not be jostled because he is not in the way. How many college football players have been badly bruised when they were holding off because they felt a bit tired? And how seldom is one injured when he hurls himself full tilt into the opposition interference? The same rule applies to life.

Hippocrates, the famous early Greek physician, recommended fresh air as a cure for many diseases, and a number of ancient and medieval writers in medicine follow his suggestion.

Benjamin Franklin, in an article written in 1776, extolled the virtue of fresh air and emphasized how easy it was to prolong one's life by living in the open.

Starfishes have a considerable power of reproducing lost parts, a single arm having been known to grow up into a new starfish.

Curiosities From the Ocean.

It has recently been discovered that the eggs of dog fish are as good for eating purposes as hen's eggs. Those of the larger variety of dog-fish are quite as large as ordinary hen's eggs.

The empty shells or cases of these eggs may sometimes be picked up on the sea shore. They are squarish flaps of leathery stuff, with the egg in the centre.

Turtle eggs are largely eaten in all hot countries. You find them on almost any sandy beach between latitude 25 north and 25 south.

The turtles come out of the sea, scrape a hole in the sand, lay their eggs and cover them up. A hundred and fifty are often found in one nest.

These eggs are about the size of hen's eggs, covered with a white, parchment-like shell, and, if fresh, of excellent flavor. They make capital omelettes, or can be fried or used for cooking, but they will not boil. That is to say, the white will not set as does that of a bird's egg.

The fresh water turtle also lays edible eggs. There are both hard-shell and soft-shell turtles in the lakes of Florida and Louisiana; also in the Orinoco.

LARDNER VISITS THE TRAINING CAMP AND LOOKS OVER THE BUNCH OF BOXERS

FANS PAY A QUARTER EVERY DAY TO SEE JESS AND JACK WORK OUT—NO COMPETITION FOR THE BUGS' TWENTY-FIVE-CENT PIECES—OPINION OF THE FIGHTERS.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 25.—Gents.: A little while ago Doc. Evans from old Chi., as I have nicknamed Chicago, made a physical examination of Jess Willard, and said he looked O.K. to him, or something, and now they tell me Martin Delaney, the athletic coach, is coming down to overlook the big fellow and see if he is fit. But I think what they ought to do is send a bird here from some good psychopathic hospital and have him examine the ladies and gents that pay a quarter every day to see Jess and Jack work out.

The reason I say work out is because they do it outdoors and call it work.

I was one of the goofs in attendance yesterday p.m., but you can bet I did not pay no two bits to see it, because I was in company with newspaper [illegible] that gets in free to everything, and Bob Edgren, which took us out in his car, knows all the trainers, etc., so the minute they would see who I was with I had carte blanche, you might say, to mingle with the other insects at no expense to myself.

The Camp of the Big Fellow.

The first place Bob took us was to the camp of the big fellow, because his work out comes first every day. When I first heard that Willard and Dempsey was going to fight I thought of course they must be mad at each other, or why would they do it, but I don't see now how they can be mad at each other, or why would one of them start his work out an hour ahead of the other one every day, so that there is no competition for the bugs' twenty-five cent pieces.

Well, anyway, when we arrived in the big fellow's camp, the big fellow was spooning with a bird named Hemple, but I immediately nicknamed him the little fellow, because he looked that way alongside of the big fellow. Well, to make a short story out of a long story, we stayed there till Jess had worked ten rounds all told, with four sparring partners, and the more I saw of the sparring partners the more I couldn't help for wishing that Darwin could of been there.

Well, I suppose the public will want to know what I think of the big fellow after seeing him work. Well, I [illegible] going to be orig[illegible] if nothing else, girls I will say [illegible] you, genm, that he looked to me [illegible] as fit as a fiddle and fast as a [illegible]. A whole lot of other experts [illegible] made the remark that his [illegible] seemed to be kind of far around [illegible] was too hot and tired to go [illegible] around and find out. [illegible] if a person looks fat I don't think it's polite to make remarks about [illegible]male or female.

Looking Over Jersey.

Well, we left the [illegible]llow and went over to Demp[illegible] club-house, and the thing that [illegible]ssed me the minute we went inside [illegible] that they had a phonograph pl[illegible] a patriotic song. Well, Jack [illegible] ready to ask you so we sat [illegible] front porch and looked at the h[illegible] and wondered if there was more [illegible] there or on land. Then [illegible] pointed out Bat Nelson's patent [illegible]anical sparring partner, which [illegible]d to be just as good as live [illegible] partners. Bat [illegible] couldn't [illegible]ocked down and I [illegible] his word [illegible].

All [illegible] sudden [illegible]bouted that Dempsey was ready [illegible] work, so we decided [illegible] to see him at Dickerson stock [illegible] and Dan Runyan and look [illegible] picture, and Damon said now [illegible] thought he could call it a perfect [illegible], as he always wanted to be [illegible]s picture then. When we finally [illegible] inside the [illegible]l pen Dempsey was [illegible]ring with [illegible]rtner named the Jersey Kid, because he is so full of [illegible] I would [illegible] judge from looking [illegible] him that he had got a few drops [illegible] negro blood in his veins. Well, [illegible]ake a short story out of a long [illegible]. Jack boxed with a tall shark [illegible] named [illegible] Tate, and a fast [illegible] bird named [illegible]k Malone, and [illegible]nt out against got in Mr. Edgren [illegible]r and then her experts asked [illegible] what I thought of Dempsey, [illegible] said I thought he looked [illegible]at and old, [illegible] they tried to [illegible] out of it, [illegible] when I got an [illegible] on a subject I am going to [illegible] it.

[illegible]le back to [illegible] and that's all [illegible] the news, except that they are [illegible] to name the [illegible]ree to-morrow [illegible]ng, and I guess we will all be nervous to-[illegible] that we can [illegible].

[illegible] dress of beige and pomegranate displays a red cravat. [illegible]ple frocks of [illegible]cked voile have [illegible]rs almost to the waist line. [illegible]avars as a trimming on blue [illegible]nt leather shoes from Paris. Swiss is peculiarly [illegible] to the [illegible] because of its snowflakey [illegible]

Wives and Others Need Not Have Backaches

Constantly on their feet, attending to the wants of a large and exacting family, wives often break down with nervous exhaustion.

In the stores, factories, and on a farm are weak, ailing women, dragged down with nagging backache and bearing down pains.

The dizziness, insomnia, and other symptoms of kidney complaint can't cure themselves, they require the assistance of Dr. Hamilton's Pills which go direct to the seat of the trouble.

To give vitality and power to the kidneys, to lend tone to the bladder and liver, to free the blood of poisons, probably there is no remedy so successful as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. For all womanly irregularities their merit is well known.

Because of their mild soothing and healing effect Dr. Hamilton's Pills are safe, and are recommended for girls and women of all ages. 25c. per box at all dealers. Refuse any substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

DIRIGIBLE ON THE WAY

LATE REPORTS

(United Press.)

LONDON, July 2.—Bowling along at a speed of forty knots, the huge British dirigible R34 was more than 300 miles out on her flight to America at 9 a.m. (3 a.m. New York time) this morning.

The British Admiralty received a wireless message from her at that hour, giving her location as lat. 55.20 north and long. 10.40 west. This would place her about 300 miles off the west coast of Ireland.

The dirigible, the largest in the world, began her trans-Atlantic flight at 2.40 a.m., taking the air from East Fortune, Scotland. The wireless stated the craft had averaged forty knots up to that hour. Her slightly reduced speed was believed to have resulted from encountering head winds. She had changed her course slightly and was headed a little north of west.

THE START.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 2. — When the big gas bag took to the air, aside from a few persons, the only spectators were 300 men and 160 women stationed at the airdrome. They had been called out at 2 o'clock a.m., by the usual "landing party" bugle.

The great airship then was released except for her human anchors, and to test her lifting power, loaded as she was with more petrol than had ever previously been put in her tanks, the men at the gondolas were ordered to release their hold. The ship quickly rose and just as quickly the order was given to pull her down. After this test the men and women holding the guy wires slowly started towards the east doors of the airdrome, which had been opened, gradually pulling the great unwieldly craft into free space.

Thanks to the light breeze and the wind breaks erected on each side of the airdrome, the task of getting the R-34 out was not a difficult one. She was towed to a point about 300 yards away from the airdrome and [illegible] Then the "hands off" bugle was sounded, the airship started to rise, her propellors began to spin, and almost before the cheering had ceased, the great flier had disappeared in the midst.

The flight is not regarded here as an unusual feat. There is the utmost confidence in the ability of the R-34 to make the trip. There were no serious farewells between the crew and those who saw her off.

ELEVEN O'CLOCK REPORT.

LONDON July 2. — An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen reported that Germany is now threatened with a new revolution. Government forces have occupied the principal buildings in Berlin. Troops with machine guns are on guard and the soldiers are patrolling the streets. Traffic is hampered. Many of the factories are closed down to-day as a result of the disorders.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, July 2.—The position of the British dirigible, R34 at 12 noon, Greenwich time (8 a.m. New York time), was 55.7 north lat. and 14.50 west long., a wireless to the Admiralty announced. The message added that "all is well."

700 Miles Out.

LONDON, July 2 — At 3 p.m., Greenwich time, the British dirigible R34, which left Eastford, Scotland, early this morning, was about 700 miles south-west of the Irish coast.

Slowed Up.

LONDON, July 2. —Shortly after noon the Air Ministry received a wireless saying the R34 had encountered a thick fog 400 sea miles out from the starting point and had reduced her speed to 20 knots.

PRESENTATION TO APSLEY TEACHER

MRS. W. STAPLE HONOURED BY PUPILS.

APSLEY, July 2.—The village school closed on Friday last for the summer vacation. In the afternoon the pupils presented their teacher, Mrs. W. Staples, who has been teaching in the school for over a year, with a handsome china fruit bowl and two boxes of dainty chocolates. Inside the bowl was a card, signed by the following children, on behalf of the school: Alma Jones, Stella Jones, Wilbert Johnston, Cecil Wilson, Marjorie Wilson, Hazel Wilson, Amy Lean, Gordon Lean, Ruth Johnston, Herbert Lean, and Lloyd Lean.

The presentation was made by Master Gordon Lean.

Mrs. Staples was completely taken by surprise, and made a very suitable reply, thanking the children for their beautiful gifts and kindly remembrance.

BONNER-WORTH AND AUBURN WOOLEN COMPANIES WILL MERGE WITH STANDARD WOOLLEN COMPANY

PRELIMINARIES HAVE BEEN COMPLETED BUT THE FINAL AGREEMENT WILL BE CONCLUDED BEFORE THE END OF JULY—WILL BRING EXPANSIONS TO LOCAL FACTORIES.

MR. EDGAR WORTH MANAGING DIRECTOR

The report of amalgamation of the Standard Woollen Company of Toronto with the Auburn Woollen and Bonner-Worth Companies of Peterborough will take effect some time this month, Mr. E. W. Worth told the Examiner this afternoon. Rumours of the absorption of the Auburn Woollen Company by outside interests have been heard for weeks, but it was only recently that the Bonner-Worth Company was brought into the negotiations. By this pooling of three large textile plants, it is hoped as one result to economize in first overhead costs, such as in buying and selling, and also in securing other trade advantages that are almost impossible to individual concerns.

Mr. Edgar Worth will be the vice-president and managing director of the new company, which for the present will continue operations probably without any visible changes. It is predicted that in a short time the capacity of the Auburn Woollen plant will be doubled to accommodate a proposed department for the manufacture of fine worsted cloths. Mr. J. W. Worth will be manager of the Bonner-Worth factory.

The Bonner-Worth Company's plans have been in abeyance for several years. The machinery for a new French worsted mill was ordered several years ago, and may be delivered at any time. A new building will be immediately erected to the west of the present factory on McDonnel Street.

Referring to the report that the details of the merger had been completed, E. Worth stated that as yet there has been no definite conclusions to the negotiations that have been in progress. He explained that the developments warrant the announcement that the three factories will amalgamate their interests, and that the merger will be consummated before the end of this month.

Mr. Herbert Kendry, general manager of the Auburn Woollen Mills, when seen this morning, would neither deny nor confirm the story. "I have nothing to say," replied Mr. Kendry.

RIOTS IN GERMANY

BERLIN, July 2.—Fifty thousand government troops to-day entered Hamburg, which has been under the control of the Spartacan forces. The troops met no opposition. Strikers in the transportation lines now number 20,00.

ZURICH, July 2.—Despatches from Eastern Germany reported to-day that hostilities have broken out between Germans and Poles on the [illegible] frontier.

"BIG FIVE" IN SESSION

COMMITTEE WILL BE FORMED TO DIRECT THE EXECUTION OF PEACE TREATY.

TURKS FIGHTING

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, July 2.—The Big Five, as at present constituted, was scheduled to-day to appoint the committee which will direct the execution of the peace treaty.

The body, which consists at present of Secretary Lansing, Foreign Secretary Balfour, Foreign Minister Pichon, Foreign Minister Tittoni and Baron Makino, was also expected to consider the personnel of the permanent Reparations committee and the committee on Bulgarian boundaries.

Reports from Turkey indicate that three separate bodies of troops are operating in Asia Minor in opposition to Allied occupation. Their leaders, it was said, have refused to recognize the authority of the present government at Constantinople. A general uprising is feared when the Turkish peace terms are made public, and considerable difficulty is anticipated in enforcing them.

The treaties whereby America and Great Britain are pledged to aid France in the event of unprovoked aggression by Germany, are so interlocking that failure to ratify one will nullify the other, it was learned today. If the Senate does not accept the British pact, it was said the American document will be valueless. The treaties contain several articles practically identical.

VETERANS MEET IN VANCOUVER

CALGARY RESOLUTION APPEARS UNDER A NEW NAME.

(Special to The Examiner.)

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 2.—Under a new name, having been rechristened Canadian Soldiers Re-establishment Bonus, and with a broader scope, what formerly was known as the Calgary resolution, is slated for debate in convention to-day. The subject is the one big topic. Speculation rages as to its fate. Many formerly opposed to this gratuity being drawn into the fold of supporters is partly due to a decision to drop the name Calgary and use a national designation, also because of arguments used that the adoption of the plan will reduce considerably the cost of re-establishment system. A straw vote among the supporters indicates the resolution may carry. No effort is being spared by the supporters to remove every shadow of doubt.

Ontario is gaining support and has passed the fifty fifty line. Many branches who previously opposed are wiring delegates to support it. Naturally the best organized delegation is from Alberta, accomanied by many members of the Association from the same province to lobby for the bonus. While optimistic they are not making the mistake of over confidence, but appear confident of the final results.

PEACE RESOLUTION BY COUNTY COUNCIL

The County Council at its special session on Monday, officially recognized the signing of the peace treaty by recording in its minutes the following resolution, moved by Reeve Squire and seconded by Reeve Bullied:

"That as this special session of the County Council of the County of Peterborough, meeting so closely following the signing of the articles of peace, which terminates the great world war, which has been raging for nearly five years, desires to place on record our appreciation of the great sacrifice made by so many hundreds of our brave men of the county, and while we deplore and mourn the loss of so many who have paid the supreme sacrifice, we rejoice in the fact that their supreme sacrifice was not made in vain, but through their great sacrifice we are enabled to continue to enjoy that freedom, liberty and democracy which we have enjoyed for so many years, and we recognize that right, not might, will ever prevail."

SOCIAL GATHERING AT BETHEL CHURCH

A social gathering of Bethel congregation was held in the church on Monday evening last to welcome Gunner W. T. Pallin upon his return from overseas. After a short programme, Mr. Pallin was persented with a fob and locket.

Bethel Church during the last year has in this way recognized the homecoming of the following men, each of them being given a fob and locket: Fred Ebden, Gordon Esson, Harry Clarke, Preston Armstrong, William H. Fife.

LABOUR AND CAPITAL WILL BE REPRESENTED AT CONFERENCE

(Special to The Examiner, by our Parliamentary Correspondent.)

OTTAWA, July 2.—A conference of Provincial Premiers, together with the Federal Ministers and representatives of capital and labour, is likely to be the next step in the Industrial Relations Inquiry. Such a conference is recommended in the report of the Commission, tabled yesterday, and the Government will likely act on it during the recess.

With Parliament closing on Saturday, no adequate consideration can be given to the report now, but following a conference in the summer, the Government expects to bring down definite legislation in the autumn.

PETERBORO EXPRESSES ENTHUSIASM OVER THE CONSUMMATION OF PEACE

MEETINGS HELD IN CENTRAL PARK ON SUNDAY AND MONDAY EVENINGS—A MONSTER PARADE.

TH EADDRESSES

On Monday evening several thousand persons gathered in Central Park, where speeches by His Worship Mayor Duncan, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, His Honour Judge Huycke and Alderman Turner were made from the band stand. Preceding the addresses a band concert was given by the Great War Veterans' Band.

The Parades.

At the conclusion of the speeches in the Park, headed by the Mayor and several of the City Fathers, who drove in Alderman Turner's car, followed by the Great War Veterans' Band, a monster procession formed at Central Park. Prominently identified amongst those in the parade were the Boy Scouts, of which Scoutmaster Tyrer was in charge. The procession, which increased in numbers as it passed along the main streets of the city, wound up at the starting point, where a second parade, this time a torch-light, was formed by the Boy Scouts, who, before leaving to parade through the city, helped out materially in sending up the rockets which made the fire-works provided by the city.

The Mayor's Address.

"The war was a catastrophe," said Mayor Duncan in his address. His Worship dealt with the destruction wrought by the awful struggle. Millions of men were killed, and resulted in a vast destruction of property. He recounted different periods of the struggle when the Canadian Corps stood man to man with the other parts of the Empire and held back the flood of kultur. He told of Germany's great preparations and of the treaty which she at first said she would not sign. But she signed, and the Kaiser is a refugee in a foreign country, and Germany has lost all her great guns, her military stores, and the only warships that Germany has been able to sink are her own, and even these have been sunk by treachery.

He made a comparison of battles fought in previous wars compared with those of the Great War, how an engagement was not graced with the name of a battle unless it reached stupendous proportions, involving hundreds of thousands of men.

All through the war the Canadian soldier showed what great qualities they possessed. "We are proud of the Canadian soldiers and of their great work. We remember too with pride how those who had to remain at home, including and especially the women, stood behind the army." The Mayor did not forget to mention the great part played by the Motherland, the other parts of the Empire, and of the Allies.

Bishop O'Brien.

His Lordship Bishop M. J. O'Brien spoke of the universal manifestations of joy following the news of the signing of the armistice.

"The task of the peacemakers has undoubtedly been a difficult one. Let us hope that these labours have not been in vain, and that the peace signed last Saturday may be a just and lasting one. Just, because unless the eternal principles of justice are satisfied it cannot be permanent and lasting, because I am satisfied that no living man ever again wishes the god of war to intervene in disputes among nations."

His Lordship spoke of the everlasting gratitude which we must feel for our own Canadian soldiers, and that those who laid down their lives may enjoy the full measure of peace in a happy Eternity. He expressed the hope that Canada as a nation and Canadians as individuals will be ever grateful to those who have undergone the ordeal of war. Thanks, he said, were also due to the women of the Dominion, to those who gave their sons and husbands, and to those who worked so faithfully both overseas and at home.

A Responsible Duty.

A most serious and responsible duty now devolves upon us, continued His Lordship. "And that is to turn to the arts of peace and the preservation of that unity of purpose which, during the war, made Canada justly famous. May I honestly and

SITUATION IS SERIOUS

THREE TURKISH ARMIES ARE OPERATING IN DEFIANCE OF AUTHORITIES.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 2. — The Turkish situation is giving the Peace Conference much uneasiness.

Reports received here indicate that there have been organized in Asiatic Turkey three Turkish armies whose generals refuse to obey orders from Constantinople. The armies are concentrated at Amas-ia, Balikcesri, and Konia. The Turks at Konia are now threatening the Italians, while those at Balikcesri are opposing the Greeks.

As the position of Constantinople has been much weakened by a refusal to consider proposals from the Turkish delegates, it is feared that the independent movements will develop throughout Asia Minor.

"Peterborough Proceeds Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, JULY 2ND, 1919.

A WELCOME CHANGE.

The announcement that the Dominion Government has decided to make the war gratuity system retroactive in regard to the case of voluntarily enlisted men whose service was spent in England, will be a welcome one to thousands of ex-soldiers. The change has been made undoubtedly because of the pressure of the Great War Veterans' Association who have been urging that all men who did not reach France, and were discharged before the armistice was signed, should be placed on the same footing as those who only went to England, and were discharged after the end of hostilities. The order-in-council as it stood was retro-active only as regards the men who had served in France. It was manifestly unfair that a man who volunteered in 1915 or 1916, and who through no fault of his own was unable to reach France, and was eventually invalided home and discharged, should be deprived of the gratuity, while under the act a drafted man who got no farther than England, but who happened to be returned to civil life the armistice was signed, could benefit under the system. The change will correct this injustice, and will be welcome to numerous returned men who have found it difficult to secure employment, and who are sadly in need of the monetary assistance the new regulations will give them.

BISHOP O'BRIEN'S ADDRESS.

The address of His Lordship Bishop O'Brien at the peace celebration meeting on Monday night was an admirable summing up of the present situation in Canada that deeply impressed all who listened to the eloquent words. His Lordship took advantage of the opportunity to drive home the message that there is before the citizens of Canada, a most serious duty in turning all their energy into the solving of the problems of the reconstruction era. Bishop O'Brien was frank in his discussion of the industrial crisis and his remark that "no programme of reconstruction will prove reasonably effective without a reform in the spirit of both labour and capital," is worth remembering. The duty of both factions, the speaker maintained, was to get a new viewpoint. As long as the labour man fails to realize that he owes an honest day's work for a fair wage and that conditions cannot improve until the desire to get a maximum of return for a minimum of service has been rooted up, the present trouble will be with us. At the same time as Bishop O'Brien eloquently put it, there are lessons for the employer also to learn, that profit-making is not the sole end of industry, that wealth is stewardship, that labour is a human being, not merely a department of production and that labourer's right to a decent livelihood is the first moral charge upon industry." The address, coming as it did in connection with the end of the world war, was a timely and impressive message.

THE HUNTSVILLE BAND.

The visit of the famous Anglo-Canadian Leather Company's Band has tickled the people of Peterborough to think the tenth commandment. They came away from the Exhibition grounds last evening with their feelings curiously mixed between admiration for the magnificent playing of the band and envy of the citizens of Huntsville, who have an almost daily opportunity of listening to this organization — the culmination of one man's dream. The envy is easily understood, and those of our citizens who love music are to-day pointing the lesson that is to be learned from the splendid concert of the Huntsville Band. What has been done in that little town can be done on a smaller scale at least in other communities if the civic authorities would take a proper interest and tender substantial support. $800 grants, however, do not allow any thoughts of an organization like that which played in Peterborough yesterday, nor how would it be possible to secure the services of musicians of the calibre of Mr. Herbert Clarke, but in a city the size of Peterborough it should be possible, if civic aid was given to build up a civic band on lines that would provide a musical organization of which the citizens would be proud. It should be remembered that by no means all of the Huntsville band are professional musicians — the majority are local boys who have been educated and trained into their present perfection by the experts whom the munificence of Mr. Shaw made it possible to secure. The result is undoubtedly the finest band in Canada— a band that will advertise Huntsville as nothing else could possibly do. Other communities have no wealthy lover of music to wave the magician's wand and produce a superb band, but there are in every town boys with music in their hearts which training and education would develop. The material is available, but when a City Council doles out a pitiable $300 and demands in return a dozen concerts in a park, what chance is there for development? The leader of the Huntsville band, it is said, receives more for one week of his services than the Peterborough Council provides for the maintenance of a band for a season. As long as that state of affairs continues we will have to be satisfied with envying the people of Huntsville; there will never be any danger of entering into competition with them.

BURY THE ANIMOSITIES.

"Let bygones be bygones," which might be described as another rendering of the golden rule, would be a good working motto for adoption by both sides of the Winnipeg controversy now that hostilities have ceased. The struggle has caused a lot of soreness that will be healed the quicker if treated with the well-known and soothing balm, "forget it." It will not be a healthy thing for the west, or any section of the country, should Winnipeg's industrial war produce a crop of vindictiveness.

One way in which this can be avoided is by employers, private and public, not too rigidly barring the doors against re-employment of strikers who have forfeited their jobs. Of course, the employer whose business was temporarily demoralized by the desertion of his men over a quarrel that was none of his, can hardly be expected to provide a prodigal son welcome to those seeking reinstatement, and it would be unfair to those who have filled the gaps. But the employer will make a mistake if he permanently closes out the striker, instead of taking him back as opportunity arises, or even going to the length of making the opportunity.

It is clear now that thousands of trades unionists who participated in the great walkout were misled, misinformed as to the real motive behind the sympathetic strike. A liberal allowance should be made for this fact and for the further and more important truth that in Canada, as elsewhere, to-day there is a social and economic irritation and distress that is inclined to sweep men off their feet, driving them to hasty acts that in normal times they would consider mad. It is said that hundreds of these men in Winnipeg are now jobless. If they remain so it will breed a spirit of spite that will play into the hands of the agents of violence. It is easy to point out that their own folly has brought them to their present unfortunate situation, but that does not remove the danger. It will be good business and good Canadianism, whenever possible, without injustice to others that the old relationship between employer and worker be restored.—London Advertiser.

HONOUR MAORIS WHO FOUGHT.

Tribal Welcome for Battalion Upon Return From War.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand.—The battalion of Maoris, New Zealand aborigines, who fought in the Gallipoli campaign and afterwards in France, has been welcomed home with a great feast, hakas (war dances) and tangi, or lament for those who fell in battle.

The Acting Premier, Sir James Allen, told them: "You Maoris hold a proud position. You have not one conscript." From the time of its formation early in the war the Maori battalion was maintained at a strength of 1,300 entirely by voluntary enlistment.

Great quantities of mutton, beef, pork, and other food had been baked in earthen ovens for the occasion. About 2,000 Maoris in all shared in this feast. There were several poi (a native delicacy) dances.

The tangi was a scene of much emotion. The soldiers sat by tribes, encircled by sorrowing natives. Led by their chiefs, the mourners grieved with low, wailing chants for those of their race who will never return. All the treasured heirlooms of the tribes had been brought from their safe-keeping for the welcome. There were jade ornaments, mats, chieftains' headdresses and beautiful kilts. The chiefs of the various tribes delivered speeches of welcome, couched in florid South Sea language, after which there was a haka by the famous Arawa tribe and the speech of welcome by Sir James Allen.

CANADA AT DISADVANTAGE.

Senator Nicholls Complains Britain Has Not Released all Shipping.

OTTAWA, June 25.—In the Senate yesterday, a notice from Senator Nicholls stated that "Canada is labouring under a disadvantage owing to the failure of the British shipping controller to release Canadian tonnage that they had requisitioned during the war," and inquired if the Government was taking steps to remedy the condition. He said the action of the British Shipping Board had resulted in the coast of coal being increased to the Canadian individual. Early in the war the British Shipping Board requisitioned 78,000 tons of shipping from the Dominion Coal Co., and still held 48,000 tons.

Sir James Lougheed, for the Government, replied that the British Ministry of Shipping had released for the Canadian trade all tonnage of Canadian registry, soon after the signing of the armistice.

BIG BOND ISSUE.

It is evident that the new packing combine—Allied Packers, Inc.—will be a big organization. An interesting point is that the company has authorized $25,000,000, 6 per cent debenture bonds, due 1939, at which $16,000,000 will be issued, presumably in the near future.

Matthews-Blackwell, Ltd., is the only one of the seven companies taken over, which had any bonded indebtedness.

In connection with the listing of the stocks of Allied Packers, Inc., on the Montreal and Toronto stock markets, as forecasted in the Star yesterday, some further details regarding the capitalization are available.

Allied Packers authorized capital stock will consist of $25,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred, of which $5,305,800 is to be issued and 480,000 shares common, no par value, of which 200000 shares will be issued.

The $1,059,500 6 per cent 20-year bonds of Mattews-Blackwell are included among liabilities of the new pany.

Investments in stock of subsidiary companies amount to $11,230,000 comprising $5,250,000 Parker, Webb & Co., $3,623,000 P. Schenk & Co., $1,055,000 Bachelder & Snyder and $700,000 Macon Packing Co.

EX-CROESUS, $4 A DAY.

Once a Millionaire, H. C. Goodrich Now in Poor Circumstances.

CHICAGO.—Apparently without a regret, without even a grouch against the world, Henry Clinton Goodrich, 87 years old, 1704 Humboldt Avenue, walked into the handicap division of the Federal Employment Agency and asked for a job. Twenty years ago Goodrich was a multi-millionaire. But before he left the office the other day he had a job that will pay him $4 a day.

Goodrich, who came to Chicago eighty-two years ago, is an inventor. His inventions centred around the sewing machine, and from several patents he made more than $2,000,000. Do you remember the little old slate with the red covered edges? Goodrich made them.

Unwise investments in real estate followed the prosperity, and he became penniless.

WEAR PYJAMAS ON STREET.

Turkish Women in Rumania Show Great Pride in American Garments.

Bucharest.— Turkish women, many of whom live in villages along the Danube River, in Rumania, are wearing in the streets, with the greatest of pride, American pyjamas bearing the label, "Gift of the American people."

The garments, if worn on the streets of New York would cause a sensation, but the Turkish women here usually wear a form of trousers and the pyjamas' excite little comment.

WITH THE MOVIES IN KINGSTON

Police Constable John Naylon and a fifteen-year-old girl had a lively foot race on Brock street, Kingston, in the early morning hours of Sunday and the police constable won out. The girl in question is a ward of the Ottawa Children's Aid Society, and she ran away from the home she had been placed in near Belleville. A description of the girl, along with a photograph was sent to the Kingston police. Constable Naylon spotted the girl on the street in the company of a soldier, but when the girl found that the law was after her she took to her heels, but Constable Naylon succeeded in nabbing her and taking her to the police station. The girl will be returned to the Ottawa Children's Aid Society.—Kingston Standard.

GREATEST WEAPON THE ALLIED ARMIES HAD IN WAR WAS THE CONSCIOUSNESS OF RIGHTEOUS CAUSE

STIRRING SERMON ON THE SUBJECT OF PEACE BY THE REV. J. R. WEBB—SELF CONQUEST.

Psalm 85: 10—"Mercy and truth are met together; righteousness and peace have kissed each other."

John Calvin said long ago "Those truly wise toward God whilst peaceable and tolerant toward others make it their chief concern to sow righteousness; not cloaking men's sins but reproving them with such peaceful moderation as to be the physicians rather than the executioners of sinners."

Five yers ago our nation was called upon to make a great decision: Nobody wanted war, and the glaring unpreparedness of Great Britain placed her in a position where she faced not only a task distasteful, but one of greatest jeopardy. David with his sling and five smooth stones facing Goliath was not a greater disadvantage, humanly speaking, than were the sons of Britain when they faced the greatest military nation of the world entrenched in the preparations of forty years. There was however one uncovered spot on the person of the blatant giant of Gath, and there was one vulnerable place on the body of the Greek Achilles, and there was one loose place in the armament of Germany [illegible]

"Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel jus[illegible]
But he is [illegible]ed though locked up in steel
Whose conscience with injustice is corrupted."

The Greatest Weapon.

The greatest weapon the allied armies had was a consciousness of a righteous cause, and while again and again defeat stared our armies in the face, upheld hands cried for the triumph of Israel over the armies of Amalek and the day it came.

Seven months of armistice have passed, and now in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles the signatures have been regorded and the need of this hour everywhere is a Christian interpretation of our present position. This should be a day of Rejoicing

This is no an easy task: One poet says:

"Wounds of the soul though healed will be,
The reddened scars remain to make confession."

But soul wounds have other voices than that of confession. The late D'Law reminds us that when the blood of Abel cried from the earth, Abel himself might as he stood in the presence of the judge cried saying "Father forgive him, he was mad when he did it—" but while he himself cried "forgive" he could not silence his accusing blood" while the Divine within us suggests one thing—the human leaves us, if not resentful, at least puzzled and under a cloud. How can we sing any song in the strange land of bereavement, and hardships, and loneliness. Yet, that is our task. Compared with a year ago and with these dreadful years, this is a day of glad tidings and we do not well life we hold our peace. But this is not only a day of rejoicing but of Thanksgiving.

It is possible to rejoice without any introspection but it is not possible to give thanks to God without a scrutiny of those things for which we profess to be grateful. In such an examination, such as stocking-taking the supreme asset which we see is the preservation of our ideals. We have lost much, the "crosses row on row in Flanders fields" reminds us not only of the cost but of the purchase. That which was so courageously paid for, has been preserved. To-day we can say as did the psalmist "Righteousness and peace have kissed each other." How vastly different it would have been today if after paying so great a price, that for which you dear ones died had not been preserved—but it has, and surely from the elevation where they "know even also as they are known" there are no regrets. Men who have trusted Christ and have hazarded their lives unselfishly never awaken in a world where the fruit of their noblest aspirations is a revelation that they made a mistake.

"Else men are fools,
And life a mockery."

This is also a time for Self Conquest.

"What boots it at one gate to make defense; And at nother to let in the foe?" He that ruleth his own spirit is greater than he that taketh a city and we who have conquered a mighty foe must now turn to our own stubborn hearts and deal with them. * * * There are a few of us who all through these dreadful years have sought to keep our people reminded of the coming of this day when we would be compelled to stifle any tendency toward hatred and learn how to forgive. Not only does the psalmist say "Righteousness and peace have kissed each other" but he says "Mercy and truth are met together. The highest manifestation of Truth cannot be seen in a victorious nation unless it leads to the exercise of mercy. The terms of the treaty may seem hard to many but even as the terms are written they are better than justice, and it must not be forgotten that in that inner circle of International authority there were four great minds—these were as different to each other as they could possibly be,—they were complimentary to each other and we have it on the authority of one competent to know that they were all confessedly Christian men. We must not forget either that thier responsibilities were not only to their respecting natons of to-day, but "to the generations following." They were in honor bound not to conclude a peace which would allow a possibility of any renewal of warlike prepartions until such a time as excellency of the qualities of Democracy had been realized by the better Germany, that is to be. Let us remember tht we are regarding yesterday's treaty as a scrap of paper unless we are now really at peace with Germany. This treaty provides not only that Germany is at peace with us but that we are at peace with Germany.

Again we will remind ourselves and each other that while the decisions may seem severe that there is nothing in the documents that hinders even greater mercy being extended at the time when it will do the most good. "All chastening seemeth for the present not to be joyous but grievous yet afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them that are exercised thereby."

This is also a time for The payment of Vows.

A time when we may well be taught by some experienced minstrel what song we shall sing by a redeemed sinner what we owe to our delivering God. Here are words which should be upon our lips and issuing from grateful hearts. "Hear me Oh God, when I call for thou hast enlarged me when I was in distress Now know I that the Lord preserveth his servant for Himself, Stand in awe and sin not, Commune with your own hert upon your bed and be still own heart upon your own bed and be still. Offer, the sacrifices of righteousness and put your trust in the Lord. Thou hast put gladness in my heart more than in the time that the corn and wine increased. —I will both lay me down in peace and sleep for the Lord makest me to dwell in safety."

Luther tells somewhere in his own parabolic fashion of a people who wept because there were no visible pillars to hold up the heavens, and they were afraid that the sky would fall on their heads—No, no theres no fear of that happening for an unseen hand holds them up. There was a time when we were tempted to believe that the sustaining and governing hand of the Universe had been withdrawn but it is not so—God is in His heaven and has not lost sight of the world.

May he help us all to remember that to-day—After its Baptism of the blood of our best and dearest, the place where we stand is, as never before, holy ground and on it we should walk softly.

PTE. HARRY CHARD IS HOME FROM FRANCE

WAS SEVERELY WOUNDED TWICE DURING TWO YEARS' SERVICE.

Private Harry Chard, of the 93rd Battalion, arrived in the city on Monday evening on the 5.30 G.T.R. His arrival was a great surprise to all his friends, but all were glad to welcome him home again. Pte. Chard enlisted here with the 93rd Battalion in 1916, and went to England, where he was transferred to the 52nd Battalion. He was sent to France, where he saw active service for two years. He was in the battle of Passchendaele, where he was badly wounded in the left side with shrapnel on October 26th, 1917. After recovering from these wounds, Pte. Chard was sent to France again, and in 1918 he was wounded in the right hip. After his recovery he was sent back to Canada on an hospital ship, and is now spending his fourteen days' leave with his sisters at the home of Mrs. H. York, 36 Lafayette Ave. At the end of his leave he will return to Kingston Convalescent Hospital.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

LITTLE GIRL GOT BEYOND HER DEPTH WHILE BATHING

What might have resulted in a triple drowning on Sunday was averted by the timely assistance of several men in a punt after those in the water had practically become exhausted.

Mr. J. Robinson, his wife and daughter, about ten years of age, were spending the afternoon at a point above No. 5 dam. The little girl was wading in shallow water when suddenly she got beyond her depth and her mother going in after her. They were becoming exhausted, and a young lad ran for Mr. Robinson, who was about 100 yards up the river. He too, jumped into the river and endeavored to get his wife and child ashore. His cries brought to his assistance Mr. Frank Peters and Mr. Thomas Blodgett, who were in a punt and put across the river. They pushed the child up to the boat and Mr. Peters caught and held Mr. and Mrs. Robinson while they were pushed ashore. All of the three were in a bad state of exhaustion, the little girl requiring considerable time to bring her around.

If it had not been for the timely assistance of the two men in the punt Mr. Robinson stated there would have been a triple drowning, for while he could swim, his wife and child were clinging to him and it was impossible to make any headway towards the shore.

The public is warned that at this point above No. 5 dam it is very dangerous for those who cannot swim, as the bed of the river has been cut out for the boats and the water drops off very rapidly.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

THE ANGLO-CANADIAN LEATHER COMPANY BAND WON PETERBORO BY ITS EXCELLENT CONCERT

The crescent moon that swung low in the wesetrn sky when night closed in upon Dominion Day, must have been a blue one, for it happens only in conjunction with such rare, if proverbial, manifestations that the music lovers of Peterboro are given the extreme pleasure of enjoying such a concert as that played by the Anglo-Canadian Leather Company's band of Huntsville, at the Exhibition Park last night. The fame of this organization had preceded it, but local opinions formed in expectation were enhanced by the brilliant performance of a programme that obviously demanded the abilities of artists. Composed of fifty-six pieces, the band made a lasting impression upon the audience who were not only deeply appreciative but also must have felt a stirring of pride that this province an boast of a band already so accomplished and full of promise.

Considering the personnel of the soloists and the presence and influence of the conductor, Mr. Herbert L. Clarke, there was, after all, little occasion for surprise at the attainments the band revealed. As a cornet virtuoso, Mr. Clarke has no superior, and as a conductor he is also distinguished. With the resources of instrumentation which Mr. Charles O. Shaw has provided him, he should soon win that recognition which is even now merited by the Huntsville band. He has a quiet but magnetic presence, and the confidence of a music master. His ideas were indicated in his interpretations not only of the most imposing numbers of his programme, but also in the lighter subjects.

The full tone of the band was a beautiful blend of harmony, a colorful texture, with depth and a finely shaded balance that wove the instrumental sections together, with imperceptible assimilation. Brass and wood were happily wedded in a flawless union, a quality that is remembered in only the concert bands that have been occasionaly heard here after the Toronto Exhibition. The beauty of the reeds and saxaphones was brought out in the first part of the second Hungarian Rhapsody, to many persons in the audience perhaps the most appealing number in the programme, although the more familiar "William Tell" overture was splendidly rendered. The second part of the Rhapsody and the Brahms dances 5 and 4, were gems of the peculiar rythmic folk music associated with the Maygars through their foremost chroniclers and interpreters. The overture to Mignon probably provided the most comprehensive test for the various sections of the band. There was never any striving for effect, no blaring over-blowing. This feature was particularly noted in the uniformly excellent work of the soloists, but it also had no part in the ensembles. Crescendos moved in fine gradations into which the climaxes fitted perfectly and powerfully, but with no suggestion of abruptness. It is perhaps needless to remark that the precision of the band was an outstanding characteristic, but no less so than the general qualities of attack, tonal depth and balance, clear, powerful climaxes and equally clear piano passage.

The resources of the Anglo-Canadian Leather Company's band may be judged by the soloists. Mr. Eddie Wall demonstrated a remarkable mastery of the clarionet in the selection from "Puritani," Mr. E. A. Franklin, the solo flutist, and Mr. Charles G. Shaw, saxophone soloist, are artists whose technique is astonishing and whose musical feelings find vivid and eloquent expression through their respective instruments. Intricate variations of their themes were played with surprising ease and fluency. All three were encored, Mr. Wall playing "Fair Rosmarin," by Fritz Kreisler; Mr. Franklin "Rococco," and Mr. Shaw Raff's "Cavatina." These musicians deserve individual mention for the talents and skill they bring to their art, but it is not easy to do them justice. Their solos were marked by more than facility of execution. The Chopin excerpts were most acceptable.

In passing a reference may be made to Mr. Shaw, who is the son of Mr. Chas. O. Shaw, the general manager of the Anglo-Canadian Leather Company, "father of the boys of the band," and himself a solo cornetist. Five years ago the son did not know one note from another, yet he played the selection written by Mr. Clarke with the flourishes of a veteran, and more than that, for his technique was exceptionally free and facile, and his tone in the Cavatina was richly beautiful and round and sustained through the piano parts.

Mr. Clarke charmed the crowd with his cornet solo, "The Southern Cross," which he wrote in 1911, after his world trip with Sousa's band, dedicating it to Australia. His tone was ravishingly beautiful, limpid and golden, compellingly sweet, velvety in some parts, sonorous and sparkling in others. Mr. Clarke obtained a wonderful tone on a high note, and his playing was stamped with perfect control and a suggested reserve power. As an encore, he and Mr. Chas. O. Shaw and another bandsman, played a cornet trio, entitled "The Three Solitaires," written by Victor Herbert when Mr. Clarke was soloist at Washington. The audience will not soon forget that number, and Mr. Clarke's highly developed art.

The felicity of the band in a lighter vein was illustrated by the graceful concert waltz, "Des Fleurs" from the "Nut Cracker" suite by Tschaikowski, but the fullest praise that may be given this band inevitably fails to do it justice, particularly when one remembers that this is almost a local organization, at any rate the province may claim it, if it has not yet acclaimed it. Of a certainty it is due for wider recognition, and there is assurance that the present success will serve to inspire the members, Mr. Clarke and Mr. Shaw, to maintain its excellence. There may be openings for improvement, but as it stands it is a credit to itself, to its conductor, and especially to Mr. Shaw—a successful business man of many activities, who has given his musical idealism full rein. To him and to the directors of the Exhibition, the music lovers of this city are indebted for last night's concert, and it is to be hoped that "blue-moons" may be more frequent occurrences henceforth.

Mr. Shaw and Mr. Clarke stated that they were delighted to have visited Peterboro, and with their going their lingers a sense of unreality that this band has been developed in Huntsville. Had it come from London its virtuosity would have been taken for granted, but it is difficult to realize that a small Ontario town enjoys its concerts every two weeks the year round, and that it is established as a feature of a a big manufactory.

An added number on the programme was a solo sung by Leonora James-Kennedy of Toronto. She sang "Caro Nome' by Verdi, and as an encore "La Marseillaise." Mrs. Kennedy is a gifted singer. Her voice is a sweet, clear soprano, well controlled and far-carrying. Her range is extensive with a strong high note, and her technique employs to every advantage.

An interesting extra number was Mr. Rupert Gliddon's march "Vanguard," dedicated to Mr. Clarke, who handed his baton to Mr. Gliddon to conduct this piece. The printed encore announcements suggested that this number had been permanently adopted by Mr. Clarke. It is a spirited, spantaneous writing, with distinctive elaborations that are worked out in excellent taste. Mr. Clarke's "Canadian Patrol" presented an attractive arrangement of patriotic favorites.

PETERBORO EXPRESSES ENTHUSIASM OVER CONSUMMATION OF PEACE

sincerely express the hope that while we are at peace with foreign governments, no internal discord may mar the happiness of our fair Dominion, and that charity, which, according to the Apostle, is the greatest of all the virtues, may unite us as a God-fearing and peace-loving people."

Reconstruction, His Lordship stated, needed the same spirit of unity. Speaking of capital and labour, he said that no programme of reconstruction would prove reasonably effective without a reform in the spirit of both capital and labour. "Society," said one of the great philosophers, "can be held in no other way than by returning to Christian life and Christian institutions." Socialism, Bolshevism, and Sovietism can never supply the remedy.

The employer has a right to get a reasonable living out of his business, but he has no right to interest on his investment until his employees have obtained at least living wages. This is the human and the Christian, in contrast to the purely commercial and pagan, ethics of industry.

Judge Huyske.

In a short address, following Bishop O'Brien, Judge Huycke spoke of the great task which confronts the world in making the world safe for democracy. "If," he said, "we cannot make the world better, the war has been fought in vain, and the lives of the heroes who lie in the battlefields in France were given for naught." Continuing, he spoke of the new bonds of Empire which had been formed through the war, and pointed out that five years ago, before the shot which rang through the world was fired at Sarajevo, we did not know what Great Britain meant to us. He concluded by expressing the hope that the signing of the Peace Treaty would herald in the golden days of Universal Peace.

Alderman Turner.

Claiming that there was nothing left for him to say after the eloquence of his predecessors, Alderman J. J. Turner, chairman of the Reception Committee, confined his address to an outline of the route of the procession and the proposed entertainments for the evening. Warden McIntosh was called for by His Worship, but was evidently not amongst the crowd gathered in the Park.

Peace Thanksgiving.

On Sunday evening in Central Park a special Peace Thanksgiving service was held. Canon Davidson was in charge. Rev. John Gait, of Gilmour Memorial Church, repeated the Apostles' Creed, Rev. F. E. Malott read a passage from the Bible, and the speakers of the evening were Rev. J. R. Webb of Murray Street Church and Rev. A. J. Thomas of George Street Church. Appropriate hymns were sung.

THE WEATHER

July, like June, was ushered in with a high temperature. Ninety degrees was the highest during the afternoon. The highest during the month of June was 97, and the lowest 41 degrees. For high temperatures the past month stands in a class by itself. The rainfall amounted to 3.08 of an inch.—W. P.

LOUISE HUFF IN "THE LITTLE INTRUDER"

FAMOUS AND POPULAR STAR APPEARS IN NEW WORLD PICTURE OF PARTICULAR APPEAL.

Louise Huff, the famous and popular little star who has appeared with such great success in a number of important World Pictures, is again starred in a forthcoming World Picture, "The Little Intruder," which is underlined for showing at the Grand on Thursday, July 3rd.

The story was written by H. S. Sheldon, the popular author of a large number of big picture plays and the story deals with a young girl who is apparently a crook. It is a story that is filled with surprises and thrills and which gives Miss Huff some of the very best opportunities of her career for the display of her great talents as an actress and for the display of her sweet winsomeness.

Quite a number of the scenes in this production are laid outdoors and these scenes are notably beautiful and are unusual. The interior scenes, too, are different from the usual run of such interiors.

Supporting Miss Huff in this production is a really notable cast including such screen players as Geo. MacQuarrie, Stuart Holmes, Albert Hart and John Hines. Mr. Hines plays opposite Miss Huff in the role of "Billy" Kent and in this role he gives further evidence of being one of the screen's best light comedians.

"The Little Intruder" is a most decidedly interesting photoplay and a production that will appeal forcefully to everyone who is looking for the very best in cinema entertainment.

See "The Little Intruder" by all means.

T.A.S. PICNIC A BIG SUCCESS

HUGE CROWD TOOK IN POPULAR EVENT AT T.A.S. PARK.

It is estimated that several thousand persons attended the annual first of July picnic given yesterday at the T.A.S. Park, and all who attended agreed that the affair was the biggest success in years. Starting early in the morning, the Monarch and Manita continued trips up and down the river to and from the Park until 9 in the evening, when the last boat brought the last of the reluctant visitors home. The clergy who attended the picnic were His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Dean McCole, Fathers Gorman, J. O'Brien, M. O'Brien, Meagher of Lakefield, and Maguire. At the Park, under the supervision of Mr. A. Doris and Mr. Curtin, a splendid veal dinner was served, after which the sports were carried out. During the afternoon Mr. Danny Simons, the well-known vaudeville actor, Mr. Primeau, Mr Frank Clarke and Mr. Quinlan gave some unusually fine specialties, which, with the other attractions, such as the ice cream booth and "hit the nigger and get a cigar," kept the hundreds of people well amused. Killen's Orchestra of Ennismore provided splendid music during the entire day.

As customary with anything undertaken by the Holy Name Society under the auspices the picnic was given, the sports programme was splendid, and the competitors who entered the different events displayed genuine athletic ability. A feature of this department was the baseball game played between the Sacred Heart team and the St. Peter's team, which wound up in a score of 3-3 in favour of the Sacred Heart.

The Baby Show.

One feature of the day's attractions was the baby show, in which countless of the nation's hopes proved a puzzling problem to the judges in awarding the prizes. The final decision was given, awarding the first prize to Mrs. S. O'Connor's baby, the second to Mrs. D. Corkery's baby.

FIVE RUSSIANS WERE SENT UP FOR TRIAL BY MAGISTRATE LANGLEY

CASE BROKE UP THE HOLIDAY FOR THE COUNTY COURT OFFICIALS.

The preliminary canter in the trial of the five Russians charged with the murder of Philip Yannoff, near Havelock, early Sunday morning, June 22nd, was disposed of Monday before County Police Magistrate O. A. Langley. All five men were sent up for trial at the Fall Assizes. Their names are Sam Zaluski, Philip Rotynsky, Tom Konek, Alexander Martynuk and Mike Bahri. The prisoners were defended by Mr. J. O'Brien, of the firm of Gordon and O'Brien, Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, appeared for the Crown. The chief witness for the prosecution was Charles Moisoff, a Macedonian in the employ of the Ontario Rock Company, an occupant of the "sleep-house" as he called it, on the morning of the murder. Moisoff identified one of the prisoners as one of the men who stood near his bed during the hold-up. The accused had a handkerchief over his face.

The First Witness

Steven Bradley, superintendent of the Ontario Rock Company, was the first witness called. He identified Michael Bahri as a former employee of the company. Witness related the incidents of the crime and the events leading up to the capture of the five men. Bradley traced one of the men by means of a rubber heel mark which left its imprint in the sand around the bunk house and along the railway track to Indian River station.

The Post Mortem

Dr. Arthur Thompson of Havelock assisted by Dr. Ford of Norwood, made a post mortem examination of the remains. They were unable to locate the bullet until the body was removed to Nicholls Hospital and an ex-ray examination made. In this, Dr. Thompson was assisted by Dr. Moir of Peterboro. "Now can you identify this as the actual bullet taken from the body of Philip Yannoff" he was asked.

"I wrote my name in shorthand and put the day and date it was recovered from the body, on the base of the bullet," replied Dr. Thompson.

Witness said he was familiar with firearms and judged that the bullet taken from the body was fired from an automatic pistol.

Dr. Ford corroborated the evidence of Dr. Thompson.

"Everybody Sleep"

The next witness called was Charles Moisoff, a foreigner employed by the Ontario Rock Company. He made a very difficult witness to examine owing to his limited knowledge of the English language.

"Everybody sleep in sleephouse" said Witness describing the arrival of the robbers.

"They had their faces covered," declared witness.

"What did they do?" asked Crown Attorney Hatton.

"They said hands up."

"Did the men put their hands up."

"Yes."

"What did they do then?"

"They looked for the belts."

"Did you see Philip Yannoff after he was shot?"

"Yes".

"Where was he?"

"In bed."

"What happened then?"

"He asked for a drink of water and then he was dead."

At this stage of the proceedings it was found necessary to swear in Mr. H. Low, interpreter, with whose aid the examination of the witness was continued.

The Big Noise

G. W. Rayner, a civil engineer, one of the owners, vice president, and manager of the Ontario Rock Company knew Philip Yannoff for five or six years. Each summer Yannoff had returned to the employ of the Company. Witness arranged for the funeral of the deceased in Toronto.

Rayner identified three of the prisoners as former employees of the company.

Constable Whibbs of Indian River related the circumstances leading up to the arrest of the five men which was accomplished by means of a clever ruse. The men were delayed at the Indian River station and subsequently brought to Peterboro.

Starling Point.

Constable A. R. Moore said that Bahri told him he met the other four in a Greek poolroom in Toronto and he had been given five dollars to take the four men to the quarry near Havelock. Bahri said Konek took the lead when the boarding house was entered. Witness said that the man that took the lead did the shooting.

Witness denied that he had promised leniency to any one of the prisoners who might make a confession. He said he heard that the city police had a statement. Witness was not notified of the shooting and robbery until eight o'clock Sunday evening.

Steven Bradley, recalled, said he examined the boots of Samuel Zaluski and found they corresponded to the imprints in the sand. It was a distinctive mark. Zaluski wore a returned soldier's button.

This closed the evidence for the Crown. Mr. O'Brien submitted there was no evdence to warrant sending the prisoners up for trial.

"We have plenty of it," observed Crown Attorney Hatton.

All five were committed for trial.

In Renfrew a by-law has been passed regulating the sale of cigarettes, tobacco and cigars, by which the fee is fixed at $25, and any vendor found selling to a minor or selling on Sunday will lose his license.

PETERBORO WAS REPRESENTED AT THE RE-UNION

Saturday was the occasion for the re-union of Manvers and Fleetwood old boys in Manvers and over seven hundred people attended what proved to be the biggest event in the history of Manvers township.

A monster meeting was held in the school yard, and a fine programme was given, with Mr. W. W. Staples, of Lindsay, acting as chairman.

Addresses were given by Mr. B. Stacey and Mr. W. Stacey, of this city, and also by Mr. Thos. Brown, of Peterborough.

The event was so successful that it was decided to make it an annual affair and with this end in view a special committee was appointed, which includes Messrs. B. Stacey, W. J. Stacey and Thos. Brown, of this city.

Peterborough was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Stacey, Mr. and Mrs. William Stacey and Mr. and Mrs. Murray.

FIGHT ON GEORGE STREET.

On Monday evening, during the progress of the torchlight procession a pocket edition of the Dempsey-Willard bout was staged on George Street by a couple of schoolboys.

Each of them worked like a couple of windmills, but failed to connect. They were finally chased away by a couple of citizens, who were more interested in the parade than the fistic exhibition.

HUNS PREPARING FOR BIG EXODUS

New York. — Karl H. von Wiegand, writing from Berlin, says:

OSHAWA BADLY BEATEN BEFORE BIGGEST BALL CROWD IN YEARS

PETES HAND VISITORS 15 TO 0 TRIMMING IN DOMINION DAY CENTRAL LEAGUE FIXTURE—LAKE SHORE BUNCH COULDN'T HIT KIRN WHEN HITS MEANT RUNS.

PETES STILL AT TOP

The Petes maintained their hold on the Central League leadership and got ample revenge for their beating at Oshawa at the beginning of the season yesterday morning at Riverside Park, when they beat the Lakeshore crew by the lop-sided score of 15 runs to 0. Oshawa trimmed Lindsay 9 to 2 on Saturday and were full of confidence, but the Petes went at them from the drop of the hat as if they were a team from the old ladies' home and made the visitors look like that before the last man was out. Oshawa fielded poorly, and the home brigade bunched their hits with the visitors' misplays, while they ran wild on the bases, with the result that the runs came in bunches. Patton, the Oshawa star pitcher, quit in the fifth with the score 9 to 0 against him, and Jacobi finished the innings. "Nib" McCombe worked the last three innings.

Meanwhile Kirn was pitching his usual steady, effective game for the Petes. He allowed the visitors only seven singles, no two of which came in one innings, and with men on the sacks the Oshawa crew could not produce the necessary safety. Even in the seventh when they filled the bases with nobody out, the visitors could not come through with the needed hit. They got one in each of the first seven innings and none at all in the last two. The Petes were in behind him with lots of "pep" and did some great fielding, Holyman with a spectacular one-handed catch of a drive from Jacobi, and Swanston with a fine grab of a difficult foul, contributing the feature plays.

The biggest crowd of the season, and one of the largest that ever saw an amateur game in Peterborough, was in attendance. They didn't see much of a ball game, but that wasn't the fault of the home brigade, and anyway the fans were so happy at the victory that they did not mind the big score.

First Innings.

Peterborough. — Cherrett walked and stole second and third, scoring on Rose's single through the box, after Heenan fanned. Rose stole second. Long hit to Fair, who got Rose at third. Long stole second and scored on Fair's bad throw on Clancy's grounder. Clancy stole second. Swanston was safe on Jacobi's fumble. A wild pitch scored Clancy, and Swanston came home on Jackson's single over second. Holyman fouled to Schultz. Four runs, two hits, two errors.

Second Innings.

Oshawa. — Schultz grounded to Kirn. Hall singled to left and stole second. Fair walked. Patton fanned. Rose threw McCombe out. One hit.

Peterborough.—Kirn flied to Wilson. Jacobi threw out Cherrett, a fast play on a good bunt. Heenan was hit. Hall threw badly to stop him stealing, and Fair, recovering the ball, made a wild heave to third, the runner scoring. Rose struck out, but Hall missed the third. Long rolled to Patton. One run, two errors.

Third Innings.

Oshawa.—Rowden was thrown out by Kirn. Wilson flied to Clancy. Jacobi singled past third. Jackson gathered in Dobson's fly. One hit.

Peterborough. — Clancy flied to Rowden. Swanston singled through third. Jacobi tossed out Jackson and got Holyman on a foul fly. One hit.

Fourth Innings.

Oshawa.—Cherrett nailed Schultz's high bounder and threw out the runner. Hall was passed. Fair hoisted to Rose. Patton singled to right, sending Hall to third. McCombe lined to Cherrett. One hit.

Peterborough.—Kirn flied to Rowden. Cherrett fanned. Heenan grounded to Schultz.

Fifth Innings.

Oshawa.—Rowden singled to left, but was forced, Holyman to Cherrett on Wilson's grounder. Swanston made a great catch of Jacobi's foul fly. Rose threw out Dobson. One hit.

Peterborough. — Rose doubled to left centre. Long hit to Fair, whose throw to third was too late to get Rose. Long stole second. With the infield drawn in, Clancy smashed a single past the box, scoring Rose and Long. While Hall was arguing about the decision at the plate, Clancy went all the way to third. Swanston doubled to left, scoring Clancy. Holyman's sacrifice fly was fielded too slow to get Swanston and another run was over, while Holyman was safe. He stole second, going right on to third when Hall let the ball get away. Patton walked out of the box in disgust, going to right field, McCombe moving in to short, Fair going to third and Jacobi to the box. Kirn's roller down the third base line, which Jacobi could not reach in time, scored Holyman. Cherrett walked. Heenan struck out. Rose's second double of the innings, poorly fielded by Patton, scored Kirn and Cherrett. Rose scored on a wild pitch. Long rolled to Rowden. Eight runs, five hits.

Sixth Innings.

Oshawa.—Schultz beat out a bunt, going to second of Kirn's wide throw. Hall grounded to Holyman. The Petes' third baseman made a fine catch of Fair's drive. Patton fanned. One hit, one error.

Peterborough. — With McCombe pitching for Oshawa, Clancy doubled to left centre. Swanston was safe on Patton's muff of his fly back of second. Clancy scored on Rowden's bad throw to third, Swanston going to second. Jackson hit to Fair and Swanston was out at the plate, Jackson going to second. Holyman was safe on Patton's fumble, but R. Fair's good throw nailed Jackson at home. Kirn's double to left scored Holyman. Cherrett fanned. Two runs, two hits, three errors.

Seventh Innings.

Oshawa.— McCombe was safe on Rose's fumble. Rowden singled to left. Wilson hit to Cherrett and the latter's throw pulled Rose off the bag, filling the bases. Jacobi popped to Rose. Dobson hit to Kirn, who threw McCombe out at the plate. Schultz hit to Cherrett, who nailed Dobson at second. One hit, two errors.

Peterborough.—Heenan singled and stole second. Rose fanned. Heenan was caught on Dobson's peg to second, Rowden getting the ball to Jacobi in time to nail the runner. Long flied to Wilson. One hit.

Eighth Innings.

Peterborough.—Clancy singled, but was caught off first. Swanston flied to W. Fair. Jackson singled to centre and stole second. Holyman lined to W. Fair. Two hits.

Ninth Innings.

Oshawa.—Cherrett tossed out Rowden. Wilson grounded to Long. Holyman made a sensational catch of Jacobi's fine drive. The score:

WESTINGHOUSE TEAM WON BOTH LOCAL GAMES

Tommy Moffatt's Westinghouse team, leaders in the Hamilton City League, spent the week end in Peterborough and incidentally won two ball games. On Saturday they hooked up with and beat the Matthews-Blackwell team by 6 to 2, and on Monday afternoon they tackled the Peterborough Central Leaguers and won 8 to 3.

The Westinghouse squad looked like one smart ball team. In the Saturday game against the Packers they got the jump in the first two innings, and scored three runs in each frame, and although they were held safe after that, two runs represented all the Matthews' scoring, so the early lead was enough to carry the Moffatt gang through. They bunched hits in those two sessions with some dumb playing by the Packers, getting six of their ten safeties in the first two innings. After that Frost held them to four hits and no runs. The feature fielding play was contributed by McFarlane, the visitors' left fielder, who made a fine catch of Holyman's drive. Miller, the big pitcher of the visitors, kept the homesters' hits well scattered. The teams and score:

MONDAY'S GAME.

In Monday's game against the Central League team, the Petes looked like winners until the seventh innings. Kirn worked the first three innings for the homesters as a warm-up for the Oshawa game and was in great form. The Petes were leading by 3 to 0 when he retired, Kirn incidentally driving in two of the runs. Alan Wade, of the War Veterans, took up the pitching job and blanked the Hame for three innings. The blow-up came in the seventh, however. Cherrett started the fireworks with a wild throw to the plate with two two on the sacks and then Wade lost control. Between the men he hit and passed, and some timely swats by the visitors, coupled with slow fielding, the Westinghouse got no fewer than nine runs before the side was finally retired. The score remained at 9 to 3. It was a disastrous innings and spoiled what had been a good ball game. Page pitched a fine game for the visitors and was well supported. The Petes lined up as follows:

MAULERS ARE IN GOOD SHAPE FOR THE BIG BOUT ON FRIDAY

OPPONENTS HAVE FINISHED THEIR TRAINING—WILLARD'S ENGINE ROOM EXAMINED.

(P. C. Hamilton—United Press).

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 2. — Jess Willard to-day planned to wind up training for his July 4th bout with Jack Dempsey. Six rounds were on his programme of sparring, with a lay off to-morrow, that probably means he will take a long motor ride to the country. He has not definitely made up his mind how he will spend the last day before the bout, but the ride probably has the call.

Dempsey has finished his work. He will show box to-day, and probably do a little bag punching. To-morrow he will rest all day. Jimmie de Forrest has decided there will be no drying out for Dempsey, but the rest in itself is a drying out. Betting on the outcome of the struggle remains practically stationary. Odds on Willard are being quoted at 10 to 8, with little money placed so far. Many freak bets are offered. Several betting men here offer to let the fan write his own ticket if he believes he can pick the round for a knock out. One to five is being asked for a wager that Willard fails to respond for the gong in the sixth round.

Tightening Up.

Toledo is beginning to tighten up for the struggle with the army of guests she will have July 4th. Hotels are overloading now, with healthy prices being charged for rooms, both in hotels and rooming houses. A huge vacant building down town has been loaded with army cots and an eating house opened next door to take care of many thousands. Some tents have made their appearance near the arena.

The hotels are going pretty strong, but merchants, for the most part, are adhering to pre-fight revenues, and are making friends. Taxi drivers have declined so far to boost their rates.

Jack Kearns is said to have placed $16,000 in his own and Dempsey's money that Jack will win by a knock out. These wagers have been placed in various sections of the country through commissioners. It has become practically impossible to place a bet in Toledo, due to the fact that local boxing fans have placed all the money they want to, and also due to the popularity of the challenger. Even those who believe Willard will be returned victor are so partial to Dempsey because of his genial good nature, that they are reluctant to bet against him. One bet of $10,000 at even money was said to have been made. This is the largest single wager reported here.

In Good Spirits.

Willard sparred yesterday, stepping fast through six rounds. He announced he would go through about the same programme to-day, but would taper in other work. He is very tired of training, and would like to stop. Dempsey's training has reached such a point that many experts have expressed a fear that he may go stale. De Forrest and Kearns have confined his efforts to easy limbering up exercises and some shadow boxing.

STAGE ALL SET FOR THE BIG BOUT

Canadian Press.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 2.—The last of the preliminaries, details of the boxers, promoters and arena constructors will be completed to-day, and with the gathering of the stray strands, the stage will be set for the heavyweight championship bout between Willard and Jack Dempsey scheduled for Friday afternoon. The principals will do but light training work, Willard boxing a few rounds with his tired and battered sparring partners, while the challenger will confine his efforts to easy limbering up exercises and some shadow boxing.

PICHON SAYS RUSSIA WILL AGAIN BE ALLY

BOLSHEVISM HAS LOST THE DAY AND KNOWS IT, FRENCH MINISTER TELLS CHAMBER.

Paris, —"The Allies wish to help Russia to save herself," declared Stephen Pichon, the Foreign Minister in his address to the Chamber of Deputies.

M. Pichon began by paying tribute to the help that had been given in the East by the Greek troops, and followed this by stating the size of the French effective forces in Russia. There were 5,000 French troops in Siberia, he said, and 2,000 French at Murmansk and Archangel. Three divisions of French had been on the Dniester, one of which had already been withdrawn, another of which soon would be relieved, and the remainder of the troops relieved by degrees, as the Rumanians were in a position to defend themselves.

"We are not at war with Russia," said the Foreign Minister in beginning his statement of policy. "We are at war with Germany, and it was to restore the liberty of our communications that we went to Archangel. But we ought not to lay aside the Russian problem. No world peace can continue so long as anarchy exists in Russia. In order that civil war may cease in Russia, it is necessary that anarchy, with its contagion of Bolshevism, should be stamped out. It is necessary that a great Russian democracy should be reconstituted which may establish peace. In order to attain that it is necessary to make an appeal to all the reconstituted elements in Russia.

"This is the policy of the Allied Governments. We desire a Russia united, strong and powerful, and we do not wish her to be dismembered, but we are partisans of a Russian democracy, in federal form, based upon national sovereignty and upon the principles of right and of liberty, which are the principles of modern nations. Our views are also those of the Allies, for the problems in Russia concern others as well as ourselves. We are approaching the final result which we believe is precisely what all civilized nations desire.

"As to Bolshevism, it has lost the day and knows it. It may have a little while, as it finds some strength in its army, which, let it not be forgotten, is bolstered up and directed by Germans. Union is being established between all forces in order to re-establish order and tranquility.

"Around whom do these forces gather? Around the Government of Kolchak, who is a soldier, a good patriot, one of the first to serve the Provisional Government. Heartsick from what he had seen, he had but one desire, one passion, to deliver his country from the Bolshevist dictatorship. The immense majority of Russians are anti-Bolshevist.

"The Allies wish to help Russia to save herself. It was necessary to choose between Bolshevism and reconstitution of a great nation which will play its part in the world. We have made our choice; we shall find Russia again on our side as an ally."

KNOCKOUT BLOW TO DEAR MEATS

QUEENSLAND LABOUR GOVERNMENT TO TAKE BUSINESS OUT OF PRIVATE HANDS.

Sydney, N.S.W. — The Queensland Labor Government is determined that the people of that country shall get cheap meat, and that the meat trust will be given the knock-out blow once and for all time. It proposes the most comprehensive food handling scheme ever initiated in any part of the world. Its ramifications will extend to every corner of the State—in short the whole meat business of Queensland is to be taken out of the hands of private exploitation and handled by the Government in the interests of the people.

The Government aims at supplying at least 75 per cent of the people of the State of Queensland with cheap meat. The arrangements are now being made to supply that number of people with meat on the basis of 150 lbs. beef and 50 lbs. of mutton per head per year. In the meantime and until the necessary provision can be made to supply the remaining 25 per cent of the people with meat from the State shops, the selling price of meat will be regulated that these people will receive a much better deal than they are getting today.

Shops, abattoirs, refrigerators, paddocks, insulated railway trucks and everything else essential to the scheme are being prepared. The number of shops will total over 100, and six abattoirs are included in the first draft of the scheme. These will be fitted up with all the latest appliances necessary in the handling and slaughtering of stock. Rigid inspection will be the order of the day, and not only will the people get the benefit of cheap meat, but will have pure and clean meat as well. This will mean the death-blow to the ravages of tuberculous and other bovine diseases.

Cut Out Middleman.

The chief feature of the scheme is, of course, the cutting out of middleman by providing State cattle and sheep raised on State stations, railed on State railways, treated at state abattoirs, and retailed direct to the people through state retail shops. All selling and buying commissions will cease, and the middleman will entirely disappear, and all profits thus saved will go to further cheapening the price of meat and the extension of the scheme. Provision is being made to allow for the supply of 45,000 fat cattle per year, and an adequate supply of sheep for export purposes.

The six abattoirs will be situated in various parts of the State, and as the scheme extends these will be added to. The abattoirs in the southern part of the State will deal with 32,000 cattle and 110,000 sheep annually, those in the central part of the State, 5,000 cattle and 18,000 sheep; and those in the northern part of the State, 8,000 cattle and 31,000 sheep per annum.

In addition provision is also made for dealing with the by-products, which are expected to return a handsome profit to the State.

OLD CAMPAIGNERS WILL BE INVITED

Paris, June 27. — Notable among the persons who will attend the ceremony of the signing of the treaty with Germany this week will be five Senators who participated in the campaign of 1870. Premier Clemenceau announced in the Senate that these men will be honored with places in the hall of mirrors in the Chateau at Versailles.

Marshal Petain, accompanied by six French generals, will be among the thousand persons, including delegates and secretaries, who will be present when the Germans attach their signatures to the treaty. Three hundred journalists from all the interested nations, a few neutral newspaper correspondents, and about 300 guests apportioned among the signatory nations, will have places in the hall.

Guard Palace Grounds.

Seven regiments of cavalry and four regiments of infantry will guard the palace grounds during the ceremony. Within the marble court, through which all the witnesses except the Germans will pass, will be stationed a company of drummers and buglers. No other musicians will participate. The soldiers within the palace will all be members of the Republican Guard, wearing silver helmets, red coats and white breeches.

The Germans will be admitted at a side entrance from the park after the other delegations are seated about the horseshoe table, within which will be the signing table, where the treaty will lie.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM IRWIN.

The funeral took place this afternoon at two o'clock of an old and respected resident of this city in the person of Mr. William Irwin.

He was an old member of Peterborough Lodge A. F. and A. M., and the funeral was under Masonic auspices, with Worshipful Brother S. Taylor in charge. Rev. Mr. Manning conducted the service at Comstock's Undertaking Parlours and at the grave.

JOHN HURRY.

On Sunday evening last, after a lingering illness, John Hurry, one of the respected Scotsmen of this city, passed away at his home on Elm Street very suddenly. He was born in Dalkeith, Edinburgh County, Scotland, 54 years ago, and came to Canada six years ago. He was an esteemed employee of the Wm. Hamilton Co during the past few years, and no doubt many of his friends will be surprised to hear of his death. Besides his beloved widow, he leaves to mourn his loss, the son Neil at home, a daughter, Mrs. Alex. McArthur Brownton, and his son, Jack Henry, Musselburgh, Scotland. His son, James Henry, was killed in action a few weeks before the armistice was signed.

The funeral was held on Tuesday morning at 10.30 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. Mr. MacKenzie officiated.

IN MEMORIAM.

A tribute to him who has lived his life a worthy example to those whom he has preceded into Eternity, whose creed was his duty to his God and his fellow-men; to whom unerring adherence to principles of honour, justice and right was a stay in the Path of Life; who was sublimely happy in this world of sorrow, because his was the glorious happiness attained from untiring efforts to bring joy to others; who got the most out of life, because he so freely gave to himself to the welfare of others — Robert C. GUM TENDERNESS —A TOOTH-MENACE

It is true that four out of five people over forty suffer from gum-shrinkage, or Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease). But many people even under thirty have Pyorrhea. Women, particularly after the baby comes, are peculiarly subject to Pyorrhea. At such time they cannot be too careful about their teeth.

Pyorrhea commences with tender gums, or with gum-bleeding, at tooth-brush time. Gradually the gums become spongy. They inflame and then shrink. The teeth become exposed to decay at the base and tiny openings in the gums become the breeding places of disease germs which infect the joints—or tonsils—or cause other ailments.

Beware of that first gum tenderness! Try Forhan's for the gums. It positively prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. No ordinary tooth paste will do this.

And Forhan's cleans teeth scientifically as well. Brush your teeth with it. It keeps the teeth white and clean.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment. 35c and 60c tubes. All druggists.

The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPS

NEIL TELLS BARBARA OF HIS LOVE

CHAPTER VI.

I have been thus particular to tell of my simple home life, so that it may perhaps win me, if not forgiveness for what came after, at least some sort of understanding of my foolishness, my mistakes. For I was also to blame for what happened.

I wanted desperately to go to the station to meet Neil, that lovely May day when he was to arrive, but he had said nothing of my doing so in his letter, so I remained at home, anxiously watching from the window, shaded by the curtains.

My heart almost literally leaped into my mouth when I saw him swing up the street, carrying his big suit-case as if it weighed no more than a feather. Neil was very strong; he had gone in for athletics in college, and had been very proud of his record.

He turned into his aunt's gate, and my heart went back where it belonged again. But in less than fifteen minutes he was with me.

"How do you do, Bab!" was what he said, but the way he held both my hands, the glad look in his eyes, made it adequate. Mother was with us, or I thought he perhaps might have kissed me.

He was to remain less than a week. I almost cried when he told me. But I was so happy that he was with me, that I determined to try and forget how soon he would leave me again.

"You see I had to come, Bab," he said later in the evening when we took a long walk, just the same as we did the summer before.

"You had to come," I repeated, wondering.

"Yes. I had to see if you were still here."

"Why, you knew I was. Haven't I written you regularly?"

"Yes, but someway I wanted to look at you, Bab, to see if I had idealized you too much; or if you were far ahead of all I thought you."

"Well?" I laughed nervously as I asked the question.

"Miles ahead, Bab. I don't believe there is another girl in the world just like you. You are very pretty too, Bab? Did you know that? Of course you did, you have a mirror. And Bab! you look very sweet in that pale blue dress; it is like a faint moonbeam, in this half light."

We talked a lot more nonsense, at least Neil did. I mostly listened. Then when he left me for the night he leaned over and kissed me once again on my cheek. Just a quick brushing of his lips across my face.

"You're a dear, Bab!" he said, and then I was alone.

But someway I knew that Neil was beginning to love me. I felt no shame over that kiss as I had over the other. He had said loving things to me before he kissed me. I thrilled all over with the knowledge, and before I went to bed I kneeled down and thanked God for Neil.

The days passed so swiftly that the day he was to leave, found me all unprepared to lose him. He had been tenderly loverlike all the time. I think mother saw how things were drifting, for she made no demands upon me, and I had been constantly with Neil. He was to take a train about ten o'clock that connected with his train at the junction. We took a walk after dinner, but neither of us talked much. Without either scarcely realizing it, our steps turned to the wood at the end of the village, and we sat down on the log where Neil had given me his first kiss. There he told me how dear I was to him, and asked me to be his wife. When I said "yes" he took me in his arms and told me of his love, how he had thought he would forget me, but had been unable to. How superior I was to all other girls and all the other things which lovers say.

Then after a time when the first sweet emotion of our love had passed, he said:

"Come, dearest. We must go and tell your father and mother. I fear they will hate to give you to me, because I have to take you so far from them."

Father and mother weren't nearly as surprised as I thought they would be. They acted beautifully, and when Neil said he would like to be married in September, they gave their consent. Then until time for his train, we were alone again. I wept a few tears, but they were happy tears, and he wiped them away with his kisses. Then father and I went to the station with him. I was not to see him again until he came for me in September.

I sometimes have wondered if — had I known the unhappiness, the agony I was to endure with Neil,—I would have married him? Yet knowing all as I now know, I doubt if I would have had strength to give him up—my first lover, my Neil!

WHEN YOU LAY YOUR PAPER ASIDE

After you've read the news, have you gotten all the valuable information out of it? Not until you have read the advertisements.

Reading the advertisements should be as much a part of your day as reading the news columns.

The advertisements in your favorite newspaper are a daily record of what your local merchants have laid in store to meet your needs and add to your comfort.

They tell you what the manufacturers of these goods, who are constantly striving to please the public, have done to add to your advantages and comforts. The news, while always interesting, may often concern you only in a general way.

The advertisements are almost certain to tell you something that may mean a great deal to your home life or your business and social welfare.

Railways At The Front

RAILWAYS have played a prominent part in the operations in France and Belgium ever since 1914.

The Canadian Overseas Railroad Construction Corps, one of the finest outfits engaged in the war, and including a large number of C. P. R. engineers in the commissioned ranks, and hundreds of C. P. R. workmen among the rank and file—has earned all the praise showered upon it by Allied officers "who have been" and "seen."

Railways had to be laid here and there to transport troops from the back areas to the front line, or at least as close as possible to the trenches. Narrow gauge roads had to be laid down rapidly and hidden from view as much as possible so that enemy airmen would not locate them and destroy them.

Much of the work of laying railroads in France and Belgium had to be carried out under fire, and the railway men had to give their share of toll to the casualty lists.

The writer had the honor and privilege of training the first re-inforcements to the Railroad Construction Corps.

As fine a bunch of men as any soldier would wish to see were gathered together in Montreal in 1915 to fill the gaps made in the original unit, which had crossed several weeks before.

These fine fellows come mostly from the west, principally British Columbia, and although not looking quite soldier-like in their civilian clothing when they reached Montreal, once uniformed and equipped, were good to look upon.

When out marching on the streets of Montreal these "gap-fillers" were greatly admired, for nearly every man was a six-footer. The acting quartermaster-sergeant was old sergeant of His Majesty's Life Guards, the senior sergeant a retired major of a New Brunswick unit. One of the privates was a former commissioned officer of the South African Constabulary Force. Many of the men were South African veterans.

Eventually they were shipped over to England and in due course reached their unit in France—to work, and fight, if necessary.

All Canadians who have served in France appreciate the fine work of the Canadian railroad men there, whether engaged on big or small jobs. There was a great deal of work to be done, and that rapidly, but the railway men were quite up to the tasks set before them, and honors awarded the officers and men who had made good "over there" testify to the strategical value of having well-directed roads for purposes of transport—be it men or supplies.

Tracks had to be laid for ordinary railroad traffic; tracks had to be laid for moving heavy guns from point to point rapidly so as to deceive the enemy's artillery; tracks had to be laid for the numerous narrow gauge roads which have been such a boon to troops in and out of the line.

Whenever an officer or man was detailed to report at a certain point, be it up to the line or back to a base or school, he would figure out immediately where he could "pick up" a narrow gauge line and get there quickly instead of jumping motor lorries for miles and transferring at many points during the trip.

On many occasions a strip of road had to be laid for several miles out in the open and enemy aeroplanes would locate the work and drop a few bombs which would destroy, in a few seconds, the hard work of weeks.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Father to the Man

By ARCHEY CAMERON NEW

(Copyright, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Bosh, you dear little goose!"

And then, having mildly rebuked her, Carter Danbury leaned over and tried to gather the dainty little creature at his side into his arms. But she wriggled away and faced him with a determined look in her big brown eyes.

"I'm not a little goose," she retorted, poutingly. "And father is right. You're a man and politics is a man's game, a man's duty. You ought to pitch in—you're a Republican."

"On election day," he admitted, "but ordinarily a plain everyday business man. And I'm no speaker. I—I"

"That's it," she took him up quickly. "You're afraid, Carter—please—for my sake. I've told him you're sensible, a fine man."

Danbury frowned.

"But," he argued, "dearest, I can't take orders. I don't like—" He hesitated, fearful lest he might offend this daughter of Colonel Reuben Thomas, the "big" boss. "I don't like being bossed. I don't like the petty artifices these—politicians resort to to get votes."

"But it's necessary," she argued back. "There must be leaders."

Danbury smiled. When Dorothy Thomas looked like that she reflected every feature of her father's inflexible face, except his wrinkles. Danbury sought to soothe her, but to no avail.

"Please, Carter," she persisted, "If you love me, try it. You—might like it."

"All right," he gave in, and again leaned over towards her, this time to meet a delicious kiss full upon his lips. "But mind now, all I'm to do is to offer my services. I'll not be to blame if they refuse them and—I hope they will."

A keen-eyed youngish old-man faced Carter Danbury the following morning across his flat-topped desk and stroked his bristling white goatee, as he listened to the other attentively. They were closeted alone in the inner sanctum of the campaign headquarters of "William Westlake, the People's Choice for United States Senator." Then the "cranie" spoke.

"So my daughter persuaded you, eh?" queried the Republican leader, severely. "See here, young man, you can't take up this business as a fad. Once in love, you have to stick."

Something in the colonel's tone stung Danbury to the quick and he leaned over the desk angrily.

"I'm not a faddist, Colonel Thomas," he retorted hotly. "I've just held aloof from politics because—well, because I wanted to keep my independence, my ideals. But I'll stick."

"Huh!" grunted the other. "I suppose you realize I'm the party's leader?"

"I am, was Carter's smiling rejoinder. "The papers have told me that much."

"Well, they haven't told you all," shot back the colonel. "I expect to have my orders obeyed." The colonel pushed a button and another man entered the office. "Burke, this is Mr. Danbury. How are you fixed for speakers tonight at East End, hall?"

"Only yourself and Westlake so far," answered the other, respectfully.

"Then put him on, too," ordered the colonel, crisply. Then as the other retired from the room, he turned again to Danbury. "Be there at eight. And mind, don't get rambunctious, young feller. Use diplomacy. There'll be a lot of foreigners there, and we want to handle them gently. G'by."

Carter Danbury was facing his first political audience, and yet he felt cooler than he had expected. He had followed the candidate, Westlake, who now sat behind him, on the stage, with Colonel Thomas, wiping his perspiring brow and smirking grandiloquently at the sea of upturned faces. And much to Carter's surprise, as he proceeded, he was frequently applauded. This added to his courage and he now leaned over to deliver his final philippic.

"And, fellow Americans," he orated, "this is an American age. There can be no divided allegiance. We have come to the day when there shall be an American race, an American nation—for Americans only. We shall preserve our high ideals sacredly, and to those who are not with us in spirit, I say, we say 'get out.' Mr. Westlake stands for the principle 'pass prosperity around,' but we don't propose to pass it around the world. And we don't propose, therefore, to allow those men upon our shores who will accumulate a fortune here by the grace of our institutions and then spread it abroad. To those who visit our shores with that end in view, there can be but one greeting. 'Keep out.'"

Danbury felt several tugs at his coat from behind and, wheeling about, took the assembled politicians by surprise.

"You needn't pull my coat," he thundered, then waved his hand towards the vast audience. "My remarks are intended for Americans, and I know there is not an American out there who doesn't echo that thought. And if there is one who is not American present, I say to him 'get out.' Gentlemen, I pledge our candidate to full support of true Americanism in congress."

Danbury turned to resume his seat and was struck with the angry terror of the crowd on the stage. What had he said? What had he done? Then, later, as he left the hall, his cheerful farewell to Colonel Thomas was answered by a surly grunt.

The next morning he was still at sea when Dorothy informed him that her father had refused him admission to the house.

He hurried to campaign headquarters and was told Colonel Thomas couldn't see him—the committee was in session. "Where was he assigned to speak that night?" he inquired, and was surprised to learn he was on the blacklist. "Why?" he demanded. The clerk couldn't tell him. Then Danbury beatedly forced his way into the committee room, and with blazing eyes confronted Colonel Thomas.

"Colonel Thomas," he began. "what is the trouble around here? What have I done?"

"What have you done?" echoed Westlake at the other end of the room. "Too blame much. You've ruined me. After that fool speech of yours I'll be lucky to get ten votes in the Fourth district. We're spending a thousand dollars today to deny your statements."

"To deny your Americanism?" demanded Carter, and he now turned wrathfully towards the candidate. "Why not call a spade a spade? See here, you call yourself statesmen. I call you traitors. You're afraid to acknowledge the country who gave you birth, who gives you a living, to back it up to the full, just because it might lose you votes. You're yellow—yellower than those poor people whose votes you're after. They're Americans—every one of them. And they're glad of it. They, or their forbears came to this country to seek liberty, to seek the right to live and enjoy our freedom. And now they're proud of it—they, who have been here months—while you, who have enjoyed those rights all your lives, and your people before you, haven't courage enough to protect the country that protects you. Who's the worse—they with their hopes, their ideals, or you who turn your backs upon the hopes and ideals your forefathers fought for and left to your keeping? Where's your Americanism—the Americanism of courage, of decency, of truth? And now, Colonel Thomas, you didn't want me to enter this campaign—afraid I wouldn't stick. But I'm just beginning to see my duty—I want to stick—I demand the right to stick. And I call upon the members of this committee to sustain me with their votes. Do I get them—or not?"

At the end of the table a tall, white-haired old man, who stroked his bristling white goatee, rose and rapped for order. Then he bent his full gaze on Danbury.

"You do," he answered, sharply, and then the corners of his mouth quivered. "Gentlemen of the committee, the son again is father to the man. I was the one who pulled his coat last night, and I rise with shame to acknowledge it. Either we're Americans, or we're God only knows what—and I prefer the former." He turned to Danbury. "Years back, suh, my grandfather's father gave him his swo'd. 'Keep this, my son,' says he, 'an' nevah use it except foah two purposes, eithah t' kill some beastly enemy, or t' kill yoself foah not doin' it.' An' if I had that swo'd now, suh, I'd feel mighty tempted t' use it on myself. But I'll do th' next best thing." He turned again to the committee. "Gentlemen, I move th' committee extend a risin' vote of invitation to our friend, Mr. Danbury, Mr. Carter Danbury—Americus, t' speak at th' big meetin' at th' Academy tonight. What's youah pleasuah?"

As the members of the committee rose to their feet, en masse, the colonel turned his back on them and motioned to Danbury to come to him.

"You've seen th' vote, Carter," he whispered, laying his hands affectionately on the young man's shoulder. "And you knew what it means. But," and his voice sank lower still, "come up t' th' house t' dinner before you go. Dorothy—might like to have you."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Genuine bears Signature

Brentwood

Colorless faces often show the absence of Iron in the blood.

CARTER'S IRON PILLS will help this condition.

How to Test Colors.

If the color is solid or with little white plait a sample of it with a strip of white material. Make a strong soap solution. Have it warm but not hot. Rub and squeeze the goods in this for ten minutes. Rinse in cold water, let it dry. If the color holds fast, the water not colored and the strip of white not stained one may be pretty sure of the color. To test for light, expose a piece of material, in both a wet and dry condition, to strong sunlight for a week. If the goods do not show signs of fading it is reasonably sure they will not do so. If you want various colors for a cotton rug at small expense use Easter egg dyes.

Bomb-Dropping Balloons.

The first bomb-dropping balloons were humble enough and equally futile. Balloons had been used in war as early as the siege of Maubeuge by the Austrians for observation purposes.

The first talk of bomb dropping was in 1812, when the Russians were said to have a huge balloon for that purpose, but nothing was done with it.

In 1847, however, the Austrians, when attacking Venice, sent up paper fire balloons, which were to drop shells into the town. But they forgot to allow for contrary air currents. The ballons got into one, drifted back toward the Austrians and bombed them instead of Venice.

Jasper Park Camp on LAC BEAUVERT.

Horseback Riding over Mountain Trails

On Mount Edith Cavell Glacier

THE Dominion Government in creating the Jasper National Park has set aside for the enjoyment of the people one of the loveliest regions in the Canadian Rockies—a territory starred with beautiful lakes, snowcapped mountain peaks and gigantic glaciers. The area of the park is approximately 4,400 square miles. The desire of the many travellers along the Grand Trunk Pacific line to stay over and inspect the beauties of the Park has led to the establishment of a novel enterprise in the form of a camp hotel on the shores of Lac Beauvert. The official count of the mountain peaks to be seen from the Jasper Park Camp is one hundred and fifty. From the Camp, with its floored tents and big canvas dining hall, trips are made to the famous Maligne Canyon, to Pyramid Lake and to the top of Fitzhugh Mountain. One of the more distant trips to be taken is to the foot of Mount Edith Cavell. This trip is made by saddle horse and is one of about sixteen miles. At the foot of this mountain nestles a beautiful lake, with a hanging glacier which has slowly moved down and filled the valley at the head of the lake.

An Artist's Criticism.

Falguiere, the sculptor, told a capital story of Henner, the great artist, who although he lived in Paris all his life, never lost his Alsatian peasant accent or his country manners. But Henner was a very keen critic and had a clever way of showing his dislike of wordy enthusiasm. Falguiere, whose talent as a sculptor is known all the world over, was very fond of painting, but he did not paint particularly well. One day Henner was in his studio, and Falguire showed him some of his pictures.

"What do you think of this one?" asked Falguiere.

"Superb!" said Henner, with his Alsatian accent. "Marfelous!"

"And this one?"

"Broditchous!"

"And this one?"

"Suplime!"

Then the old man picked up a little bust which his friend had just finished:

"Ah!" he said. "Now, dat's good!"

"I never painted after that," said Falguiere.

Faith.

We had a new experience the other day when we picked up two boatloads of survivors from the ——, torpedoed without warning. I will say they were pretty glad to see us when we bore down on them. As we neared, they began to paddle frantically, as though fearful we should be snatched away from them at the last moment. The crew were mostly Arabs and Lascars, and the first mate, a typical comic-magazine Irishman, delivered himself of the following: "Sure, toward the last, some o' thim haythens gits down on their knees and starts cailing on Allah; but I sez, sez I: 'Git up afore I swat ye wid the ax-handle, ye benighted haythen; sure if this boat gits saved 't will be the Holy Virgin does it or none at all, at all! Git up,' sez I."—An American Officer, in the Atlantic.

NO GRUMBLING AT PRIVATION

Britishers Willing to Subsist on Short Rations if That Will Help Win the War for Liberty.

It really isn't necessary to tell the British people not to waste food. There is nothing eatable left on the average plate when the meal is finished. Meals are one interminable round of fish and eggs, fish and eggs. Eggs are found disguised under all manner of names, but always there are eggs, not seven times a week, but almost 21 times a week, writes Chester M. Wright, member of the American Federation of Labor mission to England.

Meat is rationed by a card system. So is sugar, of which you may have six ounces a week and no more. One of the best hotels in London is serving butter or margarine only once daily. Many hotels have none for days at a time.

Desserts are a thing of the past, recorded in history but not among the things extant. Milk is rationed. Tea soon will be. Bread is rationed. Hotels will serve you with one brown roll per meal. The average man would be amazed at the British menu today, but the British do not grumble. They go on short rations knowing that it must be done, and accept it as part of the war that must be carried victorywards.

Even if it were possible to break the food restrictions the average Britisher has not the slightest desire to get more to eat than his neighbors. Especially among the British workers is there an obvious grim satisfaction when members of the American labor mission and speakers tell how ships are being rushed to completion in 26 states, and how self-denial by the British people in matters of food and luxuries make each ton of maximum value and effect in prosecuting the war to a finish.

The British workers realize that more than half their food comes from the United States.

"The less food the more troops," is the slogan which appeals especially to the Clyde ship builders, one of whom said: "If ships from the United States are laden as far as possible with soldiers and ammunition, then every bolt we drive is as good as a rifle shot against the Germans."

War of the Roses.

The war of the roses that never ends is a war to vanquish beauty with greater beauty. For long ages, since history began, this has been going on. Japan and India, Serbia and Persia cheered on contestants a dozen centuries before Damascus gave to the Crusaders the damask rose for occidental culture. "Dominion" have only temporary significance. For example, as Paris gave Venus the award of beauty, his namesake city gives southern California the gold medal, the prize of honor at the Bagatelle competition. But California must meet world competition in years to come and must maintain her form or get out of the running. Rose culture is a progressive art.

As for the Germans, we believe they were not represented at Bagatelle. That does not matter much. In this, as in their science, the Teutons are rather imitators than originators. True their Duchess de Mecklenburg, their Cornelia Koch, their Feldenberg and particularly their Princess de Segan, with its rich maroon and crimson loveliness, have attracted English attention. But these are all modifications of French types, as the Krangrinzessin Victoria is a modification of the Bourbon rose.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Opportunity knocks but once—but it's different with the human knocker.

If we use the present wisely we may safely leave the future to take care of itself.

TAX COLLECTOR W. J. GREEN WANTS MORE ASSISTANCE

FINANCE COMMITTEE WILL DEAL WITH THE MATTER—CITY COUNCIL HELD BRIEF SESSION.

INSPECT PLUMBING

The heat moistened the brows of the City Fathers last night to such an extent that it drove them downstairs to the comparatively plain but cool committee room, where Tax Collector W. J. Green, made a request for an assistant in his department. Supplementing his request, he stated that he could not be out on his work and attending to his office at the same time.

In the matter of expense of an assistant, he submitted the following table showing that although Peterboro has the second highest amount of taxes the tax collector's office receives the smallest remuneration:

City.	Taxes.	Sal. of Col.
Brantford	$643,743.00	$2900.00
Kingston,	$438,012.25	$2400.00
Belleville,	$243,843.04	$1800.00
Sherbrooke,	$333,167.70	$2800.00
St. Thomas,	$345,018.00	$1900.00
Chatham,	$336,624.32	$2100.00
Peterboro,	$500,086.24	$1490.00 (1918.) $1550.00 (1919.)

Mr. Green also asked for an extension of time in which to turn in the assessment roll. It is usually complete by July 1st for the preceding year, but there are still four tax accounts for 1918 still unpaid, and Mr. Green wanted two weeks in which to bring in these accounts.

The matter of an assistant was referred to the Finance Comittee to be dealt with at next Friday afternoon's meeting. Mr. Green was allowed until July 15 in which to turn in the 1918 assessment roll. The 1919 assessment roll was authorized to be turned over to Mr. Green for collection.

Will Inspect Plumbing.

Mr. Edwin Newsome, the editor of the Heating and Plumbing Journal of Toronto, who made such far reaching and alarming reports on the conditon of local plumbing, offered to make a report of the local situation at places specified by the local plumbers or by the City Fathers for a consideration of $100 to cover his time and expenses, but Ald. Hamilton, chairman of the Property Committee is replying that an inspector independent of the controversy will be engaged, and will carry out the inspections in the city without the general knowledge of the public.

An Increase.

Mr. Joseph Grierson, caretaker of the city parks, asked for an advance of $50 on his salary as he had an unforseen expense for bedding and plants.

The Mayor was in favor of granting Mr. Grierson's request and Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald.Crowe that his request be granted.—Carried.

CELEBRATE PEACE SATURDAY, 19TH

GENERAL THANKSGIVING DAY FOR PEACE TO BE SUNDAY, JULY 6.

OTTAWA, July 2. — To-day the Government received from the Colonial Secretary two despatches, dated July 1, which are now made public.

His Majesty has issued a proclamation appointing Sunday, July 6, as a day of general thanksgiving for the blessing of peace, and it is his desire that this day shall be observed not only in the United Kingdom, but in all quarters of the Empire. The King has also given his sanction to a peace celebration in the United Kingdom on Saturday, July 19, and the hope is expressed that all parts of the Empire will join as far as possible in celebrating peace on that day.

As war is still being waged in many campaigns in Europe, and while peace still remains to be signed with three of the enemy nations, the Government of Canada were of the opinion that a later date would be more appropriate.

However, in view of his Majesty's proclamation, and having regard to the desire expressed as to a general celebration of peace throughout the Empire, the Government has appointed Sunday, July 6, as a day of general thanksgiving for the blessing of peace, and it has also concurred in appointing Saturday, July 19, for peace celebrations in all parts of the Dominion.

END OF STRIKE IS IN PROSPECT

TORONTO STREET CARS WILL LIKELY BE RUNNING TO-MORROW.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 3.—At 1.30 this afternoon, it was announced that a mass meeting of the striking railway employees will be held to-night, at which Manager Harris will submit to the men a proposition from the Ontario Railway Board to pay them the wages recommended by the Conciliation Board.

It is almost certain the men will accept the proposition, in which case the cars will be running to-morrow, after twelve days' idleness.

An unconfirmed report this afternoon is that the settlement of the street railway strike will probably be reached before the day ends, by the Ontario Railway Board granting the men the scale of wages recommended by the Conciliation Board.

At the Ontario Railway Board offices the shipping of the company's books to Quebec Province is proof of the company's ability to meet the men's demands.

A sensational development in the negotiations for the settlement of the Toronto Street Railway strike occurred last night when R. C. Harris, the manager of the system for the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, announced that the books of the Toronto Street Railway Company had been shipped by the company to the Province of Quebec in order to remove the records from the jurisdiction of the Ontario Railway Board.

THANKSGIVING ON SUNDAY NEXT

Day Will be Observed Throughout the Province.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 3 — On the recommendation of Premier Hearst, the Lieut.-Governor will issue a proclamation naming Sunday, July 6th as a day of general thanksgiving to be observed throughout the province to commemorate the end of the war.

$60,000 A YEAR

OTHERS GOT BIG PAY, TOO

OTTAWA, July 3. — Although exceedingly reluctant to divulge to curious ears the extent of the pittance which he has been receiving as Vice-President and General Manager of the Alberta Pacific Grain Company, Mr. John A. MacFarlane admitted after cross-examination at two sessions of the Parliamentary Cost of Living Committee here yesterday, that he was paid more last year for his services than the people of Canada pay the Governor-General.

At the morning session Mr. MacFarlane was willing to admit that he received a salary of $5,000 a year and a management commission on the net profits. Later he stated that this commission amounted to 5 per cent. It needed only a slight computation to enable the members of the committee, in view of the net profits, which ranged from $323,326 in 1912-13, to $2,173,306 in 1916-17, and $1,779,635, in 1917-18, to see that this commission would in some years be nearly $110,000.

About a $60,000 Salary.

After pressure he stated that he received only about half of this and that the rest was divided amongst active management. Even at that his salary was nearly $60,000 for last year. He refused to say who the others were that received the rest of the commission and what they received, but admitted at length that besides being managers, these others might also be directors. He himself was a director.

The witness denied that the company had engaged to any great extent in speculation, but said that it had acted as would a merchant with goods on his shelves, until they got the grain where it could be marketed, that is, at Fort William. They had keen competition, and they had "enemies." Among the latter he thought the United Growers prominent. The price of grain was fixed on the British price, although he admitted that the Northwestern Grain Dealers' Association, including all the grain dealers, sent out to all grain dealer members a price fixed on the basis of the British price, but he claimed that this was only for their guidance and that it was broken under stress of competition every day. He claimed that they paid more for the farmers' grain than other companies, claiming that this secured for them a greater volume of grain than others received, and that because of the volume handled they made their profit. Their turn-over in 1912-13 of six million bushels had risen to fifty-four million bushels in 1917-18.

Mr. Pringle's Error.

The story of profit and progress in a short time was so much like a fairy tale that at one point Mr. R. A. Pringle, K. C., counsel for the committee, exclaimed, "I have made an awful mistake in going into law!" and a member of the committee added: "This makes the United Grain Growers look like pikers in the salaries they pay and the profits they make."

RAILROAD WRECK NEAR WINNIPEG

Engineer was Badly Hurt — C. N. R. Trains running over the C. P. R. Tracks because of the Havoc of Cloud Burst.

(Special to Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, July 3. — The Grand Trunk Pacific Express train on its way to Winnipeg from Edmonton, was derailed at Castelle, Sask, 236 miles east of Edmonton. The engine, baggage and mail cars and one coach went into the ditch. The passengers got a bad shaking up but no one was seriously injured excepting Simon Northington, the engineer, who was pinned under the cab and hurt internally and scalded. He is now in the Saskatoon hospital.

The Canadian National Railway trains are now running over the Canadian Pacific tracks between here and Port Arthur, as a cloud burst has torn up great sections of the line and washed away bridges between Rainy River and Fort Frances.

ANTI-BOLSHEVIK FORCES ADVANCING

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 3.—The forces of Gen. Denekin, the anti-Bolshevik leader in Southern Russia, have occupied the city of Tzaritzin, on the Volga river, south of Saratov, according to a Russian wireless report to-day. The city previously had been abandoned by the Bolsheviki.

NOT OBLIGED TO TURN KAISER OVER

(Special to The Examiner.)

THE HAGUE, July 3.—Unusual movements at Amerongen Chateau were reported to-day by the "Handelsblad."

Commenting on this, the newspaper said it expects the former Kaiser will attempt to depart from his home there. The 'Nieuw Courant' declared to-day that the Dutch government does not feel obliged to turn Wilhelm over to the Allies. "He is free to go where he likes so long as he stays in Holland," said this journal. The same view was held with regard to the former Crown Prince.

WILL SOON BRING BILL TO TRIAL

TEXT OF AGREEMENTS BETWEEN FRANCE, BRITAIN AND UNITED STATES.

(United Press.)

LONDON, July 3.—Lloyd George, in the House of Commons to-day, stated that the former German Kaiser will soon be brought to trial.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 3.— The text of the agreements between France, Britain and the United States were given out by the Foreign Office last night. The agreement between Great Britain and France, corresponds with that between the United States and France, with the additional provision that the treaty impose no obligation upon any of the Dominions on the British Empire unless approved by parliament of each dominion interested. This agreement is signed by M. Clemenceau, M. Pichon, David Lloyd George, the British Premier, and A. J. Balfour, the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. The text of the treaty between France and the United States and a similar one between Britain and the United States, makes every provision for the co-operation of these three powers in carrying out provisions of treaty of Versailles, ending the great war.

WILLING TO SELL STREET RAILWAY

R. J. FLEMMING THROWS OUT A LEAD TO THE CITY.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 3.— R. J. Fleming, general manager of the Toronto Street Railway, stated to-day he believed the directors of the company would be willing to sell the road to the city now without waiting until 1921, when the company's agreement expired. If the city approached the company now about the purchase, the company he said, would be found in a reasonable mood.

The executive of the King street association, comprised of the largest property holders on that thoroughfare, have requested the city to purchase the Toronto street railway now, and the agency of the Ontario Hydro Commission be employed in order that the acquisition be carried out in a practical and business-like manner.

PROGRESS OF DIRIGIBLE

THE R-34 IS OVER A THOUSAND MILES OUT FROM STARTING POINT.

WEATHER FINE

(Special to The Examiner.)

CAPE RACE, Nfld., July 3.—The White Star liner Megantic reported to-day that at 6 a.m., Greenwich time (2 a.m. New York time) she picked up a wireless from the R34, giving the dirigible's position as 52.30 north lat. and 32.00 west long.

The R34, the message said, was flying in the sunshine above the clouds, at an altitude of two thousand feet. (The position given is more than one thousand miles west of East Fortune, Scotland, from which the R34 departed at 2.40 a.m., Greenwich time, yesterday morning.)

GOOD WEATHER.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 3, 9.56 a.m.—The Air Minister received a report from the British dirigible R34 at 6.11 this morning, giving the position of the craft as approximately half-way to Newfoundland.

The British warship Renown, stationed in mid-Atlantic, reported at 6.15 o'clock this morning that the barometer was steady, the wind was blowing about four miles from the north-west, the sky was clear and visibly good, and the sea was smooth.

The British Air Ministry announced to-day that it expected Dirigible R34, now in mid-ocean on the trans-atlantic trip, to reach St. John's, Newfoundland, on Friday morning, and Hazelhurst Field, Long Island, early on Saturday morning.

MINEOLA, July 3.—With everything in readiness to receive the giant dirigible R34, officers of the Royal Air Force and American aviation units are on the alert for the arrival of the airship.

Beginning to-night, scores of searchlights will send up ribbons of light and wig-wag their signals on location.

They are placed around the field, on the ground, on trucks, on water towers, and on wireless towers.

LONDON, July 3.— General Seeley announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that the R34 was only 235 miles east of St. Johns, Nfld., at six o'clock this morning (1 a.m. New York time.)

Wireless Reports.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., July 3.— The wireless station here reports having heard signals last night from R34, indicating that all was well and that the dirigible was continuing her westward journey. The position of the ship was not reported and consequently the station here has no idea how far she has progressed on her voyage.

SECOND YEARLY EMPLOYEES' DAY AT CRESSMAN'S

An innovation started last year by the Cressman Company Limited was duplicated this year when the company, co-operating with the Welfare Club and the heads of the twenty-one departments of the store, took 20 p.c. of the gross sales of last Saturday and distributed the amount amongst the staff, according to length of service and salary received.

The appreciation of the idea is quite evident as the day's sales were a record, even going ahead of Christmas Saturdays, which are always considered the banner sales days of the year. The amount distributed was consequently much in excess of a year ago, being approximately twelve hundred dollars.

This distribution is in no way connected with the profit-sharing scheme of the company, which takes place twice a year, in August and February, at the close of each half year and is based on the results of the departments.

POLICE SECURE OVER A TON OF LITERATURE IN WINNIPEG LABOUR TEMPL

DIVERSITY OF OPINION AMONG LABOUR LEADERS AS TO METHODS CONDUCTING THE RECENT STRIKE—RAID IN FORT WILLIAM.

IMPORTANT MEETING HELD

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 3. — Admitting defeat to-day for the first time, the Winnipeg Strike committee now announces in the local press that it will endeavour to secure demands through parliamentary action. The committee lays claim to always having adopted parliamentary action, but in a half hearted and spasmodic manner. During the past day or so it is stated, important meetings of the Trades and Labour Council, Labour Party, Labour Church and the Women's Labour League have been held.

There is diversity of opinion existing among Winnipeg labour leaders and delegates from outside cities regarding the manner in which the strike was conducted. The Strike committee admitted defeat, "not by economic power or employer, but by the power of the press and parliaments."

President Winning of the Trades and Labour Council, gave the opinion that it would take a couple of weeks to absorb all classes of labour.

The quiet that pervaded the Labour Temple was styled by one member as being a "calm that precedes a storm." The prevailing topic at the Temple is the raids, made in recent days and the uncertainty as to where the next blow will be struck. SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST WRIGHT

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 3. — Before the Board of Control to-day, Controller McBride made the sensational charge against George Wright, a member of the Ontario Hydro Commission, that shortly before his appointment as Commissioner he bought the Caer-Howell hotel property on University avenue and later sold it to the Hydro Commission at a greatly advanced price. Wright is joint proprietor of the Walker and Carls-Rite hotel.

SIGNED CITY'S BOND; CASHED IT YESTERDAY

While cashing a City of Peterborough bond yesterday for the Little Lake Cemetery Board, of which he is treasurer, noticed that it was signed by himself and Mr. T. H. G. Deane. In flashing reminiscence Mr. Brownscombe recalled that Mr. Deane was the Mayor of Peterborough twenty years ago when the bond was issued, and that he himself was the city treasurer. Hence their names were officially affixed to that issue, and an interesting and singular coincident lies in the fact that Mr. Deane is now president of the Cemetery Board, and Mr. Brownscombe is its secretary.

THE R-34's FLIGHT.

The latest word from the great [illegible], the R-34, shows that the aircraft was only a few hundred miles off the coast of Newfoundland, flying swiftly and steadily westward. The success of the voyage, which marks a step in the history of aerial navigation, seems to be assured. There is no question that at the present, at least, the lighter-than-air machines, such as the one now flying across the Atlantic, will be the type of aircraft that will be used for commercial purposes. The risk of danger is reduced to a minimum, and it is possible to carry many more passengers as the largest of the heavier-than-air machines. In a short time regular services of dirigibles across the Atlantic will undoubtedly be in order, and the two continents will be brought many days closer to Europe. The possibilities, not only in the matter of transporting passengers, but in the speeding up of mail service, are startling.

AN EIGHT HOUR DAY.

One of the outstanding features of the majority report of the commission on Industrial Relations tabled in the House of Commons on Tuesday, was the recommendation of a maximum work day of eight hours. This reform, urged by the commission after its inquiry into the industrial situation to be necessary, puts the issue squarely up to the Dominion government again. What the result will be is not yet clear but the record does not lead to any expectation of the recommendation of the commission being accepted. The Government leaders have already announced that the Federal Government has no jurisdiction in such matters, which are under the control of the Provincial governments. Provincial premiers, on the other hand, have as eagerly asserted that the fixing of a maximum working day is a matter solely under the jurisdiction of the Dominion government. Will the Federal leaders continue to "pass the buck" in the face of the finding of its own commission? And if they do, will anything be heard of the recommendation of the conference of the Dominion Labor Party suggests, should be an immediate session.

MUST GO FURTHER

The recommendation of the cost of living committee that a commercial board be appointed to deal with conditions that are oppressing the people was passed by the House of Commons. It does not however go far enough to please the public. The power to be given the tribunal is limited to prosecution only of combines and profiteers. That may be all right as far as it goes, although the government's close relationship with many of those directly interested in the high cost of living is not a hopeful augury that much relief can be expected. The profiteering in Canada is not confined to mergers of manufacturers. The evidence heard by the cost of living committee showed that exorbitant profits have been collected by middlemen and by retailers. In fact in some cases the consumer's price is sometimes a multiple of the price that has to be paid by the people who buy the goods in the store. The unfortunate consumer wants protection from profiteering no matter where it is found and there is nothing in the powers to be given the Commercial Board that promises relief. It was shown before the cost of living committee that the cloth for suits of clothes which are retailed at $55 or $60 can be purchased by the manufacturers at $17. Where the balance between that cost and the price paid over the counter in a clothing store go to? That is one of the questions the people are asking, and the tribunal that has been appointed will be unable to answer them as it does not appear to have any jurisdiction to do anything in connection with the matter. continue to prosper and the consumer will still have to pay through the nose.

THE COMMISSION'S REPORT.

Labour cannot have much cause to be dissatisfied with the majority report of the Comission on Industrial Relations, which calls for a number of radical and sweeping reforms, based on the evidence heard by the commission in different parts of Canada. The report not only advocates a maximum working day of eight hours, but it also calls for a minimum wage, especially for female workers and unskilled labour. An especially important recommendation made is for state insurance against unemployment, sickness or old age. Nothing causes more worry to the average worker than the fear that he will lose his position or that illing ill, he will be unable to support himself or his family. This dread hangs over the worker at all times and there can be no doubt that a system of insurance which will be a guarantee against misfortune, like unemployment or illness, would be a great boon. The majority report also recommends a number of other important matters, including the recognition of the principle of collective bargaining and of the right of the workers to organize. Another proposal is the establishment of a bureau for promoting industrial councils to improve the relationship between employers and workers. The commission wisely suggests that changes should be made step by step, based on experience, but with the general direction towards health, happiness and prosperity of workers and the service of the community.

POLITICS AND THE CANADIAN ARMY MEDICAL CORPS.

By a strange coincidence two very important documents reached our desk simultaneously the other day. One was a verbatim report of the speech made in the House of Commons on 27th May by Sir Edward Kemp, the Overseas Minister of Militia. The other was a sheet copy of a book entitled "Politics and the Canadian Army Medical Corps," by Col. Herbert A. Bruce (William Briggs). The latter is a man whose name is well known in Canada, for he is Professor of Clinical Surgery at Toronto University, and a colonel in the British Army Medical Corps and the C. A. M. C. The connection between these two documents is very close, for the book by Colonel Bruce entirely negatives many of the statements made by Sir Edward Kemp.

On page 27 of the report of the latter's speech, we read that W. F. Nickle put some questions to the Minister regarding the medical services overseas. The final question and answer are as follows:

"Mr. Nickle: Then we had an excellent medical service?"

"Sir Edward Kemp: There is no doubt about it in my mind. In every way it was the very best there was."

That reply gives the official attitude towards any questions regarding the conduct of the C. A. M. C. overseas, but a perusal of the book by Colonel Bruce tells a very different story. It tells of how he was appointed to investigate the conditions in the medical services overseas, and how he found that things were in a deplorable state. With great energy he set about reorganizing the entire medical services overseas, but he found a stumbling block in the fact that politics were being allowed to play a large part in the service. One glaring instance of this is given in the book. In the reorganization of the medical services, conducted under the Sub-Militia Council, on the motion of Colonel Ashton, seconded by the late General Steele, it was decided to order Surgeon-General Jones, who seems to have been inefficient, to return to Canada. Before this action could be taken, however, political events had caused the appointment of Sir George Perley as Overseas Minister, and the Prime Minister himself, it is said, was not represented at the meeting at which it was decided to recall Surgeon-General Jones. And those in charge were not informed of the reasons for the change. Colonel Bruce protested against the recall of Surgeon-General Jones, and was told by Sir George Perley that he was only a civilian and had no right to criticize the action of the Council. Colonel Bruce then resigned his position as Consulting Surgeon to the Canadian Army Medical Corps, and returned to Canada. Before this action could be taken, however, political events had caused the appointment of Sir George Perley as Overseas Minister of Militia, with power to take over the question of the C. A. M. C. under his own control. The result is told in the introduction to the book as follows:

"Practically his first official act was to override the decision of the Sub-Militia Council and cancel the order for the return of Surgeon-General Carleton Jones to Canada. This arbitrary act was unquestionably due to the INFLUENCE OF CERTAIN LADIES who knew nothing of the grave problems involved, but were filled with hysterical excitement on the subject of the V. A. D. hospitals."

Colonel Bruce presented a very full report on the overseas medical services to the Government, but it was so startling in its denunciation of the manner in which politics had been allowed to interfere with the efficiency of the service that it was suppressed, and a further whitewashing investigation was ordered. But Colonel Bruce would not be kept silent, and now he has given to the people of Canada the true facts regarding the administration of the C. A. M. C. To say that this book will create a sensation is to put things very mildly. Viewing the narrative of Colonel Bruce from all angles, it is clear that some explanation must be required from the Overseas Minister of Militia and of the Prime Minister himself, as to why the representations of the medical services were suppressed by Colonel Bruce was not served on. And those in

The Entrance Hall.

In planning for the entrance hall arrange for plenty of light. Have at least one window of ample size. Do not depend upon the light admitted through a small pane of glass placed in the top of the door to throw illumination upon the entrance floor. This may be made a very important factor in carrying out the general character of the home, and it needs the light equally with any other room in the house. Another mistake often made is in designing the entrance of rent. Certainly the impression conveyed by a cold entrance hall in winter is not a pleasing one and does not suggest the spirit of rest that we have told so much stress upon. Not only this, but in winter weather cold drafts of air are certain to enter the room through the opening of doors and through the cracks around the door. It will mean much to the comfort of the living rooms if this air has the chill removed from it before entering the general circulation. —Good Health.

Reckless Eating.

Dietitians commenting on modern recklessness in eating quote the remark of Seneca, the Roman philosopher, "Man does not die: he kills himself." Originally made to live 1,000 years, man has fallen to an average of only one-third of a century. It has taken 6,000 years, the authorities tell us, to develop a race that will live, by hook or by crook, as long as thirty-three years, which is given as the present day average. The blame is placed upon our disregard of plain honesty in living. We scorn everything natural and surrender to artificial gratifications and indulgence that tend to ruin the natural health of the body. Our discretion cannot be trusted to do the common sense obvious thing. It is pointed out that animals live longer on natural food than on man's mixture. A sick horse turned out to pasture will get well, and if fed on bran, oats and other food prescribed by man he dies.—Exchange.

Story of a Postal Card.

Don't despise the badly written postal card, morefince a writer in Business. He received a card that was written in a scrawl and showed signs of having been in the writer's pocket for some time after he had signed it. But it was answered just as if it had been written by a reputable business man. And it was. It seemed that the card had been hastily written on the cars, put into the merchant's pocket, discovered several days later and then mailed. "We have since," concludes the writer, "done a very nice business with this man."

His Music Room.

"And you call this your music room?"

"Yes."

"But there are no musical instruments in it?"

"No. It's so constructed that I can't hear any of the surrounding music that may be turned on from time to time."—Violin World.

A Lesson in English.

Teacher—Now, Clarence, can you tell me what "can't" is the abbreviation of? Clarence—It's the abbreviation of "cannot." Teacher—That's right. Now, Edgar, what is "don't" the abbreviation of? Edgar—"Doughnut."

Try to Deserve It.

Contentment in old age is deserved by him alone who has not lost faith in what is good, his persevering strength of will and his desire for active employment.—Turgenieff.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said

"After all, what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to invest it than in Life Insurance."

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man, sixteen years of age, took out a 15-year Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years, and he has now, through that investment, an immediate estate of $1,495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15% COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR HE PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said (and he might have added, No better place than the Sun Life of Canada), "There is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

AND THE SUN LIFE OF CANADA GIVES THIS RESULT.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

Conversions are being recorded nightly at the meetings of the Union Evangelistic Campaign on Hunter street. Some of these are very interesting in character. Christians also are having new experiences. Many Christians have seemed surprised by Evangelist Kennedy's emphatic statement that it is possible for people in this life to know that they are absolutely saved and that they will never enter into judgment as far as admission into heaven is concerned. Their impression apparently has been that not until after they die will they know whether or not they will go to heaven. Mr. Kennedy points out that there are various passages in the Scriptures, which show that Christians may know in this life that they are absolutely saved. One of these is John 5:18, which stated that any person who believes on Christ is not condemned or judged but those who do not believe are condemned already because they have not believed in the only begotten Son of God. A second passage is in 1st John 5:13, which reads, "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternal life." In the 10th verse of the same chapter appear the words, 'He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself that he has been born again of God." Among others one man who has been very active in the services did not know until the other night that he might have these assurances of salvation. A considerable number of other professing Christians have found it out for the first time.

The Address

In last night's address Evangelist Kennedy dealt strongly with the sins of Christians, while at the same time holding out to sinners their need for eternal life. He showed that many Christians are weakened in their Christian experience by their lives and that they are proving stumbling blocks to others. He spoke of the case of a mother who won a $20 prize playing whist but who was horrified to find that her son had won $100 through playing cards. The mother, he said, was as bad a gambler as the son. One woman asked an evangelist to pray for her son who was becoming addicted to liquor. His reply was that he would do so as soon as she emptied her cellar of wine.

Christians were given three tests to apply to themselves. These were, first, do the unconverted who know you think you are a Christian. Second does your wife or your husband know you to be a Christian? Third, are you the kind of Christian that you expect other Christians to be? Finally, Mr. Kennedy asked the question, "Ought I to be a Christian?" and showed that every class in the community, even those who are now unconverted, would reply "Yes" to such a question At the close of the meeting several conversions were recorded including a young woman who previously had persistently refused to accept Christ. A considerable number are attending the meetings regularly who have not yet professed conversion but have expressed a desire to be converted.

To-night's subject will be "God's Gold Cure" and to-morrow night's, "Both Sides of the Question." To-morrow night's service will be one especially for young people. Delegations will be present from the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. Yesterday afternoon a special prayer service was held from 2 to 3 o'clock in the St. Paul's Sunday School hall. At the close of the meeting a desire was expressed by those present that another service be held. Arrangements have been made therefore, for another service to be held tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 5 in the Bethany Tabernacle on George street. These services are held especially for Christians who are praying for the conversion of friends or for greater power in their own Christian experiences.

SERMONETTES BY KENNEDY.

You cannot regenerate a community in a general way.

Sin began with the individual, and so must regeneration.

No one can eat your dinner for you. Neither can any one get converted in your place. It's all a personal matter.

Some men have their religion in their wife's name; but that won't count on the last day.

If a man cannot be born right the second time, he should not have been born wrong the first time; but every man may be born again.

Christ was born into the human, and we may all be born into the diving.

If a man is not born again, he cannot see the kingdom, let alone enter into it.

Sin did not begin in a slum; it began in a garden.

Some people say "Change a man's environment and you change the man." Adam's environment was first-class, yet what happened?

No man is held accountable for the start he got in life, but for the way it ends.

Don't be concerned about where you came from, or how, but be concerned about where you are going.

God says your righteousnesses are as filthy rags. That being true, what must He think of your unrighteous deeds?

If you dropped dead now, would you have won one soul for Christ?

Is it not strange that the part of the Jonah story that the critics deny is the part that Christ vouched for as being true?

Some critics sneer at the idea of God making an ass talk like a man, then without divine assistance perform the greater stunt of talking like an ass.

The reason preachers' children go wrong sometimes is because they have to play with the children of their church members—don't forget.

Poverty is no disgrace; but that is about all that can be said in its favour.

Some folks are always building air castles—I suppose, because they have no taxes to pay on them.

Subject for Thursday night: "God's Gold Cure."

Subject for Friday night: "Both Sides of the Question."

LABOUR COUNCIL OBJECTS TO ONE-MAN STREET CARS

RESOLUTION OF PROTEST AGAINST THEIR USE WILL BE SENT TO THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC COMMISSION.

Believing that the one-man street cars are a menace to public safety, the Trades and Labour Council passed a resolution protesting against the introduction of this system in Peterborough, and instructed the secretary to forward a copy to the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Mr. G. H. Benson, of the Musicians' Local, reminded organized labour that union orchestras are available for dances. Tucker's orchestra was referred to as a Union organization.

Mr. T. Toomis reported that the City Council had not kept faith with the labourers in the settlement of the strike. The particular complaint was that Messrs. Pritchard and Smith, street sweepers, were not being paid 40c. an hour. The sweeping gang were receiving the former nine-hour pay for the new eight-hour day.

Mr. A. J. Bolwell, president of the Council, remarked that the City Council had not treated these labourers fairly, and apparently had not kept the promises they made to the big labour deputation.

Ald. Crowe stated that he would endeavour to secure the full wage for the men, but explained that the City Council had delegated the responsibility of adjusting the sweepers' wages to the City Engineers' department. There was some discussion upon the grading plan, but no action was taken pending the new effort by the labour aldermen to obtain for the street workers the wage scale they were led to believe they would receive.

Mention was made of a reported contribution of $10,000 from the Manufacturers' Association to the Board of Trade. This sum would have been more appropriately employed had all or part of it been given to the City Council to help settle the wage question, it was stated, and the opinion was also expressed that the manufacturers must expect some particular return from the Board of Trade for this very substantial assistance, if the published report was correct. It was remarked that some members of the Board appeared to have a lop-sided opinion of its scope and purposes.

Another criticism was directed against a blacklist, the retail merchants' section are credited with preparing. Some members expressed the belief that this action was illegal, but there was no certainty in the meeting as to whether such blacklists were prohibited in Canada or not.

Lights in Parks.

A motion was passed requesting the City Council to provide better lighting in the parks, especially in Central Park. This was proposed on moral grounds and also to insure adequate illumination for public gatherings. It was stated that Central Park was almost in total darkness on Monday night when the citizens assembled to celebrate the signing of the peace treaty.

It was reported that the Labour Day committee are developing their plans for a big demonstration by organized workers.

"THE LITTLE INTRUDER"

This is the Title of New World Picture Starring Louise Huff.

"The Little Intruder" is the title of the new World Picture, starring Louise Huff, which is scheduled for showing to-day, Friday and Saturday, at the Grand Theatre. It is one of the most unusual and attractive films of the year and gives Miss Huff one of the delightfully likeable roles for which she is noted.

Supporting Miss Huff in this picture is a notable cast including such well known screen favorites as Johnny Himes, George MacQuarrie, Stuart Holmes and Albert Hart. The story was written by H. S. Sheldon, who is the author of a number of the bigger screen successes of the day. In this picture he penned a story which is splendidly suited to Miss Huff's great talents.

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

What It Is and How It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Many Instances

SHOULD BE PRESCRIBED BY EVERY DOCTOR AND USED IN EVERY HOSPITAL

Says Editor of "Physicians' Who's Who"

Take plain bitro-phosphate in the advice of these physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack vim, energy and nerve force, and there seems to be ample proof of the efficacy of this preparation. Moreover, if we judge from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury in Peterborough and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Clinical tests made in St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y. C., showed that two patients gained in weight 23 and 27 pounds, respectively, through the administration of organic phosphate; both patients claim they have not felt as strong and well for the past twelve years.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are now recognizing its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities. Frederick Kolle, M.D., editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Joseph D. Harrigan, Former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensatory, says: "Let those who are weak, thin nervous, anaemic, run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as bitro-phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Bitro-Phosphate is made entirely of the organic phosphate compound referred to in the National Standard Dispensatory as being an excellent tonic and nervine and a preparation which has recently acquired considerable reputation in the treatment of neurasthenia. The standard of excellence, strength and purity of its substance is beyond question, for every Bitro-Phosphate tablet is manufactured in strict accordance with the U. S. Pharmacopoeia test requirements. Bitro-Phosphate is therefore not a patent medicine and should not be confused with any of the secret nostrums, so-called tonics or widely advertised "cure-alls."

CAUTION: — Although Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, owing to its tendency to increase weight it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

NEW LOCAL INDUSTRY MAKING GOOD HEADWAY

STOCK OF THE DOMINION DUSTLESS SWEEPER COMPANY LIMITED FREELY SELLING.

We Canadians do not know the land we live in. We have set ourselves upon building a vast outfit of public railways, telegraphs, telephones and municipal machinery to be the ball-bearings of modern business. This progressive age in Canada is calling for improvements in every product of general use and consumption and for the development of higher standards of perfection in sanitary and other important improvements for the common weal. The public has been calling loudly for better and cleaner streets, with the result that we have now the Blaney system of street cleaning introduced, and Canada is to be the parent country in exploiting a dustless street sweeping machine, which aims to provide an ideal new and economical plant to municipalities for cleaning and securing sanitary streets.

Standing back of this new Blaney system is the Dominion Dustless Sweeper Co., Limited, with its headquarters at present in Peterborough, and with the assurance that its development is only now a question of public encouragement and support.

Attention is drawn to the announcement of this company on another page, wherein it will be seen that a limited amount of the capital stock of the company is offered for private investment. This stock possesses unique features when compared with some offerings made to the investing public. It has been learned that not a dollar's worth of what is known as "watered" stock is held by the company. The original sale of stock was made at par—no bonuses being given. These facts leave the company absolutely free from any resemblance to handing out something for nothing.

The capitalization of the Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company will be increased as the business growth develops, thereby securing to the first investors the benefits which naturally accrue from such a policy.

Dustless Street Cleaning is bound to become an essential public utility, abundant evidence of which is already maturing by the numerous inquiries received regarding the new machines of the Blaney system type. From the standpoint of public health the dust nuisance has always been a perplexing problem and any improvement which has for its object the combating of this nuisance, will be welcomed by all.

Peterborough has something to be proud of in the fact that it is the home of the present parent company owning the patents in Canada, Great Britain, the United States, France and Australia. That the experimental stage is passed also affords added stability to the position which it has attained since 1914.

The Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company has received the written endorsations of the practical value of their system from leading officials of Peterborough, as well as from other well known prominent men of the city. This would seem to show that a live interest has been taken in the public demonstrations of the sweeper during the period of experimenting.

It is understood that the company has been asked for a proposition regarding the sale of the United States' patents, but until such times as the production of machines in Canada has been well established, there will be nothing definitely done in this matter. The management has decided to introduce the Blaney system of street sanitation in a number of Canadian cities first, with the object of demonstrating beyond doubt the merits of their machine.

It is gratifying to learn that stock is selling freely in Peterborough and enquiries are being received from outside which afford additional confidence and encouragement to the promoters.

AN EFFICIENT SLEUTH

(From the London Express)

The London consul of a continental kingdom was informed by his government that one of his countrywomen, supposed to be living in Great Britain, had been left a large fortune. After advertising without result he applied to the police, and a clever young detective was set to work. A few weeks later his chief asked how he was getting on.

"I've found the lady, sir."

"Good. Where is she?"

"At my place. I married her yesterday."

BUSINESS MEN ARE HOPEFUL OF REAL SOLUTION

WAITING FOR REPORT OF INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS COMMISSION.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 3.—Winnipeg business men are hopeful of the real solution of the industrial and living problems coming from the report of the Industrial Relations Commission if its recommendations are enforced.

Business men, interviewed by the Examiner correspondent, were unanimous in their support of any measures that hold out the prospect of industrial adjustment without the turmoil of srikes.

Similarly they are unanimous in urging the Government to see that active steps toward a solution of the cost of living problem be taken before the prorogation of Parliament.

Time and again the opinion was expressed that the recent sympathetic strike was due to the unrest caused by the nation-wide problems, the solution of which is aimed at in the report of the Commission more than to purely local conditions.

There was a general tendency to discredit the appointment of more commissions and boards, but even those who had most to say on that subject were willing to pass the point on the possibility that commissions to carry on the fight against unrest and the cost of living would be highly successful.

THE Y.W.C.A. GIRLS' CAMP

Y. W. C. A. Camp,
Burleigh Falls,
Stoney Lake.

Dear Girls,— Do you know that it has been said by one who has known Stoney Lake for years that there are more people up there now, just at the beginning of the season, that there are usually in the middle of July? We can well believe it, for even at our end of the lake (we own the 'end of the lake' now, you see), even at our end, which you know is rather removed from the "madding crowd," there are more people than we can keep track of, and we have not yet learned to identify all the various launches that chug-chug or put-put around by our place. There are quite a number of people at Burleigh Hotel, many of them Americans who have come up to fish. There may be no land on earth like the United States, but the people seem to like to try our country for a while, don't they? Just beyond Burleigh there is an Indian encampment, and the guests at the hotel engage Indian guides to take them fishing. We are happy to say that we do not require Indian guides for our fishing. Some of the girls were trolling for a long time one day with the result that two gentlemen presented our camp with a large bass and a big piece of lunge, already for cooking. The lunge, which had been a big one, was caught right beside our island.

Everyone around the western end of Stoney Lake know "The Hermit," and we have discovered him for ourselves. He lives alone in three shacks, one at a time of course. They say that when one gets too dirty-he moves to the next one. We went into a field near his shacks to gather wild strawberries and got enough for two big pies. "The Hermit" appeared at his window but evidently did not resent our trespassing. Indeed, he told one of his neighbours afterwards that he did not mind the girls getting all the berries they wanted, but the "ones in pants sat on his hay and spoiled it." This reference to two of the girls who were wearing their gymnasium suits, just an ideal costume for camping. Evidently he has never seen our gymnasium exhibitions.

Two excursions came up to Burleigh on the 'Stoney Lake,' the Normal school picnic and the St. John's choir picnic. You may be sure we paddled over to Burleigh when we saw the boat, and lost no opportunity to advertise our camp. Several people from the excursion came to visit it, and were surprised to find it a really truly cottage, very comfortable and well-equipped. They thought it would have been a shack, or tents.

Last week we had a little picnic to Fairy Lake, about half an hour's paddle from home. There were five of us started out and we gathered four more on the way. You can only get to Fairy Lake by leaving your boats on the shore and climbing over a hill, and then you come upon it, many feet higher than Stoney Lake, and without any apparent way for water to get in or out ,and yet it is fresh and clear. I suppose it gets its name because it is such a pretty little lake, and because fairies must really have put it there, for its existence is rather a mystery. There are queer plants growing around there, too; we found some of those strange "pitcher plants"; the leaves of which are formed like long sacks ,and when the flies and insects walk in to get a drink of the water that is held at the bottom, they find they cannot get out again, because of the stiff little hairs growing inward around the entrance.

The new arrivals at our camp during the past week are Edith Pryce, Leta Brownscombe, Ruth Murray, Ethel Sanderson, Amy Bowles, Grace Evans, Jennie Saunders, Miss Ptolemy and Miss Lancaster. We have had several visitors and callers, whose names will be duly entered in our camp log.

Mrs. Morrison is in charge of the camp for a few days while Miss Parker is in Peterborough.

We are so afraid that the girls who intend to spend their holidays at the camp will find the cottage too full to accommodate them if they do not let us know in advance. So we hope they will take this warning to register as soon as possible.

Hoping to see a goodly number of you during the summer,

Yours heartily,
The "Y" Campers.

DOWNEYVILLE CORRESPONDENCE

DOWNEYVILLE, July 2.—Miss Gertrude Perdue of Peterboro, is visiting at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Duffy of Peterboro, spent Sunday with friends here.

Miss Margaret Meehan was a Sunday visitor to Miss Lila Lucas.

The presentation and address to Frank Lucas was well attended. A large crowd being present from Peterboro, Ennismore, Lindsay and Omemee.

NORTHERN FIRES ARE STILL RAGING

BOSTON CREEK, TIMMINS AND PORQUIS JUNCTION IN DANGER ZONE.

COBALT, July 2. — There is a great deal of nervousness about the fate of the North country because of the bush fires raging in almost every section, but particularly in the townships surrounding Boston Creek, west of Timmins, and between Porquis Junction and Cochrane. In Bourque Township, in which is situated Haileybury and New Liskeard, the fires are also bad, some homes having been wiped out. The outlook is decidedly precarious. A fair wind is reported as blowing in all sections. The weather is extremely hot, and there is no sign of rain. The situation is ideal for the dangerous development of the fires.

Boston Creek Fire Bad.

Porquis Junction is small. The Boston Creek area fire is bad. Postmaster Percy reported that the fire was being chased along with a high wind. The Miller Independence Mine had a narrow escape. The fire started at Mindoka, two miles south, and gradually worked in to practically the south boundary of the Miller property, and then veered. Another blaze worked on the other side of the mine and practically burned a stretch completely around it. However, the fire is still raging in Catharine, Pacaud and Skead Townships, and it is said that a large portion of those townships have been burned out. In Bucke Township, a terrific fire started at Sharpe Lake and worked its way in fanned by a stiff southwest wind, toward Lake Timiskaming. The home of W. A. Adair and others on the West Road, a few miles from Haileybury, were destroyed. Many other settlers are threatened and they are ready to move.

Two more settlers' homes have been wiped out by the fire raging north of Haileybury. Olson and Fernholm are the owners, and several other families have abandoned their homes and fled, rather than endanger their lives. The situation remains serious.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HELD SUMMER SESSION IN WARSAW LAST FRIDAY

MISS CLAYTON GAVE AN INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS ON "CITIZENSHIP"— WARSAW NEWS OF INTEREST.

WARSAW, July 2. — Miss Clayton, representing the Women's Institute, was in Warsaw last Friday afternoon. Owing to the funeral, the meeting was late beginning and not so well attended. After the opening exercises and reading of the minutes of last meeting, some little buisness was done and Miss Clayton was introduced. Her subject was citizenship. She said we Canadians did not fully appreciate our citizenship. Paul prided himself that he was a Jew of the strictest order and at the last he demanded his rights as a citizen of Rome. The Romans were a great poeple but they forgot their duties as citizens and let others and vandals do their fighting while they spent their time at the circus and other amusements, and though they still boasted, the foundation of their boast was gone and they, as a nation, fell. Nations rise and fall; let us see to it that we stand the test.

The Flag.

Do our children know the heritage of our flag? Ask them about Britain. and they will say, Britain. owns one quarter of the Globe and other material things, but they are not taught of the blood and tears that have made our country what it is, that has made our flag, with its three crowns, and its red, white and blue, and what it stands for. They are not taught the great danger of materialism and pleasure seeking. As we women measure up to our citizenship so will our country measure up. If we fail, our country fails. Britain gave the world religious and political liberty. The system has always been right, the individuals have sometimes been wrong. Clean citizenship and religion go hand in hand. The speaker said that what she had been saying might be idealism, but to make it practical, get after the children. Get after things that may be prevented. We must give up counting values in dollars and cents. So often parents and teachers do not co-operate. The time is coming when people will pay more attention to the condition of children. Many who eat a great deal are underfed because the food they eat does them no good. Many have not nearly enough sleep. Many have had teeth or defective eyes or many other things wrong. Medical inspection reveals some terrible things and explains why some children are backward.

Medical Inspection.

The Minister of Education is leaving the Medical Inspection of Schools in the hands of the Women's Institutes. Let the women confer with the trustees and make application for medical inspection. There are foreigners in our land who have the vote but were exempt from military service! Women have the right of the vote, let them see that they qualify. We want some women as members of parliament: it will not be a panacea for all evils but it should help. Men have been doing the national housekeeping for some time and they are not the best housekeepers. There are some laws which discriminate against women. We have an enormous debt. It is up to the women of Canada to pay that debt.

Miss Clayton is a very earnest speaker. Some questions were asked as to how women could get on the voters' list, which she answered very clearly.

She also made a suggestion that perhaps a prize could be given at school fairs, for improvement, rather than for the best work. As the prize given for best work often went to a boy or girl who was clever and really took very little trouble or pains with his or her work while the child who had worked hard, failed.

The meeting was closed by the national anthem.

There will be a meeting of the executive of the Women's Institute, at the home of the president, Mrs. David Miller, on the afternoon of Thursday, July 10th.

Special Services.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed in the Presbyterian church next Sunday. Preparatory service Tursday evening.

There will be no service in the Anglican church next Sunday, Rev. Taylor will conduct service at Buckhorn.

Yesterday the Presbyterian church was very prettily decorated for patriotic services. A good deal of credit is due Mrs. Turriff, Mrs. Aitkins, Miss Edith Tucker, Mr. Vivian Jackson and Master Hector Munro. Unfortunately the programs for the service, "Comrades All," had not come in time for proper preparation and rehearsal. Mrs Foster sang one verse of Home Sweet Home.

Special patriotic services were not announced for the other churches.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. T. H. Crowe. A good representation of ladies was present. After the usual opening exercises, a little business was done, then sewing and knitting for an hour. The meeting was brought to a close by all repeating the Mizpah benediction. Mrs. Crowe then served refreshments, ending with her delicious ice-cream. There will be no meeting in July. The place for the August meeting will be announced later. Unless otherwise announced, the members of the Ladies' Aid will go to Peterboro on Tuesdty, July 8th. and sit for a group photo.

Mr. Robert McCracken, who had not been very well for some time, dropped dead in his yard last Wednesday. The remains were interred in Warsaw cemetery on Friday afternoon. The funeral was large.

Personals.

Corpl. Thos. Miller arrived home last Tuesday evening.

Mr. David Calder is spending a few days in the village.

Mrs. (Rev.) Hoffman is visiting with Mrs. George Taylor.

Rev. Hugh Brown attended the meeting of Presbytery held at Port Hope last Tuesday.

Mrs. Robert Moore received word that her mother, Mrs. Samuel Hamblin had been badly injured in a motor accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Starks' two sons have joined their parents, visiting at the Baptist parsonage.

Miss Isabella Coleman is spending a week with her sister, Mrs. David Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilson and little son, Edgar, and Mr. and Mrs. William Evans, spent Sunday in the village.

Lost Four Cows.

Mr. Franklin Jory lost four cows by lightning on Thursday afternoon.

About six motor loads went to the Farmers' Pic-nic, at Keene, last Wednesday, but as the afternoon was wet and accommodation for a crowd in a rain storm was poor, some were quite disappointed.

Voice of The People

IS PETERBOROUGH BANKRUPT?

Sir,—While walking around the city on Monday I wondered if the city was really holding a Peace demonstration or if it was someone's funeral day. I wondered what had become of all those men who used to have so much to say about what they would do for the boys when they came back. Are some of them sorry because they have lost their good jobs? It's a wonder some of the people ever knew there was a war on, and I am sure they don't know the meaning of the word Peace. It's lucky for them that Fritz never got to Canada; and Monday's example was the way they appreciated the bravery of the boys who kept him away and gave their lives to do it. I understood there would be great doings on Peace Day. I thought there were lots of fireworks left over from armistice for Peace night. That's what made me think the city had gone "bust." Couldn't it afford $50.00 or $100.00 for a fireworks display? And at the park, where the speakers were, not even a cheer. And to make matters worse, when the National Anthem was played I saw quite a number standing there like a lot of ignorant Bolsheviks, with their hats on.

I venture to say there was more patriotic enthusiasm in the smallest villages in Britain and France than Peterborough ever thought of. And why should that be so? Didn't we send the best of our boys to the war, whose conduct and gallantry put Canada on the map? For goodness' sake, Peterborough, wake up! Do things and don't be afraid to spend a little money. You'll get it back. Oh! yes, I nearly forgot to mention that it looked very bad to see some of the city officials in the parade without a flag on the car.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor.—I remain, yours, Old 93rd.

To Banish Wrinkles and Freshen Up Quickly

After a strenuous day outdoors, when winds, heat and exhaustion have combined to take away one's freshness and caused the skin to wrinkle and sag—or after a tedious or fretful day indoors—one often has urgent need for some quick rejuvenator. Maybe there's a dance on for the evening, or some other social event. How in the world can one make herself presentable, looking as she does? It's quite easy.

Just get an ounce of powdered saxolite and a half pint witch hazel at the nearest drug store, mix the two and bathe the face in the solution for two or three minutes. Then look into your mirror and behold the wonderful transformation! Wrinkles have vanished, loose, tired muscles have been rested and "firmed up," marks of fatigue have flown, and you look so much brighterand younger you can hardly believe your eyes. No one need hesitate to try this, the witch hazel and saxolite being so perfectly harmless.

CANNON OF 165th ON GEORGIAN BAY ISLE

Taken There in Old Days for Defence of Missionaries.

PENETANGUISHENE, June 27.—A cannon, believed to be one brought to the Christian Islands, Georgian Bay, about 1650, has been found by Edward King, an Indian, in front of the old fort on Christian Island. It is about four feet long, made of steel, bound with heavy iron bands. A French cross is cut in the brass breech, and also the inscription, "Le G C 1650."

The story goes that the gun was taken from the old fort at the Wye River to the island on a raft for the protection of the Jesuit Fathers.

WARNING TO FRONT GATE HANGERS

It is said that dancing makes girl's feet large. It is also said that ice cream makes freckles. Doctors are of the opinion that hanging on the front gate produces rheumatism. A few more opinions like these and the girls won't have any more fun left them.

(Special to Examiner.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 3.— After an all-day discussion, the Great War Veterans Association in the Dominion Convention had adopted a resolution calling on the Dominion government to grant one thousand dollars bonus to all men who served in Canada, with $500 extra for those who went overseas, and still another $500 for men who served in the actual theatre of war. The resolution adopted was very similar to the famous Calgary resolution.

It was decided that soldiers' widows and children, and Canadians who served with the Imperial army, should also get this grant.

The measure will be known as the Soldiers' Re-establishment Bonus Scheme, when presented to the government.

The decision on the matter was made after a lengthy debate. It was made practically unanimous and was given continued cheering.

In general the argument of those advocating it was that the soldiers whose earning powers were affected by their going to war should be put in a fair position in comparison with those who stayed at home.

OLD "ESTURIAN" HEARD OF AGAIN

POLICE COURT CASE FOLLOWS REMOVAL OF ENGINE BED.

The old side wheeler "Esturion" gave much trouble in its day, but the last has not been heard of it yet, as Mr. Carmen Gould, charged with the theft of the engine bed of the old boat was committed for trial at the Fall Assizes by Magistrate Dumble this morning. Mr. Gould, who resides on James Street, East City, is out on $500 bail. Mr. F. D. Kerr is representing him.

The information was laid by Crown Attorney Hatton against Gould, and Mr. Hatton, in giving evidence this morning, stated that he bought the old "Esturion" from the Boyd interests at Bobcaygeon some time ago after the old boat had sunk at the wharf. It cost him $100 to raise the boat, and he transported it down the canal and drew it up on his lot on Little Lake, where the abandoned "water lily" lay for some time. He offered the hull of the "Esturian" for $75, and Mr. Gould agreed to that and paid the price. Gould took both the engine bed and the hull, although Mr. Hatton contends that the engine bed in question was not in the hull at the time.

The Magistrate, after carefully weighing the evidence, sent Mr. Gould up for trial.

PROMOTION FOR LIEUT. R. P. A. CRISP

ENLISTED IN THE 93RD BATTALION —WILL REMAIN IN THE SERVICE.

In a letter received lately by his mother, Mrs. R. H. Crisp, 85 Cumberland Street, Hamilton, Lieut. R. P. A. Crisp, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion from Peterborough, states that he has won his Captaincy, just previous to leaving Salonika two months ago. He is now in India, attached to the 31st Squadron, R.A.F. Captain Crisp's first commission was obtained in the 15th Regiment, Argyle Light Infantry, Belleville, after leaving his position with the Seymour Power Company. After arrival in England with the 93rd Battalion, he took his training and a course at Oxford for the Air Force. After two accidents, one a fall of 200 feet on his head, he was sent out to Egypt, thence to Italy and Salonika. Upon winning his captaincy, after crossing the Red Sea, he arrived in Bombay, then in Lahore in India, where they bombed the natives during the riots. He was at the time of writing expecting to go to Afghanistan. Recently he flew in the Handly-Page which went from England. Having, his mother stated, made military life his future, he fulfills his motto, "Try and keep on: Trying till you get there."

UP THE LAKES DOMINION DAY

Stoney Lake was as usual one of the principal attractions on Dominion day. The C.T.R. morning train left at 8.30 with about one hundred and fifty passengers bound for the lakes. At Lakefield an additional number was added to the excursionists, who left the wharf on the Steamer Empress at 9.30.

The trip was fully enjoyed all the way up through to Young's Point, and on to Clear and Stoney Lakes, a clear day and a good breeze adding to the pleasure of the trip. The Steamer "Empress," with Captain Robinson and Purser Holland, looked well after the pleasure and comfort of the excursionists. Many calls were made during the day at different islands and summer resorts, and the return to Lakefield was made in good time, where the train was in waiting for Peterboro, reaching the city shortly after five o'clock.

The summer resorts and cottages are filling up rapidly, and it was known that not a single cottage was to rent so far this season.

Manager F. C. Young reports that already fully as many tourists have arrived as were carried the whole of last season.

VISITS PALESTINE TO VIEW POTENTIALITIES; MAY REMAIN THERE

B. LASTAR, FORMERLY OF PETERBORO, GOING AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

Barnard Lastar, a well-known Hebrew citizen of London, and formerly of Peterboro, who has taken great interest in the suggestion that Palestine be restored to the Jews, will leave for Palestine as soon as the necessary passport and transportation arrangements can be made. His purpose, he stated, is to look over the country's potentialities, with a possible view to settling there if the decision to restore the land to its original people is made.

All Should Visit.

Mr. Lastar holds the opinion that every Jew who is able to do so and who has the welfare of the Jewish race at heart should visit Palestine at this time, so that, if and when the country is handed over to the Jews, there will be those who will have the necessary knowledge to make practicable the initial move toward establishing a new Jewish nation in its own country.

The matter of transportation is one which is giving Mr. Lastar some trouble, as the old peace-time routes to Palestine have not yet been re-established. However, he says that once having made up his mind it will take more than such a difficulty to prevent him from carrying out his intention. He will book to Cherbourg primarily, and from there will overland as opportunity offers.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. W. A. GREENSLADE

MRS. GREENSLADE HAS RESIGNED POSITION OF ORGANIST OF ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

On the occasion of her resignation as Choir Leader and Organist of St. Luke's Church, after nine and a half years in the position, on Sunday evening, at the conclusion of the evening service, Mrs. W. A. Greenslade was presented with a handsome sterling silver tray, suitably inscribed, by Mr. R. E. Rogers, Warden of the church.

At the conclusion of the following address, which accompanied the presentation, Mrs. Greenslade made a short reply, thanking the congregation generally for the consideration which had always been shown to her during her connection with the church:

Dear Mrs. Greenslade—

For the past nine and a half years you have led the music and choir with efficiency and profit to the members, and as our services are largely musical the choir led by you have contributed very much to the bright, hearty services for which St. Luke's is noted.

Just now you think it is advisable to resign your position and take a rest, to which we feel you are richly entitled, for your labors have been conscientiously performed, and with your musical duties throughout the the week, the task has not allowed proper ime for rest and recreation. We hope the release from Sunday duty will give us the benefit of your splendid voice in the congregation, and we may long be spared to worship together.

We desire to offer some tribute of appreciation for the faithful discharge of duty and ask you to accept this piece of silver with best wishes for the health an dhappiness of yourself and Mr. Greenslade. Signed,

Walter H. White, Rector.

AMERICANS ALLOWED TO HAVE LIQUOR IN THEIR HOMES, IS LAW

WASHINGTON, June 28.— Provision in the bill for enforcement of war-time prohibition, which would have prevented the "use" by a citizen of liquor in his own home, was stricken out late to-day by the House judiciary committee.

The committee refused to amend the bill so as to make it unlawful for a man to have liquor in his own home.

Sausage Pudding.

This is made very much the same as any other meat pudding, and is a more substantial dish than when the sausages are plainly fried. Grease a pudding basin and line it with plain pastry—not too thin. Put in the sausages, pricking them first with a darning needle. Add a very little powdered sage and chopped parsley. Season with salt and pepper. Moisten with about a tablespoonful of water and cover with more pastry, pressing the edges firmly together. Tie in a scalded and floured cloth and boil for two and a half hours. Some people like a sliced potato or two placed on the sausages.

TRIBUNAL WILL SIT IN LONDON

WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN WILL SOON BE PLACED ON TRIAL.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, July 3.—The former German Emperor will soon be placed on trial. Premier Lloyd George made this announcement in the House today. In his report on the peace negotiations, the Premier declared that the Tribunal which would try the former Emperor would sit in London. The German army, the Premier said, was at present inadequate to disturb the peace of the feeblest of neighbours of Germany. The terms of the treaty with Germany in some respects were terrible, the Premier said, but terrible would have been the consequences if Germany had succeeded.

German officers who had committed appalling infamies, the Premier added, would also be placed on trial. Mr. Lloyd George declared that the British delegation has taken the stand in strictly opposing any attempt to put a predominantly German population under Polish rule.

ANY WOMAN'S STRUGGLE FOR GOOD HEALTH QUICKLY REWARDED

A SIMPLE HOME TREATMENT NOW ADVOCATED THAT GIVES FINE RESULTS.

When a woman's face grows haggard and pale, when she is tired all day and ready to cry when night comes, she ought to know that something is wrong.

Putting off only makes matters worse. The best advice we can give any sickly woman is to test out the following treatment:

At the close of every meal, with a sip or two of water, take two chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets. This seems to be the best thing going for folks that are tired out, run-down and in need of a strengthening, and building-up medicine.

Ferrozone's action aids the three principal functions of the body — digestion, assimilation, elimination.

By perfecting assimilation, Ferrozone supplies nutrition—this gives strength, vim, stability.

Elimination is assured because Ferrozone quickens the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels—this guarantees the maintenance of vigorous health.

Not a man, woman or child needing blood, vigor, endurance—not a person who is weak, nervous or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health bringer and body builder, Ferrozone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. Try it yourself — sold everywhere in 50c boxes, 6 boxes for $2.50, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

HUCKLEBERRY CROP NEEDS RAIN SOON

Rosy reports of a big crop of huckleberries in Burleigh and adjacent townships are undergoing rapid revision as the result of the continued drought. The country north of Warsaw is suffering from a long dry spell which is now showing marked effects. Rain has been plentiful in the district around the city, but the northern farmers say that unless they receive immediate relief their crops will be seriously reduced and the berry harvest will be a failure. There have been promises of a big raspberry production, but it is believed the fruit will dry up before maturity unless there is immediate rain.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

GLADIATORS ARE RESTING FOR BIG FIGHT TO-MORROW

DEMPSEY AND WILLARD ARE IN THE PINK OF CONDITION—HISTORY NEVER HAS RECORDED A CONTEST OF GREATER MYSTERY.

(S. C. Camilton, United Press.)

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 3. — Just twenty-four hours more and pugilistic history will be made.

In a quiet spot on the sun-baked shores of Maumee Bay, behind the locked screen doors of the Overland Club, Jack Dempsey, challenger of Jess Willard; the world's heavyweight champion, sat cheerfully optimistic. His 245 pound rival, guardian of the greatest honour in the gift of fistiania, lolled about the sun porch on a house in the best residential district of Toledo.

Dempsey is ready. He had planned nothing for to-day. He is merely waiting for the gong that will send him to a great victory, or a defeat of bitter memories. That is all.

Willard will take a motor ride. The huge champion never has liked the plaudits of the multitude. He wants solitude, and will get it with the hum of a gasoline motor under his feet. No one will be allowed to disturb either gladiator.

DEFEAT TO DEMPSEY.

Defeat to Dempsey means a shattering of that glorious record of knock-outs made during his climb to the centre of the fistic spotlight. It means a new start. Perhaps a championship later, but a crushed spirit for a time. To Willard it means that he can retire from the hateful gaze of admiring and curious fight fans. But it also means to Willard that the mush of the dollar will not be so near.

The weeks of preparation for the struggle have ended. Long days of gruelling preparation, hours in the ring, minutes with sparring partners flinging dangerous punches, tiresome interviews with curious and inquisitive folk, bundles of mail from busybodies and critics, have come to an end.

To-day was a day of peace in the camps of the heavyweights. To-morrow they will start a twelve-round battle for the world's championship in a mammoth arena built for them by Tex Rickard, the most daring promoter the world has ever seen.

SCENE OF ACTIVITY.

Down town Toledo was a scene of activity in marked contrast to the peaceful scenes in the camps where the canvas and ring have been prepared.

Betting became more active after a period of laxness that became a deadlock when each side asked concessions from the other. Arguments whirled about the streets. If an interested person cared to, he might stop a hundred persons on the principal streets of the city, ask them what they think of the fight, and receive a cold stare from half; the other half would be fifty-fifty.

History never has recorded a fistic contest of greater mystery than the one about to be fought. People have worried and wondered about the condition of the champion until they don't know what conclusion to reach. It is because of his age. They are afraid, because of what happened to James J. Jeffries, after his long retirement from the ring, and because of what Willard himself did to Jack Johnson, after the big negro's years of dissipation following his defeat of Jeffries. They are asking themselves why they should place confidence in the giant Willard after these fizzles.

Dempsey is a favourite with the dopesters, and the wise money is being laid on him, but every stranger who comes to town with dollars to back his judgment, apparently brings shekels to place on Willard.

The champion's followers are increasing daily. He probably will enter the ring about a 10 to 8 favourite.

Dempsey's popularity had forced many even money bets. Yesterday two wagers of considerable size were placed on him.

Both men are in superb condition. Dr. Joseph J. Sweeney, official physician of the Toledo Athletic Club, has examined them. Willard, he declared a few days ago, surpassed any physical specimen he had ever gazed upon. Yesterday he looked at Dempsey, and threw up his hands. "His condition is even better," he declared.

(Canadian Press.)

TOLEDO, July 3.—The rules governing the heavyweight championship contest between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey in Tex Rickard's 150,000 arena here to-morrow are to be officially interpreted at a meeting to-day attended by Ollie Pecord, referee, Rickard and Major Biddle, the judges of the contest, the boxers themselves, and Jack Kearns, manager of the challenger.

It is probable that straight Marquis of Queensberry rules will prevail.

Dempsey is favoured in the betting. Betting on the outcome of the bout has proved surprisingly light to date, notwithstanding the gathering of thousands of prospective spectators. In some quarters, sentiment appeared to be veering toward the champion, for while Dempsey backers were offered even money on the challenger a day or two ago, thy are now asking that Willard men lay 10 to 8. At the leading commissioners' quarters, the blackboards are filled with various betting propositions which have remained untaken, with the exception of a few freak bets in the Parimutul betting. The heaviest play is being made on the seventh and eighth rounds, while Dempsey is almost a 2 to 1 favourite, according to the tickets sold.

SPORTS HELD AT HIAWATHA

Indians Competed for Big List of Prizes

July 1 is a red letter day at Hiawatha and this year's calendar of land and water sports outshone all previous events of that nature held in Hiawatha. The biggest crowd in the history of the Indian reserve attended and numbers of motor cars from Peterboro were present. The Indians turned out in large numbers and walked off with all the prizes. The Chemong Indians brought down their football team and whitewashed the Hiawatha kickers 2-0.

The Chemong brass band was also present and rendered a number of selections during the afternoon.

A beutiful $25 silver cup was donated by Mr. A. A. Fowler to be retained by the champion of the 1 mile canoe race with hunting type of canoe. There were three competitors Alfred Crowe, Hiawatha and A. and H. Taylor of Chemong. After a close race Crowe won the race by barely a foot and next year promises to have at least fifteen entries for the cup.

The Aldrich reserve, at the east end of Rice Lake sent numerous representatives and carried off a number of prizes for foot races and games.

The successful day was closed by a dance in the pavilion.

GOOD GAME IN THE CITY LEAGUE

To-night's game in the City League series between Matthews-Blackwell and De Laval should be one of the most interesting games of the season. Both teams are out for victory, the Packers needing the game to keep out in front of the fast coming Orientals, who have won the last three starts, and the De Laval team being in a position where they practically have to win to keep in the running. The teams will have their strongest line-ups out and it should be a fight all the way.

GREAT INTEREST IN TO-MORROW'S BIG GAME

The leadership of the Central Ontario Baseball League depends upon the result of the game between Belleville and Peterborough, which is to be played at Port Hope to-morrow evening. The two teams are tied with four wins and one loss, and the winner of this play-off battle will step out in front for the time being. The game is attracting a lot of attention throughout the district and fans from all the towns in the circuit will be on hand. A large number of Peterborough enthusiasts will motor to Port Hope for the battle. The following players will represent Peterborough: Kirn, Mulhern, Swanston, Long, Rose, Cherrett, Holyman, Cavanah, Hagerman, Clancy, Heenan, Jackson, Head and Manager Solomon. The cars will leave the Water street alleys at 3 o'clock for Port Hope.

	Won.	Lost.	To Play.
Peterborough	4	1	5
Belleville	4	1	5
Port Hope	4	3	4
Oshawa	3	3	4

POSTING UP IN ARMS.

Protest Against Reclassification of Salaries, Say They Suffer.

TORONTO, June 26.—Toronto's mail carriers and postal clerks are up in arms against the reclassification of the postal service method at Ottawa. Under the proposed change, they state, the Postmaster, Assistant Postmaster, and a few other Department heads will receive salary increases ranging from $500 to $1,200, but the rank and file benefit only by having the maximum salary limit raised, receiving no immediate increases. The maximum salary for postal clerks is reduced from $1,800 to $1,680 and $1,620. A deputation has already started for Ottawa with a view to protesting against the proposed changes. If the protest is ineffective, widespread resignations may follow.

102 AIRPLANES DESTROYED.

PARIS.—Fire broke out in the aerodrome at St. Cyr, destroying eighteen hangars and 102 airplanes.

An enormous amount of other damage resulted. The loss is estimated at 4,000,000 francs.

THE BIGGEST SAPPHIRE.

It Adorns the top of the German Imperial Crown.

A news despatch speaks of the loss of the "largest sapphire in the world" by Countess Barnicka, who was robbed of it on a train while escaping from Bolshevism after the destruction of her house near Kiev.

The size of the gem is not mentioned. But probably it did not equal in this respect the sapphire two inches long which adorns the top of the German imperial crown and which (dating back to the tenth century) was presumably brought home as a piece of loot by pious crusaders.

The stone familiar to us as sapphire is blue corundum. Ruby is red corundum. Transparent crystals of green corunduni are "Oriental emerald." If purple, they are "Oriental amethyst" — the ordinary amethyst being pink quartz crystal. If yellow, they are "Oriental topaz," or "yellow sapphire."

We are well acquainted with corundum as an abrasive. But translucent crystals of this same substance afford material for gems of high value, their different colors being due to metallic oxides.

Fine sapphires are more valuable than diamonds of equal weight and quality, only rubies being more precious. But ruby crystals (in the rough) are rarely more than half an inch long, whereas those of sapphire occasionally reach three inches. Most prized are the "velvet blue" sapphires and those of "cornflower" tint.

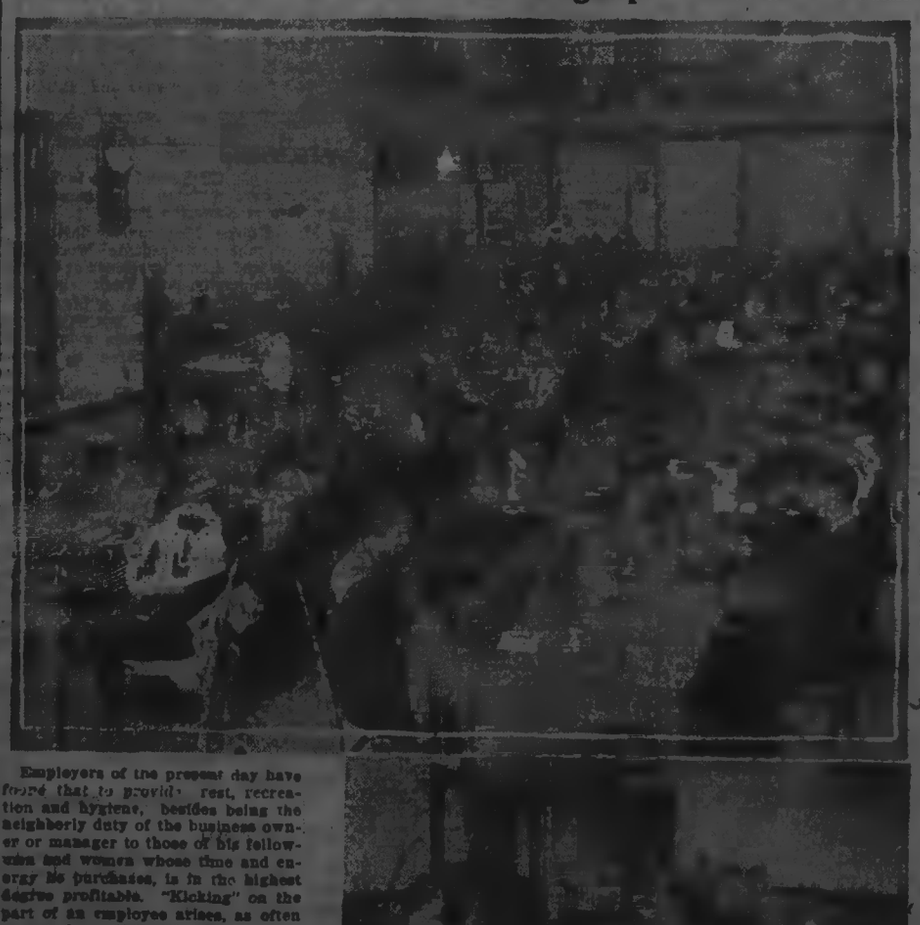
One of the most famous gems of this variety is the "wooden-spoon sapphire," which gets its name from the circumstance that it was picked up by a Ceylonese dealer in wooden spoons. A while ago it was in the Hope collection. It is violet by day but red by artificial light.

In 1882 there occurred in the Sinda Pass of the Himalayas a great landslide, which uncovered a wonderful sapphire-bearing deposit. From the latter have since been obtained many of the finest existing sapphires. Aside from this deposit, the most important source of fine gem-stones of the kind is a district in Ceylon.

The finest green sapphire (Oriental emerald) in the world was found in Macon County, North Carolina, and at last accounts was a feature of the collection of a citizen of Philadelphia—Clarence S. Bement. It is a transparent nodule of crystal, remarkably pure and would yield in cutting a gem of thirty carats.

A yellow sapphire two inches long forms the apex of one of the Russian crowns, preserved until recently at the Kremlin, in Moscow.

Modern Appliances In New Telegraph Work Rooms



Employers of the present day have come to realize that to provide rest, recreation and hygiene, besides being the neighborly duty of the business owner or manager to those of his fellowmen and women whose time and energy he purchases, is in the highest degree profitable. "Kicking" on the part of an employee arises, as often as not, from ill-health which can be avoided by proper working conditions. The picture shows the women's rest room in the new quarters of the C.P.R. Telegraphs on Main street, near Portage avenue, Winnipeg.

Looking closely at the apparatus on the tables, in the third picture, side will see, side by side, two machines—one with a keyboard like that of a typewriter, the other with a little type-bearing disc touching a platen. These two machines are the two halves, as it were, of one of the most wonderful contrivances in existence—the automatic printer. Messages flipped off, letter by letter, on the keyboard of the first machine, are written out, by impulses which travel thousands of miles over the wire, on telegraph blanks slipped under the type-disc of the second machine. That is to say, the keyboard machine in the picture may be operating a type-disc machine in Montreal; and the type-disc machine in the picture may be printing a message that is being tapped off on a keyboard machine in Calgary.

The Operating room, on the second floor of the new home of the C.P.R. Telegraphs, is 132 feet deep and 28 feet wide. Immense windows in two tiers, the lower of clear glass and the upper opaque, flood the apartment with light by day; and by night a system of indirect lighting gives ample illumination without glare.

HIS WIFE OBJECTED.

Why Hungarian Women Have Not Been "Communized."

It was due to a family quarrel that Hungary escaped having its women "communized" after the fashion of the Russian "republic" of Saratoff, rather than to the abhorrence of Bela Kun to the scheme, as the latter afterwards stated.

The law to communize women was actually framed and in the printers' hands ready for publication, when Herr Weltner, one of the Cabinet of bright young men who are now ruling the fate of the former kingdom, went home for supper. During the meal he told his wife and his mother-in-law in glowing terms about the projected reforms.

"What are you doing for women?" they asked.

Weltner then explained that in future women would be free, too; that they would be permitted to choose their own husbands and discard them if they liked by the simple process of paying a few cents for a legal paper declaring their "unfitness" for married life. Further conversation developed the fact that the new law also gave husbands the same right; that children might be turned over to the care of the state, so that both husband and wife would get rid of the duties and responsibilities of rearing their offspring.

"Do you mean to tell me that you can get rid of me from one day to another and marry the next day if you like?" demanded young Frau Weltner.

"That's how the law stands," replied the husband.

Then the storm broke. Both wife and mother-in-law began to scream and a frenzied scene ensued, the upshot of which was [illegible] women demanded that Weltner should get the law stopped, or they would leave him at once, and would, moreover, get all the wives, mothers, and mothers-in-law of all the Ministers to do the same.

Weltner, in the interest of his home comfort and peace, eventually promised to do his best and use his influence with his fellow members, through his paper, the People's Voice, to get the law rescinded. He went to the telephone and had a conversation with Bela Kun and the other Ministers, and then called up the printers, telling them that no proofs needed to be "pulled" from the forms where the law lay. He also ordered that the type should be messed up and the copy destroyed.

WEDDING BELLS

MOHER—GARVEY.

St. Joseph's Church, Douro, was the scene of a pretty wedding, Monday, 30th June, when Ann, daughter of Michael Garvey, became the bride of Vincent Moher, Rev. Father McGuire officiating.

The bride looked very pretty in a dress of white Georgette crepe over satin, with white silk mohair hat to match. The bridesmaid, Miss K. Garvey, also wore white Georgette over satin and white hat to match. The groom was attended by Mr. Gus. O'Shea, of Hastings.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the home of the bride where a dainty wedding dinner was prepared. Later in the afternoon the happy couple left for Toronto, Rochester and other points, and on their return will reside in Douro.

Some of the guests who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. P. Greenan, Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. D. Garvey, Asphodel, Mr. and Mrs. John Garvey, Hamilton, Mr. William Garvey, Asphodel and Miss Mary Lonnegan, Peterboro.

BARRY—O'BRIEN.

At St. Joseph's Church, Douro, Monday, June 30th., a very pretty wedding took place, when Miss Ann O'Brien and Mr. John Barry, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. F. McGuire.

The bride looked very pretty in a dress of sand metre with large picture hat to match.

After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the home of the bride, when a dainty wedding dinner was prepared.

A few of the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. William O'Brien, Peterboro, Misses Bernadine and May O'Brien, Peterboro, Mr. B. Torpey, of Toronto, Mr. Stanley O'Brien, Ottawa, Mr. L. Wade, Peterboro and Mr. and Mrs. G. Conlin, Peterboro.

The bridal party left in the afternoon for a trip to Rochester and Buffalo and on their return they will reside in Douro.

MOORE — MACKAY.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Tuesday, June 24th., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Moore, Kinmount, when their eldest daughter, Minnie, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mark MacKay, of Pontypool. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Williams, of Kinmount, at 1:30 o'clock. The bridal couple, who were unattended stood in an arch of weeping birch, and daisies, with a back-ground of ferns and daisies. Eva Moore, sister of the bride, and Gertrude MacKay, sister of the groom, acted as flower girls, the former carrying the ring hid in her basket of roses.

The bride entered the room with her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Dolly Moore, sister of the bride, and was becomingly attired in ivory satin, trimmed with seed pearls, and veil crowned with orange blossoms. She carried a large sheaf of carnations with ferns. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful necklace set with pearls.

After the congratulations were extended the bridal party retired to the dining room which was prettily decorated with roses, where a dainty luncheon was partaken of by all present.

Besides the immediate friends of the bride and groom, there were guests from Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, Peterboro and Carnamon. The many beautiful presents received showed the high esteem in which the young couple were held, among them being one hundred dollars from the bride's father, also twenty-five dollars from the church in which she was organist for several years.

The happy couple left by train amid showers of confetti and congratulations, for Toronto, Niagara Falls and other points. The bride was wearing a suit of taupe colored silk poplin with hat to match.

On their return, they will reside at Pontypool.

HILLS—POGUE

A pretty wedding took place at West Presbyterian church, when Mary, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pogue, Manning ave., was married to Mr. Ernest Albert Hills, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hills, London, England, veteran of the 3rd Battalion. The Rev. Dr. J. A. Turnbull officiated, assisted by the Rev. Robert Pogue, Peterboro, uncle of the bride. Mr. Jordan played the wedding march. The bride wore white crepe de chine and Georgette, with Georgette hat, and carried sweetheart roses. Mrs. G. Hills, her matron of honor, was in white embroidered voile, with hat to match, and carried roses and sweet peas. Miss Rita Pogue was bridesmaid, and wore crepe de chine, with black hat, and carried roses and sweet peas. Mr. George Hills was best man, and Mr. George Pogue and Mr. William Pogue were the ushers. The bride's mother wore mauve crepe de chine with black hat. A reception was held at the home of the bride immediately following the ceremony, which was quiet owing to the eldest brother, Robert, being wounded and in hospital in England. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Hills left for Detroit. On their return they will reside in their new home at the Beach.

OBITUARY

JOHN HURRY.

On Sunday evening last, after a lingering illness, John Hurry, one of the respected Scotsmen of this city, passed away at his home on Elm street very suddenly. He was born in Dalkeith, Edinburgh County, Scotland, 84 years ago, and came to Canada six years ago. He was an esteemed employee of the Wm. Hamilton Co. during the past few years, and no doubt many of his friends will be surprised to hear of his death. Besides his beloved widow, he leaves to mourn his loss, the son Neil at home, a daughter, Mrs. Alex. McArthur, Brownton and his son, Jack Hurry, Musselburgh, Scotland. His son, James Hurry, was killed in action, a few weeks before the armistice was signed.

The funeral was held on Tuesday morning at 10.30 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. Mr. MacKenzie officiated.

SOME INFORMATION ABOUT CHAUTAUQUA

FACTS REGARDING THE LECTURERS AND ARTISTS WHO ARE TO APPEAR IN PETERBORO.

"Chautauqua Week" starts on Monday next, 7th July, in Central Park, in front of the Armouries, under its own big tent, seating over 2,000 people. Every morning a programme for the children (6 to 14 years), carefully planned by the best junior supervisor in the Chautauqua Circuit, consisting of Canadian Day, a Bird Day, a Tree Day, a Circus Day, etc., will be given here, and every child should come to this and get a ticket, admitting to all the adult programmes of the afternoon and evening as well, for $1.00, with 10 cents extra war tax.

Afternoons and evenings of each day until Saturday night, 12th July, wonderful and inspiring programmes have been arranged, consisting of music, both vocal and instrumental, by artistes whom it would be impossible to bring here under separate arrangements, as the prices demanded would be prohibitive. (See programme.) The play, "7 Keys of Baldpate," one of George M. Cohan's marvellous comedies, chock full of fun and mystery from beginning to end, the cast consisting of 8 men and 4 women—only appearing once before in Canada at the Royal Alexander Theatre, Toronto, at big prices.

Clever, instructive, and amazing addresses by world-known specialists as Dr. Frank Bohn, of New York, who created such a wonderful impression here last year. His subject this year is "Revolutionary Europe," he having just returned from a mission there of investigation and help, to stem the tide of Bolshevism.

Dr. Arthur Evans, of Wales, reared and educated in the atmosphere of the British Isles, making comparisons of eastern and western democracy, in a great lecture on "What Western Democracy Has Done for Me." Don't miss him. He is invigorating, brilliant; one who makes his audiences hang on his every word. A regular joy-feast from beginning to end.

Lieut. Jean A. Picard, of the French Army—He went through the Battle of the Marne, Ypres, and Alsace. Incapacitated by wounds, he has been sent to this country to make us understand something of the fine mettle, the courage, and the rare tenacity of the French Poilu, whose cry at Verdun, "They shall not pass!" started a world to fight to the finish. His subject is "The Spirit of France."

Dr. George Adam, of Montreal, who hails from Scotland—a personal friend of David Lloyd-George and of Harry Lauder. His lectures are intimate pictures, full of impassioned oratory, with a wonderful sense of dramatic values. He was a member of the Munitions Board in Britain, and organised the Harry Lauder trip to the trenches.

Fred G. Bale, of Columbus, Ohio—a courageous crusader for those things which make a bigger and better community. His are "fact" lectures, full of meat for the man or woman interested in to-morrow's citizenship; a clear thinker, a hard hitter, a man of fire and energy. One lecture is "The Fiddler and the Fire," the other "The Fourth Line of Defence."

Dr. Cecile Grisl, a woman of great force. Was commandeered for war service on the Italian Front, where she served two years. Only American saved from the "Arconia." Experienced as a speaker, she will lecture on the fourth day in the afternoon on "A Woman on the Italian Front." And last, but not least,

Sig. Tom Skeyhill, the famous soldier-poet and wonderful orator, of Australia—the man who raised $23,750,000 in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, after one address, single-handed, thus vindicating the opinion of both the British and the American press that he is the greatest speaker the war has produced. As a soldier he was twice desperately wounded and invalided home, bayoneted, blind and helpless—for two years he remained blind until his sight was restored by an operation. As a speaker he is a silver-tongued master of eloquence, a matchless orator, whose powers of description are more vivid and whose word pictures of the war are more graphic than any other speaker on the war. His subject is "Fighting the Turks at the Dardanelles."

All this, and much more, such as the Fisk Jubilee Singers, the De Mille Quartette, the C. Edward Clarke Concert Company, the Old Home Singers, etc., can be heard for a $2.00 ticket if bought from a member of the committee who brought this chautauqua course to the city, and guaranteed $1,200.00 to secure them, as they had the privilege of selling 600 tickets for $2.00 each to compensate them for their risk.

These tickets, however, have to be sold before the opening day, as they have to be withdrawn after the Chautauqua Company arrive. After they are withdrawn the company charge 75c for evening and 50c for afternoon performances, thus making the cost for the week $7.50 if one took in every attraction. You can get a ticket entitling you to every performance, if you buy at once for these prices: Adults $6.20, Children $1.10 (include the war tax). Tickets on sale at—

Examiner Office, Review Office, Mason's Grocery, Madill's Drug Store, D. H. Kerneghan's Grocery, Kent's Drug Store, Payne's Drug Store, McDermid & Jury's Drug Store, Lillico's Grocery, R. G. Braund's Grocery, Lynch's Drug Store, Oak Hall, Peterborough Business College.

Remember, the Chautauqua is not a money-making scheme; but one devised and sustained as an educative, enlightening, entertaining propagation for good citizenship. The local committee make nothing out of it.

THE BOARD OF WORKS AGAIN LOOP THE LOOP ON BRIDGE QUESTION

THIS TIME THE CONTRACT WAS LET TO THE CANADIAN ENGINEERING COMPANY—ALD. PHELAN PRESIDED.

THE VOTING

True to form, the Board of Works, last night brought each contractor's tender before their beneficent gaze, gave it a few approving glances, turned it over, looked it over again and finally kicked it out. The next contract went through the same process with the same result. In the interim an alderman, thoughtful of the patience of the public, put a bold face on the affair and urged them to let the contract "tonight." Voting again, the Board sang "The Same Old Story" and the vote went 5-5. The tug of war continued for some time before Alderman Taylor, more persistent than the rest re-introduced his motion which received an indifferent 5-5 vote before and whether it was the thermometer which hung precariously between 90 and 91, or whether the yawns which went around the big oak table in rotation, broke the tie vote, his motion was carried 6-4 and was as follows:

That the contract for the Hunter street bridge be awarded to the Canadian Engineering and Construction Company at a guaranteed cost of $480,240 on the cost plus a fixed sum basis.

The vote stood as follows:

For — Alderman Crowe, Taylor, [illegible] Garside, Hamilton, and Phelan.

Among a number of letters received was one from Engineer, Frank Barber, stating that it is his opinion that the narrow bridge can be built for less than $390,000. This letter was in answer to a request from the City Council for an estimated cost from Mr. Barber.

John O'Toole Contracting Company, of Ottawa, one of the biggest firms in the contracting business, submitted an estimated price of $469,190 for the bridge, or with the narrow bridge, $444,171, which includes the revised plans. He listed the plant he would use and the cost of maintaining the different departments.

Hamilton Bridge Works.

The Hamilton Bridge Works were sorry that the city did not consider a steel bridge and thought that the two span idea was a money saver. They intimated that they could be considered out of the running.

Surprise For The Board.

Representatives of the Leonard Construction Company threw in the biggest surprise of the evening when they stated that the company could not build the bridge according to Mr. Barber's plans within the city's appropriation. They figured on a nine-foot bridge with the eliminations and if the city put in the fill and laid the sidewalk on top of the fill, they couldn't then get within the appropriation. Messrs. Parks and Heindel who represented the Leonard Construction Company, candidly stated that they did not think that the bridge could be built for the appropriation. As an alternative they displayed the sketch of a bridge which the Leonard Company built in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and which they thought

WINNIPEG TROUBLE

BRICKLAYERS AND MASONS WILL NOT SUPPORT THE "ONE BIG UNION."

MEN LEFT OUT

By J. J. Conklin.

WINNIPEG, July 5. — The bricklayers and masons' union has broken away from the Winnipeg Building Trades Council and will stand by its International. The bricklayers will not support in any way the 'One Big Union' scheme, officials of the union declared.

The bricklayers' local is the oldest union in Winnipeg and is purely a labour organization.

Wholesale discrimination is alleged in connection with the re-instatement of Canadian Pacific Railway shopmen who walked out in sympathy with the metal trades and building trades workers in the recent strike. Whether this is the case or not, the fact is that the large number of the former Weston shop employees are [illegible] company has refused so far to take them back. It is understood that a committee of men who were re-engaged is negotiating with the company officials on the matter. It is further claimed that the men tried to have the question settled before they resumed work and a committee was appointed to go into the question of re-instatement in a body. This the company refused, giving as the reason that they could not deal with committees until the men composing them were again on the payrolls.

Claim Ignorance.

As hundreds had already either gone back to work or signed the agreement that there would be no interference with the foremen who remained at work all through the strike the men had no option in the matter and consequently the bulk of them returned to work. Men of the men "left out" claimed ignorance of the reasons for discrimination against them. Some state that all there is against them is the fact that they were seen on picket duty at the shops during the strike. Others claim they took no active part in the strike and attended strictly to their own affairs, but that when they went to sign on they found their holes in the time clock punched, the regular sign that a man's services are no longer required. All suspected of being "reds" it is alleged, have been let out, as well as members of the General Strike committee and those who took an active part in the strike in any shape or form. The lock-out, it is alleged, affects all departments, including the machine shop, blacksmith shop, car side, boiler shop, stores, mills and moulding shop. It is alleged that several returned soldiers are among those affected, while on the other hand it is understood that returned soldiers who have come home during the past few months, many of whom the strike prevented from securing [illegible] positions left vacant by discharged strikers. One of the unpleasant features of the situation is that a large proportion of employees against whom discrimination is alleged are married men with families who have been hard hit financially by the strike and prospects are looking gloomy.

SCALPERS ARE STUNG.

RINGSIDE, Toledo, July 4. — Two hours before the start of the big bout ticket speculators in the down town district still had big bunches of unsold pasteboards, which they were offering at an average of ten per cent. below their face value. Sixty dollar seats were quoted at $50; forties at $33; and fifteens at $12. Even these reductions failed to move the surplus supply and it was evident that the speculators would have to cut their prices still further if they were to sell out.

WILL EXTEND THE USE OF ROAD OIL

DUST DAMAGES THE ENGINES IN THE PUMPING STATION.

Two requests for road oil were heard by the Board of Works last night. Dr. Rodgers, V. S., who resides outside the city on the gravel road, asked that oil be placed in front houses just outside the city limits. The residents are willing to sweep the road and pay for the cost of laying and the price of the oil. There is altogether about 50 yards of road to be oiled. The road would not be oiled from the boundary to the top of the hill but from the bottom of the hill to the top.

Ald. Hamilton, "Stopping some of the road is the trouble."

Dr. Rodgers, "We will pay for the whole of it then."

Ald. Crowe, "We are only trying to save oil."

On motion of Ald. Morrison, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, the request of Dr. Rogers was granted.

Mr. Robert Hicks, of the Peterboro Utilities Commission was the second applicant and stated that for a year the Commission have asked that oil be laid on the road in front of the city's pump house. It was his opinion that this part of the Lakefield road was one of the dustiest, which is detrimental to the engines in the pump house. The Utilities Commission are willing to pay all costs. There is about 800 feet that should be oiled and the Board unanimously decided to oil this part of the road when a new car of oil arrives.

Ald. Edgar, "The roads near the Canadian General Electric Company and at the DeLaval should be oiled," and the mayor agreed with him.

"They will be attended to as soon as the new car of oil comes in," promised Ald. Phelan.

Y.W.C.A. SWIMMING POOL

Swimming is a live topic at the Young Women's Christian Association to-day. It is the all-important theme. During this warm spell many avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy a plunge in the cool water of the pool. Many girls who have never before attempted to swim have acquired the art. The more timid girls and those who have difficulty in mastering the strike are kept on the water wings. The pool is a rendezvous for many ladies who are taking swimming lessons and rapidly learning to swim.

The water in the pool is always fresh. The temperature is controlled by constant circulation from the pool into the boiler and into the pool again. Daily, over a foot of water is drawn off and the pool filled up with fresh water. Weekly the pool is emptied and thoroughly cleaned, the beautiful tiled lining of the pool making this a very simple operation.

The public are welcome to come and watch the swimmers at any time, in the gallery which is intended for spectators.

PROGRESS OF DIRIGIBLE

TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT MAY BE CONCLUDED TO-DAY—MAKING GOOD TIME.

(Special to Examiner.)

BOSTON, Mass., July 5. — Flying southward toward Long Island, the British dirigible R-34 apparently was making good progress on the last lap of her trans-Atlantic flight at 8.30 a.m. to-day. Messages indicating she was off the northern New England coast, were picked up by the naval wireless station here. The naval officers said her exact position was not known.

LAND TO-DAY.

CAMPERDOWN, N. S., July 5. — The British dirigible R-34, which left Scotland on Wednesday morning on a trans-Atlantic flight, was believed to be off the New England coast early to-day. She passed two miles south of the steamer "Seal" during the night. At that time her speed and position indicated she would reach Long Island some time this afternoon.

HUGE BONFIRE.

(Canadian Press.)

HALIFAX, July 5. — The British dirigible R-34 en route to Mineola, N. Y., from East Fortune, Scotland, was sighted at Parrsboro, about fifty miles north west of Halifax, at 4 a.m. local time to-day. A huge bonfire built on the beach attracted the attention of the dirigible's crew, who manoeuvred the craft over the town, and up and down the river as though endeavoring to recognize the place.

READY FOR LANDING.

(By W. R. Hargrave.)

MINEOLA, July 5. — Thousands of persons were on hand early to-day, the early morning sun to greet the British dirigible R-34, expected to complete her trans-Atlantic flight here this afternoon.

The crowds which began gathering early yesterday in anticipation that the airship might land in the afternoon, dwindled away somewhat during the night, but were back in increased numbers at dawn. Many slept in their automobiles near the Roosevelt field. Others parked their tired bodies on the bare ground, since it offered some surcease from the terrific heat. No direct message had been received from the R-34 early today, but it was believed by the naval officials she might come within the wirless radius by the morning.

Everything was in readiness at the Roosevelt Field to care for both the dirigible and its crew during their stay. The British officers and men were to be regaled with a chicken dinner immediately after landing, while the airship was to be given a "square meal" of about 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas—providing she was that "hungry."

Canadian Press:

HALIFAX, N. S., July 5.—Naval officials here believe the R-34 at noon to-day was picking her way slowly in a thick fog off Nova Scotia. While the weather conditions over Halifax were perfect for flying, the visibility was reported to be as low as three miles in the immediate vicinity of the port. The R-34 was reported to have passed Canso at five o'clock this morning. Canso is approximately 140 miles from Halifax.

(Canadian Press.)

HALIFAX, July 5.— At 10.20 this morning the Admiralty officials here were informed by wireless from R34 that the big dirigible was between Halifax and Canso and all was well.

FIRE BRIGADE WAS CALLED OUT

Spontaneous Combustion given as the cause of Fire in the South End.

The fire brigade was called to the home of Mrs. Macdonald, Lafayette avenue, last night, at 6.45, and extinguished a fire which started in a clothes closet upstairs. The fire burst a hole through the floor, but a 45 gallon chemical tank soon extinguished the blaze. The cause of the fire is unknown, but Chief Grange is of the opinion that spontaneous combustion was the cause. The closet was filled with clothes and boots. The damage was small.

RAIN HELPED NORTH COUNTRY

(Canadian Press.)

COBALT, July 5.—Telephone messages this morning from several sections in the north country, where bush fires have been raging for several days, indicate that heavy rains have fallen in most localities and further damage for the present is at an end. Many settlers have been burned out, but so far as known no lives were lost.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR CONSTRUCTING PAVEMENT TO BE LAID ON WATER ST.

HINDY CLAIMS TO BE RESPONSIBLE

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 5.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, former Chief of the German staff, declares that he is responsible for acts of German main headquarters since August, 1916, and also proclamations from former Emperor William concerning the waging of warfare. He asks President Ebbert of Germany to inform the Allies to this effect, according to a Copenhagen despatch.

LIQUOR SEIZED BY THE INSPECTOR

SEIZURE WAS MADE IN NORWOOD THIS MORNING.

Early this morning License Inspector Stewart made an important seizure of liquor at Norwood. The contraband was concealed in a trunk, a box, and four suit cases. It was left off the early morning train, and a reception committee in the form of an automobile and two men were on hand to meet it.

The shipper's name was given as M. Ryan, of Montreal, and the consignee's name was given as Long, of [illegible]

It is estimated there were at least sixty bottles in the suit cases and a larger number in the trunk and box.

The consignment was re-shipped to Peterborough in care of the Inspector, and a Police Court case is promised, with a Peterborough man figuring as one of the principals. The two men at Norwood got away, but the Inspector identified one of them.

AIRPLANE WAS FORCED TO DESCEND

BOMBER LANDED IN THE VILLAGE STREET.

(Canadian Press.)

HALIFAX, July 5.—The Handley-Page bomber biplane, under command of Vice-Admiral Mark Kerr, which left Harbor Grace, Nfld., yesterday, on a flight to Long Island to accompany the dirigible R34, was forced to descend at five-thirty o'clock this morning owing to engine trouble. The giant airplane came down in the streets of Parraboro, a village 100 miles north-west of Halifax and was damaged beyond immediate repairs. No member of the crew was injured. Admiral Kerr stated that he had no immediate plans.

It is always safe to send a Dominion Express Money Order. Five dollars costs three cents.

MR. R. SHEEHY WAS THE SUCCESSFUL TENDERER—PROPERTY COMMITTEE MEETING.

PLUMBING REPORT

The tender of Mr. R. Sheehy for the construction of the pavement to be laid on Water Street, fro mCharlotte street to King street and from King Street to George Street was accepted by the Board of Works last night on motion of Ald. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Edgar. City Engineer Parsons estimated that Mr. Sheehy's tender which was the lowest received, would cost the city $8,364.50. The tenders were as follows:

The Tenders.

Mr. Sheehy— Concrete pavement, $2.60 per square yard; concrete curb, 39c per lineal foot; concrete apron, 29c per square foot.

Mr. John E. Hayes — Concrete pavement, $2.79 per square yard; concrete curb, 60c per lineal foot; concrete apron, 29c per square foot.

Mr. J. Bogue, Lindsay — Concrete pavement, $2.75 per square yard; concrete curb, 35c per lineal foot; concrete apron 40c per square foot.

Mr. R. H. Parsons — Concrete pavement, $2.70 per square yard; concrete curb, 50c per lineal foot; concrete apron, 28c per square foot.

Mr. H. R. Martin — concrete pavement, $3.20 per square yard; concrete curb, 60c per lineal foot; concrete apron 40c per square foot.

Mr. T. H. Hickey—Concrete pavement, $2.60 per square yard; concrete curb, 33c per lineal foot; concrete apron, 42c per square foot.

Mr. Sheehy's tender includes provision for local labour but no fair wage clause.

Ald. Edgar, "It is too late now."

Mayor Duncan, "He will have to pay union wages anyhow."

Chairman Phelan assured the Board that all residents on the streets where the pavements are to be laid have been notified to get in their sewer and water connections.

Mr. Edwin Newsome's bread and sweeping charges regarding defective plumbing in this city, engaged the attention of the Property Committee last night. Present were Aldermen Hamilton, (chairman,) McIntyre, Morrison, Crowe, Edgar and Garside.

Mr. Newsome has written to the Property Committee stating that he is willing to make another personal visit to the city to inspect local plumbing and draft a new plumbing bylaw for a consideration of $100. He further said that his full report of local plumbing conditions was published in his Plumbing Magazine and printed in the Examiner.

The members of the committee thought Mr. Newsome's charges were too vague and general and Ald. Edgar moved that unless Mr. Newsome gave the council more specific information of defective plumbing than published it will betaken for granted that he is not prepared to back up his statement of some time ago. Ald. Garside seconded the motion supported by all the members although Ald. McIntyre was in favour of securing an independent report.

The chairman was authorized to have a screen placed on the incinerator smoke-stack and also to have the stack painted.

TRYING THE ARCH-CRIMINALS

Few features of the terms of the peace treaty have caused so much satisfaction as that which provides that the ex-Kaiser must be handed over to be tried by an allied tribunal. Following upon this the declaration of Premier Lloyd George that the man who above all others in the world was responsible for the war, is to be brought to London for trial, is particularly gratifying. It is fitting that William Hohenzollern should face his judges in the city that he tried so often to destroy by his murderous air-raids during the war. The announcement that his son, the former Crown Prince Frederick William, will also be arraigned before the International Trial Court is one that will be hailed with delight. Next to the ex-Kaiser himself there is no one that is more cordially hated and detested by the people of the majority of the countries of the world, than the Crown Prince. The trial of these two arch-criminals will do much to ensure the future peace of the world, for as Lloyd George put it in his London speech, "If such a course had been followed after other wars, there would have been fewer wars."

HONOURING THE DEAD.

Some time ago there was considerable discussion in Peterboro about the most suitable manner of honoring the memory of the soldiers from this city who made the supreme sacrifice during the war. The matter was finally allowed to drop, with the understanding that it would be taken up again as soon as the conflict was over. In the meantime other centres have made considerable progress in arranging for suitable memorials and it would seem that the time has now come when the attention of the civic authorities and of the citizens generally should be turned upon this most important matter. It is the duty of Peterboro to recognize the self-sacrifice of her soldier-citizens; a duty that should be assumed willingly and eagerly, and now that peace has finally been declared, steps should be taken at once to see that a proper and fitting memorial shall be arranged. It is inevitable that there will be differences of opinion as to what form the memorial shall take, which is all the more reason why this problem should be faced as soon as possible, and a definite course of action decided upon.

THAT BIGGER POSITION.

One speedy result of the Senate's action in refusing to continue the Dominion prohibition law after the end of the war, should be a revision of the system of administration of the liquor regulations in Ontario. It is said that the official directing the operations of the government liquor dispensaries in this province was to receive a salary of $10,000 a year. That remuneration, wildly extravagant as it was under the old conditions, will be impossible when the importation of liquor is permitted. There will be little business for the government dispensaries if those who desire a supply of liquor are given the opportunity of ordering it from a dealer outside of the province. There will be no [illegible] experience [illegible] limited [illegible] that will justify the payment of any such salary as it is stated the provincial inspector is to receive.

Imagine $10,000 a year for the task of superintending the operations of a few dispensaries, as under the London Advertiser stated it. "With local inspectors and official vendors in charge of the government's stores, is there $10,000 worth of inspecting to be performed by a government employee whose salary as grand custodian of the Board is greater than that of the Minister of Education by $4,000, and greater than that of the Premier of Ontario by $1,000?"

THE COST OF LIVING.

The Special Committee of the House of Commons which has been inquiring into problems affecting the cost of living, would do well to pay a little attention to the question of the comparative high prices of the necessities of life here as compared with those prevailing in England. It is customary to hear the statement made that the high prices in Canada are caused by the shortage in England, the demand for Canadian goods sending the cost up on this side of the Atlantic. But the prices quoted in English papers knock the bottom completely out of this argument. They show that the people of England are paying much less than we are over here for Canadian goods. Take cheese, for example. In the English papers selected Canadian cheese is quoted at 32 cents per pound, while in Canada with the factories that make the cheese at todian of the Barrel is greater than pound. Bacon is selling in England at from 32 cents to 54 cents—the housewives know too well what the charge is here. Lard appears to be selling six cents a pound cheaper in the old country while beef ranges from 26 to 44 cents as compared with the Canadian prices of from 50 cents to 55 cents. Even butter could be bought in England for 55 cents at a time when the Canadian people were paying 20 and 25 cents a pound more. Why should there be this difference, and where are the profits going to? The Cost of Living Committee might spend a little time in trying to find the answer to these questions. They would be interesting to the Canadian people.

AN AUTUMN SESSION

A remarkable rumor, with much appearance of foundation, comes from Ottawa. From time to time during the parliamentary session now drawing to a close there have been reports that many of the members have been endeavoring to induce the Government to agree to a very substantial increase of the sessional indemnity. Increase of salaries is provided for in all walks of life—why not increase the allowances to members of parliament, who, like other people, have to face the high cost of living? So ran the argument. The Government, without whose action no expenditure can be proposed in parliament, were reluctant to agree to the increase, doubtless feeling that public opinion would not approve such a measure. Now the story comes that the Government are privately consoling the disappointed members with an assurance that a special session of parliament will be called in the autumn, and that in this way the members will receive a second sessional indemnity this year. The object of the proposed autumn session, the members are told, is to approve of the peace treaty.

It should be possible to dismiss this report as quite unworthy of notice. Unfortunately it cannot be disposed of in this way. It is accepted, in quarters usually well informed, as a settled policy on the part of the Government.

There is absolutely no ground whatever for the holding of such an extra session. There is no information before parliament to show that the peace treaty requires any confirmation by the Parliament of Canada. The treaty will be "ratified" in due course by His Majesty the King, and his ratification is given for the whole British Empire. In its relation to world affairs the treaty will be effective even though it is never laid before the Parliament of Canada. If Canada's participation in the League of Nations involves some contribution to the expenses of that organization, all that will be needed on Canada's part will be the voting of an appropriation of Canada's share, and that is a matter that can well wait for consideration at a regular session of parliament. Many months will elapse before all the nations concerned in the treaty can complete the parts assigned to them. If Canada's share in the expenses be voted along with the appropriations in the ordinary way next winter, Canada will even then probably be ahead of some of the countries concerned.

A session of parliament is an expensive thing. Canada is a much-governed country. With municipal, Provincial and Dominion Governments to be maintained, our democracy is unavoidably costly. But it should not be made unnecessarily expensive by indulgence in such extravagance as the holding of an extra session, which would cost at least a million dollars, and probably much more.

There is one thing that the Government might well do. A few years ago Parliament was usually summoned to meet in January or February, and if there was much legislation the session ran into the summer, and sometimes even longer, much to the inconvenience of many members who while ready to give their time to public affairs in the winter session, could not afford to be absent from their business in the late spring or summer. At that time the fiscal year of the Dominion ended June 30. To enable parliament to meet much earlier and close its session before the end of the winter, the fiscal year was so changed as to end March 31. With the books and accounts closing three months earlier than formerly, there should be an opportunity to begin parliamentary business three months earlier. It should be as easy to begin a session now in November as it was to begin in January or February in former times. But we have fallen back into the very practice of late sessions that was intended to be corrected by the change of the fiscal year. The Government and the officials have got the benefit of the three months in the time for preparation of the work, but the public have not got the benefit of the earlier sessions which were the main object of the change in the law.

There is no excuse for the calling of the proposed extra session. But if the Government decided promptly that immediate attention shall be given to the closing up of the affairs of the year which ended on the 31st of March last, and that the preparation and printing of the necessary reports and documents be expedited, it should be possible to begin the next session in November or the first week in December. The customary formalities could be disposed of and any urgent business dealt with before the Christmas holidays, and on resuming, after a reasonable vacation, parliament should be able to transact the ordinary business in ample time to allow members to return to their homes in early spring. The present practice of beginning the session late, marking time in the earlier days of the session, and rushing measures through with indecent haste at the eleventh hour, is not a good one for parliament or for the country. An earnest effort should be made by all the members to bring about a better system. The time seems to be favorable for the reform. The alleged need of action on the peace treaty, if there is such need, may probably be urged as a reason for hastening next regular session of parliament. It can afford no excuse for an extra session.—Journal of Commerce.

BUSINESS GOOD SAYS BRADSTREETS

In All Lines of Summer Requirements.

Toronto reports to Bradstreet's that nearly half the travellers covering Ontario ground are on holidays, but that the remainder are finding trade very good. Sorting orders for all summer lines are quite numerous and orders for fall delivery are also coming, more than for the first week of July last year. Wholesale drygoods houses have already shipped a good deal of fall wear, which together with the sorting orders have created a deal of shipping. Boots and shoes continue in a better demand than a year ago, especially the sorting [illegible] and canvas boots. The recent advances in leather and leather goods seem to have quickened the boot and shoe trade, many merchants now ordering after waiting for several months expecting prices to decline. The hardware trade is active in builders' supplies and [illegible] utensils but household hardware is not brisk. Building papers are in strong demand. The lumber and brick industries also report very active business. In the case of lumber, prices are again slightly higher and the outlets are greater than ever, the United States having made application for large stocks of nearly all sorts of lumber.

Crop conditions are fairly satisfactory. The weather since Monday has been very hot and crops in some localities are now in need of rain; but taking the past week all through there has been a fair amount of rain in the whole province, excepting in a few parts of Western Ontario.

LINSEED OIL UP ANOTHER NOTCH

Linseed oil furnishes the feature of the markets again this week in advances which range from 28c to 40c per gallon. This, says Hardware and Metal, in its current issue, is a direct reflection of the meteoric flight of flax seed which has soared tremendously in the past few days and it seems may even go higher. Germany has become a buyer and taken substantial quantities of seed. Crop reports from the Southern States are anything but encouraging and Canadian crop reports are none to optimistic, so all tendencies point to high prices, though how long the present record figures can be maintained seems problematical. Most certainly buying of oil will be restricted to absolute requirements

Turpentine, which recorded substantial advances during the past few weeks, has reacted, and a decline has been made showing prices 10c per gallon below last week's record figures. Supplies locally are fair and the easing away of the export movement overseas will undoubtedly relieve the strain so that shipments can be made here without any trouble. The crop is not expected to be any larger than last year and so the reaction in prices in view of world needs is not likely to be too great.

SOLD A HORSE FOR BIG PRICE

A farm journal makes the statement that "at the present time it is the horse possessing both weight and quality that brings the price." Mr. J. W. Morrison, Lot 18, Con. 2, of South Monaghan, the well-known horseman, seems to have found this out some time ago, as he sold one of his horses, reared on his own farm, to a neighbor for the tidy sum of $310.00.

GROCERIES ARE ON THE UP-GRADE

Big Advance in All Lines of Foods — General Upward Tendency.

Canadian Grocer says: The feature of the grocery markets throughout Canada this week is the advance in the prices of practically all soaps. A jump of from 40 to 50 cents per case is shown on laundry soaps, and toilet soaps have made a gain of 15 per cent. All Canadian markets show the advance and a corresponding rise in the market in the United States has also taken place.

Toronto apart from the advance in soap and St. Charles' milk, there is very little change in the markets at Toronto. Laundry soap has advanced from 40 to 50 cents per case and St. Charles' milk has gone to $6.90. The markets, while generally speaking and the tendency in a good many instances is very much stronger. Teas and coffees are likely to be high, as all indications point to such a primary points. New buying will have to be at higher prices than present quotations on spot. Rices continued upward, and the scarcity is one of the biggest factors that has to be contended with, and the quality of the supplies is not of the best. Canned goods are selling freely, and particularly canned salmon is in very great demand. Some brands of the same are quoted higher.

Canned tomatoes have gone up another ten cents, now selling at $2.25 for 2 1-2s, and canned corn has been pretty well cleaned up. New fruits and vegetables are selling very freely, and strawberries have been quoted as low at 10c and 11 cents per box. Canadian cherries are now on the market and receipts of both fruits and vegetables are very heavy.

In the produce line there are few changes.

The butter market is a little higher and eggs and cheese are at firm levels. Fresh meats are somewhat higher and the excessive demand for cooked meats has sent them to new high levels. Provisions are at strong figures.

FRANCE HAS ADOPTED EIGHT HOUR DAY FOR WORK ABOARD SHIPS.

Paris, June 25. — A bill limiting work aboard all public and private vessels to eight-hours a day or forty-eight hours a week was adopted today by the Chamber of Deputies.

During the debate several deputies expressed the wish that negotiations be opened with other powers to enact similar legislation for their seamen, on the ground that France would be handicapped if she were the only one to have eight-hour-day regulations. The Government promised to begin negotiations.

Put something by for a sunny day!

WHEN the horizon brightens with an opportunity that may lead to your success and prosperity, do not let it find you unready to take it on.

Through lack of capital, many men have been forced to see their opportunities pass—in many cases all that was required was a very small sum to invest.

A few dollars saved each week or month, deposited to your credit in a savings account at The Bank of Toronto, with the interest it earns, will soon accumulate to a substantial sum. Have it ready when the call comes for your venture.

RETIREMENT OF REV. B. GREATRIX

To the congregations of many stations in the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Methodist Church, especially to the people of St. James' Church and to many other persons who have come to know him as a fellow-citizen, the retirement of the Rev. Benjamin Greatrix casts a little shade of sadness over the congratulations that are evoked by the completion of his life's work and service during a ministry of thirty-six years. His last four years in this city have produced the crowning success to a long and arduous and fruitful career. He guided St. James' church through its years of expansion, usually a trying period for a struggling suburban congregation, but the tangible results alone testify to his outstanding executive abilities even as the splendid temple will be a monument to his name and memory. Only $10,000 indebtedness remains, and although the church was built for $31,000 it was worth more then and is estimated at $60,000 today. The congregation has grown and the givings last year were $10,500. These are suggestive facts of the record Mr. Greatrix established in Peterboro. It is easy to measure his managerial achievements, but his work as a minister and preacher and his character that appealed so powerfully to men of all churches, cannot be reduced to tangible form or adequate expression.

Born in London sixty years ago, Mr. Greatrix came to Canada with his parents in 1861 and served a useful apprenticeship on the farm and in a blacksmith's shop, strenuous work that gave him the strength required for his early ministrations in his first charge at Atherley, a congregation scattered over an area of forty miles by twenty miles. After three years and a half at Victoria College, then in Cobourg, during which he distinguished himself in his studies and won special honours in oratory, Mr. Greatrix was ordained at the George street Methodist church in 1883, during the Bay of Quinte Conference, which was held in Peterboro that year. His charges after his pastorate at Atherley included Little Britain, Cannington, and Trenton, where he spent three years at each church, and four years at Campbellford, Port Perry, and Oshawa, and three years at Belleville.

The ministry does not offer large emoluments, but to the faithful servant it brings rich temporal rewards in troops of friends and golden opinions of men and women.

Eternal merit is the gift of the Master, but of the compensations of men one of the most prized is their friendship, and in that respect, Mr. Greatrix is rich indeed. His fine qualities of broad sympathy and kindliness, his sincerity and simplicity, his faithful discharges of duty and withal his unobtrusiveness and retiring disposition, have won him a host of friends in all classes and creeds. He has not only preached the gospel in season and out, and ministered to his people sharing their joys and sorrows, but he has shown himself an excellent citizen. His life has been blessed by results that are broader and more lasting than are realized probably by himself and those who have known him best, and they will be remembered long after his last congregations are gone, even as many of those of thirty-five years ago have passed to their rewards. As a pastor and a man his life has been a full one, his contacts with people have been far-reaching, his influence for good beyond estimate. It is gratifying to know that Mr. Greatrix has many years of usefulness before him in his retirement. He and Mrs. Greatrix will live at 438 Park street, and will be associated with George street church, where he was dedicated to the service of God.

In the affairs of the Bay of Quinte Conference he has been chairman at four annual conventions, he has also been secretary and he was a delegate to the General Conference on four occasions.

Prhaps the outstanding and most impressive fact of his life and character, a virtue at any rate which appeals compellingly in this acquisitive materialistic age, has been the humility even meekness Mr. Greatrix exemplified. And God's promise to the humble and meek is resalled in passing, but beside that is the significant proof that men admire these qualities today, probably because they are becoming so rare, and yet so necessary in works that demand self-sacrifice and self-effacement. Today as always, theyare treasured for their intrinsic worth despite the seemingly changing ideals that would ignore them. Lives like that of Rev. Benjamin Greatrix have the effect, not of revaluting these hidden pearls of character, but of re-discovering them.

NAPOLEON'S LAST MARSHAL

Emanuel de Grouchy, the last Marshal created by Napoleon has figured historically as the scapegoat of the Waterloo campaign. When detached in the evening of June 16, 1815, after the Battle of Ligny, with vague orders to press the retreating Prussians, he was not favoured by fortune. The situation was difficult, and, if anything should go wrong, he could count on total loss. So it proved; and to-day it is the popular belief in France that Waterloo was lost because Grouchy failed to march "on the sound of the cannon." But since, even if he had done so, he would have brought it after him the Prussians, held by him at Wavre, it must be doubted whether his presence could have made any difference. However, undoubtedly Grouchy, like Napoleon's other lieutenants, had learned to shirk responsibility. Nor was he suited to independent command, though a good soldier. By birth a marquis, he had been a king's officer, but in the course of the Revolution he became a private. Then he rose rapidly through every grade, fought in Savoy, La Vendee and Piedmont, and had reached high command when wounded and captured at Novi. Later, he distinguished himself at Hohenlinden, Friedland and Wagram, and was one of the few to return, with enhacing reputation from the Russian campaign of 1812. One of the earliest to join Napoleon after the return from Elba, he became Marshal; and, owing to the absence of many of Napoleon's former lieutenants, he received command of the right wing of the Grand Army. That he possessed ability was shown by his skillful retreat from Wavre; but the remainder of his life was spent largely in explaining his action on June 17-18. He died in 1847, aged 81.

OLD LADY REMAINS WITH TRUST IN GOD.

HAILEYBURY, July 4. — Within two or three miles to the west of Haileybury one aged lady, with the forest fire only two hundred feet away from her buildings, refused to be taken away, declaring that she had placed her trust in God and He would bring her through to safety. The appeals of the Mayor and of a local preacher were of no avail.

DR. ANNA HOWARD SHAW IS DEAD.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 4—Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, honorary president of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association, died at her home in Moylan, Pa., near here after a short illness.

Dr. Shaw was taken ill in Springfield, Ill., about a month ago while on a lecture tour with William H. Taft and Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard University, in the interest of the League of Nations. Pneumonia developed and for two weeks she was confined to her room in a Springfield hospital. She returned to her home about 15th June, and apparently had entirely recovered. Last Saturday she drove to Philadelphia in her automobile and upon her return said she was feeling "fine." She was taken suddenly ill again yesterday with a recurrence of the disease, and grew rapidly worse until the end.

Her secretary, Miss Lucy E. Anthony, a niece of Susan B. Anthony, who has been with Dr. Shaw for thirty years, and two nieces, the Misses Lulu and Grace Greene, were at her bedside when she died.

LISTENER IN MOTOR IS LATEST INVENTION

Speech by Wireless Telephony 15 Miles Away.

Marconi's latest wonder is an apparatus which enables a passenger motoring along the peaceful countryside near Colchester to hear every word of a speech by the Mayor of Chelmsford, 15 miles away, whilst the car was moving. It was done by wireless telephony, attached to the car being a small apparatus you could almost carry on your back, and all you have to do was to listen through a "receiver." As a matter of fact the mayor's audience" was in London—Mr. Godfrey Isaacs and other gentlemen at Marconi House—another 40 or 50 miles away, but the "waves" reached the listener near Colchester just as they did the Strand. For another equally successful test they turned on the gramophone at Chelmford, and again, while the car was careering along the road, the strains of "The Trumpeter" overtook it, and Peter Dawson's voice could easily be recognised. "The Marconi waves acknowledge no speed limit," said one of the directors. A remarkable wireless device enabled Zeps and U-boats to be located. All you had to do, apparently, was to listen for their wireless from two given "posts" on our coast, and by directional apparatus ascertain the base angles of the triangle. A little geometery told you just where the appex must be—and the rest was left to the Navy or the Air Force.

THE BOARD OF WORKS

would be suitable for the Hunter street bridge, and one which they could construct within the estimate. Mr. W. C. Cormack, local superintendent of Quaker Oats Company, urged that the Board receive the revised plan of the bridge as outlined by the Leonard Construction Company.

Would Cost $320,000.

The Leonard Construction Company estimated that they could build the bridge on Mr. Barber's plans at a cost of $320,000 if the city obtains the fill, lays it, and lays the sidewalk on the fill. The granite and terracotta would also be left off the railings. The Board were of the opinion that the Leonard Construction Company were not very eager for the contract and were not willing to take any chances.

The First Motion.

Ald. Edgar got the motion ball rolling and moved that the contract be awarded to the Russell Townsend Company on their tender and that the original contract with the Russell Townsend Company be rescinded and that an option be received for the substitution of a steel span instead of the main concrete span if the council later decides. The Board were of the opinion that a steel span would be a big reduction on the cost of the bridge. The Russell Townsend Company contract calls for the acplus a fixed sum of $29,500.

Ald. Edgar included as part of his motion that the orginal contract with the Russell Townsend Company be rescinded because the contract included a rider by which the contracting company agree to protect the aldermen from any action brought against them. The Russell Townsend Company tender is $228,600 cotual cost plus a fixed sum of $29,500. provided for guaranteed arches in his motion.

Mayor Duncan: That is not a guaranteed bid. You will find that it will run up about $300,000 and there is nothing to cut off the bridge if it runs above the appropriation.

Day Labour.

Ald. Morrison protested against the city building of the bridge and asked them to get down to hard tacks. Ald. Gainey introduced the question of day labour, saying that he thought the approaches could be built cheaper by day labour than by cost plus or contract. He gave the motion ball another push when he moved an amendment to Ald Edgar's motion that the approaches be built by day labour and that the city advertize for an overseer for the work and that the main span be left till a later date. Ald. Crowe supported the amendment after speaking of the experience in building sidewalks. He stated that they first let them build the sidewalks by contract but now constructed them by day labour.

"I am committed to the Barber bridge with the original plans," stated Ald. Crowe.

"We paved Chambers Street some years ago by day labour," countered Ald. Edgar, and tonight we have unanimously agreed to give the paving on Water and King streets, by contract. Then if we let the work by day labour we will be continually bothered with men asking for jobs, and others who, having been fired by the overseer, will ask for re-instatement. The contractors employ their own men and see that they work. I see no arguments in favour of day labour." Ald. Crowe replied and the discussion promised to turn from a question of bridge or no bridge to day labour or contract, when Ald. Turner stated that he supported Ald. Edgar's motion and seconded it. Chairman Phelan called for a show of hands on the amendment of Ald. Gainey, providing for the approaches to be done by day labour and the central arch left for some later date.

For — Aldermen Gainey, Morrison, McIntyre, Crowe.

Against — Aldermen Hamilton, Taylor, Garside and the Mayor.

Ald. Edgar's motion favouring the Russell Townsend Company was then brought to the fore and the show of hands was as follows:

For — Aldermen Hamilton, Garside, Turner, Edgar and Phelan.

Against — Aldermen Crowe, McIntyre, Morrison, Taylor and Gainey.

Favour Ald. Taylor's Motion.

The Mayor refused to vote and as both the motion and amendment were lost, being both tied, the motion ball stopped for a time in its mad career. But it soon got under way again when another alderman gave it a kick and motion followed motion and amendment followed the motion regarding the Russell Townsend motion and Ald. Gainey's amendment for day labour, pushed his motion for the Canadian Engineering and Construction Company of Hamilton, and this time the motion commanded a majority of votes, and accordingly was recommended to the City Council, and will run the gauntlet before the City Fathers next Monday night, but more than one alderman is of the opinion that the final result is still in doubt.

PUBLICITY

By PETER McARTHUR

Some weeks ago Col. MacLean's Financial Post favored me with a chirpy and extended editorial notice. Here is a taste of its quality:

"When is a trust not a trust? When it is constructed by Arthur."

In my article on the Fraser Valley Milk Producer's Association with which the Editor of the Post was dealing, I stated explicitly that the organization was not a typical trust because there was no secrecy about it. Being a co-operative association all its acts were open to public scrutiny. Its merits were not due to the fact that it was organized by farmers, but to the fact that it was open and above board in all its dealings. Since the publication of the Post's article I was amused to find that Colonel MacLean, according to the newspaper reports, denounced the Paper Trust as a baleful type of the trust monster. Apparently a trust is a wicked trust when it puts the screws on the publishing business. But neither the Post's editorial nor Col. MacLean's definition of a really wicked trust would have moved me to refer to the matter had it not been that some organization which loves trusts reproduced the Post editorial and supplied it, in a form ready to be printed, to papers throughout the Dominion. The fact that I was being somewhat misrepresented did not bother me particularly, but it gradually dawned upon me that a propaganda in favor of Big Business was being put through, and that seemed significant. It was also significant that the point I tried to emphasize in my article—the menace of secrecy in Big Business—was entirely overlooked.

I came to the conclusion that the time is ripe for someone to speak blasphemies against the great modern god, Business Success.

The curse of the present time is organization. Our civilization has woven about itself a web of organizations that will destroy it as certainly as the poisoned shirt of Nessus destroyed Hercules. It is organization that makes Business Success possible, and it is under the exactions of Business Success that the whole world is writhing. Much, if not all, of the present-day unrest can be traced back to organized greed — either to the greed of capitalists or the greed of classes. By organizing they get power, and when they get power they abuse it to gratify their own selfishness. The trouble is not due to the principle of organization, but to the fact that we have allowed organization to degenerate into conspiracy. And conspiracy would not be possible without secrecy. If every organization formed under the protection of that one big organization, the Government, of which we are all a part, were subjected to a publicity as pitiless as the Day of Judgment, we would have no cases of three hundred and ten per cent. And I can see no sound reason why the workings of business and the operations of capital generally should not be subject to the closest public scrutiny. The Government is forced to do business in public, under the constant criticism of a hostile Opposition, and yet it manages to get along. Even the King lives in the white light that beats upon a throne, and every act that affects the welfare of his subjects is open to examination. But the kings of industry and all the operations of Big Business must be shrouded in darkness and mystery. Shucks! That is all a big bluff. Honest business can bear the light of day just as well as honest government. Our captains of Industry all claim to be serving the public. That is the excuse for the privileges they demand. Then why not let us see how they are serving it? Is it that they are too modest? I am afraid their modesty is much like that of Artemus Ward's noble Red Man who stole a blanket and a bottle of whiskey and then rushed whooping to the wilderness to conceal his emotion. Our kings of Big Business are very anxious to conceal their emotion — and other things.

It doesn't seem quite right to be talking about organizations and big organizers this way. I know that a great many people will be offended because they are quite sure they will never get to heaven unless they are organized and belong to exactly the right organization. Nevertheless and notwithstanding, I repeat the assertion that organization is the curse of our time—though it should be a blessing. All organization that is secret in its operations is a menace to the welfare of the people and should have the light turned in on it. It is in secrecy that abnormal profits are piled up. If a cheese factory can be run with the fullest publicity and yet make a decent success, I fail to see why a cloth factory or shoe factory should not be run on the same basis. We are allowing ourselves to be bluffed by the leaders of Big Business and we should be ashamed of ourselves. Few of the men we are cringing before have any real ability. They employ it. All they have is a ruthless greed, and as ninety per cent fail it is probable that most of the ten per cent. who succeed owe their success to luck. Turn in the light on the whole bunch! We can then do honor to those who are conducting a fair business and rendering service for the rewards they are taking—and we can attend to the others. Implacable publicity would probably do more to correct the high cost of living than anything else. And no organization should be allowed to exist without the fullest publicity regarding all its actions.

PLANE FOR FIANCEE; KILLED

U. S. Aviator Burned to Death With Mechanician.

RYE BEACH, N.Y., June 24—Lieut. Shelly Watson, of Rogers, Texas, and his mechanician, M. Ireland of Westbury, were killed today when an airplane in which they were flying crashed to the ground and caught fire. Both aviators were burned to death.

Watson, who recently returned from 18 months' service overseas had been in the habit of flying here every morning from the aviation field in Mineola, where he was stationed, and circling the house in which his fiancee was spending the summer. He was flying at a height of about 200 feet this morning when his motor stopped and the plane fell to the ground. The accident was witnessed by his fiancee.

A good recipe to follow in making thin white sauces for vegetables is a tablespoonful of butter and a tablespoonful of flour to one cup of milk. A pocket is a great convenience when putting the house in order. So many things can be stuffed in the pockets.

INCIDENT IN PERSONAL SERVICE

BY H. D. KENNEDY.

At St. [illegible] on Sunday morning last, [illegible] H. D. Kennedy related the following striking incident in personal work.

During the [illegible] in Chicago, I took the [illegible] beautiful morning and went out to [illegible] to visit the Seminary. I reached the town about ten o'clock, [illegible] talking a block from the station, I passed two men, standing on the [illegible] corner, and asked them where the Seminary was. One of them [illegible] "If [illegible] up this street," and then [illegible] left the other and walked on with me. He did not seem to be in a hurry, so I slowed up to keep pace with him, and he began to talk [illegible] to himself. The novelty of it [illegible] me, and what he said [illegible] the cast of his mind and a revelation condition of his soul.

"Theology! [illegible]gy!" he said. "What is theology?" A lot of people are breaking their necks over theology, and what is it? Then he looked up, and said, "I see the sun. Is the sun God, [illegible]re God, or is there another God?"

Now up to this time I had not spoken, except to ask where the Seminary was. He stopped abruptly, and, looking at me, said in a very off-hand way, "Well, stranger, I rather like you." "Do you?" I said, "I am glad of that. I would not want to have a quarrel with you." He said, "I took you for a theological student and I supposed you would contradict me." "Oh, no!" I said, "I would not do that. I never contradict men like you." "Why not?" he said. "Because," I replied, "it may be you know a little more than I do and I might get beaten, besides arguing with a man in your condition will never do him any good." He said, "Are you a theological student?" I said, "I am a Christian." I did not know that I could be with him very long, so I wanted to get to the point at once.

"A Christian!" he said. "What is a Christian?" I said, "Do you want to know?" "Yes," he said, "I would like to hear what you have to say about it." "All right," I said. "There was a time in my life when I was not a Christian, but now I know I am one, and if it will be of any benefit to you, for me to tell you the way to become one, I will be glad to do so." So I said, "My friend, I want you to be a man seeking truth, do you realize that thus far you are entirely in the dark concerning [illegible] not be fooled with a sham." "You have struck it right," he said, "I am thirty-five years old, I am a graduate of Oxford, I have been in every country in Europe and in every State in this Union. I have also been in all kinds of churches, yet I have never found any one who could tell me whether there is a God or not." "Well," I said, "that is surely strange in the light of this century." Then I added, "Are you open to conviction? Do you really want to know?" "Yes," he replied, "I am, and if you can tell me the real thing I am willing to listen."

As I looked into his face I saw he meant it. His countenance was frank and open, but a look of doubt and despair seemed to take all the brightness out of his expression, and I felt that God and the devil were at that moment bidding for his soul. He was not in an argumentative mood as men of that cast usually are, so I breathed a silent prayer to God and went on.

The Thing That Seemed Real.

I felt that it was unwise to use my Bible with him, for he would have asked, "Where did you get that book?" There would be nothing gained by telling him the Bible was God's Word, he would have said, "Who is God?" So I saw the only thing to do, was to start with the one thing that seemed real to him and the thing in which he was already interested, so I looked up as he had done and said, "That sun is like myself; it was created by God." He said, "Who made God?" I looked at him, and said quietly and kindly, "Look here, my friend, I am not anxious to talk to you at all. The fact that we have met to-day means nothing to me; it is not my opportunity, it is yours. I am not in the dark, you are. I have gotten people like you out of the dark before, and I believe I can help you; but, you must let me have a starting point, and my starting point is God. You may call Him the 'First Cause' if you will, I call Him God." "All right," he said, "go on."

So I continued. "I believe God created everything. The fact of God, is the only explanation reasonable to me, of the existence of this universe. Nothing just happens, even the palm of my hand has a definite pattern and plan in it." "Yes," he said, "it would seem that way." "Well then," I said, "let us first settle on God as the Creator and assume that He made the universe and everything in it." "By what process was it done?" he asked. I said, "I believe He made the heavens and the earth first, then vegetable and animal life, and finally man, made in His own likeness." "How did God make man?" he asked, "by evolution?" I said, "I don't know, I was not there. He may have done it that way, though I do not believe He did. If other people wish to claim their ancestry that way I have no objection, but for my part I make no such claim. Still if it were by the process of evolution that God made man that does not alter the fact, that at one time in this world's history, there lived a man and a woman called Adam and Eve. That is as much a matter of history as that Caesar or Napoleon lived."

God's Right to Him.

"All right," he said, "but what was God's purpose in making this man and woman?" "To bring glory to Himself," I answered. "In what way?" he asked. "By being obedient to Him," I said. "If you write a book you can get it copyrighted and control it. If you invent a machine you can get it patented and control it, who you more than any one else should be capable of knowing just why the book was written or the machine invented." "Yes," he said, "that is reasonable." "Then," I said, "since God was the Maker of man He surely had the right to control him and it was not unreasonable of Him to demand obedience; for only through man's obedience could God get glory out of His creation. But being made in the likeness of God, Adam and Eve were capable of making a choice; they chose to disobey Him. Therefore they were thrown out of harmony with Him and would have remained out of harmony forever if he of His own free grace had not done something to restore them to His favour."

"But," he said, "if God loved Adam and Eve, why did He not forgive them without any third person coming into it?" "Well," I said, "Suppose I insulted you and then asked you to forgive me, you could do it; but, suppose I stole your watch and were arrested and sent to prison, would your forgiveness take me out of prison?" "No," he said, "the law would have you." "True," I said, "then the law had Adam and Eve. God could have forgiven them but they would still be guilty, besides God had said, if they sinned they would die; they sinned, therefore were under sentence of death. For God to require no reckoning at the hand of the sinner would prove His law of no value, and His right as moral Sovereign over men would be brought to naught. Sin had to be dealt with, for 'The wages of sin is death.' There was no use in Adam and Eve saying to each other, 'You die for me.' Each would have had to answer 'I have my own sin to die for.' It was necessary, therefore, for some one to die who had no sin of his own, in order for them to be forgiven and go free." I also told him that before God drove them out of the garden of Eden, He promised them a [illegible]. He said, "The [illegible] pent's head," in other words, that some sinless one was to come and live, that He might die for the sins of others, and thus make it possible for man's relationship with God to be restored.

The Value of Christ's Death.

I then told him about God sending His Son into the world, and that Christ so lived that He proved to the universe that what God asked Adam to do, could be done, and could be done by a man, for at the close of His life He said to the world, "Which of you convinceth me of sin?" He said to His disciples, "I do always the things that please my Father," and to His Father He said, "I have finished the work thou gavest me to do." Then after Christ had thus by His life of obedience vindicated God, and had no sin of His own, He voluntarily offered Himself a sacrifice for the sins of all others.

"But," said my friend, "how could Christ's death have such value if He were a man? Would not His death, even if he were sinless, only atone for the sins of one sinner?" "Yes," I answered, "that would be true if He were only a man, but, though He was as truly man as we are men, He was also the only begotten Son of God, and God was in Him reconciling the world to Himself, so that through Christ's death on the Cross, God did more for man, than He could have done through all other men put together. And Christ's righteousness in that act, more than overbalanced all the unrighteousness of all other men. He was a man that He might die, but He was God, that His death might have infinite value and thus count for more than if all other men were to die. Death has a claim upon all other men because of sin, but it had no claim on Christ for He had not sinned. Death did not choose Him; He chose death, and because He did, He destroyed its power and bore away the sin of the world, making it possible for God to be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus."

I also told him that Christ said when He was on earth, "I have power to lay my life down and I have power to take it again," and that by His resurrection He proved the claim He made, also that God bore witness to the fact, in that He raised Jesus up and exalted Him to a place at His own right hand to be a prince and a Saviour. This proved that what Christ had done satisfied God, not that Christ was more loving than God, but that the eternal contract between the Father and the Son had been carried out and the work of man's redemption had been so completed, that any sinner who would accept Christ as his Saviour might stand uncondemned before God, as though he had never sinned at all.

"It Looks Sense."

I turned and looked at my friend and the tears were running down his face. He said, "Where did you get all that?" I said, "In the Bible." He said, "I never heard it before; what do you want me to do?" I said, "If you want to be a Christian as I am, believe what I have told you and accept Christ as your Saviour, for God has said, 'As many as received him (Jesus) to them gave he the right to become children of God, even to them that believe in His name.'" He said, "It looks sense." "Yes," I said, "it is the only thing that is sense for a man in your condition. Let us bow our heads here and pray." We did so, and right there on the street he accepted the Saviour and the light of God dawned in his soul. And oh! what a change came over his face!

We spent the day together, talking on this great theme, and at six o'clock I took the train back to Chicago. He came with me a few blocks, bidding me good-by on three corners. At last we parted and he went on his way rejoicing. I never saw him before or since; I forgot to ask him his name and he did not ask me mine; but I left him in the keeping of the Saviour he had found and expect to met him in glory.

A HONEYMOON SPENT AT ATLANTIC CITY

CHAPTER VIII.

For one glorious, happy week we were at Atlantic City. I never had even seen the ocean before, and at first I was like a child with a new toy. I recall, the first time we walked on the sand, I ran and dipped my hands in the water, wetting my feet and the bottom of my skirt in my enthusiasm.

The board walk, with its crowds of beautifully gowned women and handsome well-groomed men fascinated me. The quaint shops with their gaywindows beguiled me often to spend so long a time gazing, that Neil would pull me away laughingly, and say:

"You can look in shop windows all you want in New York while I am at the office. Come and talk to me now."

Occasionally we took a chair and spent an hour being rolled up and down by a grinning darky. "Playing we were millionaires," Neil called it. But mostly we walked arm in arm, talking of the future, our home together, and of our love for each other which nothing ever could possibly change.

We were staying at one of the large hotels, and living on the American plan. I had asked no questions as to the price. I really did not think of it. So, blissfully happy, without a care in the world, the week of my honeymoon sped all too swiftly by. Yet I was in a fever of impatience to see the "big town", as Neil always spoke of New York. It was to be my home. I never had been there, but had read and heard so much of it that I was keen to get there.

Neil laughed at me. Yet he looked a bit anxious also.

"You'll be mighty lonely for a while, I am afraid. We shall not be be able to live in a part of town where I am at all acquainted, and New York people aren't quick to take up strangers."

"Why can't we live somewhere near your friends?"

"Because I don't earn enough to pay the rent of an apartment in the locality where they live."

"You mean they earn more than you do?" It didn't seem possible. I supposed he of course referred to real young people. I knew there were many wealthy men in the world, but supposed them quite old before they amassed a fortune.

"Thousands more!" he returned again, laughing at me.

I said no more about money until the day we left Atlantic City. Neil had asked to have the bill sent up to the room. When it came he had gone out for something and I looked at it. At first I was tempted to call the boy back and tell him he had made a mistake. But I was still timid with the new pages and swarmed about the big hotel, so laid it on the bureau until Neil came up.

Did that bill come up? We haven't much time," he said, looking at his watch.

"Yes, but it isn't right. It must be long to someone else."

"Bother! we will miss our train if we are delayed very long." He picked up the bill and quickly ran it over.

"Why this is all O.K., Bob. What made you think it wasn't?"

"You don't mean that it has cost us over a hundred dollars for just a room and what we have eaten?" I gasped.

"Yes dear, and we got off mighty cheap at that. I'll run down and pay it. Then we'll hustle for the train."

"One hundred dollars for one week, and he didn't seem to think anything of it," I said aloud. I had no idea that a knowledge of prices brings a sort of carelessness in its train. That men and women accustomed to patronize high-priced hotels and restaurants, either have plenty of money, or when they take an occasional "spree", as Neil called it, they often had to economize for some time to make it up.

It was nice to be so careless of the cost. I had loved every bit of unaccustomed luxury. Once or twice I had felt that my clothes weren't quite fitting for such a wonderful place: Neil and I had kept so to ourselves, however, not sitting about the big luxurious rooms of the hotel, but as soon as we finished eating, finding our way to the beach, or the board walk, that it was not as obvious to me as it otherwise might have been. Yet even so I had thought that later, when Neil had another raise, I must have some different clothes. More stylish and of handsomer material.

I had never heard that the 'clothes-rack' was the one on which many marriages had split.

Story of a Bunch of Keys.

After Mary, queen of Scots, had succeeded in effecting her escape from the grim old fortress of Lochleven her deliverer, William Douglas, threw the keys which had brought her her freedom into the waters of the lake. There they lay till the following summer of 1905, when a boy named William Honeyman, while strolling on its banks, picked up a bunch of five keys of antique workmanship fastened by an iron ring. These the boy carried to the parish schoolmaster, who forwarded them to the Earl of Morton, hereditary keeper of Lochleven castle, near Edinburgh, where they still remain. They are without doubt the old keys which William Douglas threw into the loch on the eventful night when the queen escaped, only to be taken again and consigned to life long captivity.

Harvest Time in Shantung.

Now, come and see a harvest in Shantung. Here, too, it is the time of supreme interest to the whole family. Life in the country is practically measured by so many wheat harvests, and every old man and woman hopes to live to see one more. For weeks before all plans are made with reference to it. Carpentry, masonry, work of every kind must either be finished before "pulling wheat time" or laid aside at that time to wait until the harvest is over. No matter how important in the eyes of a foreign resident the work in hand may become, he cannot beg or buy his workmen to continue when once the wheat is ripe. In the hospitals all the patients want to get well by wheat pulling time. Some must stay on, but many a one incapacitated in hand or foot for real work goes home to take his or her place in "watching the gate," that all the rest of the family may go to the field and threshing floor.

The Irish of the Balkans.

The Servians are the Irish of southeastern Europe, with all the virtues and some of the weaknesses of the Irish people. They are especially gifted of their national poetry, which they possess as no other nation possesses in modern times, for they still have their national bards—men who live by making national song, not highly cultured poets, but men in the street. They do not go to a newspaper to report what they hear, but to the next inn or coffee house, and there take up their instruments to recite what they have to say. Virtually our bards are ancient reporters. The old ones sing. Those of the present day stenograph. The Servian language is the richest and most musical of the Slav dialects. The Russian language has that reputation, but it is not so musical and clear and rich.—Miyatovitch, Servian minister to England, in the Manchester Guardian.

Clouded Windows.

Many people have a window or a part of one which they would like barred to the too curious gaze of passers-by or, possibly, of neighbors.

This can be managed by prettily crystallizing the window glass as follows: Fill a jam pot one-third full of gum arabic and add a little hot water. Let this soak for some hours and when the gum has quite dissolved add the same quantity of epsom salts. Then stand the jam pot in a basin of hot water and stir well until the salt has quite dissolved. Apply the mixture to the glass quickly with a camel's hair brush.

The effect is like crystallized ground glass, and, while light is admitted, no one can see through it. The effect of plain ground glass is obtained by using a linen rag instead of a brush and putting the preparation on thinly.—Exchange.

Floyd Gibbons' Story.

"I met a Kansas boy," said Mr. Gibbons, "among troops fighting in the Villers Cotteret forest, July 19. He was interviewing German prisoners. To one who appeared to be a rather superior type he addressed the question in German:

"What outfit do you belong to?" The answer came proudly—and in good English:

"I am of the storm troops."

The Kansan in khaki laughed and said:

"Storm troops, hell. We come from Kansas. We're cyclones."

STORY OF A NOTED SERVICE

A UNIQUE STRETCHER-PARTY.

Capt. O'Kelly Used Home-to-Help In Humane Task.

When a soldier wins a Victoria Cross, and the account of the deed for which it was awarded is printed in the papers, there usually springs up a crop of other yarns that go the rounds of the army, which relate further adventures of the winner of the most coveted honor in the world.

The following story about Capt. Christopher Patrick O'Kelly, V.C., M.C., went the gamut of the messes in France a year ago. Whether it is true or not, Capt. O'Kelly has never said. But hundreds have sworn to its veracity in the telling of it.

At Passchendaele, on October 26, 1917, after O'Kelly had led his company of the 52nd Battalion up to the rescue of the 4th C.M.R.'s right flank, (and so won his V.C.) Lt.-Col. W. W. Foster, D.S.O., and bar, the O.C. of the 52nd made a tour of inspection of his battalion's new position. Accompanied by another company officer, Col. Foster proceeded from shell-hole to shell-hole, and advanced a considerable distance out into No Man's Land, studying the enemy's position as well as his own. Suddenly the officer with him fell, dangerously wounded from a sniper's bullet. Col. Foster signalled to his own men for assistance, and Capt. O'Kelly came forward.

Now, Col. Foster was mighty anxious that nothing should befall Capt. O'Kelly after the magnificent piece of work he had done earlier in the day. Admonishing O'Kelly to keep low and watch out for himself, Col. Foster said:

"Blank is seriously hit! Go and get a stretcher party."

"Very good, sir!" said Kelly.

And then, to Col. Foster's horror and amazement, O'Kelly rose to his full height in that battered, shattered piece of No Man's Land, and drawing his revolver, stalked straight towards the enemy.

Col. Foster, fearing that O'Kelly's head had been upset by the violence of the day's fighting, shouted a warning to him. But too late! With revolver poised in front of him, O'Kelly strode on, peering into all the shell-holes he passed.

By this time, all the troops had their eyes on him—

They saw him zigzagging among the shell-holes, peering right and left. Suddenly he halted and leaned forward.

And up out of a shell-hole rose three Germans, their hands in the air.

O'Kelly led these three back to where Col. Foster knelt beside the wounded officer, and said:—

"Here's three, sir! If you'll wait a moment, I'll get another!"

But Col. Foster, torn with anxiety over this manoeuvre, ordered O'Kelly to take cover. And the three Huns aided by the colonel, and O'Kelly succeeded in bearing the wounded officer safely to our lines.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Love's Sacrifice

By EVELYN LEE

(Copyright, Western Newspaper Union.)

The matron of the police station came to the young lawyer who had just won his first case. Allen Burdick regarded her with some surprise, but lent an indulgent ear to the appeal.

"You're not like the usual crowd of practitioners that hang around here," she said. "I know you're a gentleman, and I wish you would come and see a prisoner, a young girl they have just brought in."

A minute later the young lawyer was ushered into an apartment just off the cell room where sat a girl with wan, dejected face and fear-haunted eyes staring at vacancy, and over and anon shuddering at the riotous uproar of prisoners near by. The matron hurriedly whispered to Burdick:

"An officer brought her in an hour ago, and she has sat like that ever since. If you have a mother or sister, you will know at a glance that yonder poor frightened child is none of the class we usually harbor here. The officer said she was going about drinking dives among the slums. She is hiding something. You are a lawyer, find out what. Young lady, this is an attorney who may help you out of your trouble."

The girl turned her eyes upon Burdick, deep woe in their depths. He was infinitely interested and touched as he read in her face the innocence and inexperience of a novice in the sordid ways of the underworld. He outlined her need of advice and guidance as a prisoner of the law. He asked her name. She made a hysterical motion with her hands and uttered the words:

"No, no—I dare not tell! No one must know. Oh! let me leave this dreadful place!"

"They will, if you will explain how you came here," said Burdick. "The kind matron and myself know that there must be some mistake in your arrest. Why were you wandering about places unsafe for anybody?"

The girl broke down at the earnest, sympathetic appeal. "If I only dared trust you! Oh, surely you will not make public what I may tell you?"

"I seek only to secure your release," declared Burdick, "but I must know the facts," and then low and flutteringly Eleanor Wade told her story. Its truth he realized. The matron nodded ing the places to which he had traced her brother.

"I visited them all," Eleanor narrated. "They were mostly poor hotels and lodging houses and the proprietors, upon examining their registers, found the name of my brother. Beyond that I could discover nothing. Oh! I try and learn his fate."

Burdick had secured from the fair young girl a photograph of her lost brother and his signature from an old letter. Then he took up the vague trail she herself had previously followed. A week later he reappeared. One arm was in a sling and he wore a bandage about his head.

"I have found your brother," he announced at once, and gave her time to cry out her gratitude at the joyful news. "I had a hard fight in reaching him," and he casually indicated his injured arm, "but he is safe now."

"Oh! I can forgive him his sad mistakes—only to be at his side and sustain and care for him!"

"Your brother made none such," said Burdick. "It is all a plot of Wallace Blair, who has had him drugged and ridden by his criminal aids. My first discovery was that the registration at the lodging house was not in his hand writing. The photograph was recognized by a man who had met him and had an inkling of the plot. Wallace Blair will go to prison, but your brother shall come into his own."

"And you risked your life for his sake, for mine?" sobbed Eleanor, and her humid, soulful eyes told Allen Burdick that the yearning love in his heart had met with a mutual response.

Hamilton, and now they opened up a marvelous field in the imaginations of the men. The parcels awakened the idea of romance, and M. Balbaud added that in thinking of and admiring the women of Canada the poilus had grown to love them, and when sorely wounded or dying the pretty little face of their imagination was often the greatest consolation to those who suffered as martyrs.

"You have given them something to think of, to admire, and love," he repeated.

"Standard Time."

There has been a great deal of disputing in Canada as to which time is "standard time." The champions of the old time called it "standard time" until their claim was at last contested by the people who favored daylight saving. After considerable controversy regarding the term, the people of London, Ont., secured a final verdict by making a direct enquiry to the Greenwich (England) Observatory, which sets the time for the world. It was learned that "daylight saving" is standard time. Greenwich Observatory is operating on daylight-saving time in concord with the British law, which advanced the clocks an hour during the summer months. As a result daylight-saving advocates contend that they are in a position to fight the matter out in the courts. The law prescribes that "standard time" is five hours in advance of the time of Greenwich Observatory. Thus daylight-saving supporters contend that when England adopted the change the whole of the Province of Ontario was automatically forced to follow suit.

Journalists Honored.

A special service was held in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, England, recently, in memory of the journalists, printers and others connected with newspapers and periodicals who have fallen in the war. A roll of honor for the profession was then prepared.

her perfect confidence in her forlorn charge.

"Miss Wade," he said in parting, "I earnestly request that you will remain in your quarters here until I report to you my investigation in your behalf."

"Oh, I shall do just as you direct," declared Eleanor Wade fervently. "Surely heaven has sent me friends in my dark hour of need!"

It was to seek for her brother, lost to her for a year, that she had come to the city. It was in the hopes of finding him that she had visited the slums. Norman Wade had left home to start in business life. A few hopeful, chatty letters Eleanor received from him, then they ceased abruptly. She and Norman lived with Wallace Blair, a distant relative, who was trustee of an estate Norman was to inherit upon attaining his majority. In case he died the fortune was to go to Blair.

It was the latter who, at the request of Eleanor, started out to probe the mysterious silence of her brother. He visited the city to return with the information that he had traced the absent one along a rapid downward course of sin and crime. Eleanor was heartbroken.

A month later Blair informed her that a detective he had employed had ended his investigations at a building destroyed by fire, where half a score of men had been incinerated. Eleanor was loth to believe her brother dead. Somehow she became distrustful of Blair. He had given her report of an alleged detective, circumstantially not-

French Love Canada.

"It is not true that the credit for work done for France in Canada went to America," said M. Balbaud, who has come to Canada after four and a half years' service in France, two years attached to the French army and 26 months to the British army. M. Balbaud has been authorized to convey the thanks of the French Government to the Canadian people for all the work they have done for France. It was perhaps true during the first year of the war that the names of Canadian towns conveyed little to the average French poilu, whose geography is not very advanced, and Canada at that early stage was a part of America to them. But very soon they grew to understand the difference and the Maple Leaf became a great name in France. They know where the gifts came from, said M. Balbaud. He explained just what the parcels had meant to the gallant French soldiers, fighting with despair in their hearts, not knowing where their friends and relations might be, or whether they were alive or dead. He pictured the joy of opening the parcels, of the comfort the socks gave. He told of the wonder over the names on the cards of cities like Toronto, Ottawa,

FIGURES LONG IN HISTORY

Stirling Castle Inseparably Connected With All That the Scottish Heart Holds Dear.

Recently the English government sent some German prisoners of war to Stirling castle. The ancient fortress is again a prison; again the "eye of the north" keeps watch over the nation's safety. Stirling is only a few hours' ride from Glasgow, but it is a journey from the nineteenth century to the middle ages. The castle, on the right bank of the Forth, is built on the highest tip of a promontory, close to the edge of the crag. Its position is almost impregnable.

On the north and south a rolling plain stretches away to the foot of the Ochil hills, below, the Forth winds silver across the plain. On the east and west the water protects the fortress. The key to the highlands, the bulwark of the north, Stirling was for centuries Scotland's main defense against the invading English.

Much history has been made on the plain at the castle's foot. The German prisoners from the ramparts can view the scene of seven important battles. On the northwest on the top of a high hill stands a statue to William Wallace. At the foot of the hill was fought the battle of Stirling. Just inside the curve of the Forth is the field of Cambuskenneth, where in 843 the Scots defeated the Picts. Falkirk, where Wallace was defeated, lies to the south. Closer inland is Bannockburn, the holy ground of Scotland, lies to the south. From the castle you can see the center of the field, the Borestone, marked by a tall white flagpole.

Mary of Scots was crowned in the castle hall. Her son, afterwards James the Sixth, passed his baby days here. The iron bars at the windows of some of the rooms were placed there to protect the tiny prince from kidnapers. Years afterwards he was crowned as king in the same walls. John Knox preached the coronation sermon.

Somebody Must Have Told Him.

Jay McCord of exemption board No. 8 finds the young negroes of the district an inexhaustible source of delight. "They refer," he says, "quite rightly to their 'consecration papers.' One of them, whose patriotism was of the right kind, returned his questionnaire the other day. 'Well, George, do you waive exemption?' I asked him. 'Oh, yassah, boss, yassah. Ah'll wave anything. Jes' give me a flag—a United States flag, if you' got one—an' Ah'll show you whether Ah kin wave it.'"

Another, says Mr. McCord, wrote in his questionnaire that his allowance to his wife was $100 a month.

"That's fair enough," I said. "Let's see—how much do you make?"

"Ten dollahs a week, boss. Ah's a porter."

"Ten dollars a week, eh? Then you shoot craps."

The darkey's eyes bulged with surprise. "Huccum yo' know dat, boss," he gasped; "who done tol' you' Ah shoot craps?"—Chicago Tribune.

All France at War.

"If you want to see a whole nation in arms, go to France," says a hearty, good-looking United States soldier boy just back from the war front, and now in a hospital. "It's not just in the cities. It's in the little country towns. I've seen old women at work in the fields, women so feeble that they had to walk with a cane when they weren't working. I've seen an' old French mother wheeling fertilizer up to the top of the hill. She had to do the work because her men folks were in the trenches. After every trip up hill she came tottering down, and you might have thought she couldn't wheel another load. She did, though. I tell you, the spirit of those French people is the wonder of this war."

Where He Stopped.

"Mr. Bliggins speaks four or five languages," remarked Miss Cayenne.

"Valuable accomplishment."

"It would be if he could think up something worth saying in any one of them."

Advice for Would-Be Flyers.

The secret of the whole game of learning to fly is, I believe, never to get excited. I have seen beginner after beginner smash when he was first sent up to fly. They run along the ground, pull back the stick, as told, and a moment later are so astonished to find themselves 20 or 30 feet off the ground that they can think of nothing but shutting off the throttle. Many crash down tail first, with controls in climbing position to the last. If they would simply think—

"Ha, old boy, you're in the air at last—some thrill, but the main thing now is to stay here a bit and then ease down without a crash. Ease the stick forward—now we have stopped climbing. Feel that puff—she's tipping, but a little stick or rudder will stop that. Now pique her down, and reduce the gas a notch or two. Here comes the ground—straighten her out; too much, she's climbing again; there, cut the gas—a little more—there—not a bad landing for the first try."—C. B. Nordhoff in the Atlantic.

Food Waster Rebuked.

The man who went into a Dallas (Texas) hotel dining room and complained because sugar was rationed probably believes now that it would have been more sensible for him to eat what was set before him and say nothing. When he was told sugar was scarce the man broke up two rolls into bits and threw them on the floor. Inside of an hour a committee waited upon him and he was told to buy a Red Cross button, apologize to the waitress for rudeness and write a letter daily to the Dallas council of defense as long as he remained in Texas, so that his movements could be followed. The man showed that he was sorry for his display of temper and it is not believed he will waste food any more.

Weigh the Babies.

If you have babies to weigh prepare to weigh them now. This is the babies' year. It began April 6, the first anniversary of our entrance into the war. The first step is to weigh all the children under five years of age. The idea is to begin with the children, to build up the nation of tomorrow.

Many of the physical defects which caused the rejection of applicants for enlistment in the army and navy are believed to have had their beginning in infancy and the committee believes a higher standard of physical efficiency in the rising generation will result from these tests. Height, weight and reach are considered a rough index of a child's health.

While a man is sure that a woman will make a good wife, he is very sure that she could not select a better man for a husband.

Their Allowance.

To give soldiers returning from France an opportunity to bring souvenirs, permission was given to every man to carry home with him 75 pounds of baggage, but the authorities forgot to make any regulation against pooling baggage allotments. One day at Nice the men unloading soldiers' baggage for shipment came across a German airplane, carefully packed to fit a French box car. "What is this?" politely inquired the officer in charge. A corporal stepped forward. "That's my squad's allowance for baggage," he said. "It weighs just 575 pounds, and you be careful of those wings." But it didn't get by, and a new regulation was made forbidding the pooling of baggage allowances. "So," says William Allen White, "the Kaiser's palace and the Cologne Cathedral are safe."

Smoking a Cause of Cancer.

Cancer of the mouth in civilized countries has been greatly reduced by good dentistry. Eighty-five per cent. of the cancers of the lip occur in smokers. Formerly clay pipes, which become very hot, were much used, and there has been a notable reduction in the number of cancers of the lip since the clay pipe has gone out of fashion. Smoking, however, is the cause of most cancer of the lip, the tongue and the floor of the mouth.

Unpleasant.

"The man who tells us of our faults is our best friend," quoth the philosopher.

"Yes, but he won't be long," added the mere man.—Judge.

Perhaps It Is.

"If you want a thing well done"—
"Get an expert to do it for you
Ain't that more sense than what you were going to say?"

The Black Bear.

It is the common idea that a black bear will hug people to death. This is, of course, a mistake. A bear almost invariably makes its attack by striking a stunning blow with the fore paw and tearing with his very formidable claws. A large black bear can strike a terrific blow and is capable of knocking down and mortally wounding a full grown caribou. When their enemy or prey is felled to the ground they usually bite them about the head and neck until death ensues. They are remarkable for the strength of their jaws and have been known to bite through the skull of a man. Many animals that can generally be counted on not to attack may do so when come upon suddenly, crowded, wounded or annoyed. The black bear is no exception. The more I see and study animals the more I am impressed with the fact that there is no fixed rule what the same species of animal will do under similar circumstances, as they seem to vary as much in mind and temperament as the individual. Although one might predict with a very good average of correctness, there would always be the exception.—"Big Game Fields of America."

On Having the Blues.

If without any real cause of worry, says a writer in the Unpopular Review, you wake up two or three consecutive mornings feeling that the world is an unsatisfactory place probably you had better go to the doctor. He won't be apt to give you anything worse than rhubarb and soda. You might even try it before going, and if it is a sunny day try to glory in it, out of doors if possible, and if it is a rainy day try to thing how cozy it will be by the fire, or if you have to go to an office how good it will be to have a day for steady work, when clients and customers are not apt to come in.

In similar vein Kipling prescribed for a case of the blues, which he referred to as a "camel-elbow hump," you remember, common to "kiddies and growups too." When the hump rests heavily upon you, said Mr. Kipling—
Don't frown with a scowl by the fire,
But take a large hoe and a shovel also
And dig till you gently perspire.

FLEA FOR ENGLISH BRIDES.

Views Expressed by Alberta's Woman Member of Parliament.

Out of her recent experience as a member of a party of English women coming to Canada to make their homes, and her intimate knowledge of the type of young women who have married some of our soldier boys and are eager to take their place among the people of Canada, Miss Roberta MacAdams, M.P.P., spoke to the members of the Calgary Women's Canadian Club at a reception recently held in her honor, and urged them to accord these sisters from overseas the hearty welcome of which they were worthy.

Handicapped by lack of knowledge of both country and customs, they would need guidance and the hand of good-fellowship extended to them to help them through that trying period of readjustment which held many heart-burnings for the young women who had come out from their home lands to the country of their husband's people longing for and expecting love and sympathy. The saddest of these cases and those which needed first consideration were those of the young wives who were obliged to precede their soldier husbands, and were indeed strangers in a strange land.

Miss MacAdams told interestingly of the plans that had been made for the instruction of the English girl wives in the ways of the country and people they were going to, and that some sort of extension work had been attempted in the nature of shipboard education, but as many of the recent trips had been very stormy ones this had not always been successfully carried out.

In the course of her address, the speaker touched on the emigration of English women to Canada as agricultural workers and houle-helpers, and voiced the opinion expressed at another meeting being held in the "Y" at the same time, that unless the women of Canada could bring about some definite concrete solution to the domestic help question, and systematize and organize the service, the dearth of housekeepers would be as great as that of trained nurses, and the country would suffer.

At the present time the embargo on women workers leaving England was still on, but as soon as their position here was assured the speaker felt confident this would be lifted. It was a woman's job to work out this problem, and the sooner the women took it in hand the sooner normal home life could be resumed.

The speaker said she felt she could not close without paying a tribute to all those splendid women and organizations which meet the weary travellers from overseas at the eastern ports on their arrival and make them comfortable after their storm-tossed journey. Nothing in the way of accommodation seems to have been forgotten and a real welcome is always waiting the soldiers' wives and dependents on this side.

Carpets.

Carpets are garments worn by floors. The immodesty of nude floors is seldom tolerated anywhere except in ballrooms, where they pass unnoticed in the general heterogeneity of nakedness. When a carpet gets into society it is called a rug. If it is an expensive rug it is called Oriental. Oriental rugs are made in this country, in advertisements and in hosts' stories. Rugs, like other sartorial members of society, do not entirely cover the wearer. The rug is cut decollete, so that it shows part of the floor. Many floors are very daring in this respect and would be proper objectives for purity crusades. Probably reformers have overlooked this field, because the floors which offend the most are those which are the most highly polished. Old-fashioned carpets completely cover prudish floors. Floors which have no particular charms to display generally wear the old-fashioned garb. Tacks are used instead of safety-pins in dressing floors. Carpets are laid with tacks and profanity. When father puts down a carpet he wears out his knees, his patience and his vocabulary. Rugs are put down with a roll. The heavier and richer they are the larger the roll must be.—Stuart W. Knight, in Judge.

The Vatican.

The vatican palace at Rome is the largest building in the world, covering thirteen and one-half acres, but with its additions and enlargements it was several centuries in building. The most extensive building in the world constructed at one time is the Pennsylvania station in New York city, which occupies eight acres of ground and has exterior walls measuring about one-half a mile. The capitol at Washington covers 153,112 square feet, or nearly four acres.

Toes as Fingers and Thumbs.

Some marvellous cases of the surgical art are described in the Medical Supplement, compiled by the Research Committee and issued by the War Office.

In one case a soldier had his thumb shot away, and as the hand would be almost useless without it the surgeon substituted the man's own big toe for the lost thumb. In another similar case the thumb was replaced by the second toe. The patients obtained in this way movable thumbs that in every respect were practically useful and natural in appearance, especially in the case of the great toe, since this was exceptionally small and dextrous.

Even more wonderful was the replacement of four lost fingers by four toes. The toes were partly cut through and the stump of the hand being attached the periosteum (the fibrous tissue that covers the bones of the toes) was sewn to that of the finger stumps. The tendons, soft parts and skin were also sewn together, and then the hand and foot were fixed in plaster of Paris. For a months the patient lay in a very uncomfortable position.

At the end of that time the toes were completely separate from the foot, and soon after the patient had a useful hand. At the same time he could walk almost as well as ever "with a strong and freely movable great toe."—London Mail.

A Third Term.

There is nothing in the constitution of the United States to prevent a President serving three terms, or more, if the voters elect him. The constitution provides that: "The executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the Vice-President, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows—" The unwritten law of two terms only for a President seems to have grown out of the fact that Washington refused a third term, although urged to accept. There was an attempt to nominate Grant for a third term, but it failed.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a Glass of Salts Before Breakfast If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Emperor Karl.

The impression which the Austrian emperor has made on his subjects, since his accession, is showing itself in the nickname which he bears in Vienna—Karl der Ploetzliche—which may be translated Charles the Man of Impulse, because of the emperor's brusque decisions. The Czech nickname is: "Karel Novak spravce konkursni podstaty firmy Austria." which appears in English as "Charles Jones, official receiver of the liquidation of the house of Austria."

The Bride's Introduction.

They had been married only two weeks and were going to spend the evening with friends. They were to meet friends of their friends there. It was expected that there would necessarily be a show of dignity when the bridegroom and the bride arrived. All of the company were there and sitting around looking their sweetest when the bridegroom and the bride arrived. A bride always makes dignity essential.

It happened that the bridegroom was the particular friend of the host. The latter had never met the bride. She was coming into an entirely new circle. It was expected when the Newlyweds arrived that Mr. Newlywed would stammer and blush when he introduced Mrs. Newlywed as his wife. Not so for this boy. He sauntered in preceded by the dignified bride. Everybody in the parlor bristled up. But it wasn't to be a bristling affair at all. Mr. Newlywed simply swept around, caught the host by the arm and led him before the bride.

"Dave, meet the old lady," he said.

Dignity exit. Everybody laughed and got acquainted in a hurry. The good natured introduction of the host to the bride loosened up the stringers of social stress. The "old lady" found herself among friends.—Indianapolis News.

Noah Has His Own Troubles.

March 17 was celebrated in the middle ages as the day on which Noah entered the ark. Noah's wife was always the typical shrew of the period. In the Chester cycle when Noah tells her of the coming flood she sneers at him for his credulity and abuses him for always bringing bad news. "Seldom hold her tongue," her abuse only becomes more stinging. Noah strikes her, she hits back, and a good set-to ensues till the man retires to make the ark. When it is finished she refuses to enter. "Wife, come in," says Noah. "Why standest thou there?" Finally her sons bring her in by force and Noah welcomes her. "Welcome wife, unto this bote," and for his welcome he gets a whacking which makes him exclaim:

Lorde that women be crabbed ayel
And non wyfe wolde, I dare well saye.

Our National Pastime.

"Do you stand up in the seventh inning?"

"Yes," replied the excitable fan, "and hereafter I'm going stand up in every other inning. You can take better aim at the umpire when you stand up."—Washington Star.

What He Wanted.

Arthur H. Engelbach, in his collection of anecdotes of the bench tells this story about Lord Braxfield, who was among the last of the Scotch judges who rigidly adhered to the broad Scotch dialect.

"Ha'e ye ony counsel, man?" he said to Maurice Margot when placed at the bar.

"No," was the reply.

"Do ye want to ha'e ony appointit?" continued the judge.

"No," said Margot. "I only want an interpreter to make me understand what your lordship says."

SITUATION IN WINNIPEG

EIGHT THOUSAND MEN AND WOMEN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT—SYMPATHETIC ELECTIONS.

FEWER DEATHS

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 4. — The number of Winnipeg postal strikers permanently discharged for failing to obey the government's ultimatum to return to work is 400, it was announced at the post office. A few have moved to the United States, some have found other employment, but most of them are still seeking jobs.

Approximately 8,000 men and women in Greater Winnipeg are unemployed, according to estimates made to-day by labour officials and employers. Large groups of idle persons congregate at the Labour Temple, at employment offices and in the parks.

Committee of one thousand, decried by labour as being formed of profiteers directly responsible for the high cost of living, in a meeting Thursday, passed a resolution demanding that an investigation and legislation should be instituted immediately to punish profiteers and check the high cost of living.

Fewer deaths were recorded in Winnipeg during June than in any other month since last October, according to vital statistics, it was announced at the City Hall. This was the hottest June in years and no public scavenging was done owing to the strike.

Leaders of the recent strike have now definitely launched their campaign for "sympathetic elections" to achieve the objects which they failed of in the recent strike.

The executive of the Labour party has completed an elaborate plan of campaign for securing control of the city government by electing a labour majority in the City Council.

The campaign took concrete shape at a meeting of the Labour Party executive held in the Labour Temple this week, when a resolution was passed for providing for the commencement of a continuous campaign with the object: Firstly, of electing a labour majority to the City Council, secondly of securing a large representation in the Provincial House, and thirdly to elect working class representatives to the Dominion Parliament.

ACCIDENT ON THE MERRY-GO-ROUND

LITTLE GIRL FELL OFF AND BROKE HER LEG.

Lillian Farthing, 14 years of age, who resides at 62 Lansdowne street, had the misfortune to break one of her legs at the Exhibition grounds last evening at 9.20 o'clock. She was on the merry-go-round and attempted to wave her hand to some other girls passng by but she lost her balance and fell off the machine onto the ground breaking her leg. Although the injury must have been painful she made no outcry but although a number of boys were standing near by, she waited until the merry-go-round had stopped before calling for assistance. She was then taken to Nicholl's Hospital and an examination disclosed the fracture.

The manager of the merry-go-round displayed much sympathy for the unfortunate girl, although in no found dead in his hay field, with his asked for her address. Her mother who is a widow was presented with $25.00 by the manager and the best doll he could buy on the grounds for her daughter.

MEMBER ASKS WHY ALBERTA GRAIN MAN WAS NOT QUESTIONED MORE

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, July 4.—Investigations by the Cost of Living committee of the Commons are over for this session The committee is now deliberating upon a report which it is purposed to submit to the House. Tanners were to have been here yesterday afternoon, but they were unable to be present, and as there was doubt as to whether they could appear before prorogation, it was decided to go no farther in the matter.

Why Not Get Information?

John F. Reid of Mackenzie, who was not present when the Managing Director of the Alberta Pacific Grain Company was examined, said he saw by the press that Mr. MacFarlane had been asked to state how and amongst whom the 5 per cent. commission on the net profits of the concern was divided, but the committee did not press the matter to a conclusion. He asked why, if the report was correct, this was not done.

G. B. Nicholson, the chairman, said he was not present.

F. L. Davis, of Neepawa, stated that he had come in late, but while he was present it was discovered that the Managing Director got $5,000 and a 5 per cent. commission, which amounted to $105,000. He received about half of this, and split the balance with others. The company started about six years ago with a capital of $2,500,000; the assets were now $7,000,000. Besides paying dividends on the preference stock they had paid 99 per cent. on the common stock, so that in six years there had been an increase of 340 per cent. in the value of the capital investment and the amount of the dividends.

Points Out the Evil.

Mr. Reid said it was important to know the names of the four men who received a part of the 5 per cent. commission. It looked dangerous to him that these men were given part of the abnormal profits. The evil of this system was that other grain companies paid straight salaries, while this company paid a salary and a percentage of the profits. These superintendents, who were supposed to have got part of the profits, controlled the business, but the manager did not control.

H. C. Hocken remarked that the whole agitation seemed to him to discount the man who had ability and efficiency. That did not appeal to him at all.

The chairman meanwhile looked over the official stenographic report of Tuesday's proceedings, but he did not find that Mr. MacFarlane had named the individuals who got part of the commission or the amount they were paid.

COMMENT ON SPEECH

(Special to Examiner.)

LONDON, July 4. — With one or two exceptions, the morning newspapers express satisfaction with Premier Lloyd George's speech in the House yesterday.

There is a general agreement that he gave a good answer to those who are clamoring for more drastic terms, as well as to those objecting to the oppressive features of the peace treaty.

The Laborite Herald alone sweepingly condemns the speech, asserting it to be unsatisfactory to labor and Liberal members of the house.

The Liberal Daily News says the validity of many of the premier's arguments are incontestable and warmly praises his declaration of faith in the League of Nations. Only a few comment on the announcement of the trial in London of the former German Emperor, saying that the allies are honoring England's reputation for fair play, which must be lived up to.

PROGRESS OF DIRIGIBLE

HAILEYBURY IN LINE OF BUSH FIRE

BRIGADE CALLED OUT AND HOSE PLACED READY FOR USE.

Canadian Press:

HAILEYBURY, July 4.—The unchecked advance of the Sharp Lake bush fire toward the western outskirts of Haileybury resulted in the volunteer firemen being summoned for duty at the head of Browning Street yesterday afternoon. The men have hose lines laid, and the fire engine has steam up for emergencies. Indications last night were that the fire would pass the town unless the wind, which has risen in strength since yesterday morning, veers to the west.

The Olsen and Neilson properties are reported to have been destroyed, and Westron's place was so seriously threatened that a call for help was sent into town by the owner yesterday.

Latest reports from Boston Creek declare the danger past.

IROQUOIS FALLS THREATENED.

The paper town of Iroquois Falls is threatened with a huge fire in the immediate vicinity.

Fire insurance offices are literally flooded with applications for additional insurance.

In the Porcupine district there had been no damage done up until noon, although fierce fires are raging to the west. The number of buildings destroyed in the [illegible] district have been [illegible] no loss of life reported.

SMOKE HOLDS UP STEAMERS.

SAULT STE. MARIE, July 4.—Smoke from forest fires held the first up from midnight until daylight at the Soo, and after a start was made boats moved very slowly, as it was pretty thick.

HOT TIME TO-NIGHT FOR BOARD OF WORKS

MID-SUMMER WEATHER FOR DISCUSSION OF BRIDGE TENDER.

As a penalty of delay the Board of Works will swelter to-night at a meeting called to receive the tender of the Leonard Construction Company for the Hunter street bridge. When winter was passing, the bridge was promised as a Spring and summer work to give employment to returning men and the unemployed at home. It was expected that by July the bridge would be assuming form, with perhaps the frame work of the long span in position, but the only long span in position, but the only Council's efforts to reach unanimity on a tenderer. After several weeks' holiday they make a fresh start, but to the man on the street the performance has become flat and stale.

CHARMING LOUISE HUFF STARRED IN "THE LITTLE INTRUDER"

New World Picture Portrays Her in A Particularly Attractive and Likeable Style

Charming Louise Huff, who has been seen in a number of World Pictures with great success is starred in the New World Picture, "The Little Intruder", which will be shown at the Grand Theatre to-day and Saturday.

The role is one of the most likeable and attractive parts in which she has been seen. She appears as a young girl who is apparently in fear of the police. She is saved from arrest by George Coutlin, who is jealous of his young wife, Virginia, who is conducting something of a flirtation with a young man. The Little Intruder is hired by Coutlin to keep an eye on Virginia. The Little Intruder does this with great success, and in doing it she meets and falls in love with Billy Kent, a dandy young chap.

A great many surprising and entertaining things happen as the result of this arrangement and all that happens goes to make a mighty interesting and unusual sort of a picture.

BLIND MAN SECURES A RINGSIDE SEAT—BIG FIGHT WILL NOT START UNTIL LATE.

(Special to Examiner.)

TOLEDO, July 4. — (Ringside.) — At 12.45 p.m., the thermometer at the ringside showed 112 degrees. The breeze continued but confined its efforts to the fluttering flags. It did not dip into the bowl of the amphitheatre. A small blaze was started at the ringside by a cigarette stump. It was extinguished with a pail of drinking water which happened to be at hand.

A member of the big party from Ontario was reported to be the last word in fight enthusiasts. This man was totally blind, but paid $60 dollars for a seat under 112 degrees in the sun for a show which he could only imagine from what his friends told him and from memories of fights of earlier days before he was imprisoned in darkness.

It was so hot inside the arena that the brass band had to give up the attempt to play as they could not hold the instruments in their hands.

The crowds began to gather in the great arena early this afternoon to witness the fight for the championship of the world. Comparatively little interest appeared to be taken in the several preliminary bouts which were staged this morning.

At noon the crowd was rapidly gathering, the arena being about one-third filled. Among thousands of coatless and collarless spectators was a good sprinkling of women.

The fights starts at 4.30 Peterboro time.

PEACE CELEBRATION.

The dates of the official service of [illegible] for peace and of the [illegible] celebration of the signing of [illegible] treaty throughout the Empire, [illegible] been made public through des[illegible] from the Colonial Secretary, [illegible] have been concurred in by the [illegible] Government.

[illegible] next, July 6th, has been set [illegible] by His Majesty King George, [illegible] a day of general thanksgiving [illegible] the blesing of peace." It is the [illegible] of His Majesty' that the day [illegible] be observed not only in the [illegible] Kingdom, but in all quarters [illegible] Empire, so that it is expected [illegible] in Peterborough the wish of [illegible] Majesty will be carried out. In [illegible] connection it is to be hoped that [illegible] citizens will more generally take [illegible] to the ceremonies of the day [illegible] was the case in the celebration [illegible] peace that has already taken [illegible] here. It must be admitted that [illegible] demonstration a few days ago [illegible] was a half-hearted affair in which [illegible] people as a whole showed less [illegible] interest than they have been known [illegible] to show on the return of a victorious [illegible] hockey team. Whether it was [illegible] that the enthusiasm had been burned [illegible] out by the spontaneous rejoicing on [illegible] Armistice Day, or that the people [illegible] were not so confident that Germany [illegible] would sign, that the news of the end [illegible] of the conflict occasioned no surprise, [illegible] it is certain that there were few [illegible] signs of a general tendency to rejoice. [illegible] Sunday's services of thanksgiving [illegible] will be enthusiastically attended, [illegible] and the peace celebration that is to [illegible] be arranged for Saturday, July 19th, [illegible] which is to be a general holiday [illegible] throughout the Empire, should be [illegible] one that will be worthy of the occa[illegible]

THE PROPER ACTION.

[illegible] has again chosen to [illegible] of the elected represen[illegible] people of Canada. The [illegible] the second time of the [illegible] proposed to make Canada [illegible] for a year following the [illegible] of peace, shows that the [illegible] of the Upper House [illegible] their decision to thwart [illegible] of Canadians in their [illegible] through the troubled days [illegible] construction era at least the [illegible] of the liquor traffic [illegible] to a minimum. A [illegible] feature of the vote is [illegible] the bill was introduced [illegible] Government leader in the [illegible] James Lougheed, it was [illegible] largely through the votes of [illegible] who are supporters [illegible] Government. There is a feel[illegible] in Canada that mem[illegible] of Commons who voted in favour of prohibition in the Lower House, are quietly rejoicing that the measure has been defeated by the Senate. Indeed, it is openly charged that some of the Commoners who were afraid to vote against the Bill themselves, because they feared the verdict of their constituents, urged the Senators to kill the measure. This is a serious accusation, and if there is any truth in these assertions, the Senators who know the facts would be doing a public service by seeing that the people of Canada learn the names of the men who have betrayed their trust.

LABOR VERSUS HYSTERICS

Toronto Labor Leader:—At Atlantic City the American Federation of Labor has, with no uncertain voice, declared itself in favor of the craft union as against the Bolshevik—I. W. W. One-Big-Union. The project to have all contracts so co-related that the total arrest of all industry might be instantly accomplished was frowned upon. The convention also bumped the proposal that workers should elect their own foremen. The sane and safe forces in trades unionism showed in the Federation a majority of practically six to one against those who are so violently seeking to hoist aloft the red flag of Bolshevism. These are cheering words for those who seek to gain a living life from their work rather than merely to battle with their foes, real or imagined, upon any pretext whatever. President Gompers is today, as he has always been, the leader of firmness in the rights of labor as against hysterics, and President Gompers is a safe leader to follow.

A FLAG-WAVING BALL PLAYER

If one could conceive of baseball players being used as German propagandists to create dissension between the United States and Canada, there was an incident at Tecumseh Park Monday afternoon that would have strengthened such a theory.

A player on the Bay City team bearing the highly-significant name of Friedmann had been indulging in a cross-fire with some of the spectators, including a number of returned soldiers. These men had not made "who won the war" an issue, but the ball player as he walked toward the stand suddenly pulled an American flag from his pocket and held it up in the faces of the fans. "If it hadn't been for that flag you'd have been over there yet," he said. He followed this up with other remarks and an international argument commenced at once. Several of the soldiers questioned his right to talk about service, and offered to show him some real scars of the war. But he continued to throw his insults at Canadians and Canadian soldiers. It was surprising that a number of his teammates joined in the slur-casting contest and that they were permitted to continue. It was fortunate at the same time that the crowd did not develop any rage over the exhibition of poor sportmanship. One look at the score card to ascertain the name of the player seemed to make it clear why this flag-waver was at work.

Another phase of the matter was when a young American, who fought with the Canadians came down from the upper seats to express his opinion of an American who could be guilty of using American flag for such cheap an exhibition. He had seen actove service in France, and he strongly objected to the false impression of Americans created by a single act in such poor taste. As might have been expected he was wasting his words.

What should have been done to this player was to have him removed from the grounds and the American consular representative should have laid the charge to demonstrate that those who resented most of all the display of the poorest kind of patriotism were the American people themselves, who could well pray to be saved from such "friends" as Mr. Friedmann.

It is well that the crowd did not become resentful. It is never a pretty exhibition to see one man or a dozen men "mobbed" by a large number of men. But it is doubtful if a Canadian who had been guilty of a similar act in an American baseball park would have been so fortunate as to escape with a whole hide, and there are few Canadians worthy of the name who would have said he did not receive his deserts.

But surely a baseball club which plays in a league that must exist on the good feeling between the two countries should rid itself of a player who is so unworthy of the flag and the country he pretended to represent. Such conduct should call for action from the head of the league, and the player, who is said to have been guilty of the offence in another Canadian City, should be dismissed from the ranks of organized baseball. He is a dangerous element to the welfare of the league, and to the friendly relations of the two countries. — London Advertiser.

SERVICE AT THE DUFFUS GARAGE

TOURISTS AND LOCAL AUTOMOBILE OWNERS FIND IT MOST CONVENIENT FOR THEIR AUTOMOBILE WANTS.

Already the new Duffus Garage has well sustained its existence. A very large number of tourists avail themselves of the unsurpassed storage and service of this, one of Canada's most up-to-date and modern Service Stations. They assert that it is a great credit to Peterboro, as well as its owner.

Old and new owners of Ford, Gray-Dort and Dodge Brothers' cars are delighted with the accommodation afforded them. The building is roomy, exceptionally well lighted and absolutely fire proof, which all car owners highly appreciate.

Dealing in accessories, repair parts and supplies, both wholesale and retail, and carrying at all times at least $15,000 worth of stock, has proved a great attraction, so much so that four clerks are employed to give the necessary service to customers who have learned by experience that they can obtain anything they require at the Duffus Garage.

The big five-gallon gasoline pumps and no waiting, free air on both floors, and also on the street, and two excellent washing stations, are among the many popular features, and speaking generally everybody is delighted.

Mr. Duffus states that the new building and plant is no longer a novelty. "We are here for business and to serve to the best of our ability our many excellent and appreciated customers." ldlw

HOW JONES SPENT THE TWO-DAY HOLIDAY IN PETERBORO

(BY F. H. DOBBIN)

(By F. H. Dobbin.)

With the plethora of holidays just at this immediate time the city found itself in the way of being all dressed up and nowhere to go. Except for the third day of the series. And to get away and go at this time brings in certain conditions that have not existed in the good old days of locking up and and making on's hike. See the possible involvements of the last few days.

Consider, if you will, the case of Jones.

Jones lives over on Hatcher street, where the neighborhood is not so select but just select enough. Nice little street, plotted in between Townsend and Cedar. Jones lived about the middle of the block. Neat brick houses on each side of his own neat brick. Other decent dwellings backing up against his property but facing on the next thoroughfare. Taking it all in all, Jones has five excellent neighbours, one on each side and three behind. This places Jones in a class by himself. The neighbours know it. Jones preaches the doctrine of helpfulness. Not only preaches but practices. Hardly believable, but he actually does. That's where Jones derives his class. Now, just look how this affluence of holidays balled Jones all up, and all along of his being so good-natured.

Next Door.

The Bunsacks live next door, and when Bunsack came home on Friday and told his wife that in addition to his having Saturday afternoon off and that Sunday would follow, that Mayor Duncan had fearlessly ordered a holiday for Monday, and that Tuesday would be the First, the family sat up and took notice, and began to make plans, lots of them. "Let's take the automobile and the children and go and visit with the McGinties, out near Pontypool. They've asked us often enough. We can have a nice long visit." (The Jones' drive a Ford but call it automobile.) "Good said Bunsack," and I'll speak to Jones to look after things while we're away. It's simply great."

Do Me a Favor.

Jones was seen. "You'll do me another favor, old man," queried Bunsack. "We're going off for a good time, will make good use of the car. May be back on Monday night, but who knows. But like an old sport, just take in the milk, three pints. Stick it in the cellar way, coolest place. The bread man might leave a loaf or two in case we need. Say two loaves each day. Shops closed Tuesday, you know. And look here: when you're wetting your lawn just give ours a taste. Thanks, awfully. Knew you would. Ever so much obliged. So long, be good and you'll be lonesome.

When the Bunsacks were about seventy minutes drive from the city, Mrs. B. remarked that it was real nice to get away and know that things would be looked after by such a careful man as Jones, and added that she told him so take in two quarts of milk and put it in cold storage. "You did," said Bunsack, "why I told him to be sure and get three pints. Now he'll take in both." "Well, of all the —" and the balance of the wifely remonstrance was drowned by the hooting of the horn that Bunsack, with presence of mind turned on to brighten up the scenery. "Perhaps he'll have sense enough to scald it," was the closing observation.

A few minutes after Smithers came through a hole in the north side fence. Holes are handier than gates, and the fence belonged to Smithers, anyway. He asked for Jones. Was told to find him in the cellar, where he was located oiling the furnace smoke pipes. Using diplomacy, Smithers asked if Jones was going out of the city over the holidays. Wanted to see how the land day. On getting assurance that he was not, for Jones hadn't any place to go, without considerable expense to get there, Smithers stated his own plans, and piled on top of Jones the following:

A Good Soul.

"You're a good soul, you know, and you won't mind. Will you give the hens some feed, twice a day and see they are watered. Don't leave the gate open and be careful of the chicks. Good. If its dry you might turn the hose o nthe garden, things get wilted if it isn't done. You're a dandy at that sort of thing. And the pup; he's an amusing chap. I'll put him over in your kitchen and you'll give him some scraps until we get back. And say, if it storms just go into the house and close the upper windows and bring in the camp bed that is on the upper verandah, and close the bathroom window good and tight, sure. The front door key is under the back steps. So long, have a good restful time and call at the bookstore and get my papers and red 'em all you like."

Right back of Jones live the Scratches. Now don't say old Scratch, for the couple are young and comely. Scratch hailed Jones over the lane, about three on Saturday. "The wife and I," said he, "have an invitation to go up to Crowe's Landing to browse with some friends over the holidays. Will stay until Tuesday night, if we don't put them out too much," which was considerate, at the least. "Could you manage some things for us. Could I trouble you his onc."

Feeding he Fowl.

Jones asked what was wanted. "The lawn," said Scratch, "is a trifle long, but I can't wait to cut it. Just run the mower over it when you're at your own. The wife will bring in the parrot, he's a lively cuss, and will amuse you. Just feed him and converse with him, at intervals and he'll be al right.. Perhaps the cage wil neled cleaning out, but you can manage tha. And if the man brings a load of light wood, which he may do on Monday, show him where to heave it. See if he brings a good load. Jones saw he was in for it but had not the nerve to decline.

The Charwaters live alongside of the Scratches. There is a sort of coolness between the families, but both combine on the Jones's as around the other end of the block to find Jones and tackled him on the spot. Took it for granted that Jones would be Johnny-on-the-spot for all time and eternity, and stated his wishes before Jones could even make up such a mind as he had left to expostulate. And this was the roster of extraneous duties.

A Breathing Spell.

"I don't like to leave business when prices are likely to go up," said Charwater, "but now I've a chance on the side. With the extra holiday on Monday and with another extra half-day on Thursday I can get a breathing spell right along. But I can't let things run down too bad while I am away. The wife and kids are coming along too. I hate to impose on you but you are so helpful. Keep an eye on things for me. That batch of potatoes in the back garden are due for a dose of Paris Green about Tuesday, if not before. Slap on a little, just to give the bugs fits. The stuff is in the shed and you can use one of your own pails. Don't make it too strong. If you see signs of the blight just throw on a dash of Bordeaux mixture.

"The wife is leaving the wash out on the line. If it looks like rain hustle in the duds, will you. Leave 'em any old place. And say, if you're not too busy come along over with me and help jack up the car while I clap on a couple of tires. I hate to take chances. What's the matter, you don't look as well as usual."

Jones replied that at the moment he felt about as well as could be expected. He might have added that the crosses that some folks carry would break down a Ford truck. However, he gave a hand with the tires.

The last to arrive on his errand of mercy was Yarnels. Yarnels is a good sort and often plays a lone hand. He had in his fist and displayed the implement to Jones, a nice, new silver-plated fishing rod. Quoth Yarnels, "Peace is signed, we should celebrate. The wife and kids have gone out to Springville, to her mothers.' I shied away from the proposition. It, for that length of time, spells some work. I don't like experiments in violent agriculture. Get your rod and tackle. The boat will let us off at Bewdley, and we can have a couple of days fishing. Or we will stop at Hales,' just as you like. Hustle we've just time to catch the boat. Dearly would Jones have loved to go. But he hadn't made plans for himself and wife and kids. Only to stay at home, for there had been some extra expenses to meet. Besides he recounted his taken-on responsibilities. At the end of the narration, Yarnels exploded. Pointed out the iniquity of being too obliging. Reasoned, pleaded, expostulated and finally reviled. No use, Jones stuck to his guns. These other folks had faith in him and he'd have to toe the mark. Yarnels left him, more in sorrow than in anger, and as a parting shot warned him not to be the goat again.

So after all, are continuous holidays and holidays continued-in-the-next, a really good thing. Possibly and probably — but speak to Jones about it. He has convictions.

METRO STAR IN FIERY ROLE OF PARISIAN PLAY

"The Parisian Tigress" with Viola Dana Seen at the Grand Theatre

"The Parisian Tigress" the latest Metro play in which Viola Dana, the clever little star appears, was shown yesterday to a large and appreciative audience at the Grand theatre to-day and Saturday.

The play is a powerful romance of the Parisian underworld and Miss Dana is seen in the role of Jeanne a dancer in the cafes of the Latin Quarter, who lives in constant fear of a young Apache with whom she dances. An old roue sees her and bargains for her with Jacque. To escape this new horror she runs away, only to find herself in the clutches of a scheming artist who uses her as the means to defraud his friend.

The character of the play has a sinister touch which is cleverly lightened by delightful bits of origin a comedy and also by a beautiful romance which comes into the life of the little girl of the gutter. The many strong situations make the play one which stands out as an artistry.

RETURNED MEN AT SOUTH BEACH

A GOOD ENTERTAINMENT WAS PROVIDED BY MEMBERS OF ST. JOHN'S CEURCH.

After a long and careful preparation St John's Church yesterday gave expression to the honor in which she holds all her returned soldiers, by handsomely entertaining all who are in any way connected with the congregation, as well as a number of others, at a soldiers' supper at Brooks Hotel at South Beach.

Between 5 and 6.30 o'clock automobiles contributed by the congregation were leaving St. John's grounds, under the direction of a committee. Arriving at South Beach they were welcomed by Dr. G. S. Cameron, Warden of the church, and Mr. F. D. Kerr.

The beautiful fourteen mile drive to the beach was itself a most enjoyable feature of the occasion. Supper was served in the spacious dining room at 7.15 o'clock, the room being tyice well filled to accommodate the soldiers, who numbered well over one hundred.

After a smoke and rest on the beautiful grounds surrounding the hotel, a tug of war between the bachelor and benedict soldiers was organized by Mr. Chriz Graham, who acted as umpire. After a keen contest the benedicts were declared the winners, and awarded the prize of a box of cigars.

Variety Entertainment.

A variety entertainment was then arranged for on the verandah under the chairmanship of Mr. Charles Coleman, Mr. Nickels being the competent pianist. He maintained an almost continuous programme, leading many well known soldier choruses.

The programme included a comic song by Mr. Charles Coleman, a soldier's yarn by Mr. Wes. Edwards, who recently returned, banjo selections by Mr. Frank Clarke. This item which included many well known airs, was enthusiastically encored likewise the song which accompanied it, which Mr. Clarke also rendered. Mr. Jack Primeau gave an appropriate monologue with evident acceptance to all. He was followed by Mr. Danny Simons, the well known vaudeville artist, who kept the assemblage convulsed with laughter by his inimitable stories and step dances accompanied by Mr. Frank Clarke.

There were by arrangement no speeches the entertainment itself testifying the appreciaion and warm feeling of St. John's congregation, and those who helped to make the entertainment so emphatically a success.

One of the soldier guests made a brief speech expressing the appreciation of his comrades for the great treat afforded.

It was a matter of general regret that Mr. A. W. Turner and Mr. R. D. Hall, two of St. John's most enthusiastic workers, were prevented from attending owing to an accident on the way out.

The Committee.

Among the committee in charge of the entertainment were Messrs. R. D. Hall, A. W. Turner, F. Linton, W. E. Conway, A. G. Roberts, C. L. Brewer, A. Stevenson and R. J. Devey; the latter was unable to attend.

The party returned to the city at about 11 o'clock.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HELD A MEETING AT MOUNT JULIAN

MOUNT JULIAN, July 3. — The Women's Institute of Mount Julian met at the home of Mrs. William Church, "Cedar Brae," on Saturday afternoon. About thirty were present and the meeting was both pleasant and profitable. It was the occasion of the annual visit of the delegate from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. This year the delegate was Miss Clayton, who gave a splendid address on the vital topic of the day, viz., "Reconstruction." Miss Clayton understood her subject thoroughly, and her address was greatly enjoyed. She paid the ladies of Mt. Julian a compliment by saying that she had enjoyed that meeting more than any of the meetings she had attended.

Several splendid musical numbers were rendered, also "Fling Out the Flag," by Mrs. Victor Shewen and Misses Dolly Church and Stella Northey; "I'm Coming Home," by Mrs. Brooks and Mrs. W. Matthews; "Our Lives are What We Make Them," by Mrs. Bruce Reid, Mrs. Victor Shewen, and Miss Dolly Church.

Mrs. Graham, of Viamede, said a few words assuring the ladies of the inspiration their meetings were to her on the occasions when it was her privilege to be with them.

Afternoon tea was served at the close of the meeting.

GEORGE STREET CHOIR EXCURSION A BIG SUCCESS

(Contributed).

The annual outing of the George Street Methodist Choir took place on Tuesday, July 1st. Though the weather man had not promised what he could do, yet he proved to be a true friend of this organization, for the dey was an ideal one for a sail down the river.

At nine o'clock the boats were in readiness, and a large number had gathered with their wraps and lunch-baskets, the latter proving to be much more useful than the former, on that particular day.

When the last tardy one had finally reached the Street Railway Wharf, the party set sail down the river, their destination being Wedlock's beautiful summer home.

Upon arrival there, they were accorded a hearty welcome, and found themselves free to possess both house and grounds during their stay.

But it was dinner-time, and soon the gong sounded out in welcome tones, and the hungry singers found themselves hurriedly wending their way to the cool dining-room, where daintily-set tables, laden with good things, delighted the eyes of the fortunate ones. A meal fit for a king was partaken of by fifty-one guests, after which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Wedlock and her family for having so royally entertained the choir.

Most of the party needed a time for rest, but ere long a few of the more enthusiastic ones were enjoying a swim in the once peaceful waters. When they emerged from their plunge, some of the fair ones, whose hair fell in such perfect ringlets, presented a very picturesque appearance.

After the other friends had become accustomed to their looks, a musical programme was given, which took the remainder of the time at their disposal before starting for Wallace's Point, where the evening meal was to be served.

The return sail was enjoyable, and by the time the party arrived, and the refreshments were ready, they ate with as eager gusto as if they had fasted for at least forty-eight hours.

Then the sports, many of which had been reserved for the cooler part of the dey, were arranged for, and provided much amusement, particularly the matrimonial race, in which some of our young friends became so excited, and so anxious to reach the minister, where the ceremony might be performed, that they forgot to procure the license on the way. Others who were not sure of a right choice hesitated long enough to lose their chances for life.

The following is a list of the sports and prize-winners:

50-Yard dash—Miss Doris Rathbone.
Potato race—Miss Aimie McFarlane.
Walking race—Miss Isabel Baird.
Relay race—Miss Alberta Curtis.
Married ladies' race—Mrs. Bush.
Men's 100-yard dash—Mr. Clifton Carruthers.
Matrimonial race — Mr. Hodgens and Miss Marjorie Bridge.
Standing broad jump—Mr. Clifton Carruthers.

After the games, the crowd prepared for the homeward trip, which was most enjoyable, when the cool silvery moon replaced the scorching sun, and the boats glided across the smooth waters with the pretty reflections.

All reached home in safety, having had one of the most enjoyable of outings.

OPENS MONDAY AND CONTINUES ALL WEEK UNTIL SATURDAY EVENING, JULY 12TH.

The following letter has been received by Mr. Arnold from Aylmer, Ont., relative to the Chautauqua that was presented in that town. Everywhere it has appeared this season gives the same report. Hundreds who attended last year are securing their tickets for Peterborough Chautauqua without solicitation or sale at E. T. Mason's, R. C. Braund, W. Madill, Examiner Office, Review Office, Warne Drug Co., Kent's Drug Store, Lynch's Drug Store, Oak Hall, Cressmans, and other places.

THE LETTER.

Aylmer, Ont., July 2nd, 1919.

Mr. R. E. Arnold,
Advance Superintendent,
Chautauqua, Peterborough.

Dear Mr. Arnold,—Chautauqua Week was a great success in our little town, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all of us. There was not a poor number on the entire programme.

Yours truly,

THE OLD HOME SINGERS.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

Notwithstanding the half-holiday and the excessive heat of yesterday, the attendance at the Kennedy tent services last night was good. Mr. Kennedy spoke with his usual power. Those who are attending the services are being increasingly impressed with the unique character of the evangelist's preaching. The minister of one of our city churches, who has heard a number of the leading evangelists of the United States and Canada, remarked recently that Mr. Kennedy is a preacher of greater power and forcefulness than any other evangelist he knows. The most striking thing in his message is his wonderful knowledge of the Word of God and his absolute fidelity to the great doctrines of grace. He does not use some of the methods of other evangelists that are so objectionable to some people. The members of the churches of the city should be giving these services their enthusiastic and loyal support.

A Powerful Message.

Mr. Mulligan, who is leading the singing, has never been heard to better advantage. He and his son sang a most effective duet last evening, and Miss Hartshorn sang a solo. Mr. Kennedy's text was, "Let the wicked forsake his ways, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon." He said, in part: Repentance is more than being sorry for sin. It is being sorry enough to quit sinning. It is to forsake sin. Jesus is a Saviour from the love and power of sin. Unless a man repents and gives up his sin he could not enjoy heaven even if he were admitted into it. He would want to be taken out. Repentance is more than Godly sorrow. Saul was sorry when he said, "I have played the fool," but he did not repent. The Publican said, "God be merciful to me a sinner"—and that was true repentance. You cannot be right with God unless you are right with your fellowman. John says, if you say you love God and hate your brother, you are a liar. Repentance is to forsake your own way and walk in God's way. The Bible says there is a way that seemeth right unto man. If you are in the way of sin you are on the way to hell. Repentance is a very thorough thing. It involves the giving up of your evil thoughts as well as your evil ways. You cannot grow in grace and cherish evil thoughts. You must forsake your wrong thoughts of God, and of His Word, and of Jesus Christ and of His Church. The Church is not perfect, and yet it is doing twenty times more good than any other organisation on earth. If the Church is not perfect, join her and help to make her so. Repentance means also to return. Why do not the sinners of Peterborough turn? It is because the Christians of our churches do not help them, do not pray for them, do not invite them. It is possible to hinder sinners returning to the Lord by your indifference as a church member. Mr. Kennedy closed a very powerful message with an earnest appeal to return unto the Lord, in which he emphasized God's willingness to receive the returning sinner and to have mercy upon him. The subject for to-night will be, "Both Sides of the Question."

SERMONETTES BY KENNEDY.

People take stock of us rather than in us.

Anything that is necessary is never evil and evil is never necessary.

The folks that have nothing to do, seem to keep busy at it.

Some people should quit fooling with religion and become Christians. I mean the real thing.

A little boy once said the reason he fell out of bed was because he stayed too near the place where he got in. That is the reason a lot of professing Christians tumble. They never give up their worldiness.

We have in society today, saints, near-saints and far-saints — where do you come in?

Christianity exists in the world that it might enthrone the right and dethrone the wrong.

If a lot of church members can get to heaven it will take the angels some time getting them introduced to each other—for they certainly don't speak to each other here.

Some seem satisfied with being an almost Christian — how would you like to call in a man when sick — an almost doctor?

No man can be happier than his inner life.

If you are not ashamed to commit sin, why should you be ashamed to confess it?

Every man is a hermit. We all live a life that no one sees but ourselves and that hidden life is ours, no one can take it from us.

If there is something in your past life that you are afraid of when you think about it, you had better confess it and get right with God and right with man, before it's too late.

You cannot cover any sin by reformation if its not forgiven by God it is still there and if there is any sin the devil may accuse you of at death or in the judgment, you had better get that off the slate now.

Subject, Tuesday night, "Both Sides of the Question." Specially for young people.

Subject, Saturday night, "A Woman Caught Stealing."

Subject, Sunday night, "Chickens Come Home to Roost."

JUDGMENT IN COUNTY COURT.

In the County Court His Honour JudgeJudge Huycke gave judgment to-day for McPherson and Deforge against M. Pappas, the Chamberlain Estate and the J. R. Stratton Estate for $443.43 for work and labour done and materials furnished to the Royal Theatre.

This was a judgment in a Mechanics' Lien Action brought by McPherson and Deforge against M. Pappas as owner of the Royal Theatre and as against the Chamberlain Estate and the J. R. Stratton Estate as mortgagees. The plaintiffs claimed that they were entitled to a Mechanics' Lien in priority to the mortgages held by the Chamberlain Estate and the Stratton Estate, and His Honour Judge Huycke finds in favour of the plaintiffs against both the owner, Mr. Pappas, and the two mortgagees and gave judgment for $443.43 with costs.

Mr. C. N. Gordon appeared for McPherson and Deforge, Mr. Daniel O'Connell appeared for Mr. Pappas, Mr. R. R. Hall appeared for the J. R. Stratton Estate, and Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the Chamberlain Estate.

Voice of The People

William Hamilton Co. Ltd.

To the Editor of the Examiner:—

Sir,—For some time I have quietly ignored any remarks that were circulated regarding the William Hamilton Co. Ltd., preferring the policy of the stalwart miner who, when asked what he observed in his little wife to lead him into a matrimonial regret, replied "I plumb forgot and don't care."

[illegible] and therefore, as the largest shareholder in the company, and vitally interested in its success, I cannot allow the present rumor to go uncontradicted.

It is to the effect that the company was going down, in fact was actually "on the rocks", and that the recent drastic changes in the personnel of the executive, and also of the leading employees in the works were necessary in the interests of the company. To those who are familiar with the inside history of this company and who know the actual charges that have been made this statement is very ludicrous. Will you kindly permit me to state the following facts.

(a) On the 18th February last, the very day of our annual meeting, we were advised by the Bradstreet Co. that they had increased the rating of our company by $200,000.00 over the rating of last year, and congratulating me, as President of the company on the good progress that we were making.

(b) On the very same day the manager of the Bank of Ottawa verbally congratulated us upon the very satisfactory position of our Bank account, our excellent progress and our bright prospects for this year.

(c) After great trouble and many experiments we had succeeded in getting an able and thoroughly competent Superintendent, who was an expert on getting production but who at the same time commanded the respect and good will of the men, and whose skill in handling the whole labor question made it reasonably certain that we would not have to encounter a strike this year. In consequence the works were "lined up" so much better than formerly that we were complimented by engineers and other mechanical men upon the marked improvement in the works, our shipments had increased by about $5000 per month, with a corresponding increase in profits.

(d) If we had continued as we were going there was every reason to believe that we would have earned very handsome profits this year.

These facts prove that the individuals who originated, and have circulated the above report do not possess that beautiful trait of character that was such a distinguishing mark of the late lamented George Washington.

THOUSANDS FIRST USED FOR MILITARY

Some difficulty may be experienced in fixing the date when khaki breeches and puttees became part of the uniform of the British infantryman, but there is no doubt of the date upon which the British soldier of the line first made his appearance in trousers instead of knee breeches. It was on June 18, 1855, on which occasion the reform, or change, was announced in a Horse Guard order by the Duke of York, the then Commander-in-Chief, as follows: "His Majesty has been pleased to approve of the discontinuance of breeches, leggings and shoes, as part of the clothing of the Infantry soldiers, and of blue grey cloth trousers and half-boots being substituted." The changes in military uniform had been very gradual. In 1806 the 7th Foot (now Royal Fusiliers) and the 5th Foot (Northumberland Fusiliers) are shown to have worn green breeches, white stockings, and high shoes; in 1809 the 1st Royals and 10th Foot (Lincolnshire Regiment) were red breeches and stockings; and in 1742 many regiments wore uniform comprising purple, blue or red breeches, and white leggings or gaiters. This dress occurs frequently in the pictures by Hogarth. In 1798 tight green pantaloons and Hessian boots were worn by at least one corps. Incidentally the introduction of trousers brought about the abolition of the "clothing colonel," although it was until the Crimean War that the much-abused system, which provided this officer with an allowance for clothing his men, was brought to an end.

INCREASE FOR COUNTY JUDGE

ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS AUTHORIZED BY PARLIAMENT.

A bill has been passed by the House of Commons, raising the salaries of County Judges and junior County Judges in the Dominion from $3,000 a year to $4,000. This affects seventy-five judges in the Province of Ontario, or the total number in the province with the single exception of the judges in York County.

The local County Judge at present receives $3,000 salary, $1,000 as County Surrogate Judge and $500 as Local Master.

The salaries of each Chief Justice has been raised from $7,000 to $8,000 per annum, except the Chief Justice of Prince Edward Island, who receives an advance of $500, and who will now receive $6,500. Justices of Appeal and of the King's Bench and others have received raises accordingly.

RECORD GROWTH FOR GARDEN TRUCK

The hot spell has not accrued to the comfort of humans but it certainly has been in the interests of gardens and plant life in general. Mrs. J. Harris McClellan, Gilmour street, reports a number of ripe tomatoes in her garden as early as the 24th June. Mr. George Jamieson on the same street had ripe tomatoes on the 26th of June.

Mr. William Taylor, 279 Sherbrooke brought in some fully developed string beans to-day with perfectly smooth surfaces and bright yellow in colour.

rules with the single exception that they provide there shall be no hitting in the breaks, an interpolation which affects one man as much as the other. Both are strong punchers coming out of a clinch. The kidney punch is barred, but the "rabbit punch" is not. Willard, however, has indicated he will make no effort to bring the challenger down with the dangerous blow on the back of the neck.

There was a scene of frantic effort at the arena early. A line of would-be spectators strung out along the ticket booths, which have been erected at Bayview park.

Automobiles dotted the roadside and their owners slept in them. Army tents and tents of other description filled many vacant places. Two portable boat houses used in Toledo for election purposes had been wheeled up to a spot near the arena and here several persons spent the night. Streets leading to the huge structure erected for the great battle by Tex Rickard were lined with booths of all descriptions. They reminded one of an old-fashioned street carnival. Anything from lolly pops up could be purchased at almost any price.

There was a new feature to this fight. Ten airplanes took the air early and most of them were up all morning, droning about over the arena and about the open space. A huge United States army captive balloon with its full crew of handlers, swayed about. Occupants of airplanes and balloons were there mainly for the purpose of taking photos. Planes have been engaged to distribute pictures of the contest to be sent to newspapers in various sections of the country.

By means of air craft it is hoped to have motion pictures of the mill showing to-night in Cleveland.

TOLEDO, July 4.—At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, Jess Willard of Lawrence, Kansas, and Jack Dempsey, of Salt Lake city, will meet in a 12-round boxing match here, to be the heavyweight championship of the world. At their respective quarters this morning it was stated that both had slept well and were ready for the contest. From managers and principals came renewed expressions of confidence. The road to the park was alive and bustling at dawn. Policemen and soldiers were early at their stations. In the arena carpenters are still busy putting on the final touches to the amphitheatre, with its eighty thousand seats. Thousands of these were still on sale this morning. Every road leading into the city saw automobiles bring their load of fight enthusiasts from nearby cities and some from a distance. Detectives from all the principal cities of the land were mingling in the crowds, while five hundred Toledo citizens were sworn in to aid the regular police force in maintaining order. Willard was the favourite in the betting this morning.

KALSOMINE FOR DE LAVAL TEAM AT HANDS OF MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL SQUAD

The Matthews-Blackwell team were in their finest form of the season last night in their postponed game with De Laval and the Separator crew never had a chance to win. They were beaten in hollow fashion by 9 runs to nothing and failed to get a runner past second base. Frost, of the Packers, was in great fettle, holding the losers to four scattered hits and striking out eight men. He had almost perfect control and was never in danger, only six of the De Laval outfit getting on the runways during the engagement. His team mates fielded in sparkling fashion, while their hitting was hard and timely.

Neary was on the rubber for the De Laval team, and although he twice retired the side on strikes, was no mystery to the winners, who bunched their drives on him with telling effect.

It was the deadest game of the season, De Laval looking as if they were beaten from the very first innings. The League leaders were so much the better team on the night's play that there was little to the game.

The Packers got two in the first. Adams went to second on Barrie's low throw to first, and Butcher singled. Adams scored on Swanston's tap to Legon after Lowe had flied to Fitzgerald. Hagerman's sacrifice fly scored Butcher. Jackson ended the innings by fanning.

In the third, Adams singled to centre and Butcher hit safely past third. Lowe's double to right centre scored the pair. Swanston singled to left to score Lowe. Hagerman flied to Fitzgerald, and Swanston was doubled off first. Jackson beat out an infield tap, but was forced at second by Holyman.

In the fifth Lowe walked. Swanston flied to Campbell. Hagerman singled to left and Jackson through the box, filling the bases. Holyman's single over second scored Lowe, but Neary intercepted Campbell's throw to the plate and nipped Hagerman. Shaughnessy's fly to Rose ended the innings.

Lowe was hit to start the seventh, and Swanston was passed. Hagerman hit to Rose, whose throw to second was too late to get Swanston and Barrie threw badly to first, Lowe scoring. Neary muffed Jackson's fly, filling the bases. Neary stopped further scoring by fanning Holyman, Shaughnessy and Frost.

The Packers put over two more in the ninth, when Swanston went to second on Neary's wild throw to first. He went to third on a passed ball and scored on Bergoine's high peg to third. Hagerman died on a good stop by Rose, but Jackson singled to right and stole second, going to third on Holyman's infield out, and scored on Legon's fumble of Shaughnessy's grounder. Frost struck out.

THE SUCKERS ARE NOT SWARMING INTO FIGHT CITY AS PREDICTED

A BLISTERING HOT DAY MAY FATTEN DEMPSEY'S CHANCES OF PUTTING THE BIG STREAK OUT OF BUSINESS.

By H. C. Hamilton.
(United Press.)

TOLEDO, July 4. — Age flung a challenge to youth to-day in Toledo, and youth flung it back.

Jess Willard, 36 years old, heavyweight champion of the world, was scheduled to meet Jack Dempsey, 24 in a scheduled twelve round bout for the pugilistic title in the greatest arena ever constructed for such a contest. The day's programme started at ten a.m., officials of the Toledo Athletic Club having returned to that programme following an earlier announcement in which two of the original six preliminaries had been called off. Those two have been returned to the schedule and an hour after the gates were opened the bouts started.

Toledo swarmed with outside fight enthusiasts and local ones as well, but it was indicated early that the expected enormous crowd would not reach the huge proportions which have been so freely predicted. Evidence of this was seen in the bustle of ticket speculators to get from under at the smallest possible loss of admission paste boards in which they have invested and also in the failure of 'flop houses" to do the land office business they had prepared.

The Suckers.

The made-in-a-minute hotel attracted some customers, but it is safe to say they were operated at a loss last night, for many thousands of persons were quartered in private homes after the hotels were filled and many others slept in the Pullman coaches which were left parked in railroad yards.

Special trains were limited. There were a few run as second sections of regular trains, but most of the special train visitors were forced to take their specials as coaches attached to regular trains.

What 'customers" have arrived, however, have whetted the betting spirit. Wagers of all sorts were reported about the city to-day. Willard was a strong favourite in early bets. A delegation from Kansas, the home State of the champion, announced it had $10,000 to lay at odds of 10 to 8 on the champion. This was being gobbled up. Odds of 5 to 4 on Willard were freely quoted. Dempsey money had a lapse and unless a large wad of it shows early, Willard will have the backing that belongs to a title holder.

Freak Bets.

Freak bets abound. Among them an attempt by a New Yorker to lay an automobile against $1,000 that the champion will win. Several bets were placed last night that the champion would not respond for the six rounds. Odds of 1 to 5 are being demanded for such bets. It was hot in Toledo. Just plain hot and lots of it. Oldest inhabitants are around telling visitors they never saw anything like it. The resin in the boards at the Rickard arena is bending itself into very poor fashion. Weather forecasts are to the effect that there is no hope for relief even in the shape of a breeze. Jimmie De Forrest, trainer of the contender, declared yesterday he hoped the day would be blistering hot.

"Dempsey is used to the heat and is stronger. Willard has trained in the shade. That will give Dempsey a better chance," said De Forrest.

Up Early.

Both battlers have reached the very acme of training. They quit work simultaneously each man resting all day yesterday. Dempsey was up early this morning and out for a long walk. He planned to spend the morning at a cottage near the scene of the fight and to sleep a few hours just previous to entering the ring. Willard's scheme was practically identical. Whatever was booked to happen to-day at the arena it was certain there would result one of the greatest scraps in the history of pugilism. Strength and brawn are represented in each of the principals. Neither will go down easily from a punch.

The size of Willard has had the effect of splitting the experts badly in their opinions. There are quite as many Dempsey adherents, probably more, among the "wise" followers of the game as there are to back Willard. Arguments are still frequent, and due to this fact betting is apt to be very active.

Boxing Rules.

The principals in the bout have agreed to box under rules of the Toledo Athletic Club which are nothing more or less than the Marquis of Queensbury.

HURTUBISE WINS AGAIN

WILL TRY CONCLUSIONS WITH TRAVELLING WRESTLER IN 20 MINUTE BOUT TO-NIGHT.

Eugene Hurtubise, Peterboro's well known wrestler succeeded in staying fifteen minutes in his bout with Joe Shimkera the wrestler with the Beacon Shows at the Exhibition grounds last night. It was a good bout that took the fancy of a crowd of wrestling fans. To-night the two meet for a side bet of $25 in a twenty minute bout which should be the best of the series. Both men will be trying for a fall on this occasion as there is no advantage in remaining on the defensive and the result should be a grand bout.

DOUBLE HEADER IN THE CITY LEAGUE TO-MORROW

There will undoubtedly be a large crowd of fans at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon when there will be a double header in the City League series. In the 2 o'clock game the Orientals will clash with the De Laval team in what promises to be a real fight. Orientals nosed the De Lavals out the last time the two teams met but the Separator crew expect to get their revenge tomorrow. Prest will likely do the heaving for De Laval while it is expected that Mulhern will be on the rubber for the Orieptals. Both teams will be at full strength.

In the second game the War Veterans and Matthews-Blackwell team will clash. Manager Lebarr of the Vets has a raft of new players to throw into action against the Packers and the Khaki crew claim they are going to break into the win column at the expense of the leaders Daynard or Wade will pitch for the Veterans and Frost for the Matthews—Blackwell team.

Last Wednesday night a ball was given under the auspices of the U.F.O.A. A large crowd attended and everyone reported an enjoyable evening. $128.00 was realized at the door and in every way it proved a success.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dickson and son, and Mr. Gordon Burns, of Toronto, who were guests at the home of Mrs. James Dickson, have returned home.

Mr. W. H. Wedlock, of Peterboro, spent the week end and holiday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. McLachlan.

When A Man Buys Underwear

He likes to have something more to depend on than his own judgment. He can judge the fineness of the fabric, the finish and perhaps the cut, but he is at sea, as to the WEARING qualities.

Now when scarcity of good materials has forced so many inferior articles on the market, the male buyer must rely on the dealer and the reputation of the underwear.

Consider then with how much greater confidence we can offer a line of underwear as well known to you as Free-Knit.

RUSSIANS ARE DOING WELL AT THE COUNTY JAIL.
With a philosophical trend the five Russians in the County jail awaiting trial charged with the murder of Philip Yannoff in Havelock, some time ago, seem to be in the best of spirits and are smoking contentedly the "smokes" which their counsels have provided for them. All five are well separated, three being incarcerated down stairs and the other two behind the iron bars upstairs.

BIG AIRPLANE LINEN DEAL STIRS BRITISH

PARLIAMENT EXPECTED TO ASK FOR EXPLANATION OF 40,000,000 YARDS SALE.

LONDON,—The Government sale of 40,000,000 yards of airplane linen to Leonard Martin caused much discussion, and no doubt when Parliament meets the Government will be pressed hard for the fullest information. In some quarters it is assumed that there is a big syndicate of financiers behind Martin and that it is hoped to export most of the material. Another suggestion is that Martin is acting on behalf of the Government which is thus creating a corner in cotton.

The Belfast linen manufacturers who profess to be unconcerned about the deal say that the airplane linen is unsuitable for most articles usually made of linen, that Martin is bound to lose heavily in the transaction, and that he made a bad bargain. At the same time they complain that the Government has dealt fairly with them.

The Daily News, in giving the Government's view of the transaction, points out that, when, in 1917, a greatly enhanced program of airplane construction was decided on, the Government was faced with the difficulty of increasing its output of airplane linen, which then was about 150,000 yards a month, the prices paid being 4 shillings a yard. The Government took drastic measures to develop the growth of flax in England and Ireland, with the result that at the date of the armistice the linen output had increased to 7,000,000 yards a month. The cessation of hostilities threw 50,000,000 yards of the fabric on the Government's hands. The disposal board set up by the Government tried to induce the linen trade to buy back the linen, but the Belfast manufactures refused to offer more than a shilling a yard. They did, afterwards, come forward with a counterproposal for a profit-sharing scheme with the Government under which they would have borne 25 per cent. of any loss on sales below 13 pence a yard and would have taken 25 per cent. on any profit on sales over 13 pence a yard. This offer was refused by the disposal board in the interests of the taxpayers, it being pointed out that if it had been accepted and if the linen had afterwards been sold by the trade merely at the price now paid by Martin, which is twenty pence a yard, the Belfast traders would have netted over $1,500,000 of the money now paid to the Government.

Moreover, under the terms of the Belfast proposal, there was no guarantee that a single yard would be sold, and at best the transaction would have been a very prolonged one. The trade had intended that the airplane linen should be disposed of side by side with their own piece products.

HUGE DIRIGIBLE BRINGS MESSAGE TO EXAMINER

GREAT FUTURE IS PREDICTED FOR TRANSATLANTIC TRAVEL--FIRST NEWS STORY BY AIRSHIP.

PASSENGER TRAFFIC

Here is one of the first "news stories" ever transported across the Atlantic by airship. They arrived on the British navy dirigible R34. Before he stepped aboard the airship at East Fortune, Scotland, Lieut. Commander Zachariy Lansdowne, U.S.N., took charge of an envelope, containing the following news story, and several photographs. The transportation of this envelope by airship across the seas is significance of the remarkable further possibilities in carrying written and pictorial news between the Old World and the New.

By Edwin Hullinger.

(By Airship Across the Atlantic.)

LONDON, June 8.—"An aerial mail from England to America, which I believe within two or three years will grow into frequent and dependable tran-ocean traffic, begins with the voyage of the R34 to Long Island," Howard E. Coffyn, of the Council of National Defence, and a member of the American Aviation Commission, declared to the United Pheas here to-day.

In an interview which has the distinction of being the first regular news story ever carried across the Atlantic by air cruiser, Howard E. Coffyn's forecast is that peace will speedily bring tremendous achievements in this new art of transportation, as uniquely a product of the war.

"The United States Navy dirigible will be returned by the cross-continental "air limiteds," he predicted. "Five years, perhaps less, should see a great inter-colonial air thoroughfare between North and South America.

Continents Connected.

"All the continents will be connected by crowded air routes during the next decade. What this involves in international comradeship and prevention of wars is obvious, for the history of civilization's advance is largely a history of the progress of transportation.

"The air craze is already at hand. This is the practical significance of this third crossing of the Atlantic within a month.

Coffyn, a national authority on aviation, was one of the first big automobile manufacturers to offer his services to the government in 1917. The American Aviation Commission arrived in England recently on its research tour through the Allied countries of Europe.

"Several years — pehaps two or three—should suffice to place cross-Atlantic flying on a commercial basis," Coffyn said. "I believe a large volume of passenger traffic will be released into Atlantic air channels the moment air travel is demonstrated to be safe."

Start To-morrow.

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, July 7. — Major Scott announced definitly at noon that the R34 would start on its journey, returning at five o'clock to-morrow morning, flying over Boston. The R34 will not circle New York before turning east he said.

Major Scott said an effort would be made to shape the R34's course that it would pass over the George Washington, which is bringing President Wilson home.

OTONABEE FARMER FATALLY INJURED

DANIEL M'CARTHY DIED AN HOUR AFTER TEAM RAN AWAY WITH HAY RAKE.

Daniel McCarthy, an Otonabee farmer, died at his home a mile and one- half east of Keene on Saturday afternoon, an hour after he was fatally injured when his team of horses ran away with the hay rake he was driving. There were no eyewitnesses of the accident. Mr. McCarthy had taken his ten-year old daughter to the field with him ,but her rack was turned to her father when the team presumably took fright and bolted unmanageably. When her attention was suddenly attracted by the noise, she saw the horses galloping across the field and her father lying strangely still in the stubble. He was unconscious to her cries when she ran up to him. The little girl quickly gave the alarm at home, but Mr. McCarthy died within an hour without rallying. Dr. Harrison of Keene was summoned.

Bruises to the body and a cut on the forehead indicated that Mr. McCarthy had been thrown off the rake which in passing over his body had caused the injuries which resulted so soon in death.

The fatality has cast a gloom over a large section of the township. Mr. McCarthy was widely known throughout Otonabee and had many friends. He is survived by his wife and seven children, also by his brother Vincent, who lives on an adjoining farm and another brother James, and two sisters in Rochester. The family's bereavement in the death of the father and husband is deepened by the loss, if possible more keenly felt now than ever, of the eldest son, Joseph McCarthy, who died overseas.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning at nine o'clock to the Catholic church at Keene and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

LIEUT. C. J. STUART OF THE 93RD IS HOME

Lieut. L. J. Stuart, son of Mr. J. W. Stuart, Homewood avenue, arrived home this morning after crossing on the Mauretania. He enlisted in the 93rd Battalion, and overseas was transferred to the first. Towards the close of the war he was with the machine gun corps. Lieut. Stuart spent three birthdays in France, and fortunately came through without serious injury.

CONSTANCE'S PAL

Constance Talmadge's stay at Hollywood, California, where she is making several pictures in Select Star Series, is doubly pleasing to her because through it she is spending many happy hours with her best pal. When Miss Talmadge first came to California and gained her earliest experience before the camera, she made fast friends with Dorothy Gish, who was working with her in "Intolerance," and the two girls had many happy times together.

Now they have met again and have set aside Mondays and Thursdays as their manless nights. They spend at least these two evenings reading to each other or speeding about in Constance's new roadster, or —when they feel real devilish, it's a movie and a Lovers' Delight, their favorite sundae. And they are having the time of their lives. For midnight suppers play no part in the ordered days or evenings of these two talented girls: early to bed and early to rise make a good photoplayer, and Constance and Dorothy put all their energy into their part, as their successful pictures indicate.

Constance Talmadge's latest Select Picture, "Good Night, Paul!" will be the feature attraction here to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Grand Theatre. It is a bonanza of comedy, a photoplay of a thousand laughs, adapted from the current stage success of the same name and directed by Walter Edwards.

REFUELING DIRIGIBLE

GIANT AIRSHIP MAY BEGIN THE RETURN JOURNEY THIS EVENING.

WEATHER REPORTS

Canadian Press:

MINEOLA, July 7. — The British dirigible R-34, which is scheduled to start on her homeward trip an hour beore daybreak on Tuesday morning, may cast off late this afternoon or early this evening, according to unofficial information obtained at the Roosevelt field at 6.30 a.m. to-day. Mechanics were rushing the work of re-fueling and overhauling the R-34 all night long.

On her return trip to her base in Scotland the British dirigible R-34 will take a southern course, leaving the United States at some mid-Atlantic port and heading for Spain. If weather conditions are favourable, it is expected that New York and other cities of the mid-Atlantic section may get a glimpse of the giant airship. In order to relieve four hundred men who were straining at the anchor ropes of the R-34 during an electrical and wind storm last night, the big bag was raised to obviate the danger of damage from wind. During this operation, a rope releasing the water ballast from an aft compartment was released by accident and the rear of the bag shot up in the air to an altitude of some four hundred feet, while her nose was only two hundred feet above the field. The R-34 remained in this position throughout the night and caused Major Scott to return to the field early to-day to distribute the water ballast in the bag to bring her to an even keel again. Members of the crew who remained here last night explained that the [illegible] into two storms off Newfoundland.

Canadian Press:

MINEOLA, July 7.—The R-34 was torn from her mooring rope this morning by a violent gust of wind. The cross girder to which the rope was attached broke under the strain, ripping a hole six feet by three feet in the gas bag. The giant dirigible was saved from being blow away by three hundred men, who seized the ropes dangling from her sides and held her down with great difficulty.

ATTRACTION FOR CIVIC HOLIDAY

THE EXHIBITION BOARD WILL PUT ON ANOTHER PROGRAMME ON PETERBOROUGH'S CIVIC HOLIDAY.

After giving the people of Peterboro the opportunity of hearing such a wonderful musical organization as the Anglo-Canadian Band, the Exhibition Board has been requested to endeavor to make another big day on the coming Civic Holiday. It was only through the enterprise of the Exhibition Board and the loyalty of the citizens to the activities of the Board, that Peterborough was enabled to hear the famous band on July 1st.

At ameeting of the Board held on Saturday evening, it was decided to make every effort to put on another big day, and have some outstanding feature that will give extreme pleasure to the citizens.

Further announcements will be made later.

PARLIAMENT PROROGUED TO-DAY AFTER EVENTFUL SESSION.

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, July 7.—After a long and eventful session, the Canadian Parliament was prorogued to-day. During the morning session Sir Robert Borden and Hon. Mr. Meighen referred to the disagreement between the Commons and the Senate on the Prohibition Bill and amendments to the criminal code regarding sexual offences by reasons of these differences. The Government stated neither of these bills would pass this session, and the Order-in-Council respecting the Provincial transportation of liquor would stand until another session of Parliament.

FUNERAL OF MRS. DAN WHETUNG ON SUNDAY

The funeral of Mrs. Dan Whetung, at the Chemong Reserve yesterday, was very largle attended. Many of the friends of the deceased had come long distances to pay their last respects. The members of the reserve were joined by residents of the nearby townships, and also by a number of Peterboro citizens. Indians from the reserves at Hiawatha, Roseneath and Desoronto, were among the visitors. A funeral service was held at the home of the deceased, after which all the people formed in procession and accompanied the mourners to the cemetery, where the service was concluded by the Minister of the reserve.

WILL RATIFY THE PEACE TREATY

GOVERNMENT LEADERS ARE IN SESSION AT WEIMAR.

(United Press.)

BERLIN, July 7. — Government leaders in session at Weimar expect the peace treaty to be ratified this week, it was learned to-day.

The crisis between the Prussian and National governments on the question of granting greater independence to individual States had not been solved to-day. Further consideration of the question was postponed until Wednesday.

According to the Frankfort "Sesitung," the peace treaty will be submitted to the German National Assembly for ratification the middle of this week.

REMAINDER OF GERMAN FLEET

Difference of Opinion Among the Allies.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, July 7.—As the situation stands now, Japan and the United States are understood to favour the breaking up or sinking of the remaining German warships. Great Britain approves the plan to break them up, while Italy agrees to their destruction conditionally, but if this plan is not carried out, it insists upon having her share of the vessels, in case they are divided among the powers. France opposes the destruction of the vessels, and desires their distribution. Some of the smaller powers, notably Poland, approves the plan to destroy the vessels.

OPENING CAMPAIGN

WAR WITHOUT QUARTER DECLARED ON THE "ONE BIG UNION."

THE LEADERS

(By J. J. Conklin.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 7. — War without quarter and to the death has been declared on the One Big Union by the American Federation of Labour, and the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress.

The opening campaign has already been launched in Winnipeg under the leadership of William Variey, of Toronto, general organizer of the A. F. of L., and R. A. Rigg, former secretary of the Trades and Labour Council, and ex-member of the Manitoba Legislature, who has just been appointed general organizer for Western Canada of the Dominion Congress.

Organized labour, not only in Winnipeg, but throughout the west, is to be swept clean of radical leadership and revolutionary doctrines, if the campaign is successful.

Every local union in the cities of Western Canada will have to prove its loyalty to the principles of labour as in the past, or show them for the future by complete re-organization. The Trades and Labour Council of Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver will be re-organized unless its members indicate that they have no use for the "One Big Union."

VAMOOSED WITH GATE RECEIPTS

FOR SHIMKUS' ENTIRE WORLDLY POSSESSIONS.

Frank J. Duffy, who gives his address as Greenpoint, South Carolina, had a good idea, but like many bright ideas it failed to work chiefly through the instrumentality of Fireman Drummond of Chief Grange's fire fighters. Duffy held the exalted position of ticket seller for Joe Shimkus, wrestler with the Beacon Shows at the Exhibition grounds. He took a fancy to the gate receipts on Saturday night and put the whole amounting to $75.27 in his hip pocket and made a bee line for the gate of the grounds where he noticed a standing car which looked comfortable and might be able to carry him at a greater speed from the grounds which Duffy thought would be preferable to walking. But the Beacon Shows Company had a motor car and in order to prevent pursuit Duffy brought another bright idea to the fore and stole the battery key on the Beacon car. Taking the standing car he went up town and asked an obliging citizen the road to Toronto after which he went to Banks' Garage on Charlotte street to fill his gasoline tank.

In the meantime Shimkus finding that his ticket seller had vanished with the gate receipts which which was his whole capital immediately advertised around the grounds that the person who caught the vanished one would receive a reward. Fireman Drummond who was able through the workings of the two platoon system to vsit the grounds heard the announcement and afterwards noticed Duffy filling the tank at the garage and Mr. Duffy was taken in the toils. He had the total amount stolen, $75.27 in his pocket when searched and he readily admitted the theft. He pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing the money and another charge of stealing the car which belonged to the Fontaine Garage. He elected summary trial and was remanded for a week until more can be learned of the man's history.

According to Shimkus, Duffy is subject to epileptic fits and was employed by Mat Gay, the high diver, who discharged him on account of his affliction and Shimkus employed him to keep him from starving. A box of cigarettes was given Duffy by Shimkus this morning to keep him occupied until he comes up for trial.

Only last week another man vamoosed with Shimkus' gate receipts amounting to $190 but was captured.

REMARKABLE ADDRESS ON THE QUEBEC SITUATION FORMED DRAMATIC FINISH

"QUEBEC CAN BE MADE A TREMENDOUS ASSET OR A TERRIBLE DRAG," DECLARED COMRADE R. L. CALDER AT CLOSE OF GREAT VETERANS' CONVENTION.

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 7. — A remarkable address by Comrade R. L. Calder, of Montreal, on enlistment and drafting, and generally outlining the position of the French-Canadians in Quebec, provided a decidedly dramatic conclusion to the Dominion Great War Veterans' convention. It was given with the intent of measuring to some extent the attitude of French-Canadians towards the late conflict, and to show that only harmony should exist among all classes of soldiers throughout the Dominion.

It was one of the most eloquent addresses heard throughout the convention, being punctuated with applause, and its conclusion greeted with thunderous cheers of the whole assembly. Comrade Calder, as he explained came of a Scotch farmer and French-Canadian mother, and secured the right to address the convention on a question of a privilege.

"I am," he said, in explaining what he wished to talk about, "as completely free from prejudice in this matter as it is possible to be, because I know both qualities of Scotchmen and Frenchmen.

"We in Canada," he continued, have the alternative of making Quebec either a Scotland or Ireland. It can either be made the tremendous asset Scotland has been to Great Britain or a terrile drag that Ireland has been for the past years. It is possible to create that best feeling and harmony of which I have spoken. There is disaffection and want to start in a body of settlement and correction of the trouble. Disaffection does exist and exists because terrible mistakes have been made—mistakes that drove people whole heartedly with the Allies in the war into a state of almost rebellion.

Quebec's Position.

Continuing he said that the province of Quebec was now in the position of a small boy who had been in a quarrel with big brother, mourning a black eye and bruised shin, and while he and his big brother had been quarreling their mother had been set upon by a bully. The enthusiasm in Quebec for war in the beginning was as great he contended, as was any province in the whole Dominion, and if that enthusiasm had not been kept up it was due entirely to mistakes by the government in starting English units in Quebec and officering French units with English officers. Only two units were started in the first stages to take in French-Canadians. These filled up almost immediately. The door was then banged in the face of recruits. French units formed but not allowed to go oversease, but left to rot in Canada. Sir Sam Hughes had refused to open the door to French-Canadian recruiting and when conscription was brought into force it was deliberately punched full of holes in Quebec so that those wanting to escape could do so without trouble. There had been a barrage of smoke and fog of misunderstanding. Quebec was willing to co-operate in the development of a greater Canada, "but by the Lord God of Heaven we are not going to be subordinate to anyone," he concluded dramatically. Following this outburst of applause the speaker was congratulated on his splendid effort.

Of determined campaigns in favour of Banff, Ottawa and Fort Arthur. An effort to have some place in the middle of the west selected as a permanent meeting point did not receive much encouragement.

With bowed heads "in memory of fallen comrades," and the singing of "O Canada" and "God Save the King," the convention closed near the midnight hour.

JUVENILES GO ON A RAMPAGE

BROKE INTO A NUMBER OF LOCAL STORES.

A series of petty robberies culminated in Police Court this morning, when two boys, ten and eight years respectively, who live on Simcoe Street, were charged with the theft of articles ranging in value from a few cents to $5.00.

The two boys broke into the W. J. Oke wholesale store last week and stole a few trinkets in the office, and on Thursday afternoon, July the third, the first general half-holiday, broke into Mr. Robert Fair's dry goods store on George Street by breakin ga large, heavy plate glass window at the rear. They managed to get away with a small amount of silver. The same afternoon they burglarized Soden's book store on Hunter Street by breaking a small glass window at the rear. They took a fancy to a number of baseballs, and with these and $3 in money they left. The same afternoon the Peterborough Floral Company's premises on Water Street was visited, and after taking three dozen packages of seeds. They broke in Fair's store again last night, and were in Hooper's middle store on Sunday afternoon, but abducted with nothing more than a few ice cream wrappers. The oldest boy, who seems to be the instigator of the whole plan, was remanded for a week and put in care of the Children's Aid Society Shelter, while the other boy was allowed to go home until the trial next Monday.

NOBODY OBJECTED

PARIS, July 7.—The first explanation of Premier Lloyd George's authority for the statement that the former Kaiser would be brought to trial was gained here to-day from semi-official sources.

It is stated that during the last week of the Big Four's Conference the British Premier remarked, "I suppose there is no objection to a trial of the Kaiser in London." The Premier looked about the table Nobody objected, but no minutes were taken and nothing was written with regard to the decision, it was explained.

No objection was raised, so far by the employers, but the Builders' Association will hold a meeting this evening to decide on what action they will take.

ORANGEMEN MARCHED IN A BODY TO PARK STREET BAPTIST CHURCH

INSPIRING ADDRESS BY THE REV. DOUGAL BROWN—AN APPROPRIATE TEXT.

Park street Baptist church was taxed beyond its capacity last evening when the Orange lodges of the city and county attended divine service. Marshalled by the Director of Ceremonies, Mr. Herbert Stinson, the lodges, about 850 strong, and including representatives from Nassau, Nos. 80, 1175, 80 and Vimy Ridge Lodges, marched from the Orange Hall, preceded by the Salvation Army Band, to the church, where the centre pews had been reserved. So large was the attendance that the vestry of the church and steps leading to it were used for those who could not find room inside.

The Sermon.

After welcoming the Orangemen, the pastor, Rev. Dougal Brown, preached an eloquent sermon. His text was taken from Peter, Chapter 2, Verse 17, "Honour all men, love the brotherhood, fear God, and honour the King."

This text, he said, was the foundation upon which the constitution of the Orange Order rests, with its sublime teaching and reflection of God's attitude toward man. We find in it the outpouring of God's love of humanity. It bears the message of living and loving together under God's great law. Knowing that by division benevolent objects are frustrated and noblest purposes frustrated we see the force of God's words in the text. Christ's life was the outstanding example of the ideal life of brotherhood, loving labouring and dying for all men, and inviting, as He did, all men to live with Him.

The Constitution.

The constitution of the Order does not embody the church, but I believe said Mr. Brown, that the church does embody the Order, which bases its constitution on the principals of the Church of Christ. The need of all ages is to bring all men and women to live up to the teaching of the Bible, of which it is one thing to know the teaching and another to live by.

The text declares we should honour all men regardless of character or circumstances because all are made in the image of the Creator. When Jesus said, 'Love thy neighbour as thyself,' He did not say, 'if he be a good man,' but said, 'love thy enemy.' When He told us to love the pauper, beggar, sinful man and fallen woman, he set no easy task, but if we are able to live and abide by the desire of injunction we must obey. In these days of conflict between labour and capital when men are making a cesspool of the world and making man unlovable, the task is doubly hard yet in the face of all malice and hatred we must keep before us the example of the Man who loved and died for all men.

The brotherhood referred to in the words of the text is undoubtedly those persons who believe in Jesus Christ. Referring to the constitution of the Orange Order, Mr. Brown said the first qualification and first requirement is faith in God. "How," he said, "can we become defenders of the faith if we have no faith?" To follow the divine law we must see not only the man kneeling at the throne of grace but the fallen, who Jesus means us to bring back to God. Many to-day are ready to give away their brothers, many will wash their hands and say they are guiltless of their downfall. If such men have done nothing for the fallen brother they are not innocent. "Love men in all circumstances," the pastor concluded, "and fulfill the mission for which we have been sent into the world. The need of the day is a fulfillment of the principals of King William in 1688. I am no prophet to predict just how soon the Order may be called upon to defend the principals it stands for, but I believe there is a mission for it to fulfill".

FIVE BOYS CHARGED WITH VAGRANCY IN POLICE COURT

WERE INVITED TO LEAVE THE CITY AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

Charged with vagrancy, five boys, Archie Walker, Thomas Hale, Ernest Hale, George Toohey and James Moiles, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning. They were brought in by Constable Dickson, of the County police force, who, on complaints of people in the vicinity of Birdsall Station, arrested them there. They had been going from door to door begging, and when located by the constable, had no money or baggage but their pockets were full of green apples.

They told the Chief this morning that they sent their baggege home to Montreal by the Canadian Express Company. They said that they had been engaged by an employment agency in Montreal to work on the railroad at Lindsay cutting weeds beside the track, but found after arriving at that place they were required to carry heavy steel rails, which work was too heavy for them, and they left. They decided to work themselves back to Belleville, where they were told that they could get work. After obtaining sufficient money in Belleville they intended to take the train for their homes in Montreal.

On them were found papers from the employment agency sending them to work in Lindsay and which stated that the boys were to send three dollars of their first pay to the employployment agency.

Crown Attorney Wood was of the opinion that the employment agency should be made an example of but the magistrate told the boys that the county could not afford to board them at the jail, and they were told to leave the city as soon as possible.

Chief Thompson inspected the boys' hands and told the magistrate that they did not look as if they had indulged in hard work.

A letter will be sent to the Chief of police in Montreal informing him o fthe whole affair.

Of Course There is a Proviso, but the World Would Be Sweeter if They Were Kept Generally in Mind.

When I am old I will observe the following items (perhaps):

I will not try to act nor dress nor talk so as to make people think I am younger than I am.

I will not be ashamed to be young, nor be angry when called old, nor ashamed of my age.

I will not complain of being old.

I will not continually remind people of my old age to secure their sympathy, or to hear them say I am not old after all, or do not seem so.

I will not form the habit of indulging in reminiscences.

I will be particularly careful not to repeat the same anecdotes over and over.

I will not complain of the present and claim the past was much better.

If I am deaf, weak-eyed, lame or otherwise afflicted I will not advertise my infirmities, but avoid obtruding them upon the notice of others as much as possible.

I will not talk of myself, my works, or my achievements, even of my mistakes, any more than is necessary.

I will speak cheerfully or keep still.

I will never indulge in cynicism, never sneer at youth, and I will try always to appreciate what younger folks do.

I will be as little bored as I can, and never say I am bored, nor, if possible, act as if I were bored.

I will not give advice unless it is asked, and not often then.

I will not be irritable.

I will not be a nuisance nor an encumbrance, so far as in me lies.

I will not be offended by neglect, but I will remember the words of the sage: "Those who come to see me do me honor; those who do not come to see me do me a favor."

I will be as little disagreeable as possible, and will never use my natural disagreeableness as a means of getting my way.

I will cultivate the friendship and companionship of young children, who alone understand old age.

I will learn to love to be alone. As Ibsen says: "The freest soul is the soul that is alone."

I shall try to show the world that old age is spiritual opportunity and not physical calamity.

Forced to become a by-stander, I shall try to be a hopeful one.

I shall try to cultivate like the poor Doctor Holmes describes that mellows and becomes full flavored before it drops from the stem; and shall try not to age—and try—not.

I shall consider my life's triumph to be to grow triumphantly, victoriously old.

In a word, I shall try to adjust myself to old age, as to all other facts of life.

HERE'S ANOTHER FROG STORY

New Yorker's Experience Seems to Corroborate Tale Told by the Kaiser's Press Agent.

This is the time of the year when fish stories are permissible, so the kaiser's press agent cannot be blamed for telling that one about the frogs croaking in such deafening fashion that they enabled the Germans to bring up their batteries without being discovered by the allies. Hank Newman, who invented the famous "snapper" elixir, partly bears out the statement made by the Hun war correspondent. He knows all the habits of the Johnny Crapauds and he declares that they can make some noise when they begin to croak. "I don't know anything about those bloodthirsty frogs of the Chemin des Dames, however," explained Mr. Newman. "But down in Ozone Park, where I live, there is a frog pond, and hundreds of them live a quiet, peaceful life. In fact, the frogs down my way are musical, for they lull the native to sleep. There is one big fellow, however, who has a high pitched voice. I named him Caruso because he warbles louder than any in the flock. For some time Caruso and me were quite chummy. As soon as he heard my alarm clock go off at five in the morning, he would come to my window and sing a roundelay, which indicated that he was hungry. That was when I had daylight work. Now I'm on nights and don't get to bed until three in the morning. And for the past three weeks Caruso and his entire chorus made sleep impossible for me, so I found it necessary to move far from the frog pond."—New York Sun.

JUST SIMPLE COMMON SENSE

Really Nothing to Be Alarmed About When Speaker Uses Pretentious Word "Psychology."

One way to get an audience nowadays is to call the subject of one's talk "Psychology." A Harvard professor recently amazed a convention of clothing manufacturers and dealers by delivering an address upon this topic, in which he laid down several principles about the effect of clothing upon the wearer, and the surprise of his hearers was due to the discovery that what the learned man had dignified by a long word was nothing more than what more commonly passes for common sense. A good many of the things he said were already known to them, if they had stopped to think. When he placed them under the head of psychology they sat up and took notice, says the Oregonian.

He said, for example, that the well-dressed man is 10 per cent more efficient than the poorly dressed man. He said that clothes that do not fit prevent the wearer from doing his best. Cleanliness promotes self-respect. Self-respect is contagious. The contagion. The man who does not think much of himself is unlikely to win his fellowmen's opinion of others. Comfortable clothing, made of good material, well-brushed, was the foundation of the superstructure, he said. He was talking to hard headed business men, and they believed him, because their own experience showed his statements to be true.

MARS AND MAMMON

How We Reward the Generals Who Win Our Wars.

If the report be true that Parliament will make a grant of one hundred and fifty thousand pounds to Sir Douglas Haig in recognition of his magnificent services during the war, he will rank next to the Dukes of Marlborough and Wellington, each of whom reaped a harvest of more than a million pounds from the war.

In actual money Wellington's brilliant generalship yielded considerably over this sum to himself and his descendants. His victory at Talavera was rewarded by a pension of two thousand pounds a year for two generations.

Salamanca, in addition to a marquisate, brought him a lump sum of a hundred thousand pounds and a little later the Commons voted him a round half million pounds to maintain his dignity as a peer. And the crowning victory of Waterloo was rewarded by an additional grant of two hundred thousand pounds of prize-money.

Marlborough's Value in Money.

Apart from his rich crop of dignitaries, ranging to a dukedom and two princely titles, Marlborough was awarded a pension of four thousand pounds a year for himself and his descendants; the manor of Woodstock was presented to him by a grateful country; and the Palace of Blenheim was built for him at a cost of a quarter of a million pounds. The duke's pension alone has yielded to him and his successors more than a million pounds sterling.

Between these fortunate dukes and their nearest rivals there is a great gulf.

Lord Gough, conqueror of the Sikhs, received a pension of two thousand pounds a year from the Government, and a similar annuity from the East India Company—four thousand pounds yearly for the duration of his own life. All the gold Lord Wolseley received was fifty-five thousand pounds—twenty-five thousand pounds for the Ashanti War, and thirty thousand pounds for his Egyptian campaign in 1882.

He also won within the short space of five years a viscounty, an earldom, a marquisate, and a dukedom, in addition to seven foreign titles, including one of prince.

ORDER RESTORED

General Strike Has Been Called For July 20th.

Canadian Press:

ROME, July 7. — Quiet has been restored in Florence and several other cities where disorders have marked the food situation. Demonstrations against the high cost of living and against food profiteers, however, have occurred in Milan, Leghorn, Alessandria, and Brescia. Premier Nitti declared to the newspaper men that the sole cause of the recent disorders was economic. He appealed for their support in pacifying the Radicals. The Italian Socialist organizations have decided upon a general strike for July 20th as a protest against the Allied intervention in Russia or Hungary.

MODERN SUPERSTITION

IT IS NOT THE RESULT OF IGNORANCE.

Prof. Conklin Makes Interesting Investigation and Finds That Educated Men and Women Are Influenced by a Number of Signs and Charms—Some Results of a Careful Enquiry.

THAT superstition is not found alone among those who are steeped in ignorance is strikingly shown by the results of an investigation made among the students of the University of Oregon as reported by Prof. Edmund S. Conklin, in the American Journal of Psychology (Worcester, Mass.) Prof. Conklin sent out to six hundred students, about half of each sex, the following queries:—

"1. Age at present.

"2. Sex.

"3. State briefly any superstitions which you believe or which influence your conduct.

"4. State any which you formerly believed or which influenced your conduct.

"5. If you formerly had such superstitions or allowed them to influence your conduct, how old were you at the time?

"6. Why did you, or did you, believe in them or permit them to influence your conduct?

"7. Remarks or further information of interest on this topic."

He received a maximum of 257 usable answers. Somewhat more than half admitted that they still allowed superstition to influence their conduct, and of these nearly two-thirds were women. Only 156 could recall never having been influenced by a superstition at any time in their lives. Sixty-one per cent. of those denying superstitiousness at present admitted former influence. Superstitions mentioned as believed in or practiced at present Prof. Conklin tabulates as follows:—

The following superstitions were mentioned once by the men and not at all by the women:—

"Picture taken before game unlucky, chew gum while playing ball, funeral passing in front of player before football game, entering track meet in definite place, missing baskets while warming up for basketball game, crossing fingers for luck, receiving letter with stamp upside down, initials of name spelling a word, watched pot never boils, previous actions with fortunate outcome repeated, opposite for bad outcome, sitting in same seat for examination, wearing bow tie in examination, getting Monday lessons on Saturday prevents being called on, putting on left shoe first, sneezing odd number of times, clumsy shuffle, turning back when leaving house, number nine, right eye twitching lucky, left eye unlucky, itching right ear lucky, left ear unlucky, meeting funeral, crossing through funeral procession, working on Easter unlucky, walking before a gun, returning for forgotten article without sitting down, stealing bottle of milk from same house twice, stepping on sidewalk cracks, appearance of certain local advertisement, bragging about good fortune, fish bite better in dark of moon, fate, ghosts, belief in immortality."

The following were mentioned once by the women and not at all by the men:—

"Accidents coming in threes, crossing snake-track, crossing a line, ears ringing, signifying someone thinking of you, name for kitecough, crowing of rooster in doorway—company coming, cat washing face in house brings company, living in neighborhood of recent deaths, odor of flowers that accompany death, wearing green garment followed by mourning, passing carriage in funeral, birthday-cake superstitions, eyelash in wedding-cake, wearing clothing to engagement-ring, whatever thought about very hard cannot be past, thinking hard of three good things brings them to pass, alternation of good and bad luck, called on if lesson not prepared, mumbled returned in double deck, hiding object, turning chair on one leg, rabbit tooth white wiping with another, interrupting, Monday not new rehearsal—equal determination, salute which banished their superstitions.

"There is ample evidence, for this group at least that the superstitiousness is not entirely due to contact with superstitious people. The persistence of superstition in spite of education and the development of reason, the prevalence of superstitious forms, the slight coincidences or trifling events which give rise to new superstitions, the readiness with which incidents are accepted as proof, and the evidence of strange feelings and emotions which impel in spite of reason—all point to a predisposition to such emotional reactions to the events of life as are conducive to belief in mystic interpretations. If it can be considered as established that women are more generic than men then the consistently larger figures found in this study for the women would support this conclusion."—Literary Digest.

St. James' Palace.

St. James' Palace in London was formerly the royal residence. It was erected by Henry VIII and dedicated to St. James. After the destruction of Whitehall by fire in 1697, it became the chief residence of the reigning sovereigns of England, and for that reason the English court was referred to as the Court of St. James. After her accession in 1837, Queen Victoria moved the royal household to Buckingham Palace, but until the death of the Prince Consort in 1861 she held her levees and drawing-rooms at St. James.

Twice Deceived.

Crawford—The German people are likely to settle with the militarists for deceiving them.

Crabshaw—While they're about it they might turn their attention to the college professors who told them they were supermen.

A Contrast.

"There is one time coming when men will really enjoy their wives' biscuits and rolls." "What time is that?" "When we look back and remember the war bread mother used to make."

She Was Frank.

The moving picture director was having trouble in getting one of the scenes right. The girl was supposed to resist an attempt to kiss her, but the rehearsal was far from satisfactory.

"Think, now," said the director, coaching her, "haven't you ever tried to stop a young man from kissing you?"

"No," was the girl's frank reply.—London Answers.

Modern Superciliousness.

"My ancestors came over in the Mayflower."

"Yes?" rejoined Miss Cumrox. "I understand that the fare was really quite low. But, gracious me, the boat must have been terribly overcrowded."—Washington Star.

WILSON'S MESSAGE TO U. S. CONGRESS

WOODROW PRODUCES HIS REPORT OF PEACE CONFERENCE ON HIS OWN TYPEWRITER.

(By Lowell Mellett.)

Aboard the U.S.S. George Washington, July 6.—(By Wireless to the United Press.)—President Wilson's message to Congress was practically completed to-day. Primarily, it is said to be a report to Congress on what has been done at Paris, together with a broad analysis of the world's situation following the conclusion of peace.

The President probably will explain the guarantees of permanent peace which have been enacted, as well as the manner in which the continued blockade assures Germany's observance of the terms imposed at Versailles.

It is also believed the message will outline economic factors necessary for American business men to consider. The President is not expected to attempt detailed explanations, leaving these for the departmental reports of the Peace Commission.

Observing his usual custom, the President has written the message on hidown typewriter.

TWO BIG SPECIAL FEATURES

"Good Night, Paul!" Constance Talmadge's latest Select Picture in which she is presented by Lewis J. Selznick in a screen adaption of the musical comedy success of the same name and directed by Walter Edwards, will be seen here to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Grand Theatre. It is a wholesome comedy-drama of the type this young, talented star is rapidly making her own, with the humor predominating; there is a laugh in every foot of film, heightened now and again by a moment of suspense or a thrilling situation.

The story hinges about the attempt of Matilda Landers (Constance Talmadge) to help her husband and his partner out of financial difficulties by proclaiming herself the partner's wife when his uncle arrives to give him $50,000 if he has married to perpetuate the family name. Uncle decides to stay on for a month, so Matilda has a triple job on her hands keeping the uncle in the dark, keeping the partner amiable, for he is a confirmed misogynist, and keeping "hubby" himself tractable under the trying circumstances.

Matilda succeeds, of course, and finally everyone is paired off satisfactorily and the culprits magnanimously forgiven; but the working out of the plot makes "Good Night, Paul!" picture a veritable bonanza of laughter.

Special added feature Priscilla Dean in "The Two Souled Woman."

Men are compelled to invent all kinds of things because they have no hair pins with which to work.

THE NUMEROUS GREAT PORTS OF JUGO SLAVIA —WHY ASK FOR FIUME?

(Ed. Note—This map is an exact reproduction from a map Europe in scale in 1912. Since that time the railroad was completed to Spalato and Trau—it is shown on the map as projected at that time.)

The well known treaty of London leaves to the Jugo Slavs sufficient natural outlets on the Adriatic, comprised in more than a dozen large ports and about 600 miles of coast line. The black arrows on the map indicate the principal ports, and among them we find Metcovic, which, with the other two ports of Gravosa and Ragusa furnish the natural passageway between the Adriatic and the Danube (via the valleys of the Narenta and the Bosna). The geographical center of the new Jugo Slav nation is at the city of Serajevo. The importance of these Jugo Slav ports is recognized in the treaty of London. Exclusive of Fiume, their commerce in 1912 surpassed fourteen million tons, or more than double that of Marseilles, the great port of Southern France. They are, therefore, quite sufficient for the needs of the Jugo Slavs.

"Canada is par Golf," Says Champion Evans

"Canadian golfers are keen as mint, but Canadian hospitality extract his breath," declared Charles ("Chick") Evans, Jr., amateur golf open champion golfer of the United States, after he had returned from the Hamilton and Westhorough (Mass.) Clubs. Canadian experts of these clubs had succeeded him to play his best to win, and them both clubs had made him a life member. Canada, in my opinion," he added, "is par golf."

Almost the world golf is interest began to center his golf ego to Canada to play for the benefit of the Canadian Red Cross. Other noted golfers who may go over are Jerome Travers, Oakmont, Jesse H. Vardon and Tilly E. Anderson. The three visiting Yanks will be entertained at Hamilton-on-the-Mountain Golf Club, Hamilton, Ont.

Canada has a string of well-planted golf courses from the Atlantic to the Pacific, ranging from children inches of St. Andrews-by-the-Sea on the Bay of Fundy to the Banff Springs Golf Club, Alberta, where the golfer can play his drives at an altitude of nearly a mile. Going further west he can play the Vancouver and Victoria golf clubs where the altitude is not far above the sea and where the golf always can play the world's golf greatest game. Every inch in the British Dominion is the "greatest golfing country" and the Japan current forecasts that there shall be no "opening drive" games.

This year will be the greatest in the history of Canada golf for there is to be an international golf tournament between the best of Canada's golf players and the United States at the Rosedale Golf Club, Toronto, Ont., August 16th and 17th. The tournament will be for the Willingdon Cup, donated by the Governor-General of Canada, Lord Willingdon, and will be played over the Rosedale course. The Canadian team will be chosen from the following: Chick Evans, Edward Ray, Jerome Travers, Walter Hagen, Jesse Guilford, Tilly Anderson, Jesse Sweetser, Robert Gardner, Francis Ouimet, Jock Hutchison, Walter Emery, Alex. Ross, Percy Barrett, Stanley Thompson, Jack Cummings, Jack Kerr, Mike Brady, Jack Arthur, Dr. Hunter, Dr. Gilmour, Dr. Ferguson, Dr. Hall, Dr. Bell, Dr. Hamilton, Dr. Wilson, Dr. Ross

THE R-34'S SUCCESS.

The eminently successful voyage across the Atlantic of the British dirigible R-34, which reached her destination at Mineola yesterday morning, is another long step forward in the history of aerial navigation. The big "blimp" made the trip, the largest non-stop voyage on record, without a mishap, although two storms were encountered, through which the dirigible safely passed. Members of the crew point out that it would have been possible to send warning of these storms, in which case they could have been avoided, which suggests the furnishing of reliable weather reports as a very desirable assistance to aerial navigators. In spite of the storms, however, the R-34 triumphantly completed her voyage, and tomorrow morning will start gaily back on the return trip across the ocean. Canadians will unite in congratulating Major Scott and the members of his gallant crew upon their remarkable exploit, which adds another glorious page to the record of British gallantry.

EQUALIZE THE PENSIONS.

The Government has doubtless not failed to notice that at the Dominion convention of the Great War Veterans' Association in Vancouver, the principle of equalizing the pension system of Canada so that there will be no difference based on the rank of the recipient was endorsed without a dissenting voice. This is a significant step because many of the delegates to the convention and many of the heads of the Veterans' Association were themselves officers, and yet there was not a word spoken in favour of the present system. Canada is supposed to be a democratic country, and while most people agree that it was proper to pay officers according to their rank, while they were serving, because in the army, as everywhere, those who have the responsibility should be rewarded, yet there are few that think that when officers and men return to civil life there is any justice in giving one man more pension than another because one happened to be a capsain and the other a private. The Government has already by means of the new bonus scheme, equalized the premium scale up to and including the rank of sergeant; there is no reason why they should have stopped with the three stripes. The great mass of the people, as well as practically all returned men, are against the present unfair, undemocratic system. The Government will continue to hear about this feeling until a change is made.

SEE CANADA FIRST.

The Commission of Conservation does well to remind the people of Canada that in planning their vacation trips they should consider well the advisability of seeing some of the wonders of their own country instead of making the annual exodus to the United States or elsewhere. Canada affords scenery and climatic conditions that are unsurpassed anywhere, and as "Conservation" remarks, "Many are the regrets over wasted summer vacations which might be avoided were less head paid to flowery advertisements of foreign resorts and more attention given to studying the advantages of our own country." Just as in Peterborough there are citizens who know very little of the beauties of Stoney Lake or some of the other splendid resorts in the immediate vicinity of the city, there are thousands of Canadians who have failed to become acquainted with their splendid country. Those of our citizens who have the means to travel would be acting wisely if, instead of visiting some of the widely advertised resorts across the border, they would embrace the opportunity of seeing Canada. The sea coasts of the East and West, the refreshing coolness of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the lovely fiords of British Columbia, the Kawartha Lakes, the lake district of Muskoka, the Rideau Lakes, as well as the awe-inspiring ranges of the Rockies and the Selkirks, are suggested as invitin[illegible] the angler after rest and quiet or the jaded traveller seeking further excitement.

THE POLISH TREATY.

One of the most practically valuable documents produced by the Peace Conference is the treaty just signed by representatives of Poland, the United States, France, Great Britain, Italy and Japan. Its immediate interest, of course, is due in part to the charges and counter-charges of racial hostility which have arisen from the contact of races in Poland; attention will be specially fixed on the guarantees of religious and cultural freedom to the Jews. But the significance of the treaty is much larger than that; it is to be used as a model for other treaties to cover the whole field of racial intermixture and antagonism in Eastern Europe. Every State which includes a large minority of some other race than the dominant one will sign a treaty of this sort, and if its stipulations are honoured one of the principal causes of war in the most prolific breeding-place of wars will be removed.

The guarantees which Poland gives to minority races—that is to say, to Jews, Ukrainians, Lithuanians, White Russians, and Germans resident in the territory acquired from the German Empire—make provision for what is called "cultural autonomy"—for the free exercise of religion and use of the mother tongue, for liberty of the press in languags not that of the State, and for religious and secular education in such languages. Minority races may maintain their own schools where their own culture is taught in their own language; and in districts where the population includes a considerable proportion of such races a proportionate amount of the State funds for educational purposes is allotted to them. All races and religions are to be equal before the law.

Coupled with these guarantees for the minority there are also guarantees for the majority. The Polish language is to be taught in all schools, even in those where most of the instruction is in Yiddish or Lithuanian or some other tongue. There is no concession to the unwise demand made by some Jewish leaders in Poland last winter for what would practically have amounted to political autonomy for the Jewish community, a State within a State. Poland is to be one nation with one official language, a nation in which the rights of racial minorities are protected, but in which all citizens of whatever race are supposed to be good Poles.

The assent of all the nationalities of Eastern Europe, new and old, to similar agreements will give the solemn pledge of every Government not to attempt campaigns of denationalisation against fragments of alien races unavoidably included within its borders; it will prevent such a keeping open of old wounds as eventually led to the downfall of Hungary. And as a corollary of this it will discourage too much desire for wide annexations, for it will be unprofitable for a Government to gather within its frontiers any larger percenage than is necessary of aliens whose religious, educational, and linguistic freedom it has promised to protect. The ideal is still to make the State as nearly as possible coincide with the frontiers of the nationality. This cannot be done, hence the need of such treaties; but it ought to be done so far as possible.

And an obligation is imposed on the members of the minority races. The boundaries will be drawn as accurately as possible, but some peoples must be left within alien States; their new Governments promise them equality of rights, including the right to the preservation of their racial consciousness, bu they demand in return a loyalty to the State. Poland could sign this agreement the more readily because here will almost certainly be some Poles left in other countries who will be protected by similar treaties; the group of treaties will be as much for reciprocal benefit as, say, the international copyright and postal laws. If the provisions of this agreement are loyally observed by Governments and peoples—both minority and majority—one of the most troublesome problems of Eastern Europe will have been sent far on the way to solution. — New York Times.

Bore and Caliber.

The bore of a shotgun is determined by the circumference of any one of a given number of lead balls of equal weight, the total weight of which is one pound. For instance, the circumference of the barrel of a ten bore shotgun is equal to the circumference of any one of ten lead balls of equal weight the total weight of which is one pound.

The caliber of a rifle is the diameter of the bore of the barrel measured in hundredths of an inch. The diameter of the bore of a 22 caliber rifle is thirty-two hundredths of an inch.—Philadelphia Press.

A Musical Tyrant.

Gluck as a conductor is said to have been an unmerciful tyrant. Frequently the musicians would have to repeat a passage twenty times before he was satisfied. The members of the Vienna court orchestra complained of this hard usage to the emperor, Joseph II., who appeased them by agreeing to give them 2 ducats instead of 1 ducat for every performance at which Gluck should conduct.

The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPS

HUNTING AN APARTMENT IN NEW YORK

CHAPTER IX.

I was so bewildered by New York, its size, the height of its buildings, that Neil considered it a great joke and laughted heartily at my funny remarks. We went to a small hotel quite a way up-town.

"We will start from here to look for an apartment," he had said. "I shall be able to go with you only tomorrow and Sunday. If we find nothing by Sunday night, you will have to keep up the search next week."

"Oh, we'll surely find something by then." The very thought of going about New York alone frightened me.

"We'll certainly try," Neil said, appreciating my feeling.

The next morning, as soon as we had eaten breakfast, Neil took the morning paper and marked several advertisements. Then he took the addresses of several real estate men further up-town.

"We shall have to go further than this to find something that suits my pocket book," he said.

"How much rent shall we pay, Neil?"

"We must find something for seventy-five or a hundred dollars at the most. We can't afford to go higher than that—now."

"We will surely find something very nice for that!" I exclaimed. "Why, Mrs. Chamberlain only pays twelve dollars a month for that lovely place you so admired."

"That is Huntington, this is New York. And we must live in a decent place. It looks badly for a man to live in a cheap locality."

There is a common belief that women are invariably to blame for a man's living beyond his means. That it is not always so—at least in the beginning, I am positive. I loved Neil so dearly, at this time, that I would have been happy had we lived in one room so long as we could be together. Had we done so, it might have been better for us both. Neil had a free way of spending, of handling money, that amazed me. He did not appear to think himself at all wasteful, however, or that he bought anything we did not need.

We tramped all day Saturday. Finally we found a perfectly charming little apartment of five rooms for $125 dollars a month.

"We'll take this," Neil told the agent.

"But Neil, you said"—

"I know, but one sometimes changes his mind. We'll save the difference in some way."

That was Neil's way. He hated to deny himself; but he always excused his extravagances by saying he "would save it some other way." As that way never seemed to arrive, I at first felt seriously worried. But, as I have said, I had no slightest idea of the real value of money. Where mother had been saving, I saved too. Now that I was where it was freely spent, I too soon learned to spend lavishly.

It is so easy to accommodate ourselves to the things which others do—so hard to stand alone.

We furnished our home slowly and carefully. Slowly because I would buy nothing without consulting Neil, although he had told me to go ahead—that I had good taste, and he would be satisfied with what I did. Carefully, because I soon found that if Neil did not like anything he tossed it aside with as little thought as he had shown in paying more rent than he had declared he could afford.

We had hired a general housework girl, but when I had objected to paying such large wages, Neil had silenced me by saying.

"We'll take what we can get now. If a deal I have on goes through, we'll have a cook and waitress."

A certain feeling of well being was engendered by such remarks—a feeling that no matter how much I spent, it was all right, or in some way would be all right. It was a continual discounting of the future, with no thought that that future might bring demands of its own, demands hard to meet.

"Mananna" meant nothing but good to Neil. Is it surprising that soon, very soon, it meant nothing but good to me? Our motto was: "Live for today. To-morrow will take care of itself."

TENDER GUMS —A WARNING

Beware of gum tenderness that warns of Pyorrhea. Four out of five people over forty have Pyorrhea—many under forty also. Loosening teeth indicate Pyorrhea. Bleeding gums, too. Remember—these inflamed, bleeding gums act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Forhan's positively prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. As it hardens the gums the teeth become firmer.

Brush your teeth with Forhan's. It cleans the teeth scientifically—keeps them white and clean.

If gum shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

ARCHIMEDES AND HIS LEVER.

The Feat of Raising the Earth From a Scientific Viewpoint.

"Give me a fulcrum and a place on which to stand and I will raise the earth from its place!" That is a saying popularly attributed to Archimedes. If the required conditions were possible the feat might be performed, but in addition to providing a fulcrum and a place on which to stand Archimedes would also have to be furnished an indefinite lease of life.

To raise the earth a height of one inch by the force which Archimedes would have been capable of exerting would take not only an extremely long lever, but an extremely long time, as can be readily shown.

We shall assume the following data in our calculation: That the earth is a sphere 7,926 miles in diameter and that 5.5 is its mean density; also that the lever has no weight. Should we design a real lever it would be of such enormous size and weight that Archimedes' weight would be a negligible quantity.

If the earth is 7,926 miles in diameter the volume is about 261,000,000,000 cubic miles, or 23,400,000,000,000,000,000,000 cubic feet, and if the density is 5.5 the weight per cubic foot would be about 344 pounds, which multiplied by the volume would give as the weight of the earth 13,200,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 pounds. We shall assume, further, that Archimedes weighed 150 pounds and that "the place on which to stand" was some distant star; then, if the fulcrum is one mile from the point of application of the lever to the earth the length of the power arm of the lever, or the distance of Archimedes' "standing place," would have to be 88,064,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles.

To move the earth a distance of one inch Archimedes' end of the lever would have to move through a distance of 1,388,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles. Now, if Archimedes should take hold of the end of the lever and apply his weight of 150 pounds to it and should move off into space with the velocity of light, or 186,000 miles a second, it would take him 237,000 years to finish the job he proposed, so that now, nearly 2,200 years after making the famous dictum, he would barely have started the undertaking.—C. O. Sandstrom in Scientific American.

Wellington's Coolness.

The Duke of Wellington was one day sitting at his library table when the door opened and without any announcement in stalked a figure of singularly ill omen.

"Who are you?" asked the duke in his short and dry manner, looking up without the slightest change of countenance upon the intruder.

"I am Apollyon. I am sent here to kill you."

"Kill me? Very odd."

"I am Apollyon and must put you to death."

"'Pliged to do it today?"

"I am not told the day or the hour, but I must do my mission."

"Very inconvenient; very busy; great many letters to write. Call again or write me word. I'll be ready for you."

The duke then went on with his correspondence. The maniac, appalled probably by the stern, immovable old gentleman, backed out of the room and in half an hour was in an asylum.

THINK A MINUTE

WHAT is your doctor's first question? Why does he suspect constipation?

Because 90% of his patients are suffering from ailments caused directly or indirectly by the action of poisons formed in a sluggish intestinal tract.

These body poisons are absorbed by the blood and carried all over the body until the weakest organ, unable to withstand the poisonous contact, becomes infected and refuses to act properly. Unfortunately it is usually not until then that the doctor is consulted and asked to treat the diseased organ.

The surest way of purifying the blood and preventing the formation of these destructive body poisons is to prevent stagnation of food waste in the intestinal tract—to prevent constipation.

Constipation is not a matter to be taken lightly or neglected. Nor is it either sufficient or safe to take castor oil, pills, salts, mineral waters, etc., in order to "force" bowel action. Such action does not cure constipation, it makes constipation a habit.

Nujol is entirely different from drugs as it does not force or irritate the bowels. Nujol prevents stagnation by softening the food waste and encouraging the intestinal muscles to act naturally, thus removing the cause of constipation and self-poisoning. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Unnecessary Alarm.

When Frederick the Great, at the beginning of the Seven Years' war, was in possession of Dresden he went to view the works of art in the royal picture gallery. The gallery director, Heidel, took the king through all the rooms and explained each picture as they went along. Frederick expressed his unreserved admiration for all the pictures, but when he came before a certain painting by Correggio he stopped, viewing it with particular interest.

"If you are willing," he said suddenly, "I should like to have that picture"—

Heidel gasped, for he expected the king to say that he wished the picture for himself. But the king noticed his anxiety and, striking him on the shoulder, said, laughing:

The Home Circle

HINTS FOR WIVES.

Perchance you think that your husband's disposition is much changed; that he is no longer the sweet-tempered ardent lover he used to be. This may be a mistake. Consider his struggle with the world—his everlasting race with busy competition of trade. What is it that makes him so eager in the pursuit of gain—so energetic by day, so sleepless by night—but his love of home, wife and children, and a dread that their respectability, according to the light in which he has conceived it, may be encroached upon by the strife of existence. This is the true secret of that silent care which preys upon the hearts of many men; and true it is that when love is least apparent, it is nevertheless the active principle which animates the heart, though fears and disappointments make up a cloud which obscures the warmer element. As above the clouds there is a glorious sunshine while below are showers and gloom, so with the conduct of man—behind the gloom of anxiety there is a bright fountain of high and noble feeling. Thinking of this in those moments when clouds seem to lower upon your domestic peace and by tempering your conduct accordingly, the gloom will soon pass away and warmth and brightness take its place.

* * *

It isn't enough to believe that "every cloud has a silver lining," and then sit down and wait for the lining to reveal itself. We can, if we will, take the X-ray of determination and pierce the cloud and find its bright side.

* * *

If you have an idea that you are too good for a picked up dinner, remain a bachelor.

* * *

To make home happy is an art—an art a good many people have either lost or never found.

* * *

The boys on the farm are better off if they only knew it, than thousands of the boys who are at large wandering hither and thither, searching and looking for "rich bonanzas" to turn up. There is nothing like being practical and there is but one way to be so. Acquire business habits and train yourself to do good, honest, hard work. Don't waste your time learning to tie a cravat. You can buy cravats already tied.

* * *

A boy can help clear away after a meal, sweep the floor, polish the stove, or wash the dishes, just as effectively as a girl. He, as a rule, is stronger. He will love his home more, and when he becomes a man, and has a home of his own, he will respect his wife all the more for having been taught to respect his mother and sisters.

* * *

Every boy is going to have a confidante, some one to whom he can tell his secrets and whisper his hopes and ambitions which he would not breathe to others, says Orison Sweet Marden in "Success Magazine." We take it for granted that his mother will stand nearer to him than any other person, but every boy will have some male friend who will stand in a peculiar relation to him. This friend, this confidante, should be his father. You cannot afford to have your boy feel that you are too busy or too indifferent to tell him how to fly his kite or bait his hook or make a toy or to play games with him. If you begin early enough, it is comparatively easy for you to gain your boy's confidence. From infancy he should grow up to feel that no one else can take your place; that you stand in a peculiar relation to him, which no one else can fill.

One of our great men says that one of the most unfortunate phases of modern civilisation is the drift away from the farm, the drift of the country youth to the city which has an indescribable fascination for him. His vivid imagination clothes it with Arabian Nights possibilities and joys. The country seems tame and commonplace after his first dream of the city. To him it is synonymous with opportunity, with power, with pleasure. He can not rid himself of its fascination until he tastes its emptiness. He can not know the worth of the country and how to appreciate the glory of its advantages and opportunities until he has seen the shallowness and sham of the city.

* * *

Our men of wealth and influence did not start with any cash capital. They went to work with their plough, the hoe, the jack plane or axe, and in time their capital brought them a rich harvest. Ah! but there's the rub; you don't want to work. You want money on credit to you can play the gentleman, associate, and end your career by playing vagabond. You want to marry a rich girl who will support you, while you wear fine clothes, smoke cigars, and be a gentleman of leisure.

NEGLECTED PRIVILEGE.

Prayer is the soul's sincere desire,
Uttered or expressed,
The motion of a hidden fire,
That trembles in the breast.
Prayer is the burden of a sigh,
The falling of a tear,
The upward glancing of an eye,
When none but God is near.
Prayer is the simplest form of speech
That infant lips can try;
Prayer the sublimest strains that reach
The Majesty on high.
Prayer is the contrite sinner's voice
Returning from his ways,
While angels in their songs rejoice,
And cry "Behold, he prays."
Prayer is the Christian's vital breath,
The Christian's native air;
His watchword at the gates of death,
He enters Heaven by prayer.
Oh, thou by whom we come to God,
The life, the truth, the way,
The path of prayer thyself hast trod,
Lord, teach us how to pray.

"Having regard to the necessity of avoiding industrial disturbances, and with a view to ensuring more stable relations and a better understanding between employers and employed, my advisers intend to summon in the early future a representative conference for friendly and intimate discussion of such questions and for the consideration of the report of Industrial Relations Commission and of proposals therein set forth."

FRANK PEARSON WAS KILLED AT OMEMEE STATION

YOUNG SOLDIER, WOUNDED EIGHT TIMES, CAUGHT BETWEEN CARS.

Pte. Frank Pearson, son of Mr. John Pearson, of Haliburton, formerly of Lindsay, was killed at Omemee Station while engaged as brakeman on Conductor McElroy's freight train. The sad news has cast a gloom over the entire town, as the young soldier was well and favourably known in Lindsay.

The late Frank Pearson was one of the first to enlist in the Canadian service with the 45th Regiment, of Victoria County, under the late Colonel F. Holmes Hopkins, and he has served over four years at the Front, returning about two months ago. His untimely death is particularly sad because of the fact that he passed through all the big engagements in France and Belgium, and was wounded eight times. He returned with his fellow-comrades, rejoicing and jubilant, and was given a hearty reception home again.

He is survived by several brothers, all of whom took up the challenge to defend King and Country. They are: Captain Al. Pearson and Captain Bob Pearson of Y.M.C.A. fame; Pte. Jack Pearson, and Russell Pearson, of Toronto; Sergt. William Pearson, of Portland, Ore., who fought with the American soldiers, and another brother in Portland, Oregon. The sisters are: Mrs. Kenny Lane and Miss Mayette Pearson, of Portland, Oregon; Mrs. (Capt.) Oscar Pearson, of Toronto; and Mrs. Grant Yarnold, of Haliburton. The young lad is also mourned by his father, Mr. John Pearson.

The late Frank Pearson had been making for one month only, drawing his first pay cheque on 1st July.

"I looks as if this rain will clear up the whole situation," said Sec. W. H. Mound.

NO NEED TO SEND TROOPS TO RUSSIA

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, July 5.—In the British House of Commons there was a scene like those which frequently occurred in the "suffragette" days during the debate after the Premier's speech. A woman in the gallery shouted: "There is no need to send men to Russia. The war is over."

Attendants carried her out struggling and crying that her son was being sent to Russia.

Another woman took up the cry, and while she was being dragged out, two men had a fist fight. The galleries were then cleared.

MAY BECOME THE DIVORCE CENTRE OF THE CONTINENT

(Special to the Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 7.—Winnipeg may become a rival of Reno, Nevada as the divorce centre of the continent, if plans outlined for a [illegible]. Every effort will be made, it is said to give relief to couples whose married life is a torture, but no consideration will be given to persons who merely are troubled with fickle minds.

Mode of procedure will follow that of English courts, based on the divorce act of 1857, as amended from time to time by the Imperial Parliament. Under this act there are eight specified reasons for divorce as follows infidelity, desertion, habitual cruelty, drunkenness, non support, lunacy, child murder, and attempted child murder.

There are hundreds of applications coming in.

FAREWELL SERMON IN MARK STREET

The retiring pastor of Mark Street Methodist Church, Rev. Mr. Whattam, tendered his farewell sermon on Sunday, 6th July, to the congregation, after four years' successful pastorate. His scripture lesson for the evening discourse was the passage on "Charity," found in Phillipians 1, 27: "Let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ, that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind, striving together for the faith of he gospel."

Rev. Mr. Whatam spoke feelingly on the accomplishments during his pastorate with the congregation, which had succeeded only through prayer and striving together for the faith of the gospel.

Sunken Eyes Brighten Quickly, Health Returns

In a Message to Ailing Women Doctor Hamilton Tells How it is Done.

In speaking of the ills from which women suffer, Dr. Hamilton points out that nine out of every ten women are by nature inclined to habitual constipation. Harsh purgatives are resorted to which only intensify the trouble. Although not generally known, it is a constipated condition of the bowels that causes half the sickness and tired weariness with which all womankind is so familiar. It was after long years of study that Dr. Hamilton perfected the Pills which have been of such marvellous benefit to women the world over. In his pills of Mandrake and Butternut every sufferer will find an absolute specific for constipation, sick headache and biliousness. It is safe to say that Dr. Hamilton's Pills bring better health and keep the system in a more vigorous condition than any other medicine ever discovered. At all dealers, 25c and 50c.

WON COMMISSION IN BRITISH NAVY

SUB-LIEUTENANT V. J. CORKERY IS HOME AFTER LONG SERVICE IN NORTH SEA AND MEDITERRANEAN.

Sub-Lieutenant Vincent Corkery of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, and son of Mr. John Corkery, deputy-postmaster in Peterboro, returned home yesterday after four years' service in the navy. When the admiralty invited the enlistment of Canadians as naval recruits, Lieutenant Corkery was accountant in the Parry Sound branch of the Bank of Ottawa. After a period of training he began active work with the fleet and for a time was engaged with the mine layers and sweepers in the North Sea. Afterwards he was transferred to the escort which convoyed troops, munitions, and food across the channel. Towards the close of the war Lieut. Corkery won his commission and was sent from the channel route to the Mediterranean. His experiences in those waters included a voyage through the Dardanelles, and up the Danube to Belgrade, where there were Bolshevist troubles after the armistice.

Lieutenant Corkery was reticent about his work and adventures, but remarked that there had been many exciting incidents especially in the Channel and North Sea when the submarines were active.

DEVELOPE MINING INDUSTRY IN HASTINGS

Meeting Held to Discuss the Situation—Cheaper Power.

Mr. J. Walter Evans, of Belleville, before a meeting of the Hastings County branch of the Canadian Mining Institute, held in Belleville, suggested that electric power at $10.00 a horse-power be secured for the smelting industries of Hastings district.

The Ontario Government will be asked to grant 25,000 horse-power at $10.00 per horse-power per year for two years until the smelting industry in Hastings district is on its feet, and as a price of $15.00 per horse-power a year could be given.

Mr. Evans stated that the steel industry was the backbone of every country where iron ores are to be had, and when the ores are refractory it is up to the country which wishes to advance to find the means of treatment. It is up to the Government of Canada to assist in the development of the iron ore bodies.

With a bonus of $3.00 per ton and a market at hand, there will not be trouble in securing two hundred tons of ore per day, and it would be a very short time before there would be room for a second 200-ton plant and a demand for another 25,000 horse-power.

THE HUNTER STREET REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

The largest audience that has yet attended the services of the Union Evangelistic Campaign, bein conducted in the big tent on Hunter street, was present last night when the tent was crowded to overflowing. From start to finish the meeting was full of interest and at the close ten went forward and made a confession of Christ. These make about thirty-five conversions that have been recorded to date and this week it is expected will see a marked increase in the number. The musical features last evening included a duet by Miss Succee and Miss D. Rathbone, which were very effective, and a solo by Mr. Mulligan. Mr. Mulligan's work in leading the singing of the hymns is proving quite a feature of the campaign. This evening the singing will be led by the members of the Mark street church choir. To-morrow evening the members of Trinity church choir will direct the singing.

Evangelist H. D. Kennedy chose as his subject last evening, "Chickens Come Home to Roost." He preached a powerful sermon on the text, "Be sure your sin will find you out." By reference to numerous Bible characters he showed how attempts to cover over sin were later exposed and punishment followed. In addition he told numerous incidents from everyday life to prove that the same law works to-day as it has worked through the ages. One telling point he made was that people's actions are recorded in their own memories and that when the day of judgment comes all the Lord will need to do will be to examine the memories of those who stand before Him to obtain a complete record of all the actions of their lives.

Subject To-night.

This evening the subject will be: "The Easiest Way to be Saved." To-morrow night's service will take the form of a Hallelujah Supper, to which no one needs to bring any baskets. At the close of the Saturday evening service Christians present were invited to bear testimony to the fact that they knew they were saved. A great many did so.

Yesterday a special announcement was made in a number of the Sunday schools of the city, inviting the teachers and pupils of 'teen age classes to attend this evening's service. The address will be one appropriate for young people, but with a message for older people as well. Splendid meetings are expected throughout the balance of this week. It is not known at present just now long the campaign will last, as if the interest increases it may be extended past next Sunday night.

No sin is worth the price we pay for it.

Repentance is never easy, and each day it is put off it becomes harder.

No man in his natural state can love God or hate sin.

What ever be the death, that is the penalty for sin, that death Christ died.

Death did not choose Christ. He had not broken the law; He could not. He chose death.

All other men came into the world to live. He came to die for others.

All sin upon repenance is made as though it had not been.

Nothing gives God more delight than to pardon the ungodly when he takes the sinner's place before Him.

There is nothing man fears as much as life. Add to that the word eternal, the penalty of sin.

There is nothing man loves as much as life. Ad dto that the word eternal, the Christian's reward.

"The gift of God is etenal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Any [illegible] who is eternally lost, is lost because he chooses death rather than God's gift, which is life.

Christ's death did not make God love us—it was the outcome of God's love.

The extent of Christ's obedience was shown on the cross. The extent of Christ's obedience was that it sent Him there.

God looks at the principle, not the amount of sin.

Conscience is not a safe guide. The men who killed Christ obeyed their conscience.

Paul, before his conversion said, — "I verily thought I ought to persecute the church."

It does not matter what your conscience says. If God's word says a thing is wrong, then you must not do it.

Our one business in this world is to obey God.

Your conscience is only a safe guide, when controlled by God's word and God's spirit.

Subject for Monday night, "The Easiest Way to be Saved."

To Overcome Redness Tan, Freckles, Blotches

If your skin is unduly reddened, tanned or freckled, just dab a little pure mercolized wax on the face and allow it to remain over night. When you wash off the wax in the morning fine, flaky, almost invisible particles of cuticle come with it, Repeating this daily the entire outer skin is absorbed, but so gradually and gently there's not the slightest hurt or inconvenience. Even the stubbornest freckles are affected. The underlying skin which forms the new complexion is so clear, fresh and youthful-looking, you'll marvel at the transformation. It's the only thing known to actually discard an aged fded, muddy or blotchy complexion. One ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any drugstore, is sufficient in most cases.

THE PARENTS' INTEREST IN MUSIC.

Many parents begin their musical education when the children start their music lessons and fill the home with the sound of voices, violins and pianos. The classical studies are always more than mere exercises for the fingers. They have musical phrases, melodies, harmonies, that are very much better than the so-called music which the musically uneducated parent is familiar with. The little pieces which first the children play usually awaken in the parents a strange and novel interest in music. The growth of this parental interest in music keeps pace with the advancing skill of the child. No doubt the children often educate their parents.

"DAY WILL COME WHEN GERMANY WILL THANK GOD FOR WHAT ALLIES HAVE DONE," SAID SPEAKER

PEACE THANKSGIVING SERMON IN KNOX CHURCH BY THE REV. A. H. M'CONNACHIE.

The day will come when Germany will thank God for what the Allies have done", declared Rev. A. H. McConnachie of Centreville, in the course of a Peace Thanksgiving sermon in Knox Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening. Militarism had been wiped out of Germany, and by the abolition of conscription, seven million men would be released for production which would mean enrichment for the nation. It had been computed, the preacher said, that the abolition of conscription in Germany would save the nation two thousand millon dollars a year.

While Germany would never be able to pay her debt to the world and humanity, she would be made pay to the limit of her power.

The preacher made a strong arraignment against Germany, and discounted the pleadings of the nation for terms of justice, as being the appeals of a people not chastened by war. The appeals that were being made, were the appeals of a nation in the hour of defeat. Germany was not repentan. Had she been dictating the peace terms, the terms would have been ten times more severe on the world than those imposed by the Allies, on Germany.

The indictment against Germany was the blackest charge ever made against any nation in the history of the world. Seven millions dead, twenty millions maimed and broken, who would carry the scars of war to the end of their lives. And Germany cried for justice. She would receive justice but in the words of Premier Clemenceau, justice would be for all. There must be justice for ravaged Belgium, justice for little Servia, who had lost a million of her population, a nation whose children were now crying for food. Their must be justice for all other nations who had suffered by reason of the war that Germany hd brought on, all because of her mad wish to become mistress of the world.

The preacher said that many people had taken Peace as a matter of course, following the armistice, and the feeling of thanksgiving was not strongly in evidence. There was also the feeling that there was no peace, because of the petty warfare among the older nations of Europe, and domestic differences elsewhere. But one thing had been accomplished for which there should be sincere thanksgiving. From out of the war, there had come the foundation upon which real peace could be built.

It was announced that the preacher for next Sunday would be the Rev. Orr Bennett of Ottawa.

THE REV. J. F. CHAPMAN'S INITIAL APPEARANCE AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

WAS FORMALLY INTRODUCED TO THE OFFICIALS OF THE CHURCH —A PRESENTATION.

Large congregations listened to two eloquent sermons by Rev. J. F. Chapman at St. James' Methodist Church yesterday. Rev. Mr. Chapman, formerly of Greenbank, Ontario, succeeds Rev. Benjamin Greatrix, the former pastor, who has been superannuated after a long period of Christian service.

Rev. Mr. Greatrix was made the recipient of a purse of gold ($200.00) and an illuminated address last Friday evening by the congregation of St. James'. At the same time Rev. Mr. Chapman, B.A., B.D., who succeeds Mr. Greatrix at St. James', was formally introduced to the officials of the church and the keys handed over to him by the retiring minister. In a short speech, Mr. Chapman thanked the congregation, and mentioned the good work of Mr. Greatrix whom he has known for a great many years.

Evening Service.

At the evening service the minister took the text of his discourse from the 22nd chapter of Genesis, where it tells of the call that God made to Abraham to sacrifice his only son. The speaker dealt with the three great characters of the Old Testament as they are seen in modern life. Abraham, the faithful, the greatest character, stands out as the exponent of unswerving and loyal faith; and here Mr. Chapman made a vigorous stand for active Christianity to-day. He told the story of the old days when the stage coach was the principal means of conveyance and how the passengers were classified as first, second, or third class, according to the size of their fares. One coach came to a very steep hill, and the coachman ordered the first-class passengers to sit still, the second-class passengers to get out and walk, and the third-class passengers to get out and push. Abraham was one of those who got out and pushed, and Isaac his son was likened unto those who sat still and were content- like some of the churchgoers to-day.

The Phillistines, the other prominent characters in the Bible, who were always in active opposition to every good movement, might be seen in the critics of to-day, who work very little.

A Great Character.

Abraham will always be known as the greatest character in the Old Testament for his unswerving faith, and his son Isaac, the weak, partially indifferent, will always be known as one of the Patriarchs, instead of any great good he might have done. The Phillistines will be remembered as those who stood in active opposition of that which is good.

The Voice of God.

Mr. Chapman stated that he believed God spoke in the old days to the people as He does to-day, only that He speaks more clearly now because we live in a new dispensation, the dispensation of the Son of God. He told of Abraham's great faith, how he tore himself away from idolatry and went out to free himself from the tangles of the worship of images. He went out on uncharted seas, and Mr. Chapman pictured the great difficulties which must have beset him and how strong his faith must have been.

The crowning event of Abraham's life was the call to sacrifice his son Isaac, made by God, although God had told Abraham that his seed would be as the sand upon the seashore, and Isaac was his only son. But Abraham never faltered in his faith, and he placed his son on the altar. Then came the voice of God, and the ram which was caught in the thicket by the horns which God told Abraham to use instead of his son, was offered up as a sacrifice.

"Many ask why Abraham would sacrifice his son," said the speaker. "But human sacrifices were common in those days." He told how the Hindu women threw their babes into the Ganges. "Did they get a call from God? Would to God we were half as earnest as they."

Mr. Chapman predicted a great change in the world when India, China, Japan, and Africa are brought to Christianity. Then missionaries from these countries will tell us of real sacrifice, and our missionaries will tell them the Western view of the Truth.

Mr. Chapman had the honour of sitting next to the chief representative of Japan at the Peace Conference, and he spoke of the man's great stand for moral truths as we understand them.

A Mistake.

Abraham's one great mistake was when he told a deliberate falsehood in Egypt. There is a great contrast betwen Abraham and hs son Isaac. Isaac would not be a great man in the Church to-day. He was not like John Knox of Scotland, who worked and suffered as a galley slave eighteen long years because of his religion. Isaac would not have been a reformer. He would have been only one of those good men. He was like Erasmus, the friend of Luther, who wanted to take a middle course in the Reformation because he was afraid that the movement was going to be unpopular. To-day Erasmus is almost forgotten, but Luther's name stands out as the great man of the centuries.

PETERBOROUGH MAN AWARDED CONTRACT

"If you want to get a thing well done get an expert to do it." Such was in all likelihood the decision of the chief contractor and engineer for the large new plant of the Hastings Tanning Company, Limited, now nearing completion, when recently awarding an important sub-contract for electrical installation. Among the various estimates received was one from Mr. Arthur Ash, the electrical contractor of this city. Mr. Ash had on a previous occasion, been entrusted with a similar work in Campbellford, which, it appears, was executed in so satisfactory and expert a manner that enabled him to secure this additional contract in Hastings. The work will consist of the installation of the large electric motors and lighting system for this extensive new tannery plant, which will likely extend well into the fall.

It is not a good plan to try to cook a small quantity of anything in a fireless cooker, because it will not retain the heat.

MACHINISTS HAVE NEW BUILDING AT WASHINGTON NOW

(International Machinists' Association.

The tremendous growth in membership of the organization during the past few years has continually increased the work of the Grand Lodge, and makes more room necessary. In fact, the Executive work has been hampered and delayed as a result of limited office space. No more room could be secured in the American Federation of Labor building. Consequently, the work of the Grand Lodge has had to continue under these disadvantages. Therefore, upon completion of this new building it will help to give a more efficient service between the three hundred and twenty thousand members, represented by over thirteen hundred local lodges and one hundred district lodges, all of which have considerable routine, as well as special, business to do with the Grand Lodge.

This building will be on a corner lot; in fact, it is one of the very best locations in the City of Washington, directly opposite the A. F. of L. Building, which will make it convenient for all work with the other organizations located here. It will be a modern seven-story building, up to-date in every way. The sixth and seventh floors will be entirely occupied by the International Association of Machinists. The other floors will be rented, which will bring in a good return on the money invested. Already the demand for office room in the new building is evidence that all space for rent will be taken before the building is ready to occupy.

The ground was broken and the steam shovel started excavating April 3, 1919. The steel girders are now day by day being swung into place. In fact, the Contractors agree to have the building ready to occupy by October 1. The date for the laying of the corner-stone has not as yet been definitely decided. It will, however, probably be some time during the month of July.

Special attention will be given the plans for this demonstration; invitations will be sent to representatives of the other organizations as well as our own. The Executive Board endorsed the suggestion that Brother Michael Riley, a Charter Member of Atlanta, Georgia Lodge, No. 1, organized May 5, 1888, and who has been in continuous good standing these thirty-one years, now a member of Manchester, Georgia, Lodge 640, be brought to Washington for the dedication of the building. The presence of this Brother will be a living expression of our thirty-one years of consistent and determined growth.

Now when a campaign of organization is started in a shop where machinists work, it is not only a privilege but a tremendous advantage that all they have to do is join the militant, progressive International Association of Machinists. This puts at their immediate service the experiences, the combined thought and wisdom of all the members during these thirty-one years. This does not mean to imply that the struggle to improve the conditions of the working people is finished; far from it. This struggle must continue as long as the wage system remains. For that very reason every organized machinist should realize what an advantage and help this new headquarters and office building will be to the future of our organization. Considering the fact that no outside donation will be taken this building will be bought and paid for by ourselves. Every district and local lodge and every individual member will have the opportunity to be a part owner.

EVERYDAY READING

A man, with whom I have fellowship, according to I John. 1-7, informed me that a certain individual had said to him that "I did not amount to much, that I did not believe in hell." It is true I do not amount to much, and well I know it. In regard to the rest of his statement, I have said, and now most emphatically reiterate, "that reason, the Scripture and any revelation the Holy Spirit, have not taught me that that awful dogma of the so-called church is true, namely "eternal torment," It is the old lie of the father of lies, the soul that sinneth shall not die. The Scriptures are perverted, when men make them to say, "the wages of sin is not death, but is life in eternal torment.. Religious leaders and their followers, talk with a flippancy, coolness, and an apparent carelessness, of eternal torment, as if it was something of an ordinary nature., when it is the most horrid, revolting idea, that could enter the mind of man. Man is mortal and God is immortal. There are four passages in the New Testament relating to immortality: 1 Tim. 1-17; 1 Tim. 6-16; 2 Tim. 1-10; 1 Cor. 15, 53 and 54. These Scripture references are plain as to what immortality pertains. I have failed to find in the Scriptures that the soul of man is immortal. In fact the word soul, in most cases, probably would be better translated life, as in Matt. 16-26. Immortality is found in Jesus, Rom. 2, 7; John 17, 2, 3; John 10, 28; 8, 24; 6, 27; and it is the free gift of God to man. I am not now writing to open any controversy, being only desirous of combatting error, preaching the truth and exalting Jesus, the life giver. I am quite convinced the preaching eternal torment will not lead men to repentance. The Scriptures tell us that the goodness of God does. I think it was Irving, when visiting a dying boy, only uttered the words, "my boy, God loves you." The truth was believed and received and he was at peace. How can men preach the truth if they have not accepted the same? How persuade men to receive Jesus, if they have not received Him themselves?

Questioning, enquiring ones, I close by giving you the Scriptural injunction: " Dilligently hearken to the voice of the Lord, thy God." The Holy Spirit is the revealer of Jesus, and Jesus is the one, who by the Holy Spirit will be the answer to all your questionings. He will be your sufficiency and will bring rest into your life.

BIRDSEYE VIEW OF FIUME, THE DISPUTED PORT AND THE TERRITORY SURROUNDING IT

This map will be of interest to all readers at this time, as it shows the location of the disputed city of Fiume and the district of the same name that surrounds it.

The Istrian Peninsula is ceded to Italy—the dotted line giving the boundary of Italy as outlined by the Treaty of London and the terms of the Armistice with the defeated Austrians.

It will be noted that Croatia is well provided with ports other than Fiume. This map gives you a very fair view and a correct idea of the lay of the land. It is said that the Jugo Slav Republic hopes to be one of the finest natural harbors in Europe and capable of unlimited development at minimum expense.

The numerous harbors and small towns along the Adriatic coast of Croatia, as shown here, clearly refute the statement that if Jugo Slavia was not given Fiume she would be without outlet on the Adriatic.

The statistics of the pre-war times show that on exports Fiume was never the first or second port of the entire Austrian Empire, while Trieste, Pola and Zara were always among the leaders. Fiume's importance was due entirely to the fact that she was the only channel by which Hungary could reach the sea. Fiume has always been a Hungarian port, and Hungary has always been her best customer. Before the war Hungary sent to Fiume for export 85 per cent of her total exports, and received for import 75 per cent of her total imports. Fiume's trade with Hungary was more than twice as great as with Austria, and more than three times as great as with Italy. Fiume's trade with Austria was only one-third as great as with Hungary.

Fiume's trade with Italy was only one-fifth as great as with Hungary. Fiume's trade with Germany was only one-fourth as great as with Hungary. RUSSELL-TOWNSEND CO. WILL MAKE LAST APPEAL TO COUNCIL

SUPPORTING THEIR TENDER FOR THE HUNTER STREET BRIDGE —NO PERCENTAGE BASIS.

Mr. Chas. Townsend of the Russell-Townsend Company, who is in the city to-day, stated that he hopes to receive another hearing from the Council to-night in a final effort to convince them that the company's tender is in all respects the most advantageous to the citizens.

"I have wondered," Mr. Townsend remarked, "whether the ratepayers fully realize the nature of our tender. We are not asking a percentage, and therefore it should not be thought that we would try to increase the cost of the bridge. Some ratepayers not fully acquainted with the facts might imagine that the more the bridge costs the more profit there would be for us. The fact is that we have offered our services as engineers and contractors, together with our plant, for $28,000, and our tender is for the cost of the bridge, plus that sum. We have estimated the total at $229,600, and we never go back on our first tenders. We are confident that the work can be done for that sum.

The ratepayers will understand that it would be to our advantage to complete the work as quickly as possible, for the reason that our commission is the same, no matter how long the work would continue. And it is to our interests to endeavour to reduce the cost below our tender if we found it possible."

Mr. Townsend stated that his company would not have displayed the interest they have shown in the Peterborough bridge had it not been for the fact that they are eager to build the long span. And obtaining the contract it would be necessary that their record on the bridge would have to be a good one for the very reason that the structure will be an outstanding one in Canada. In Mr. Russell, the company offered the city an expert on foundation work, who was consulted by the Dominion and Ontario Governments in difficult undertakings. Mr. Townsend previously mentioned his experience as a bridge contractor. He added that he failed to understand how the Council should be ready to spend $286,000 of their own and the people's money when they had to $228,000 bid. He remarked that the integrity of the Russell-Townsend Company was a guarantee in itself that they would give their best efforts to limit the cost of the bridge even below their tender.

VICTIMS OF HUN BRUTALITY

How Allied Soldiers Suffered When They First Experienced the Horrors of Kaiser's Poison Gas.

Suddenly a great cry rang out: "The gas!"

It was true. Over there from the enemy's lines, came great greenish balls, rolling close to the earth, rolling deliberately yet swiftly, rolling straight toward us, Emmanuel Bourcier writes in Scribner's. Gas! That horrible thing, still almost unknown, which had been used for the first time only recently on the Yser. It was coming with deadly surety amidst a tornado of artillery. Orders were shouted back and forth:

"The gas! Put on the masks!"

Each man spread over his face the protecting cloth. The shelters were closed. The telephone, whose wires ran the length of the communication trenches, gave the warning: "Look out! The gas!"

We did not yet know what manner of horror it was. None of us had experienced an attack of the sort. We ran to and fro like ants whose hill has been molested. Some fired their guns at random, others awaited orders. The frightful, vivid thing came on, expanded to a cloud, crept upon us, glided into the trenches. The air was quickly obscure. We were swimming in an atmosphere stained a venomous color, uncanny, indescribable. The sky appeared greenish, the earth disappeared. The men staggered about and rolled on the ground, stifled. There were some knots of soldiers who had been asleep in their beds when overtaken by the gas. They writhed in convulsions, with vitals burning, with froth on the lips, calling for their mothers or cursing the Germans. We gathered them up as best we could; we took them to the doctors, who, thus confronted by an unknown condition, found themselves powerless. They tried the application of oxygen and ether in an effort to save the lives of the victims, only to see them die, already decomposed, in their hands.

The masks had not yet been perfected and were a poor protection. Some ran about like madmen, shrieking in terror, the throat choked with saliva, and fell in heaps, in contortions of agony. Some filled the mouth with handfuls of grass and struggled against asphyxiation.

How It Happened.

"How did the accident happen?" asked the sympathetic friend.

"Well, I'll tell you," replied the man on crutches. "The automobile was going pretty fast, and all of a sudden we struck a wet place on the asphalt and there was a noise, and the doctor said, 'He'll be able to be around in about four weeks.'"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Family Traits.

"If there's anything I enjoy," said Mr. Higgins, "it's gamming around in cutting clothes like a boy scout in the afternoon and learning the new dances in the evening."

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne; "isn't it remarkable how many parents nowadays take after their children."—Washington Star.

PUSHED UPON THE MAP.

A Service Rendered Newfoundland by the Flying Men.

One of the less appreciated effects of a news service that conquers distance is the sudden entry of unknown spots into the knowledge and conversation of men by the million. Hawker and Grieve and the Americans on our NC's chose by the merest accidents of topography certain airplane fields in Newfoundland; and within three days little towns previously unknown beyond their own horizons were being read of and talked about in New York and London, Seattle, Shanghai and Sydney. With telephones, cables, and radio stations feeding facts into a daily press that penetrates the ends of the earth the news of the day can take the name of a little gray fishing hamlet, an inconspicuous French hill, a way station on the Trans-Siberian and spread it in black and white before the reading multitudes of six continents.

And by what haphazard chances some of the bestknown points on the maps, both ancient and modern, have come into recognition. The happenings of birth, death, burial, a mention in poem, romance, or essay, an association with disaster, defeat or victory, a toss-up choice among equally advantageous routes for a canal or railroad—any lucky or unlucky circumstance will suffice to give a name a place in the whole world's talk of the day or in the lasting records of history.

Just recall how Thermopylae and Marathon, Hastings and Waterloo came upon humanity's maps. What of Mandalay, Kenilworth and Tipperary? In our own country, how many place names not significant in themselves, have become household and schoolroom words! Ashtabula, still remembered for the horror of a railroad catastrophe! Johnstown, hidden in a valley fork, but swept into history by a devastating flood; Lake Waldon, one of 7,000 little woodrimmed ponds in eastern Massachusetts, but made a world shrine by Thoreau's choice of its quiet shore for his hermitage; Lexington and Valley Forge, Gettysburg, Appomattax and all those picturesque river names that entered the records of stategy in the civil war, Shenandoah, Rappahonock, and the rest. Of all these and a thousand more not one came upon the map for such reasons as account for Chicago Jersey City, Pittsburg and New Orleans.

No place on earth is so lowly or remote that it cannot hope some lucky chance or some thoughtful product will send its name around the world and down the vistas of the future. Just think of champagne and Roquefort, Stilton, Wenzel,

There Is MONEY In WANT ADS. For You

NOW as never before! The great readjustment of all business following the sudden termination of the War offers you a WIDE OPEN OPPORTUNITY to Sell or to Buy.

There exists in nearly every line a SHORTAGE of MERCHANDISE which creates a big field for WANT AD. ADVERTISING of USED Machinery, SECOND-HAND AUTOMOBILES, HOUSEHOLD GOODS, etc., etc.

The RENTING SITUATION, too, is a complete reversal of WAR CONDITIONS. On one hand Manufacturers are CLAMOURING for Factory Space for Peace Time purposes, and with others there is a corresponding FERMENT to UNLOAD factory space rendered useless by the ending of the War. And so it is with Houses and Rooms, Stores and Storage.

All this means MORE CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING.

Furthermore, there exists a badly balanced condition in the DEMAND and the SUPPLY of LABOUR of ALL kinds. This offers great possibilities for HELP WANTED and SITUATIONS WANTED WANT ADS.

There also exists an ABUNDANCE of WANT AD. business created by the desire to BUY and SELL Businesses, Farm Lands, Real Estates, etc., etc.

Get in on THIS NOW! You LOST MONEY, perhaps, during the War, BUT you can get SOME OF it back if you act promptly.

YOUR FLOORS AND RUGS

Floors, which are the foundations of rooms, are the most neglected and the most important feature; and yet, the last thought of things in the amateur's scheme of interior decoration, says Jane Burr in "Wallpaper."

Too often the person who has decorated and furnished his own home is ready to die of exhaustion after the walls, hangings, and furniture have received careful attention. Too often his money, as well as his patience, has given out, and any old rug or floor covering is thrown over the floors in the hope that no one will notice them.

But everyone will notice! Floors are the ballast of a house. They hold it down and preserve its dignity. Intuitively, one lowers one's eyes upon entering a strange house, and the effect of good or bad taste is electrical. If floors are too loud and garish, they jump up at one. If they are too dull and cold, they repel; floors are often the keynote of the room.

Floors, whether stained, stone, tile or painted, should never shine. They should be waxed and rubbed down, so as not to obtrude, as do most of the hideous yellow oak ones in our modern apartments. Inlaid or parquet floors are, like a puzzle, distracting to the eye. Wood does not grow in fancy, unmatched little squares; it grows long and straight and should be used naturally and not glued together, in a checkerboard. Tile and marble and brick, being by nature of small area, do not shock the sensibilities when made into a floor, though yellow colours and simple designs are their only excuse for existence.

There is no floor so old that it cannot be planed down and painted three or four times into the envy of the neighbourhood. Sage green, dark brown and even deep yellow floors can be used successfully with light green, tan and cream wallpapers.

No matter what the floor is made of, never wash it with kerosene or rub it down with oil. The soap and water process is the only one that will save clothes and rugs from ruination. If the floor looks dull and grey after its bath, a coat of wax rubbed in will last for weeks to come, and the dust may be removed during the interim with one of the modern almost greaseless mops.

Once one has settled the kind of floor desired the next step is the covering to go over it. Only in the rarest instances is a large floor devoid of furniture.

Why does the house decorator not make a little stage set on a board and there try out his "effects" before a purchase? Every theatrical producer does that before he buys an inch of "properties" for the scenes of his play.

To prepare such a "stage," take an old hat box with four sides, and remove one of them. Pin the hat box down to the board, and paper the walls with the wallpaper chosen for a certain room. Next paper the lid with a lighter shade, and place it like a ceiling over the walls. A set of doll's furniture may be had for ten cents, and each piece covered with a sample of the upholstering that will eventually be used in that special room. Crude pasteboard furniture may be cut out and placed to fill in. Even pictures cut out of mail order catalogues will assist in helping one make up his mind as to colour, arrangement and position of each furnishing.

Remember, that thus preparing a "stage" of each room is not time wasted, but the process that is gone through before any play is ever staged, and also the means by which the paid decorator thinks out beautiful combinations for his patrons.

No matter how carefully one plans a room in his mind, there is always a shock when it is finished, and a doleful, "I didn't dream it would look like this." Why take chances with a surrounding which is to be one's home for many months or years to come? I.e: each home decorator try the above plan first.

It is even possible to try out rugs on the miniature sets as every catalogue has coloured prints that can be cut out and pinned to cloth stretched on the board floor of the "stage," or pieces of fabric may be used instead.

PACKERS AND ORIENTALS CITY LEAGUE WINNERS

DE LAVAL BEATEN 7 TO 3 BY MANAGER SOLOMON'S TEAM, WHILE MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL WON FROM THE GREAT WAR VETERANS BY 9 RUNS TO 5—DOUBLE-HEADER IN CITY LEAGUE SERIES.

The two leading teams in the City League race had little trouble in winning their games in Saturday's double header at Riverside Park, even if they did have to come from behind in both cases to turn the trick. The Orientals beat De Laval 7 to 3 in the first game ,while Matthews-Blackwell won from the luckless War Veterans by 9 to 5 in the second engagement. The fans seemed to regard the results of the two games as foregone conclusions, judging by the attendance, which was very small for a Saturday afternoon double-header.

The wildness of Neary, who was the De Laval pitching selection, with the effective work on the rubber of Mulhern for the Orientals, made the first game easy for Manager Solomon's outfit, who thereby hung up their fourth straight win. De Laval took an early lead, thanks to some loose fielding on the part of the Orientals, but after the third innings were at the mercy of Mulhern who mixed an effective curve with lots of smoke and retired ten of the Separators by the whiff route. Only six hits were made off his delivery and three of them were scratchy. On top of his good pitching, Mulhern fielded his position in exceptionally smart style as a glance at the box score shows.

Neary started the game for De Laval, but went to pieces in the third innings when he passed four men and hit another, which with an error by Dugan, was enough to give the Orientals three runs. His control was equally bad i nthe fourth and he was finally yanked after giving four more passes. Three runs were already in when Prest succeeded him, and after the relief pitcher had wild-pitched in another counter he stopped the scoring for the rest of the game.

De Laval got two in the second. Prest scratched ah it on a roller down the first base line which rolled into fair territory. While Neary fanned, Prest stole second. Fitzgerald walked and dthen started to steal second, running Prest off. The "bone" turned out to De Laval's advantage, however, for Kirn threw badly to Phelan, and the latter heaved badly to the plate, Prest scoring and Fitzgerald going to third. Lipsett fanned. Phelan fumbled Dugan's grounder, Fitzgerald scoring.

In the third Bergoine got a life when Head's throw hit him, and stole second and third. Rose fouled out to Kirn. Cavanah walked, the fourth ball being a wild pitch, on which Fitzgerald scored. Barrie flied to Clancy and Prest rolled to Mulhern. There was no more scoring for De Laval.

The Orientals tide the score in their half of the third. Head walked and Mulhern also drew a pass. Bergoine threw wild to second and Head went to third. Cherrett walked, filling the bases. Kirn hoisted to Barrie. Clancy was hit, forcing in Head. Dugan let Kenneally's grounder get away and Mulhern and Cherrett scored. Phelan popped to Cavanah. McCarney walked, but McLeod rolled to Barrie.

The Orientals won out in the fourth. Head and Mulehrn walked to start with and advanced on Cherrett's sacrifice. Kirn's sacrifice fly to centre scored Head. Clancy walked and stole second. Keanneally's single to right scored Mulhern and Clancy, Fitzgerald helping with a wild throw to the plate. Phelan walked and stole second, and Prest succeeded Neary in the box. A wild pitch let Kenneally score, but McCarney flied to Rose for the third out. Prest held the Orientals scoreless for the balance of the game. The score:

THE SECOND GAME.

The Veterans got the jump on the League leaders in the second game by scoring four runs in the first innings, but the Packers, undismayed, started out to carve down the lead, and by the end of the fourth were in front by 6 to 4. They had no trouble in keeping ahead and the figures were 9 to 5 at the finish. The Veterans trotted out three new players, in Cobb, Cupoli and Murphy, and outside of the fourth innings when errors helped the Packers to get five counters, they played much better ball than usual.

Matthews-Blackwell's bad innings was the first and they played good ball after that poor start. Frost was on the rubber and hung up his his sixth City League victory, keeping the Vets' nine hits well scattered. The Packers pulled off two double plays in good style. The shower that broke loose in the fifth innings threatened to wind up the game, but it was soon over and the nine innings were completed.

The Vets started with four runs. Murphy was safe on Butcher's fumble and Cupoli singled to centre. Foley's scratch hit, an error by Hagerman on Alan Wade's grounder and a sacrifice fly by Legros sent a quadette of counts over.

The Packers got one back in the second. Hagerman hit safely. Jackson flied to left and Holyman lifted one to Murphy who muffed, but recovered in time to force Hagerman. Holyman worked his way around and scored on a wild pitch.

Matthews-Blackwell took the lead in the fourth. With one gone, Lefave was walked and Hagerman singled to right. Legros fumbled Jackson's grounder and then threw wild to third, Lefave scoring. A passed ball scored Hagerman. Jackson stole home with the tying run. Holyman had grounded out and Shaughnessy was sent to first on the catcher's interference, Wade's miss of Forst's grounder and Adams' single sent two more runs in.

Lowe's single, a stolen base and a wild peg accounted for another Packer run in the fifth, while in the seventh an error by Murphy on Butcher's grounder, a stolen base and a wild pitch sent in another, while Adams' hit blossomed into a counter in the eighth.

The Veterans did not score after the first innings until the ninth, when F. Lebarr walked and Daynard singled. Murphy lined to Hagerman and Daynard was doubled off first, Cupoli's single advanced Labarr to third, and he scored on a double steal. Foley fanned to end the innings.

GATE RECEIPTS WILL BE BELOW HALF A MILLION

NO TRUTH IN REPORT THAT WILLARD IS DYING.

(Canadian Press.)

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 7.— Official check of the total gate receipts and attendance at the Jack Dempsey-Jess Willard heavyweight championship contest is expected to be completed before to-night. Tex Rickard, promoter, said he would be "considerably surprised" if the gate receipts exceeded $800,000. Rumours persisted to-day that Willard was dead or was dying from effects of the punishment Dempsey gave him. Newspaper offices were besieged with telephone calls from Cleveland and other Ohio cities as a result. One report was that the dethroned champion had died from a burst blood vessel. Another report was that he had gone insane. There is no truth in these reports.

PORT HOPE GUIDE

Every team in the Central League seems to be due for one bad innings during the season and the Peterboro ball tossers selected July 4th for their ascension. It was the play off with Peterboro and Belleville which was ordered by the Executive and there was little to chose between the two teams, although it must be admitted that Belleville had the edge on Peterboro a little. Their outfielders covered every foot of ground and never lost a chance. Aside from the fourth innings it was a splendid exhibition of ball. In this innings Peterboro made just enough errors to allow Belleville to put the game on ice and although Peterboro came with a rally in the eight they could not overtake the lead. Goyer pitched a strong game for the winners, allowing only two hits and had several strike outs to his credit. Kirn for Peterboro, also did good work in the box and had he received the gilt edge support his opponent did it is difficult to say what the result would have been. The score at the finish was 6 to 3 for Belleville and the large crowd were well satisfied with the exhibition.

So hot was the rivalry between the Peterboro and Belleville baseball clubs that a fire started in the Park during the afternoon. The firemen were called and the blaze soon extinguished.

A patent has been granted for a detachable rifle sight coated with a light reflecting element so it can be seen at night.

LEADING TEAMS WILL CLASH IN CITY LEAGUE

The best game in the City League series to date should be the clash to-morrow night between the two leading teams—the Matthews-Blackwell squad and the Orientals. The Packers need the game to give them a commanding lead for the City League flag, while on the other hand the Orientals can put themselves on an even footing by winning a decision to-morrow night.

Solomon's crew have won four games in a row, and with Kirn on the rubber for them, expect to extend their string to five; while on the other hand the Packers are equally confident that they will stop the Orientals' winning streak.

The games between the two teams have been the big feature of the City League. Th firs ttime out the Packers won by 3 to 0 in a pitchers' battle between Frost and Kirn, in which the former did not allow a hit and Kirn held his opponents to four scattered ones. In the second game the Orientals won by 5 to 1. It was 1 to 0 in their favour when Huycke broke his arm and was replaced by Frost. Matthews-Blackwell tied the score in that innings, but in the last two sessions the Orientals sent four runs over. Kirn held the Packers to four hits in this engagement.

To-morrow night's game should be equally exciting. It will be called at 6.45 o'clock.

Reading the advertisements should be as much a part of your day as reading the news columns.

The advertisements in your favorite newspaper are a daily record of what your local merchants have laid in store to meet your needs and add to your comfort.

They tell you what the manufacturers of these goods, who are constantly striving to please the public, have done to add to your advantages and comforts. The news, while always interesting, may often concern you only in a general way.

The advertisements are almost certain to tell you something that may mean a great deal to your home life or your business and social welfare.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Modern Wizard

By OTTILIA FRANCES PFEIFFER

(Copyright, Western Newspaper Union.

Morris Drake lived by his wits as a man of speedy impressions. He had in him a streak of the inventive and one success in that line, although small one, had made him a dreamer and a speculator. At a time when the water of the town he lived in, supplied by a river, became muddy and unsanitary, Morris devised a filter from which he derived quite a handsome amount.

After that for two years he failed to strike anything tangible, and one fair summer morning, looking for something to turn up, left a little village, tramped a good ten miles, came within sight of the spires and steeples of a small city, and turned into the yard of a rickety house, where a well invited. Just beyond the rude habitation were the ruins of a large factory building. A great mound of refuse arose hill-high near by.

Morris quenched his thirst and sat down on the doorstep of the kitchen of the house to rest. He had no idea that the house was inhabited.

"Hello!" he exclaimed, as sounds from within reached his hearing. "Some one is crying, and it's a woman."

Low, but intense sobbing echoed from beyond the door. Morris was very human and sympathetic. He pushed open the door, which stood slightly ajar. He looked into the kitchen. Seated on a rickety chair he made out a swaying figure. It was that of a girl not more than eighteen, who seemed immersed in poignant, uncontrollable grief. Morris impulsively started toward her. She looked up as she heard his footsteps, shrank a trifle and arose to her feet.

"Don't be frightened," spoke Morris abruptly. "I don't belong here, and didn't know that anybody did. I heard you crying. Are you in trouble, little woman?"

She scanned his face in a certain beseeching way.

By bits she told of her troubles, encouraged by an attentive listener. The friendly nods and earnest face of Morris seemed to give her courage. She was Alice Wayne and had lived with her father in the old house until a year previous, having no mother. Mr. Wayne owned the bleak, untillable land around the wreck of a [illegible] and leased it for 16 years as building site for a factory putting a long list of commodities requiring zinc in their manufacture. The amount paid was small and not sufficient support them. Alice had gone to the city to learn the millinery trade help support her father. Her father had died, the factory had been destroyed by fire. Without a friend in the world, she had returned to find the future facing her without cheer or promise.

"I don't know what to do," she told Morris. "The land here and the little house is mine, but somebody has made free to take most of its furniture away. The lawyer says the land is absolutely worthless. All the same this seems like home to me. If someone could advise me what to do!"

Morris regarded the sad-faced, confiding girl with infinite pity and interest. Their mutual loneliness appealed to him powerfully. He was a quick thinker. His eyes bore a glowing token of interest as he asked her this and that about the town and its possibilities for work. He pricked up his ears as she casually referred to the great mound. It represented an accumulation of zinc scraps from the factory of more than three years.

"I want to look over that big heap," he told her, and went out, did so, returned, and regarding Alice Wayne with speculative eye, and too with a certain latent excitement of manner.

"I suppose everything on the land here goes with it—that rubbish heap included?" he asked.

"Why, yes," she replied, "the lawyer told me so. But what a strange question!"

"Is it?" smiled Morris with a chuckle. "Little woman, we are two lonely souls. Suppose you make me your business agent? I have made a great discovery. If you will place full confidence in me, and follow my directions, I may work a great thing out of this barren outfit. Have you any money?"

"Very little, indeed," sighed Alice.

"Very well, I have fifty dollars. I am going to divide it with you. Then you go to the town and stay in some respectable boarding house, while I work out my plan. Oh, don't hesitate! You shall pay back the advance and a good percentage for my services."

Morris Drake had, indeed, made a discovery, or rather he had formulated a plan for turning zinc into gold! The war had increased the consumption of zinc to a point where tin had to be used as a substitute. Scrap zinc had risen to 37 cents a pound, being employed for eyelets and minor utilities, and, with so much soft coal being used, ground zinc scraps were used to burn out sooty chimneys.

There were rolls and rolls of zinc [illegible] refuse, and Morris found a speculator to finance its sale. He came to Alice radiant one day to announce that there was money enough already paid down to make her comfortable for life.

"Little woman, you are a real heroine, and I am a man of business once again," he said. "What say you to a life partnership?" And what could Alice say but "Yes," for she had loved him from the day they so strangely met.

The Mysterious Gift

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

In the little transfer depot of a railroad junction, Rolfe Dayton sat muffled up in his overcoat directly behind a bench containing five persons. There were an old man, a woman, evidently his wife, two little children and a young girl, whose grace and beauty were radiant even in the fitful glow of a spluttering oil lamp. Dayton was waiting for a southbound train, the little family group, he gathered from their conversation, for one bound in the opposite direction. Hinton had been named as their destination and Dayton was interested, for that was where he resided.

He was a young man not more than thirty, but some adverse experience seemed to have clouded his life, to judge from a certain world weariness in eyes and face. He was courteous to those he came in contact with, but making no close friends or acquaintances.

From what Dayton overheard he was able to surmise that the man was Robert Lane, who had recently failed in the city, broken down in health, and he acted hopeless and discouraged.

The little ones were the orphan children of a married daughter. What attracted the attention of Dayton was the infinite pains of his other daughter, whom he called Arline, and of his wife to cheer him and make him comfortable.

"Only a few hours more, father dear," spoke the young girl soothingly, "and we will be in our new home. Then you must take a long rest and burden your poor tired soul with nothing for weeks and weeks."

"And what is to keep us all from starving in the meantime?" asked the old man with a dismal sigh.

"Oh, we have arranged for everything!" answered Arline haughtily. We have been very fortunate to secure that cheap, pretty house in Hinton. The rent is scarcely anything; the agent has been most kind in seeing that our furniture was received and put in place. I shall find work, mamma can help out with her sewing and oh! the agent writes me there is a large lot for gardening and chicken houses and buildings for a cow and all that."

"Which looks very fine," submitted the invalid, "but it costs money to stock up such a place."

"Yes, and fast as I earn money we will proceed to do it. If we have to buy only one chicken at a time," declared Arline buoyantly. "Oh! indeed, it will be rare delight to gradually build up our lives now all over and forget our old troubles."

Their train arrived, and Dayton, impelled by his strong human interest in these unfortunates, hastened to relieve Arline of one of the two satchels she carried. She bestowed a grateful word for the courtesy. Dayton stood watching the train till it was gone.

The new life began for the Lanes amid novel and engrossing experiences. Even the depressed father took an interest in life. They got the garden plat ready for planting meantime, and one morning little Edna came rushing into the house quivering with excitement.

"Oh, santy!" she cried wildly, "the chicken house is just full of the most beautiful hens and roosters you ever saw!"

Arline hurried out to the rear of the lot. She could scarcely believe her eyes. Nearly thirty of the fowl tribe were visible where there had been emptiness. When had they come—who the generous donor? The mystery puzzled and disturbed, but as the days went on no explanation materialized and the Lanes were content to enjoy the gifts that the gods had bestowed.

One day Dayton passed the house and Arline learned that he was their landlord. He bowed politely on that occasion, on another paused to have a little chat with Mr. Lane and one afternoon when there was a circus in town took the two little ones to the entertainment. He seemed to experience a pleasure in witnessing the perfect harmony, industry and contentment of the happy home group.

He smiled indulgently as Arline told of her strange acquisition of five poultry and one day the mystery became so no longer. Some one had left the chicken yard gate open. Arline's cherished brood was gone. In great trepidation she ran out into the rear lane. In the distance she made out her disloyal guests led by a majestic chanticleer making for new feeding grounds. As she caught up with them, breathless and excited, they filed into the garden and then into the chicken yard of Mr. Rolfe Dayton.

He himself smiled at her pretty confusion from the house porch. Arline was flushed and embarrassed as the truth flashed over her mind.

"You were the generous donor—" she burst forth in her impetuous way.

"Why not? with plenty to spare," he challenged with a smile. "I will see that the truants are returned to your excellent charge. In fact I will myself get them back where they belong."

Which he did, and enjoyed the fun and excitement of chase and capture, and Arline joined him, and Dayton dallied at the Lane home, the task accomplished and came again the next day, and the next.

And, so unconsciously had she won his wearied soul from its loneliness that he realized that he had found something worth living for and told Arline so one day, and she was glad.

Our Next Governor-General

IT is understood that the Duke of Devonshire will shortly retire as Governor-General of Canada and the London Daily Mail says that the office will be offered the Earl of Athlone, brother of the Queen, who would have succeeded the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General of Canada had it not been for his duties with the British army.

The Duke of Devonshire was appointed Governor-General of Canada on June 27, 1916, and was installed in office on November 11, 1916. The Earl of Athlone was born April 14, 1874, is the son of the Duke of Teck, and was formerly known as Prince Alexander of Teck. He was educated at Eton and later became a general staff officer with the rank of brigadier-general. He served in Matabeleland in 1896 and with the Seventh Hussars in South Africa in 1900, being mentioned in despatches during his service there. He was created Earl of Athlone on July 19, 1917. He was married on February 10, 1904, to Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, daughter of the late first Duke of Albany.

Pluck, business capacity, geniality, and good nature are the chief characteristics of the Earl of Athlone. "That the prince possesses just those qualities which will make him popular in Canada is generally recognized," said London Tit-Bits. "His democratic, unassuming ways will undoubtedly appeal to our overseas cousins."

The earl is a real soldier and would have succeeded the Duke of Connaught but for his active duties at the front. In the army the "Tommies" love him because he has no "side," and knows his business. As a fellow-officer put it, when they went out with the prince's regiment, the Seventh Hussars, and first saw active service in the Matabele War in 1896, "he was not a military clothes-horse, but one who knew what soldiering meant." He was no shirker from "roughing it," and he took risks with the most reckless of our soldiers out there, being on several occasions mentioned in despatches.

A striking illustration of the earl's enthusiasm for soldiering is illustrated by the fact that when the South African War broke out the prince at once volunteered for immediate service, and within forty-eight hours sailed with the Inniskilling Dragoons, who took part in the operations round Colesberg, the routing of Gen. Cronje, the relief of Kimberley, and the march to Bloemfontein.

Of one of the prince's South African fights an interesting story is told. An Australian war correspondent who rode towards [illegible] khaki-clad [illegible] was approached by a young, unassuming man, who was anxious to hear news of the outside world.

"Have you been under fire?" he asked the correspondent.

"I should smile," was the reply, "and I don't much appreciate it. Anybody who likes can have my share."

"We have to go under fire whether we like it or not," said the quiet young Englishman.

"At a salary," chirped the Cornstalk.

The young man shrugged his shoulders and walked away. Then the Australian heard that the unassuming young soldier was Prince Alexander of Teck, as he was then known, and he went back in the direction from which he had come.

That, however, was just his way. Says one who met him during the war: "I once traveled half a day with him, not knowing who he was. Then I learned how earnest a soldier the earl is, and how thoroughly versed he is to his profession. He is a good trekker, and a good cross-country, too."

As a boy before he went to Eton, the earl spent his days at Kensington Palace and the White Lodge, Richmond Park, where, with his two brothers and sister, the Queen, he romped and ran like a merry, sandboy. He was her Majesty's favorite, and it was a black day when he first went off to school—a "preparatory" for Eton, for, in spite of the seven years' difference in their ages, the sister and brother were constant companions.

At Eton the earl was known as a good-tempered, jolly fellow, very fond of games, a reputation which he has always maintained.

Princess Alice is a daughter of the late Duke of Albany, and a sister of the reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg. She was married when she was twenty-one years of age. Exactly how much truth there may be in romantic stories that are told of foreign aspirants to the hand of "Princess Alice of Wonderland," as she was called in her younger days, because of her passionate devotion to the works of Lewis Carell, is not known; but it is stated that she early determined, like her cousin the Princess Royal, that she would not marry a foreign prince. Certainly her marriage gave the greatest satisfaction throughout England. The marriage has been an ideally happy one, and there is little doubt that the princess, like her husband, will endear herself to Canadians.

It is characteristic of the princess that she should have been content to act in the humble capacity of kitchen maid at Princess Christian's Red Cross Hospital, near Windsor, where she helped to cook the meals, wash up dishes and took her full share in the drudgery of kitchen work.

MOTHER, INTENT ON SUICIDE, KILLS DAUGHTER BY ACCIDENT

NERVOUS TWITCHING OF MRS. GOTTHALS FINGER DISCHARGES REVOLVER, KILLING CHILD—LONGED FOR A FRIENDLY HAND.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 5.—The accidental discharge of a revolver in the hands of Mrs. Hannah Gotthal sent a bullet through the brain of her eighteen year old daughter, Mildred, at the Hotel Calvert, in Virginia avenue, near the boardwalk here, as the mother, intent upon ending her own life, leaned over to kiss the sleeping girl goodbye.

The girl, more than ordinarily beautiful, died instantly. The tragedy was caused by a nervous twitch of the hysterical woman's fingers. Unnerved by the tragedy Mrs. Gotthal screamed and aroused other guests of the hotel, who went to her assistance.

Mrs. Jennie Shore, owner of the hotel, and James Cole, chef, were the first to reach Mrs. Gotthal. She gave herself into their care and was arrested by detectives who arrived a few moments latter. She is now in a critical condition at the county sanitarium at Smith's landing, where she was taken under guard. She shows signs of acute melancholia.

Mrs. Gotthal, widowed two months ago, is the widow of the late George Gotthal, manager of a Philadelphia furniture house. She came here with her daughter two months ago following the death of her husband. Up to that time the family had made their home at No. 536 North Fifty-eighth street, Philadelphia.

Since the death of her husband Mrs. Gotthal, a woman of high literary and musical attainments, has been very nervous, according to the statement of persons stopping at the hotel. From information obtained by Dr. Louis Souder, Coroner's Physician, from Mrs. Gotthal while she was temporarily detained in a cell at the City Jail, she had suffered from suicidal mania for some time and has been contemplating ending her own life.

From her statements and from a "farewell" letter addressed to her daughter, found upon the bed alongside the body of the girl the police are satisfied the tragedy was the result of an accident. They have refused to make any charge against Mrs. Gotthal and at the conclusion of their investigation gave her over to the care of the county authorities.

Son is at Sea.

To add to the tragic situation authorities believe that Eugene Gotthal the seventeen-year-old son and only other child, is somewhere on the high seas, a sailor aboard one of the navy's cruisers. They are attempting to get in touch with him through the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

The letter addressed to the daughter was written while Mrs. Gotthal sat in a window and upon hotel stationery. The envelope was addressed "For Mildred." The letter reads:—

"Milly, My Daring:—

"Goodby, my own dear beloved girl. I love you and Gene more than all earthly things, but must now leave you in God's care. I have tried, oh, so hard, to keep up the fight alone, but it is too dreary, too lonely, and I am so ill I've not slept for weeks. The pains in my head are agonizing. No one knows or cares that for the past six weeks I have been literally dying on my feet.

"Oh, it is so hard to kiss you farewell, but I will close my eyes and do it. Some one will watch over you. Mother is so tired and lonely and all is so dark and hopeless.

Longed for a Friendly Hand.

"I cannot endure it longer, for no one cares and my heart is broken for the lack of a friendly hand or voice. I have always been good to everyone, but no one can help me. I am alone. Be good dear and God will help you.

"While all the world seems joyous and happy, my heart breaks as I gaze upon my darling sleeping and perhaps dreaming of the happy days when the sun of life shall beam its best upon her. I must leave her soon. It is so hard. I cannot face another day of pitiless cold indifference and all aloneness. God, you know how I have suffered, how hard I've tried. Forgive me for rebelling against fate.

"Goodby, my little girl."

IS THE HAPPIEST WOMAN IN STATE

THAT IS WHAT MRS. POE SAYS AFTER TANLAC RESTORES HEALTH—GAINS THIRTY POUNDS.

"The results I have gotten from Tanlac are so wonderful that I feel compelled to tell everybody about it," said Mrs. John Foe, of 601 South Third street, Pekin, Illinois, while in the Sutliff & Case Drug store at Peoria, recently.

"I don't believe," she continued, "anyone could suffer much more than I did before I got Tanlac and my recovery has made me the happiest woman in Illinois. You would hardly believe me when I tell you I have gained more than thirty pounds, but I have and my daughter here with me will tell you the same thing. Why, my stomach was in such bad fix that everything I ate caused me to suffer agony. Time after time during the past fifteen years the gas would press on my heart so that I would faint. Great drops of prespiration would stand out on me and when I regained consciousness I would be as limp as a rag. Lots of times my neighbours would come in, thinking I was going to die. I didn't dare go any place for fear one of these spells would come on me and I wouldn't get home. I also suffered beyond words to tell with rheumatism in my feet and legs and elbows. I couldn't get my shoes on at time for the swelling in my feet and would have to sit for days with my feet on a pillow in a chair, they hurt me so. My elbows were so stiff I could scarcely bend them and the pain was so great that I could hardly use my arms at all. My misery was so awful that I couldn't sleep but little and I have stayed awake many a night suffering and wondering if there was nothing made that could help me.

"I had taken medicine until I was so discouraged and despondent that I didn't care how soon the end came, for I felt that it wasn't far off. My husband urged me to get Tanlac and, oh, how glad I am that I did, for I began to eat and sleep better in two or three days after I began taking it. My troubles have all disappeared now and my recovery is the gladdest surprise that ever came to me. I can eat just anything I want and lots of it and never suffer a particle from it. In fact, my stomach seems to be in perfect condition, as good as when I was a girl, and I haven't had one of those awful smothering, fainting spells since I begin taking Tanlac, and as to the rheumatism, I never feel a sign of it any more. My head used to feel dull and hurt me in the mornings, but that is all gone too, and I don't recokn anyone ever had more cause to feel thankful than I have. It just feels like I owe my life to Tanlac and I only wish I had known about it long ago."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

COULD KNOT THE EQUATOR.

Unexpected Reply From Small Boy Upsets Dignified School Inspector.

The class was at the moment engaged in geography. That is to say, about thirty small boys sat in a state of utter boredom while a little man stood up in front of a map and made thin remarks through a ragged mustache about unimportant facts.

In these circumstances the unexpected entrance of the inspector was almost in the nature of a relief to the weary youngsters.

"Now, my little man," said the inspector in that patronizing tone really learned people always adopt when speaking to children, "can you tell me what the equator is?"

"Yes, sir," said Tommy Stiles, seeing that he was being addressed. "It is an imaginary line drawn round the world."

"Quite right, my little fellow. Now, let us see whether you really understand what that means. Could you, do you think, tie a knot in the equator?"

"Yes, I could, sir."

"Could you, indeed?" answered the learned one in fine scorn. "And what sort of a knot, now?"

"An imaginary knot, sir."

For Others

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.

"Down below freezing point, quite!" lisped Augustus Van Dora, exquisite and lady killer, to a friend at a social function. "Tried to flirt with her, tried to talk to her—she freze me with a look!"

"Yes, Miss' Ada Dalton is sub sure as most occasions," nodded his friend casually. "She has no use for the male sex and little for her sisterhood acquaintances."

Which was, true in a measure, yet under the mask of disdain and indifference there was a heart filled with genuine interest and sympathy where the same were helpful and necessary. It seemed strange to her old schoolmates, but almost at the dawn of early womanhood Ada Dalton appeared to have resolved to devote her life to the welfare of the poor, the downtrodden and the distressed.

Her true philanthropic work began when a well-meaning retired clergyman and his wife established a home for little orphan children gathered from the slums of the city. The clergyman died, and his wife, broken down in health and spirits, went home to her parents. It was then that Ada induced her father to donate a thousand dollars to the charity to bridge over the reconstruction of the same. She interested local church societies, she won upon grasping, hard-hearted Joel Bliss to give a free lease for ten years of a large building that had been abandoned as an unprofitable suburban hotel.

From that time forward Ada was all heart and soul in the project, and within a year had so systematized the same that comfort and happiness were assured for the children under her charge. It seemed to fill her life completely, and the circle of girl assistants she grouped about her came to share her interest and philanthropy.

Joel Bliss was away for his health when there came an election of new officers. Quite casually he was succeeded in the governorship by a local politician who aspired to publicity. When Bliss returned he was wroth and disgruntled. It was said that he had at once canceled his will. Before Ada, with her gentle, persuasive way, could gain an interview and convince him that no disrespect had been intended, he died. She was dismayed when, a month later, his lawyer intimated to her that the prospective legacy had been annulled and that Randal Bliss, a nephew residing in a distant city, was the beneficiary of his estate.

The future prospects of the children's home looked gloomy. There had been a deficit the year previous, and Ada had counted on Mr. Bliss making it up. The institution faced a debt of seven hundred dollars. A part of this she induced her father to provide and she solicited contributions for the residue, but the building required repairs and the furniture needed replacement and she feared for the permanency of the charity.

One day Ada was seated in the office of the home puzzling her tired brain over some provision for pressing bills for fuel and food, when a young man entered the room. She noted at a glance that he was of superior mold. His dignity and courtesy attracted her. He introduced himself without preface.

"I am Randal Bliss," he said. "Of course you have heard my name mentioned as the heir of my dead uncle, Joel Bliss."

Ada nodded, paled, then a quick concern came into her lovely eyes. Did this mean dispossession? If so why should she demur? She asked her visitor politely to be seated. A fire burned in the grate and he gazed into the gloomy embers thoughtfully. He looked up abruptly.

"Miss Dayton," he said in a clear, kindly tone that somehow encouraged her, "I have just come from my uncle's attorney. I find that he has the original will my uncle made, and that only. He recalls, however, that my uncle told him that he had made a later will. This is true. My uncle sent this later will to me. There it is."

Randal Bliss took from his pocket a folded document. "This instrument only," he proceeded, "stands in the way of the dear little cash under your charge receiving ownership to this building and ten thousand dollars. I have been inquiring about your noble charity—and you. They need the benefaction; they deserve it more than I."

"Oh! what would you do!" cried Ada with a vivid start, for Randal Bliss had cast the document into the grate and it was reduced to nothingness. He arose and bowed courteously. "A tribute," he said with earnest tone, "to your noble life work," and was gone.

Ah! for the heart of ice. If nothing else, that flood of joyous tears would have melted it away. Bah sirs! The woman nature, glorified, shone like purest gold, and then to her knees, in a thrilling prayer of gratitude infinite!

It was not in that pure, thankful soul to rest until she had sought out the man who had conferred inestimable blessings upon her beloved charges. She met him on the street, and broken words and tears mingled. His mission at Brookville was completed, but he lingered. Her gentle eyes bade him do so. Her sweet lips later repeated the request, and with the first June roses Ada had a partner in her great work for others.

During the absence of Mr. R. J. Devey on Sunday, Miss Muriel Bridge presided at St. John's organ in a very acceptable manner. This talented young lady conducted both services.

Mendelssohn's sweet style of music is always acceptable and Miss Bridge interpreted the composer's feelings in a praiseworthy manner.

A BABEL OF TONGUES.

The World's Languages Now and What May Be in the Future.

How many men, if asked how many languages there are in the world, could give anything like an accurate answer? The average man's knowledge or ability to speak languages rarely exceeds two besides his native tongue.

It may appear strange, but it is nevertheless true, that there are over 4,000 languages spoken by mankind, while the number of dialects exceeds this. There are more than sixty vocabularies in Brazil, and in Mexico the Nahua is one. There are hundreds in Borneo, and in Australia there is no classifying the complexities. Let us assume that fifty dialects, on an average, belong to each language and we have the colossal total of 200,000 linguistic abilities.

A century hence the probability is that there will only be four languages of importance in the world. Central Europe may produce a newer and more straightforward German language. Imperial English may reign alone over the North American continent, while a more businesslike Spanish will be used in South American states. Then Russia may take on some more rich Slavonic dialect, which will blend the races of eastern Europe and central Asia into a harmonious federation. So that in future these four languages will enter into what may be a never ending competition.—Exchange.

ERRORS OF SCULPTORS.

Statues in England Noted For Crude Blunders in Modeling.

Some of the statues in public places in England are notable for certain unique symbols or glaring errors in modeling. One of the former kind is the statue of Sir Anthony Ashley at Wimborne, Dorset. Carved out of a stone at the feet of the figure is a faithful representation of a cabbage, indicating that Sir Anthony introduced the vegetable from Holland into England.

Even more peculiar is the carving on one of the four panels on the Queen Victoria statue in George square, Glasgow. The subject is the knighting of James Anderson, the lord provost of that city. As no sword was available the ceremony was performed with an umbrella, and the substitute has been copied by the sculptor. This same statue is incorrect in one important detail. The stately pose of the horse is negatived by the position of the hind legs—a position which is only possible when a horse is racing at full speed.

Perhaps the worst equestrian statue in the world is that erected in front of Trinity college, Dublin, to the memory of King William III. Among other faults, one of the forelegs of the horse is straight and the other curved decidedly, yet both hoofs must rest side by side on the pedestal.—London Spare Moments.

The Anemone.

The anemone, according to mythology, sprang from the blood of Adonis mingled with the tears which Venus shed over his body.

Who Are the Kurds?

Who are the Kurds? When a delegation of Kurds suddenly appeared at the Peace Conference asking for the freedom of their historic land, as a story goes, many of the attaches and newspaper men were wholly at a loss to know who these Kurds might be.

Kurdistan, a hill country north of the Tigris river, is the home of a brave, virile, largely illiterate series of tribes and clans known as the Kurds. They are descendants of the Carduchi, the ones Xenophon and his Ten Thousand had much difficulty on their march across these same hills on their way to the sea.

Nominally they are Moslem in religion, but they have retained many elements of heathen worship. Some of their tribes are "Yezidi" (Yezidis), or devil worshipers. They are home-loving, frugal and capable of enduring great hardships. They practice strict monogamy and their women share in the family life.

The Kurds have furnished at least one great man in history, for Saladin, the chivalrous leader of the Saracen hosts, the conqueror of Richard Coeur de Lion, was from this people.

Roughly speaking, Turkey is divided into five great provinces, or districts—and Kurdistan is one of these. The others are Anatolia, Armenia, Mesopotamia and Syria.
